There were no choice steers on the market and the top price realized for good ones was $7 and the lower grades sold from that down to $5.25 per cwt. Choice fat cows brought $5.50 and the commoner kinds from that down to $3.50 per cwt. A few good bulls sold at $4.25, but the bulk of the trading in them was done at $3.50 to $4.00 per cwt. as to quality.

A feature of the trade continues to be the very strong feeling in the market for hogs and prices are steadily tending towards a higher level, there being another advance to-day of 25c to 50c per cwt., making a net rise for the week so far of 40c to 65c, which is due to the light supplies coming forward and the keen demand for the same from packers, consequently an active trade was done with sales of selected lots at $8.60 to $8.90 per cwt., weighed off the cars.

The market for calves is weaker and prices have scored a further decline, owing to the steady increase in the receipts. At the lower prices the demand is good and sales were made at from $1.50 to $6 each, as to size and quality. There were only a few medium quality sheep offered, which sold at 4½c per lb. A firm feeling prevailed in the market for lambs under a good demand at $7 to $7.25 per cwt. A few spring lambs were brought in, which met with a ready sale at $8 each.

Paris, March 21.—Alluding to what it calls the nervousness of Germany over the speech on the British naval budget, delivered by Winston Spencer Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, Le Temps declares that the great powers at the present moment are passing through a feverish stage and their internal difficulties are such that they have a common interest not to create fresh difficulties of an international character.

The newspaper expresses the opinion that Mr. Churchill said nothing which Sir Edward Grey, the British Foreign Secretary, had not already said three years ago, although Mr. Churchill adopted a sharp tone in saying it, which was very disagreeable to Germany.

'TWAS MUDDY A YEAR AGO

Contrast in Condition of Streets With the Present—Commissioner Evans Has Trenches Ready For Freshets.

SNOW TO-DAY A SET-BACK

This time last year Street Commissioner Evans had men scraping mud from the streets. This is just another indication of the versatility of the weather man. Snow followed this early beginning of spring and there was no consistency to Old Probs' plans. Mr. Evans remarked to-day that with an abundance of snow now the real child weather may be uninterrupted once it does arrive.

To-day's weather promised to fill up the trenches that the city's men have been preparing during the past two weeks to carry off the water. The money spent in this direction has been somewhat larger than usual owing to the amount of snow and ice that had formed on the streets. The number of labourers engaged was sufficient to practically attend to the needs of the whole city. This morning's snow, however, had filled in most of the trenches, but as it was light no trouble was expected from it. If necessary they can be easily [illegible] days of continuous mild weather will do a great deal to make the work on the streets effective. The street work provided employment for many whom it was thought needed it, and to-day's surplus may not b entirely unwelcome to them.

SHAMUS O'BRIEN

At the Princess Theatre Friday and Saturday, March 22 and 23

Shamus O'Brien was a patriot, and in fighting for his country places himself in the position of a rebel with a price on his head. He is hiding in the hills, but anxious to attend a dance at which his friends and his sweetheart will be present, sends word that he will be there.

Arrangements are made for the dance, and Shamus surprises the guests by appearing in a surprising manner.

Michael O'Farrel, who has not met with success in his suit for the hand of Aileen Brennen, the sweetheart of Shamus, learns of his whereabouts, and notifies the Redcoats.

They reach the barn, where the dance is taking place, too late to capture the patriot, who escapes to the hill, only to return as the girl of his heart is being insulted by Captain McDonald. O'Brien floors the officer and makes a thrilling escape, only to be again given up by O'Farrel when he is visiting his mother.

He is then taken to prison and stands trial. He is convicted and the day of execution set.

As this draws near, his mother makes a plea to the parish priest for help, which is readily given, and through a ruse Shamus is saved and the picture closes as the mother, son and sweetheart sail for America.

Presenting an exciting incident in Ireland's struggle for freedom.

SECOND READING OF THE MINIMUM WAGE BILL

May Be Trouble in Getting the Measure Through as Government Supporters Are Not United on the Question---Meanwhile Britain's Naval and Commercial Supremacy is Threatened.

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, ENG., MARCH 21.—(4 o'clock, English time)—With between three and four million workers idle, with the whole railroad systems tied up, with tens of thousands dependent on charity, to save them from starvation, with the whole fabric of Britain's naval and commercial supremacy threatened. This is the situation existing to-night as the House of Commons is approaching the consideration of the second reading of the Minimum Wage bill, by which it was hoped the strike settlement negotiations would advance towards fruition. The Liberal Government supporters are by no means united on the measure, themselves. The Labour members met this morning and drafted a number of drastic amendments, which they will try to insert. Asquith's cabinet held an emergency session at 8 o'clock this morning. The presence of His Majesty's private secretary led to the rumour that the King had sent an important message to his advisors. It is not thought that the Cabinet favours any more concessions to the labour men.

Arthur Balfour, who has temporarily resumed the leadership of the Unionist party, met his followers before noon. It was decided, according to report, to endeavour to block the minimum wage bill in the Lords if it passed the Commons. It is believed the Nationalists will stick to the Government on the division to-night, so that in spite of a possible defection of the Labourites, the measure would carry in the Commons.

LONDON, ENG., MARCH 21.—Evening papers of both parties say the Asquith government will resign if the minimum wage bill is defeated. The Daily Mail declares it is already dead and that Liberal agents throughout the kingdom have been warned to prepare for an election.

In a vigorous speech before the House of Commons, crowded in benches and gallery to-night, former Premier Balfour scathingly criticised the government for what he called the colossal revolution of forcing the minimum wage bill through the Commons in less than a week, but intimated that while the Unionists would force a division on such government methods, it would be impossible to add the confusion of a general election to the horror of the strike. From this it is gathered that the opposition will not obstruct the minimum wage bill in the committee or House of Lords.

DIVORCE OF COUNTIES OF DURHAM AND NORTHUMBERLAND MAY BE RESULT

Port Hope's feelings toward Cobourg for the latter's action in refusing a hospital for the counties as outlined in the late John Helm's will are such that the separation of the two counties, Northumberland and Durham, may be the result. The Port Hope Guide, speaking for Durham's interests, says:

Our only hope is a permanent division of territory—there is now a great division of interests and the pie is always cut to suit Northumberland; we do not have a look in on anything; can't spend our own money; can't even have a bridge fixed unless Northumberland allows it; can't have a say as to who the county officers shall be, for their vote is 22 against our 16, consequently the improvements and permanent good work is done to the east and the plums are fed to Cobourg people.

In this hospital business every means and argument was used to defeat the purpose of the late John Helm, even to producing a straw offer of $50,000 to establish a Counties Hospital in the farthest eastern point in Northumberland, instead of almost on the boundary of the two, as the Helm Homestead, and this offer from an alleged source which people who think they know believe would not put up $50.00 as an inducement. Anything to beat Durham—especially the township of Hope and Port Hope.

Hope has been the patient good milch cow for the Counties for all these years; paid its way, never made a request for anything until now, when it is almost insultingly refused.

A few years ago Victoria and Peterborough Counties were united. Mr. J. D. Smith, now residing in Port Hope, was one of the several to take the first step towards dividing those Counties. Can anyone say that it was not the wisest thing that could have taken place for both Counties? Would either Peterborough or Victoria agree to reunite? Not on your life, and it is high time that Durham and Northumberland were divorced.

"Sore"—any sane man or community would be sore under the circumstances. If the soreness only results in the needed amputation of one county from the other, it will be the only good that will come out of it.

The provision of the will that $140,000 be spent for a hospital for the two counties was defeated and Cobourg accepts $20,000 instead for its own hospital and $60,000 goes to a Toronto Hospital, and Port Hope's dream of a big hospital for the counties has vanished. Hence the strained relations between the two rival lake front towns.

BROCK STREET RINK CLOSED ICE REMOVED TO-DAY

After a most successful season, Brock Street Rink, as far as ice-skating and hockey are concerned, was closed last night. To-day, a staff of men have ben engaged in removing the ice from the rink, and in a few days the whirr of the roller wheels will take the place of the noise of the steel blades. Since Saturday, Dec. 30, when the first hockey practice was held, there has been something going on in the arena every night, the number of hockey matches breaking all previous records. It has been a great season as far as good ice conditions go, as nearly every game has been played on fast ice, and in no case has the surface been so bad that the rink had to be closed. There are some skates, sticks and other articles at the rink, which should be removed at once, and Manager Jack Thirnbeck requests the owners of this property to attend to it without delay. He will be at the rink for the balance of the week, but during the day time only.

THE CITY'S BILL HEARD

Private Bills Committee Discusses Peterborough's Request For Power to Expropriate Water Powers and Development Plant.

OPPOSITION IN EVIDENCE

Special to The Examiner.

TORONTO, MARCH 21.—The petition of the City of Peterborough for power to expropriate water powers and electrical development plants throughout the County of Peterborough, was the chief subject considered by the Private Bills committee of the Legislature this morning. The city asked that certain power companies be bound by an agreement as to basis of arbitration which provided that the corporation might take over the works and property of the companies without making allowances for prospective profits of franchise rights.

Hon. Adam Beck spoke on behalf of the municipality. When the by-law had been voted upon, the Hydro-Electric Commission had been communicated with, and he knew that the people had felt in voting for it that they could at any time avail themselves of the opportunity to take over the distributing plant when the commission was ready to supply power from its system. In the meantime the Peterborough Light and Power Company had gained control of all other companies operating in the County, creating a virtual monopoly. But the people had voted ten to one for Hydro-Electric power and they would surely get it.

Strachan Johnston, representing the Peterborough Power Company and the Seymour Power Company, which supplied power to the Peterborough distributing plant, opposed the bill on the ground that no municipalities in Ontario should be given power to expropriate such as was not enjoyed by all municipalities. The City of Peterborough now asked power to expropriate everything in the County in the way of water power. And the companies they would drive out of business had already invested five millions in cash. In Peterborough alone $1,315,000 had been spent.

Mr. Beck — "You tell us that all these companies are one?"

Mr. Johnston—"No, they are different companies."

"Oh!" was Mr. Beck's only comment, in a tone of meek surprise.

Mayor Bradburn and Acting City Clerk Hayes spoke for the city. The people had voted to expropriate the distributing plant of the Peterborough Light and Power Company in order that they might have Hydro-Electric power. The city asked for power to expropriate all water powers in the County.

Several members spoke in opposition to the City's claims for control of water powers everywhere in the County, and the opinion seemed to be that the City's application should be confined to the expropriation of the distributing plant and to such water powers as are located within the boundaries of the municipality.

Further discussion of the bill was adjourned until to-morrow morning when more frank statements are looked for from the City and the Company in regard to their respective positions.

CANADA LEADS THE WORLD IN THE PRODUCTION OF CHEESE

Mr. Publow, Chief Dairy Instructor, Discusses Ways and Means of Preparing Cheese for English Market---Reputation Must be Sustained.

"Cheese that is mild in flavour and smooth cutting is the type that the old country trade calls for," said Mr. G. G. Publow, Chief Dairy Instructor for Eastern Ontario, to the Examiner this morning. "The most common complaint is that the cheese is too green, caused principally by shipping the cheese before it has had sufficient time to cure. Better facilities for curing the product at the factories is the only remedy. Canada is at present supplying about seventy-five per cent. of the cheese imports to Great Britain, and if we are to sustain our present enviable reputation in the world's biggest cheese market, we shall have to adopt means to obviate these imperfections."

Conditions As They Exist.

Mr. Publow based his remarks upon the knowledge gained by his recent trip to the old country where, for two months, he studied conditions pertaining to the cheese and butter market in England, Scotland and Ireland. The trip was undertaken at the instance of the Eastern Ontario Dairymen's Association, with a view to securing data that would assist the producer of this country to supply a product that will fulfill the requirements of the consumer across the seas. Mr. Publow's observations extend from the port of entry, where the cheese is received, to the counter of the retailer.

Exports Show Falling Off.

Three grades of cheese were usually marketed in England, varying in price from fifteen to eighteen cents per pound, or a difference of two to four cents per grade. A noticeable feature of the retail trade is that all cheese is sold strictly to grade. He failed to find one instance where a second grade cheese was offered as a first. This did not apply to the dairy trade alone, but was a pleasing feature in all lines of commerce. Food inspection is strict and so are the rules and regulations governing the enforcement of the Inspection Act, which is in force there. There was a shortage of about ten per cent. in the exports of cheese from Ontario last summer, due largely to the drought which prevailed. This shortage was more prominent from Kingston west.

The Butter Industry.

As yet, Canada has not made very much progress towards capturing the butter market, and is not likely to for some time to come. Failure to supply sufficient needs for home consumption is largely responsible for this. The butter shipment, while light, compared favourably as regards quality, with that offered by competitors. The Canadian dairyman had yet considerable to learn in the way of preparing butter for shipment, as the condition in which some of the butter was received at British ports last summer will testify. In some cases the butter was oozing from the boxes, this condition being the direct result of improper cooling prior to shipment. Butter received in this state usually sold at from two to three shillings per cwt. less than it would otherwise have done. Mr. Publow also emphasized the need of having milk delivered in a sweet condition if best results at the factory are desired. This is a duty that devolves upon the farmer, who handles the milk in the early stages of its conversion into a dairy product.

UNITED STATES OFFICIALS BLAME CANADIAN RAILWAYS

Special to The Examiner:

BUFFALO, N.Y., MARCH 21.—Following the complaints from various portions of Eastern and Western Ontario regarding coal shortage, a leading official of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railway said this morning: "We have made a delivery to the Canadian cities and towns of all coal and other freight consigned from the United States just as promptly as the connections of the Canadian railways permitted. They still contend that the Canadian railroads are deficient in facilities and rolling stock.

PALATIAL HOSTELRIES

Further details of the great chain of palatial hostelries, which the Grand Trunk authorities expect to have completed with the opening of the G. T. P. in 1913, are now to hand. Plans for the Edmonton hotel are completed, and the contract is soon to be let. Provision has been made for more than 300 rooms and the total cost will be over $750,000. A similar building is planned for Regina, and one of the finest hotels of the entire series will be built in the vicinity of Mount Robson, while the final link will be at Prince Rupert. All will be furnished and filled out in the same artistic and elaborate manner as the Chateau Laurier in Ottawa, and the Fort Garry now nearing completion in Winnipeg. A grand opening of the entire system is planned for the trip of the first transcontinental train, and it is hoped that negotiations being carried on with the British Government may result in securing His Majesty, George V. as one of its passengers. Such an event would indeed be an auspicious inauguration for Canada's great national line

WAS NEARLY A FISTIC COMBAT

Special to The Examiner.

OTTAWA, MARCH 21.—There was a lively row nearly leading to blows during the discussion of the Grand Trunk bill in the Railway committee of the Commons this morning, when E. W. Nesbitt, of Oxford, accused E. A. Lancaster, of Lincoln, of studied and unnecessary insult to the Liberals when he picked all Conservatives to serve on a sub-committee. Lancaster, defending himself, denied this. The two were about squaring for fisticuffs when Chairman Lennox interfered.

YOUR BABY'S SKIN

Is the most delicate fabric in the world. You may cause it permanent harm by using poisonous mineral ointments for the little rashes and eruptions that every baby suffers from occasionally. Don't take any chances. Use Zam-Buk, the best balm.

Zam-Buk is made from fine herbal extracts, and is free from any harmful poisonous colouring matter. Like the grasses and the flowers, nature has coloured it green. It is nature's own healer!

Most ointments and salves have, as their foundation, various animal oils and fats. Zam-Buk does not contain one atom of animal substance. Most ointments and salves are too coarse to be absorbed by the tender delicate skin of a baby, and remain on the skin an irritating mass. Just put a little Zam-Buk on baby's skin, and see how soon it is absorbed, showing conclusively that the pores of the skin are greedy for it.

Use nothing but Zam-Buk for baby's skin troubles and wash with Zam-Buk Soap.

Zam-Buk should also be used for burns, scalds, eczema, piles, ulcers, etc. All druggists and stores sell at 50c. box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Refuse harmful substitutes and imitations.

Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unparalleled."

THURSDAY, MARCH 21, 1912

NOT A GOOD PRECEDANT.

The grant by the Federal Government of two million dollars subsidy for Ontario's provincial railway is establishing a perilous precedent. Premier Whitney's argument that as Ontario furnishes a large percentage of the Dominion revenue and should get it back pro rata, is an argument more worthy of a hurler than a statesman. But if his argument is seriously taken, it is capable of working both ways. Other provinces which pay a similar share of revenue will make demands which the politically quid-pro-quo Dominion Government that recognizes the obligations of party support will not ignore. It is, therefore possible and extremely probable that other provinces will get a much larger share of Ontario's revenue than is their due, according to the reasoning of Sir James Whitney. While it is natural, while it is human nature to desire to get as much money as possible, Ontario does not need federal assistance to discharge its obligations to itself. This Province has a large revenue, and if that is not sufficient it has ample credit, by virtue of its great resources. The Dominion has an overflowing revenue, but it needs every dollar of it for the provision of the means of national development. The recent tendency of administration and legislation is to ignore the federal principle. The Dominion is invading the provincial domain in various ways, and overlapping provincial functions to a degree that suggests the possibility of the Dominion becoming, in practice, a legislative, instead of a federal union. The wisdom of the Fathers of Confederatin is being impugned.

LEGALITY OF SCHOOLS.

Premier Whitney says that, "legally speaking, there is no such thing as bilingual schools." If this is the case, his government is responsible for this condition. They have been dislegalised by the neglect of the Department of Education to keep them up to the legal standard. By a similar application of Sir James Whitney's childish hair-splitting, there are hundreds of public schools to which a remark that legally speaking, there are no public schools, would equally well apply. Schools where the teaching is done by teachers, without the qualifications the law demands, are not legal schools. The Whitney government boasts that it has increased the expenditure upon education. This may be true, but the government has neutralized this expenditure by neglecting the weightiest matter. Expenditure that does not provide adequate teachers, is wasted; for that is the prime object of all expenditure for educational purposes. Administration that does not provide an adequate supply of teachers is an administration to be condemned. This condition amply justified the declaration of Mr. Rowell, leader of the Liberal Opposition, that "if he were premier, the first thing he would do would be to call for the resignation of the Minister of Education," whose only effective official action consists in his drawing the salary he does not earn.

SELL BY WEIGHT.

On the market of the city of Guelph, potatoes are sold by weight — sixty pounds for a bushel, or ninety pounds for a bag. Even at this, purchasers on the market are often defrauded in weight. One farmer was recently fined for offering short weight bags of potatoes, one of his bags which should contain a a bushel and a half and weighing niety pounds, weighing only 70 pounds, almost half a bushel short. Selling potatoes by weight would be fair to both purchaser and seller. Selling by weight the buyer would get what he pays for; and if different varieties should vary in relative weight and measure, the full value would be given and got. Another article that could with far better reason be sold by weight is the egg. We all know that the variation in the size of eggs is remarkable. During the recent asternalia of high prices, when we paid from 35c. to 40c. per dozen for eggs, we paid an uniform price but did not get uniform value. In a basket of three or four dozen eggs, selections could be made of representative dozens, one of which would be twice as large by weight as another dozen. Some individual eggs would approach the proportions of a goose egg, while others wouldn't stand a very brilliant chance in competition with a pigeon's egg. To be fair, eggs should, above almost any other article, be sold by weight. A standard weight for a dozen of eggs should be defined, and the eggs sold accordingly; then there could be nothing of the dissatisfaction that now prevails owing to the varying size of individual eggs. In this age of high cost of living, householders should get what they pay for, and in fairness, pay for what they get—but no more.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Toronto is not true to name. It refused to appoint a Hogg as Parks Commissioner.

The Attorney-General's Department of Ontario has accumulated a considerable arrears of work. The Grand Jury is looking for Dr. Hawke, the Farmers' Bank Investigation Committee would like to have Dr. Beattie Nesbitt produced, and the Public Accounts Committee would be glad to hear Dr. Merchant's explanation of his explanation regarding bilingual schools.

NEW FRIENDS OF HOME RULE.

(Montreal Herald.)

It seems not a little remarkable that just at the time some in Toronto were fiercely denouncing Home Rule for Ireland as endangering the safety of the Empire, a very pronounced Imperialist as well as distinguished jurist of Great Britain, Sir Frederick Pollock, who has visited Canada in the interest of the scheme of closer Imperial relations which he favours, should have announced his conversion to the principle of Home Rule. In a letter to the Westminster Gazette he recalls the fact that twenty-five years ago he was a convinced Unionist, hoping that Ulster were abandoning their ideas of ascendancy and would work with British statesmen for the improvement of the Irish Government under the Union. Since then the Unionists of Ireland have, he says, done nothing to improve the notoriously absurd methods of administration, have frustrated the schemes of their more generous and far-seeing British allies to ameliorate conditions and have wrecked a moderate scheme of devolution. They have also by their obstructive policy, turned Lord Dunraven, a leading Irish Protestant Conservative, into a Home Ruler. He adds that the action of Sir Edward Carson and his companions at Ulster recently would have completed his own conversion had he not already become a convinced Home Ruler.

PARTY SPOILS EVEN ON COMMITTEES

Rabid Conservative Enters Protest Against Partizan Favouritism

OTTAWA, MARCH 20.—The spirit of political partisanship which has taken hold of the Government and its supporters was strikingly illustrated by Hon. Mr. Emmerson in the House to-night. At the meeting of the Railway committee this morning it was decided to submit the Grand Trunk financial bill, which was due for discussion, to a sub-committee to be appointed. The appointment of the committee of five was subsequently made, every member being a Conservative.

In bringing the matter to the attention of the House Mr. Emmerson pointed out that never before in the history of the Canadian Parliament had such a selection been made entirely from one party. No reply was made to the member for Westmoreland, and the members of the Government party looked far from comfortable.

When the sub-committee, consisting of Messrs. Lancaster, Currie, Aikins, Stevens and Macdonell, appointed by Mr. Lancaster as Chairman of the Railway committee, met, Major Currie took exception to its composition. "In all my experience," he said, "I never saw anything like this before, the minority in the House being entirely unrepresented. The Liberals treated us fairly in the matter when they were in power, and I do not propose to be responsible for their exclusion from this committee. It is an unheard of thing in Parliamentary procedure. The committee can do what it likes, but I will take no responsibility in the matter."

Major Currie also pointed out that the personnel of the committee had also been apparently chosen with a view to handling the bill as they desired.

Upon his protest the committee decided to rise without doing any business.

The Relations Of Employers And The Employed In Britain

The "lower orders" in Britain are mutinous. The railwaymen were in revolt late year. This spring it is the colliers who are dislocating business and forcing millions of people to endure privation that the workers in mines may secure for themselves a living minimum wage. On this side of the Atlantic, while labour conflicts are waged determinedly, and often with far more violence than in Great Britain, or continental Europe, there is not the element of class distinction to add to their bitterness. The labour question in America is one of economics. Caste has little to do with it. In Britain there are hundreds of thousands of people who still regard the workingman as a sort of necessary evil, to be tolerated merely because there are still some things that automatic machinery cannot accomplish. That the first charge upon any industry ought to be rate of wages to the workmen engaged in it such as will enable them to live decently seems a monstrous doctrine.

If anyone imagines this to be an exaggerated statement of the case let him ponder over the following letter received by the Chairman of the London & Northwestern Railway the other day from one of the stockholders to whom he had made an appeal n behalf of the Railway Benevolent Institution:

"I think it is simply disgusting for you to send round this appeal to your wretched shareholders, who are receiving less dividend this year than they ought to, owing to the abominable way the men have behaved, and their grasping avarice, to which you and other directors have so weakly yielded, and which have thereby so seriously reduced our incomes.

"Damn you, I say!"

That outspoken representative of Mammon is typical of a large class in Great Britain. The shareholders of the London & Northwestern Railway have been getting 7¾ per cent. At the very meeting at which the brutal letter was read the usual dividend was declared. What have the workmen been getting? Thousands of them $5.50 and $6 a week. Out of that pittance they have had to pay oftentimes a third for house rent, and keep wife and children on the $4 or so per week remaining after providing for shelter. In such homes meat is still a luxury, and butter is too costly for use. Then men with "grasping avarice" have been insisting on milk for their babies and on shoes and stockings for their elder children. They have been demanding such unheard-of luxuries as accident insurance and a benevolent fund, so that when a foot slips on the rail and the bearers day down their ghastly burden some day in the presence of a newly-made widow, she shall have enough to feed her children for a few weeks till she can get washing to do that will suffice to keep the little home from being broken up.

It is "simply disgusting" that the lower orders should so yearn and so strive, and far more disgusting that the directors and even the august Chairman of the great London & Northwestern should so weakly yield to the "grasping avarice" of their employees. How are the poor rich going to find means for hunting, and yachting, and tobogganing in Switzerland, and spending the winter in Egypt, or backing their fancy at the tables of Monte Carlo if the men who provide their 7¾ per cent. are to get it into their heads that they should have a bathroom in their houses and a week's holiday at the seaside every year?

The revolt of the "lower orders" is dangerous. And it will remain dangerous so long as there are stockholders like the cold-blooded, graspingly selfish 7¾ per cent. Mammon-worshipper who cursed the man who gave him a chance to do good.—The Globe.

SLASHING OUT THE PUBLIC MONEY

Borden Government's Economy Commits Country to 200 Million Dollars This Year

OTTAWA, MARCH 20.—The total railway subsidies provided for in the resolutions of which Hon. Frank Cochrane gave notice last night, amounted to over thirty-one million dollars, including the main subsidies of nearly twenty-three millions for new roads generally, six and one-half millions for the British Columbia portion of the C. N. R. transcontinental line, and two millions for the Ontario Provincial line.

The Government also asks Parliament to vote this session increased subsidies to Manitoba and Prince Edward Island of half a million, and one hundred thousand annually. In addition Manitoba is to get subsidy arrears of over two millions. The main estimates for the coming year total over 150 millions. Supplementary estimates still to come will, it is expected, total over twenty millions. The total expenditure entered upon this session will therefore be considerably over two hundred millions. For a new Government this is certainly "going some."

A FAMILY FIGHT IN PARLIAMENT

Hon. Col. Sam Hughes Under Fire —His Own Comrades-in-Arms Train Their Guns Upon Him—Mutiny in the Ranks

OTTAWA, MARCH 19.—For a few moments to-night the curtain was drawn aside and Parliament was accorded a glimpse of the "cordial" relations which exist between members of the Borden Ministry and their supporters in the House. Mr. Oliver J. Wilcox, Conservative of North Essex, assailed Colonel the Hon. Sam Hughes over the purchase of twelve Ford automobiles for the officers of the Militia Department with a bitterness which brought the House instantly to an expectant silence. He had, he said, three objections to the purchase —namely, the automobiles were not needed and the military staff was already getting sufficient salary for the services rendered; the purchase was not made by tender, but by private sale; and the Government had paid $1,219 more for the machines than the advertised price. "I would not have brought this matter up at all," declared Mr. Wilcox, "if the Minister had not spoken to me as he did when I approached him in room sixteen, but now I absolutely refuse to support it, because it is wrong."

A Frank Statement.

The Minister of Militia rose in wrath. "I will tell the House what occurred," said he. "When we made the purchase, knowing that the Ford machine was manufactured in his (Mr. Wilcox's) riding, I notified him of what we had done. He turned round to me and said: 'Can't you put in a word with that concern to help me?' I told him I would and I notified the agent accordingly. Shortly after he came back to me and said he wanted the contract changed, as the head of the Ford firm was a Grit. I told him that it made no difference, that I knew the employees would be intelligent enough to vote Tory anyway. He then said it would not do; that I must change the contract to some other firm manufacturing automobiles in his riding. I never heard of one of them before. His excuse was that the head of the firm we were dealing with was a Grit. I finally said to him: "I don't know whether he is a Grit or not, and what's more I don't care.' Subsequently I met him again after other things had transpired, and I think he knows what view I take of him."

"Did the member for North Essex complain because the contract was not awarded by tender, as he alleges now?" asked Mr. Macdonald.

"The matter of tender was never even mentioned," re plied Col. Hughes

Cannot Run North Essex.

Mr. Wilcox was on his feet again, "I want to tell the Minister this," he said, warmly, "that he is the only Minister of the Crown who does not consult me on matters affecting my constituency. I saw something in a paper not long ago which sets forth his weakness. During the Coronation ceremonies he was invited on the platform with King George, and immediately he got on the platform he spread himself all over it so that there wasn't room for the King. I want to tell him right now that he's not going to spread it over North Essex without letting me know about it and hearing from me in this House."

Col. Hughes refused to further notice his insurgent follower. Replying to Mr. Macdonald, he stated that the difference in the price to which Mr. Wilcox had aluded was due to the addition of extras for the machines. The regular selling price was $850, while the Government paid because of extras, $951.60 for each machine. He had not asked for tenders, and did not propose to do so in machine best calculated to serve the such matters. He was securing the purpose for which it was designed.

Dr. Pugsley's Lecture.

Hon. Dr. Pugsley rather took the part of the Minister, and commended him for refusing to be bulldosed by Mr. Wilcox. The latter had some time ago publicly declared in the House that he would secure off his own bat the dismissal of a number of Customs officials in his riding. Apparently he, and not the Government, was running things. Dr. Pugsley read the member for North Essex a lecture on his idea of public service, which was manifestly that only Conservatives should be considered when public business was to be transacted.

Mr. Wilcox angrily replied that he had not attempted to bulldose anyone, but that unless he was to be consulted when anything affecting his constituency was concerned he might as well stay at home.

Other Ministers Disgusted.

After a brief repetition by the Minister of Militia that the only objection which Mr. Wilcox made to him in regard to the contract was in effect that "the President of the company was a Grit, and that the contract should therefore be turned over to some other firm," the public washing of the soiled family linen ended. During the whole incident Premier Borden and the other Cabinet Ministers sat glumly in their seats in manifest disgust at this repeated evidence of internal dissension and lack of discipline within the ranks.

Clarke-Graham Cup Summers In Lakefield

St. John's Club Captured the Junior Championship Last Night When They Came From Behind to Beat Jack Thirnbeck's Midgets by 3 Goals to 2.

The St. John's team of Lakefield, are Junior City Champions and holders of the Clarke-Graham trophy for a year.

The Clementville Juniors captured the title last night, when they defeated Jack Thirnbeck's Midgets in the final game by 3 goals to 2, after a nip-and-tuck battle that was anybody's game until the last gong sounded—in fact Lakefield scored the winning goal within a minute of the end of the argument. At half-time the teams were tied, with one goal each to their credit, and with only five minutes to play the Midgets were in front 2 to 1. Then Lakefield came along with two goals and beat Manager Thirnbeck's proteges by a sprint in the stretch.

It was a hard-fought contest all the way, marked by close checking, and vigorous use of the body, and at no stage was anyone allowed to run around loose. The result was not pretty hockey, but it was strenuous going and the players were pretty tired when it was all over. Fortunately the ice was in much better shape than on Tuesday night. The drop in the mercury had hardened the surface, but it was rough and uneven, and the players frequently overskated the rolling rubber or missed passes because the puck refused to slide evenly. Neither team showed much combination—in fact, Lakefield never attempted to pass and the Midgets were not much better. They broke away together, especially in the first half and a little of the Bear Cat brand of passing would have given them enough goals at that stage to more than land the Cup.

The Lakefield bunch had weight all along the line—in fact they were a pretty husky aggregation, considering that the age limit in the League is under eighteen years. They had beef enough for a junior O. H. A. seven and were not a bit backward in using their brawn either, and tore into the Midgets with heavy body-checks all through the piece. Forwards and defence, alike, showed proficiency in body-checking, and the lighter Midgets were jolted around in grand style. There was speed along with the weight on the visitors' line-up and they did some nice individual work while their defence methods were very effective.

The Midgets had a shade the best of the argument during the first half of the doings and had they worked together better when getting in close should have won the game then and there. Half a dozen times they were three in a row well into the Lakefield inner line but the man with the puck invariably failed to pass, and golden chances were thrown away. This is not to be wondered at, however, as the Midgets have only been together for a week, and have had little opportunity to develop team work. The youngsters showed promise and some of them should be ripe for the Junior O. H. A. ranks next season.

The second half showed Lakefield taking command of the situation. Although the Midgets were the first to score and took the lead, the visitors came right back at them and for the last ten minutes had the Thirnbeck crew pretty well bottled up. Dwyer saved on half a dozen occasions, but finally a shot drifted through a tangle of legs and sticks for the tying goal and a few moments later a lucky shot carromed into the corner of the net, glancing off Davidson, and Lakefield had landed the game.

For Lakefield, Sabatino was probably the star. He had lots of speed and his rushes were well timed and dangerous. In addition, he scored two out of the three goals. Hill made some nice stops in the nets, and Cullen and Nolan were effective on the defence.

For the Midgets, the most effective work on the forward line was contributed by Barrie, who tore off some telling rushes down the boards. He was always working and although handled pretty vigorously by the Lakefield defence, kept coming in. Dwyer, in the nets, made some nice saves, and Davidson and Callaghan checked strenuously.

The Midgets were the first to score. Shortly after the game opened, Callaghan got away with a nice rush, and centred neatly to Carew who heaved the rubber past Hill from close in. A few moments later Carew missed a golden opportunity when he shot wild on a nicely placed pass from Barrie. Then Lakefield took a hand in the proceedings and Sabatino, by a nice rush down the side and a scoop shot, fooled Dwyer, and the score was tied. It remained at 1-1 until well after half-time. Then Barrie sifted one past Hill from a scrimmage, and the Midgets were once more in front. Lakefield started to press and for a few minutes Dwyer was a busy man. Then Sabatino shot from well out for a goal and then a shot from Pimmett which hit Davidson and bounced into the nets, broke up the game.

Fred Kelly was a most satisfactory referee.

The teams lined up as follows:

Among the names already suggested are "Beavers," "Bear Cats," "Doves," and "Quakers."

Two persons have submitted the name "Quakers," one of them remarking "I would suggest the name 'Quakers' as lots of people call this the Quaker Oats City."

A youngster adds "wishing you success in your endeavour to carry away the Canadian League trophy."

Another contributor says, "I have selected the name "Peterborough Doves". Inasmuch as their colours are white I think it would be a suitable nick name."

HUDSON IN TRAINING FOR THE EDMUNDS BOUT

Word has been received from Tony Hudson that he has come down to Toronto to finish his training for his bout here with Artie Edmunds, next Tuesday night at the Grand Opera House. He is working out to-day at Varsity gym. with Hilliard Lang, and Harry Westerby, and states that he is in the pink of condition. Edmunds and Hudson posted forfeits, yesterday to make 122 pounds at 3 o'clock on the day of the bout. Edmunds goes to New York early next month to meet Kid Grethon, and has been in training for some time, so that the match will be a ten-round go between two clever men in the best possible shape.

With Ryan and Westerby matched for twelve rounds, and Edmunds and Hudson slated for ten, the fans will get a grand programme. There are two six-round preliminaries on the bill as well. The seat plan will be opened at the Grand on Saturday morning, and there promises to be a lively sale.

TEMPLIN HAS LANDED A STAR THIRD BASEMAN

Peterboro' Manager Is Enthusiastic Over His Capture Whom He Says Is Sure to Be Sold or Drafted This Season.

A GREAT FIELDER

Secretary Davidson of the Peterborough Ball Club this morning received a contract from Manager Templin of a third baseman over whom "Old Folks" waxes enthusiastic. He has been after this boy for some time, and was afraid that he had lost him, as several minor league magnates were on his trail. However, Templin landed him and he is thrilled to death with his capture. In a letter accompanying the contract Templin says that his third-sacker will be slated for faster company before the Canadian League season is over and that if he isn't sold before the end of the campaign, he is sure to be drafted at the close of the season. He is a beautiful fielder, a hard hitter and fast on bases.

Templin is getting his team rounded up. So far he has signed two outfielders, a catcher, a third-baseman, and shortstop, and one pitcher. As he will play second himself, his infield will be complete when he gets a first-sacker and he has one practically corralled. He is devoting his attention just now to building up his pitching staff.

News From League Circuit

BERLIN, MARCH 19.—The passing of the amendment to the parks by-law, in the Legislature on Monday, which was introduced by Hon. Dr. Reaume, minister of public works giving municipalities power to erect grandstands, fencing off public parks and allowing an admission to be charged, has been received with enthusiasm by the local park board, and citizens generally. For several years there has been a controversy as to the right of the park board to lease the grounds, the parks act as it stood, practically forbidding this action. The readjustment of wage scale will be considered by the board of works.

As a result of the passing of the amendment, the parks board will proceed immediately to enlarge all the grounds, taking in from two to three acres. The fencing between the grounds is to be removed.

Plans for the erection of a grandstand are completed and tenders will be called for at once. An effort will be made to complete the structure, which will be of steel and concrete, by the middle of May.

George O. Philip, the local theatrical manager, will lease the grounds, and will provide attractions for every night of the week, in addition to encouraging amateur sports of all kinds during the day.

The Canadian league team will have the largest and best diamond on the circuit. Grandstand and bleacher accommodation will be provided for 5,000 people.

Secretary Debus of the park board, intimated that Berlin will have the most complete grounds in the Dominion when the proposed improvements are completed.

Bullock, third baseman of the Berlin Club, is numbered among the holdouts, Jack Miller, utility outfielder, is also on the list. Manager Deneau promises that they will get it where the chicken got his if they do not come to terms in the near future.

OTTAWA, MARCH 20. — Frank Shaughnessy to-day received a letter from a catcher named Shortsleeves, of Burlington, Vermont. He wants a try-out, and Frank sent him word to come along. He is said to be a good one, and has been well recommended. Frank Burke is sending along a contract and will be in town within the next couple of weeks. Eddie Herr, of the Hannibal, Miss., team wants to sell an out-fielder. As "Shag" already has a couple of catchers on his list, Shortsleeves and Rowe, there will be nothing doing in this line. He may make terms for the in-fielder

THIS IS TOUGH.

OTTAWA, MARCH 20.—Officers of the Ottawa Baseball club have abandoned hope of retaining the services of Frank Shaugnessy as manager of their team in the Canadian league this summer. They offered last week to buy Shaughnessy's release from the Fort Wayne Club, but President Varnell, after threatening to report them to the National Commission for alleged tampering, wired Shaughnessy to-day, ordering him to report on or about April 1. Shaughnessy will continue to hold an interest in the Ottawa Club, and has named Louis Cook, a University of Illinois man, as his successor. Cook batted .280 in the Texas League last summer, and was the second-baseman in fielding. He will come here to take charge about April 15.

Shaughnessy has half his team signed already, and Cook will round it out. Shaughnessy will become manager of the Fort Wayne Club in the Central League. He hopes to be with Ottawa as manager and part owner in 1913.

BRANTFORD READY.

BRANTFORD, MARCH 20. — The Brantford ball team has been ordered to report here on April 30. It is expected that Manager Kane will have a squad of 24 players from which to pick his team, and practise matches between two teams will be held every afternoon at Agricultural Park until the opening of the season. Work will be commenced immediately, if the weather permits, in putting the grounds in shape.

President Nelson has announced that he will spend more money for transportation at the opening of the season and considers that the plan is a good one. Practically all the players are from the New England circuit.

A TIMELY REMINDER.

Don't count on winning out. Remember that
This joyous game, as played with ball and bat,
Engages seven other clubs—and they
Right now are dreaming in the self-same way
Of pennants next October. Don't forget
That only one can win, and do not try!

When the percentage shows the boys behind—
Don't let it prey upon your tender mind.
If we can't win this season, be not vexed—
Next year will do, or else year after next!

NEW CORSETS

That mould the Figure into proper lines

HERE'S a Corset display in which every woman is certain to be more than usually interested.

The fashionable garments demand the graceful "straightline" figure—extremely narrow hips and a general absence of "angles." The corsetiere has anticipated these styles, and our corsets are designed to mould any figure into the fashionable lines, without discomfort. Many new appliances make for greater comfort, hygiene and durability than corsets have ever before possessed. Let us demonstrate how satisfactorily we can fit you in a new corset. There's a model for every shape, and a size for every figure.

Suppose You Dressed As You Decorate Your Home's Walls?

WITH a lid of the vintage of 1900—because it still held together.

With a china-silk skirt and an Irish Friese blouse—because they were "bargains."

With balloon sleeves and a bustle skirt—because it was such a "trouble to change."

Just suppose—but what's the use, you can't do it.

Now, there's no more excuse for letting your home go ugly and dowdy than there'd be for you. Look at the walls with a critical eye! Don't they need Spring refurnishing?

Well, come in to-morrow, or better still, to-day, and we'll show you the new and fashionable styles and colors, and go into the whole matter in the right way. You'll enjoy it, once you get a chance among these beautiful new decorations.

WOULD STOCK THE LAKES WITH TROUT

Local Men Are Interested in Proposition to Introduce Rainbow Trout Into the Back Lakes

LAKE SIMCOE FISH TRUST

The stocking of the back lakes with Raigbow Trout is a proposition that is meeting with considerable favour among local citizens. A bulletin has been issued by the Department at Ottawa, in which the terms under which these fish can be procured from the Ottawa hatcheries are clearly set forth, and it only requires a little influence on the part of the authorities to set the ball rolling, which would culminate in the desires of the local "Izaak Waltons" being realized.

If the project materializes, the fish will be secured from the hatcheries in lots of twelve thousand, and will be placed in Gull Lake, Catchakoma Lake, Stoney Lake, and one or two others during the ensuing year. The salmon trout have inhabited these waters for many years, especially Lake Simcoe, which is famous for the toothsome trout which it contains.

A Fish Trust.

Speaking of Lake Simcoe, the following extract from the Beaverton Express, refers to the alleged existance of a fish trust, as follows:

"Fishing has not been as productive or profitable this winter, as usual.

"Somehow the toothsome trout for which Lake Simcoe is famous, have been very coy, and although the fishermen have been numerous and vigilant as ever, their efforts did not appear to uncover the particular haunt of the fish until some two weeks ago, when a "run" set in which produced a very considerable catch.

The price of fish has steadily increased of late years, from 5 cents to 10 cents retail, or 8 cents on the ice.

"This, it is understood, is the result of a sort of combine into which those who frequent the ice for fishing have to enter whether they wish to or not, or be penalized by various means, which puts them out of business.

"This violent interference with the laws of trade does not look well on the part of the fishermen who have recently been given the privilege to use the spear in their work and who now proceed to "hold up" the public in the price of their catch."

Babies Have Itching Eczema

Itching, almost constant and well-nigh unbearable itching, is the marked symptom of eczema. The direct cause is usually friction or irritation of the skin. In babies the trouble often arises from infrequent changing of napkins.

Until you have used Dr. Chase's Ointment in a case of eczema you can scarcely realize the relief which this treatment affords. Gradually the sores are cleaned up and healed, and a new smooth skin replaces that which has been irritated and diseased.

By keeping Dr. Chase's Ointment at hand, along with the bath soap and using it whenever chafing or irritation appears you can keep baby's skin in perfect condition, save him much suffering and yourself much anxiety.

NEW FASHIONS IN FOOTWEAR

A Few Hints of the Changing Tendency in the Latest Styles in Boots and Shoes—The Return of the Conservative Idea.

The passing of eccentric patterns in the styles of boots and shoes is announced by those who follow the evidences of changing features in the fashions.

In the better line of shoes the low receding toe asserts itself to a certain extent over the sharp, high and bold one that has held away for some time. There is some tendency to make more bals. than bluchers while the button boot for men will reign as a strong favourite.

The swing effect is gradually disappearing from a number of models, and the low, flat heel coming to the front. The costliest creations of the trade for males reveal sensible, conservative lines, with no fancy or gingerbread effects, but a neat, stylish and effective boot that can be worn on any occasion. The principal leathers will be gun metal and velours calf, tan russia calf and patent colt. There will, of course, be a few box calf shoes, and some dongola kid, for a certain element of the masculine persuasion always insist upon having this kind of leather.

The button shoe for men has seven or eight buttons, and will be made in a number of shades of tan, principally of the darker hues. It is not to be supposed, however, that the high toe has disappeared, for many manufacturers say that it will be particularly popular among young men, and the like the fold collar in haberdashery, or the stiff hat in headgear, it has come to stay — at least for a length of time. However, there is no doubt that in the more expensive ranges, so far as men's footwear is concerned, the pendulum is swinging back to simpler lines, the custom last, and less eccentric patterns.

Round Toe for the Ladies.

In women's fine goods there are several new offerings, and the high or round toe will ,to a large extent, prevail, as during the past season. Vamps show but little tendency to increase in length. They are likely to remain about as they are for some time, owing to the fact that most women like a shoe with an abbreviated fore part, as it possesses a smartness that is not characteristic of a long vamp.

More bals. are being shown this season by manufacturers of women's fine goods, but the button shoe will still be a decided favourite and command a large share of patronage. The prevalence in women's goods is toward slightly lower heels on those lasts which have a receding or round toe, while the tops in many instances are cut a little higher than last season, being of the slant type.

The new over-gaiter shoe is being featured by a number of manufacturers, with cloth tops, and some very nice creations are shown with lapped quarters and lapped vamp. The straight side button effect is artistic. Many fancy buttons are used to adorn fabric tops. Heels run from 11-8ths to 13-8ths.

Nubuck is likely to be a popular make of shoes during the season which will commence at Easter. The material has made quite a hit with the consumer, and the coming summer will enhance its popularity. Most of the manufacturers with any variety in their range are showing some samples of nubuck footwear. This is a line that will be generally worn, and because it is new it will be bought by those women who must have the latest.

Whites and Tans the Go.

It is stated that the coming summer and fall will be a strong season for tans and white goods. White footwear appears to be on the gain in appreciation for warm weather and early autumn wear. Some manufacturers are talking of low toes for women, but the models shown are for the most part rather full or round. Rope stitching with wide edges is said by a number of makers to be forging to the front.

Oxfords buttoning straight down the side are being shown by a few makers, but whether they will prove big sellers remains to be seen.

"Our Personal Advice To All Skin Sufferers"

McDermid & Jury, E. L. Payne, Druggists.

We have been in business in this town for some time, and we are looking to build up trade by always advising our patrons right.

So when we tell you that we have found the effective eczema remedy, you can depend upon it that we give our advice ,not in order to sell a few bottles of medicine to skin sufferers, but because we know how it will help our business if we help our patrons.

We keep in stock and sell all the well known skin remedies. But we will say this. If you are suffering from any kind of skin trouble, eczema, psoriasis, rash or tetter, we want you to try a full size bottle of D.D.D. Prescription.

Again and again we have seen how a few drops of this simple wash, applied to the skin, takes away the itch instantly. And the cures all seem to be permanent.

D. D. D. Prescription made by the D .D. D. Laboratories of Toronto is composed of thymol, glycerine, oil of wintergreen and other healing, soothing, cooling ingredients. And if you are just crazy with itch, you will feel soothed and cooled, the itch absolutely washed away the moment yo' apply this D.D.D.

We have made fast friends of more than one family by recommending this remedy to a skin sufferer here and there and we want you to try it now.

Annual Meeting Of St. Martin's T.A.S.

Prospects for Ennismore Society Are Bright This Year

On Monday afternoon St. Martin's T. A. S. held their election for officers for the coming year. The following is the result President—Jas. Kilden.

Vice-Pres.—Dan Crough.
Secretary—Peter Galvin.
Treasurer—P. J. Scollard.

Committee — Thos. Flood, P. Y. Crowley, Mich. Flood, M. S. Crough, Eug. Murphy, Mich. Geary.

St. Martin's T. A. S. membership is now over two hundred. This Society has done much good among the Ennismore people, and the prospects for this year seem brighter than ever. Year by year our young men are realising more fully the utter folly of squandering their hard-earned money in intoxicating liquor. Their sobriety is beginning to tell in many ways—personal appearance, moral nd religious standard, increased comforts of home closer application to work and general elevation of community life.

Father Fitzpatrick expresses himself as highly pleased with the committee elected by the members. They are all T. A. S. men of long standing; men whose example is good, in every way, and whose counsel will be worth soliciting.

MUSIC AND DRAMA.

No play of recent years, it is said, has aroused the widespread discussion that has attended the presentation of George Barr McCutcheon's powerful novel, "Beverly of Graustark." Last night's performance at the Grand proved to be no exception to the rule, and the company carrying the play fully sustained the reputation, which the advance notices credited them with. All of the interesting characters of the story have been retained in the play which is a romance of love and laughter in four acts. The work of Miss Margaret Shayne, in the stellar role of Beverly Calhoun was interest holding and finished, while Miss Florence Radinoff in the character of "Princess Yetine," the ruler of Graustark, delighted the audience. Her acting indicated unusual strength, and was of an intensely dramatic nature. In Baldos, as portrayed by Lawrance Evart, the usually accepted type of love story that goes with a comedy drama of this kind, is exceptionally well told. There is a variety of temperament in Beverly of Graustark that will appeal to every type of theatre goer.

First Day Of Spring

But Bluebirds and Cherry Blossoms Seemed as Far Distant as Ever

To-day is nominally the first day of Spring, but unless someone mentioned the fact it might easily pass for the 21st of January. Those who divided the year into periods, known as seasons, chose March the 21st as the first day of Spring, but just at present there seems to be what might be called a last kick from winter. Weather of to-day's character delights those who pail their faith to the old saws. They said that the bear saw his shadow on Candlemas Day, Feb. 2nd, and they expected six more weeks of winter. Apparently their belief in the old saying has some justification. There are others who claimed that March came in like a lamb and that it must go out like a lion, and they would be content to endure the weather to have their statements fulfilled. At any rate there was nothing particularly cheerful about the first day of Spring not that most people are complaining, but there are some who declare that they are willing to see the winter broken by the warm winds and rains of spring.

AUCTION SALE SAT., MARCH 23 of Furniture, Furnishings and Residence, late Dr. R. P. Boucher, 196 Brock St. Everything must be sold. Sale to commence 12:30 p.m. sharp. No reserve. Terms cash. Terms for residence made known time of sale. W. J. Hancock, Auctioneer 3d-68

MAY MOVE PENS

Around the market the report is heard that certain changes are being considered in connection with the location of the cattle pens and the Market Clerk's office. There is some talk of removing them, with the scales, from the present place to the vacant lot opposite the market on the east side of Water street, across the corner. Whether the scales and Clerk's office are to be moved or not is uncertain, but there seems to be more than a rumour that the pens are to be changed. Merchants in the vicinity have often complained of the cattle pens, especially in summer time.

PARALYZED LIMBS

To-day it is sleeplessness, headaches, digestive trouble, and irritability. Next thing you know some form of paralysis has developed. Mr. Alex. Hensberger, 10 Moore Street, St. Catharines, Ont., writes: 'Nervous trouble developed into paralysis of the limbs so that I became helpless. Doctors failed me, but after using ten boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I resumed work, and now feel better than I did for 20 years'

PAYING POLL TAX

Assessor Wm. Henry is handing out notices of poll tax dues to those who are expected to pay them, and the money is required to be paid two days after the receipt of the notice. This method was begun last year, and proved a success. Formerly these slips were handed out with the ordinary tax notices, and were paid at the same time. This meant that 18 months would intervene between the time of delivery and of payment. This allowed those who wanted to escape payment to fold their tents and disappear. A change of boarding-house served for some, and many others moved out of town within that period. Tax Collector Green recommended that the poll tax for any year be paid that year and the present plan calls for payment within two days of the issuing of the notices. They are already coming in now, as the Assessor makes his rounds. Last year the total of the poll tax collector was equal to those of the previous two years together.

Case of Juvenile Offender Receives Final Disposition in Police Court This Morning

After nearly two weeks' incarceration in the local gaol, the Ottawa youth, who has been held here with a charge of vagrancy pending against him, was allowed to depart in peace on condition that he report to Chief of Police Carpenter at Ottawa, at least once a month. The youth, who has an unsavoury record, in Ottawa, was apprehended by Detective Newhall while in the act of attempting to gain admittance to the King George Hotel, by means of a rear door. He appeared before the Magistrate and the case was heard in camera, as the youth was given the privileges the Juvenile Act affords.

He was committed to the gaol pending inquiries which were made by Chief of Police Thompson, regarding the lad's Ottawa career. The Chief also received a Post Office order sufficient to guarantee his passage home.

For the third time in less than two weeks he appeared before Magistrate Dumble. His confinement within the grey stone walls of the county gaol has not depreciated his appearance in the least; in fact he has improved appreciably. The youthful delinquent was given a brief lecture by the Magistrate and was allowed to proceed to his home. He remained in the custody of the police until he was placed on the train for Ottawa.

FOR THE STOMACH

Here's An Offer You Should Not Overlook.

Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets remedy stomach troubles by aiding nature to supply the elements, the absence of which in the gastric juices causes indigestion and dyspepsia. They aid the stomach to digest food and to quickly convert it into rich, red blood and material necessary for overcoming natural body waste.

Carry a package of Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets in your vest pocket, or keep them in your room. Take one after each heavy meal and prove your assertion that indigestion will not bother you.

We know what Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets are and what they will do. We guarantee them to relieve indigestion and dyspepsia. If they fail we will refund your money. Three sizes: 25 cents, 50 cents, and $1.00. Remember, you can obtain Rexall Remedies only at our store,—The Rexall Store, McDermid and Jury.

New Organ For St. Andrew's

St. Andrew's Church is to have a new pipe organ of modern construction and one in every way creditable to the church and to the city. At a meeting of the congregation on Tuesday night the organ committee, who has had the affair in hand for some time, presented a report, and were given instructions to proceed with the purchase and instillation of a suitable organ.

A $50 Blaze This Morning

A fire broke out, early this morning, in the store situated at the corner of Rubidge and Sherbrooke Sts., and occupied by Mrs. Dunsford.

The Fire Brigade were notified, by telephone, at 7 o'clock, and on arrival, shortly afterwards, discovered a conflagration at the rear of the premises, which had been caused by an attempt to thaw out some frozen water pipes. There were adjacent to the building, three dwelling houses, which were threatened by the flames, but the firemen were able, however, to prevent the possibility of the fire spreading by chopping out a partition in which the fire had taken the strongest hold, and by the use of some chemicals, the flames were extinguished.

The estimated cost of the damage is placed at $50.00.

"THE COLLEEN BAWN"

This wonderful grand production in three reels, of Boucicault's celebrated play introducing the best scenic views of Ireland, such as the Lakes of Killarney, The Peat Bogs, The Old Castles, Rustic Cottages & Rugged Mountains, will be seen at the Royal Theatre To-morrow and Saturday, afternoons and evenings at the usual prices of admission. Don't miss seeing this great Romantic Drama. 2d69

OBITUARY

MATTHEW JOHN STANLEY.

A bright young life came to a sudden termination in St. Joseph's Hospital this morning when Matthew John Stanley passed away at the early age of twenty-eight years.

The deceased was a native of Perth but has resided in the city at 209 Stewart street, for some time and was employed in the production department of the Canadian General Electric Co. Death was due to pneumonia.

The remains will be conveyed to Perth on the (C.P.R.) 12.10 a. m. train to-morrow.

Man Mastered By His Business

When a man cannot forget his business when he lays his head on the pillow at night, it is time to consider the condition of his nervous system. Otherwise his business will wreck his future by undermining his health.

For a time he may keep going on stimulants, but if health is to be restored and old-time vigour brought back the nerve cells must be revitalized by such treatment as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

A few weeks' use of this great food cure will do wonders for any business man or woman whose nervous system has failed to stand the strain. Gradually and naturally the blood is enriched and vigour and energy are restored to mind and body. Appetite is sharpened, digestion improves, you sleep well and regain the strength which makes you master of yourself and of your business.

IN REAL ESTATE

Dealer States That Conditions Are Satisfactory Here—Looks For a Good Summer

"I have found the real estate business in this town very good," said a George street real estate dealer today. "There is not a great deal moving just now, but there is considerable interest in Peterborough property and I think we are going to have a good year. There is always a little of something doing and I have found that I do not need to go west to get sufficient profitable business to attend to. While conditions might be better there is withal a feeling of confidence that is most satisfactory."

AT THE RED MILL

The management has secured for Friday and Saturday one of the best shows ever presented in this city. Every picture is a feature. The Red Mill trio will sing "I want a Girl" (illustrated). The management is sparing no expense to make this the most popular feature in the city, and to give the best at all times, nothing cheap at the price—5 cents. Ladies and children should attend the matinee performances and avoid the immense evening crowds.

CANNED PIPE

Discovered in a Can of Tomatoes

Accidents will happen in the best regulated business, but it is strange how a much-used pipe found its way into a can of tomatoes. It was stated to an Examiner reporter that a woman in the South end, after emptying a can of tomatoes, for soup, found a pipe in a good state of preservation. The can bore a well-known brand, and as the canners boast of the care under which their work is done, it is peculiar that a pipe should have been included in the preparation. The woman is keeping the canned pipe as a souvenir.

The T.C.S. Team Here Saturday

There should be a good crowd present on Saturday night to see what promises to be the best basketball game of the season on the "Y" floor, when the fast Trinity College School team of the Big Four League, meet the "Y" team. In the last game, which was played at Port Hope, the local boys just managed to win out in the last minute of play, and the Port Hopers are coming up determined to win right here in Peterborough. The "Y" team will be A. Hall and H. Hill, forwards; H. Wallis, centre; Hanwell and Throop, defence. The game will be called at 7.45 sharp. The second game will be between two picked teams.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

For the House Plants.

The tiny flies seen among plants do no especial harm, but they indicate a sour condition of the soil which is harmful to the plants. Let the soil become apparently dry, then apply hot lime water until it flows freely from the drainage hole at the bottom of the pot. If the drainage is clogged, it may be necessary to repot in fresh, sweet earth. Many times the water will flow freely out of the drainage hole in the bottom of the pot, yet not wet the ball of soil except at the sides, where the water runs down between the soil and the pot. It is a good plan to set the pot in a vessel containing the lime water, until the surface shows that the ball of earth is wet through. Hot lime water is also a remedy for angle-worms in the soil of pots. The worms will come to the surface and can be picked off.

When a palm dries and the tips of the leaves turn brown, it is usually because the atmosphere is too dry. Keep the air as moist as possible until warm weather, then set the plant out on the north porch, or north side of the house, setting the pot in a larger pot or box with a filling of sphagnum moss between, and lay the moss over the surface of the soil in the pot. Wet the sphagnum moss. The palm should not be left out in very windy weather, as the wind is liable to whip the leaves to pieces. Morning and evening sunshine is good for it, and a little lime on the surface will keep the soil in good condition.

Sweet Peas.

Preparations should be made at once for the planting of sweet peas. The soil should be rich and deeply worked, and it would have been better for the peas if you had begun preparation of the ground last fall. It is not too late in the winter, or too early in the spring, to give the ground a top dressing of wood ashes, if you have them, or, failing this, use air-slaked lime, and as soon as possible, work them into the soil. This will sweeten and purify the soil, and the pea rows should be in a sunny place. Just as early as the ground can be worked — along with the very early planting of potatoes, you should put the peas in the ground, opening a trench five or six inches deep, and wide enough for two or three rows. The seeds should not be covered more than an inch or so deep at first, pressing it down firmly, and as the plants grow, the soil should be drawn about them until the trench is filled and the peas making a good growth. Wood ashes and soot will keep insects away while they are small. Stakes or wire netting should be provided for their support, and during the dry weather they should be well soaked with water. House and laundry slops are excellent for this purpose. Green stable manure should not be used about the plants, but liquid manure is excellent. The roots should be mulched during the hot weather, and the blossoms picked daily, if you must profuse blooming.

NEW ARRIVALS TO THE CITY RECEIVE RUDE JOLT THIS A.M.

They Display a Noticeable Lack of Enthusiasm Towards the Brand of Weather Which Greeted Their Arrival---More To-morrow.

Canada's ideal climate did not sustain itself in the minds of at least six people to-day. They were new arrivals, and when they disembarked from the train this morning, they scanned the landscape with wonder, while a feeling of disappointment, no doubt, came over them. When seen by an Examiner reporter this afternoon, they had not recovered from the shock which they received. To make matters worse, the farmers proved about as refractory as the weather, by refusing to come out, with the result that the men were compelled to accept the hospitality of the city for the night. Mr. Howson made several ineffective attempts to communicate with some of the farmers, by means of the telephone, but to no avail. One lone would-be employer called in this afternoon, and when last seen by the Examiner reporter he was energetically interrogating one of the emigrants upon his ability to milk, and do other various tasks that are associated with farm labour.

More To-morrow.

Mr. Howson is in receipt of information to the effect that the "Royal Edward" docked last night. On her passenger list are the names of about thirty-five emigrants, who are booked for Peterborough. They are expected to arrive here some time to-morrow morning.

WAGE BILL GETS SECOND READING

Autoists May Travel Much More Rapidly

MINIMUM WAGE MEASURE PASSES SECOND READING

Tories Dodge the Issue—Balfour Moved the Rejection of the Bill Labourites Support the Premier

BILL PROGRESS

London March 22.—Arthur J. Balfour's motion for the rejection of the minimum wage bill was defeated, and the Government bill passed its second reading in the House of Commons last night by a majority of 123—a larger majority than the Ministerialists themselves had hoped for. The vote stood 348 to 225. The Laborites and Nationalists voted with the Government.

The Prime Minister formally moved the second reading of the bill and then immediately yielded the floor to Mr. Balfour, who, in moving its rejection, temporarily assumed the leadership of the Opposition. The debate on the bill was interesting in character and served to dissipate much alarm which was created by the announcement Wednesday night that the Unionists intended to oppose the passage of the measure. It is now evident that the Conservative leaders had no idea of upsetting the Government, but that they merely desired to wash their hands of responsibility for the bill, and had no wish to assume office themselves.

Mr. Balfour pointed out the gravity of the crisis, which had been brought about "by a single organization, acting within its legal powers, threatening to paralyze the whole trade of the country." He declared that the Government, in endeavoring to pass this bill was deceiving both itself and the House of Commons.

He complained that the Government had sanctioned the tearing up of existing agreements without a word of protest, and declared that there was no justification for attempting to force "this colossal revolution" through the House of Commons in less than a week.

Mr. Balfour concluded by saying that even assuming that the Government were defeated there could not be a dissolution, as it was impossible to add the confusion of a general election to the horror of the strike.

He intimated that although the Unionists intended to test the opinion of the House regarding the methods of the Government, they would after that do their best to see that the policy of the Government had its chance.

Premier Asquith, who followed Mr. Balfour, claimed that the Government held an absolutely even balance between the disputants. The Government had tried by every form of persuasion and argument to negotiate to bring the parties to an agreement, but had failed, and it could not allow the population and industries of the country to starve.

The Government, the Prime Minister said, believed that the bill was a necessary preliminary to any further steps "which, God forbid, should be necessary."

The debate showed that the Labor leaders were in a more reasonable mood. Although they tabled a number of amendments, one, for the inclusion of their schedule of minimum wages, it is believed that they now will be satisfied with, and that the Government will be willing to concede, the inclusion of the five shilling and two shilling minimum. Altogether the tension has been greatly relaxed and although the debate may be carried into next week, it would not be surprising if the Government's original program was carried out and the bill become a law by Saturday. The Conservatives are not likely to take any official action in the committee stage, which will be concerned for the most part with the Labor amendments.

During the course of yesterday's debate Austen Chamberlain confessed that the Opposition was not anxious to take office, but that it would not shirk the responsibility if called to office. The bill, he said, stood for a policy of surrender and would engender similar demands from other trades.

Home Rule Bill Not Drafted.

London, March 22.—That the home rule bill has not been yet finally drafted is evident from the fact that the Irish leaders were called into consultation yesterday with the Cabinet committee, concerning the details of the measure.

The meeting was shrouded in the utmost secrecy. It leaked out only yesterday afternoon that John Redmond and T. P. O'Connor had spent two and a half hours in Premier Asquith's official residence at Downing street, wrestling with the Premier, Augustine Birrell, the Irish Secretary, and other members of the Cabinet over the financial provisions of the proposed bill. The difficulties in this respect are understood still to be unsolved.

No Protection for Bonar Law.

London, March 23.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—In the House of Commons yesterday, Augustine Birrell, Secretary for Ireland, replying to a question, said it was not proposed to move extra police to Belfast when Bonar Law spoke. He, Birrell, had sufficient confidence in the Belfast Nationalists not interfering with free speech.

Labor Leader Accused of Treason.

Manchester, Eng., March 23.—Tom Mann, the labor leader, was yesterday remanded by the Salford magistrates when brought up on the charge of "feloniously, maliciously and advisedly publishing certain printed matter called the 'Syndicalist,' endeavoring to persuade persons serving in the forces of his Majesty the King on land or sea from their duty and allegiance to his Majesty, and inducing the said persons to commit traitorous and mutinous practice."

Bail was refused.

HON. GEO. GRAHAM EXPOSES GOVERNMENT'S DUPLICITY

And no Attempt Was Made to Deny His Charges---Statements Recently Issued Re Railway Cost Misrepresented The Facts.

Ottawa, March 22.—Just how much the Borden Government fear the return of Hon. George P. Graham to Parliament was made manifest in the House last night, when the Administration stood convicted of misleading the public and misrepresenting the facts in connection with the statement recently issued purporting to give the cost of construction of the National Transcontinental Railway. In a speech of nearly an hour, punctuated by Liberal cheering, the ex-Minister of Railways tore the veil from the Governmental duplicity, and demonstrated that the figures presented to the public for the use of the South Renfrew bye-election were willfully misleading and energetically "cooked." There was practically no defence, and no attempt at contradiction of Mr. Graham's charges by any member of the Government, from the Premier down.

On the motion to go into supply, Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux complained to the Minister of Trade and Commerce that the time was not propitious for the abolition of the Canadian commercial agency in Paris, as he had gathered from the remarks of the Minister some days ago would be done.

Hon. George E. Foster assured Mr. Lemieux that there was no intention of abolishing the commercial agency in Paris, but only of making it more efficient.

When the House went into supply, Hon. George P. Graham protested against the recent statement of the Minister of Railways as to the cost of the National Transcontinental which he characterized as misleading. There was no justification, he argued, for the insertion of an item of over $7,000,000 for betterments. As the lease of the road had fifty years to run, the Government would be as much justified in adding the cost of betterments and improvements required because of increased traffic during that whole period as to charge up improvements for the seven years.

With interest added, he said, that item amounted to $46,000,000, which should not be charged to the cost of the road, which, he declared, would not cost over $106,000 a mile as against $130,000 to $143,000, the contention of the Minister of Railways.

The N.T.R. he said, would be the cheapest road on the continent, even if it cost $100,000 a mile, because of the superior methods of construction. The low grades obtained would materially reduce operating expenses, and as a result of this, freight charges. Both Maj. Leonard and Mr. MacPherson had stated that an engine could haul double the load over any other road. This would mean reducing carrying charges one-third.

In reply, Hon. Frank Cochrane said that his statement presented to the House, to which Mr. Graham took exception, had been prepared by engineers appointed by the late Government. These figures showed conclusively that the construction had been no better than was estimated for by the late administration when they figured the cost at $53,000,000. The management of this construction, he said, deserved the severest criticism. As good a road he was sure could have been constructed at a much lower figure.

Hon. T. W. Crothers declared that the late Government had either deceived the people of Canada as to what the cost of the road would be, or they knew nothing about the matter. They had said it could be built up to the standard of the Intercolonial for $51,000,000 or to the highest standard for $53,000,000. They now acknowledge that the cost would be $150,000,000, or three times as much as they had told the people.

Hon. Frank Cochrane's estimates were all passed.

Hon. Geo. P. Graham brought up the question of dividing the board of railway commissioners into two sections, east and west. Hon. Frank Cochrane stated that it was not the intention of the Government to do so. They might well keep two members of the board in the west, and there would be plenty of work for them to do, but it would be one board.

The Liberals in the Senate yesterday for the first time turned down the Government.

An amendment to the tariff bill which Hon. Mr. Lougheed objected to was carried. It was moved by Sir Richard Cartwright and provided that the tariff commissioner should not be appointed for a term of five years, but should serve only during the pleasure of the Government.

In committee on the bill to create a tariff board, Hon. Mr. Lougheed gave the Government's view of amendments suggested last week by Sir Richard Cartwright. The first provided that the commissioners should be appointed to serve during the pleasure of the Government instead of for five years as the Government bill proposed. He was afraid good men could not be obtained under Sir Richard's amendment.

Sir Richard said that he could not see it that way, as practically all the employes of the Government were appointed during pleasure.

Sir Richard's amendment was declared carried.

AUTO SPEED IS RAISED

Motorists Will be Allowed to go Five Miles Faster—Speaker Supports Rowell

A COLLEGE OF ART

Toronto, March 22.—By an amendment to the Motor Vehicle Act in the Legislature yesterday, motorists may now travel a maximum rate of fifteen miles an hour on city streets, and twenty miles in the country. The old speed regulations, which have caused an outburst of indignation among motor car owners, called for a maximum rate of ten miles in the city and fifteen in the country. Hon. W. J. Hanna, Provincial Secretary, was the mover of the amendment to the bill which received its second reading.

Clearly indicating that foot passengers had the right of way in the matter of boarding and alighting from street cars, another amendment to the bill was given smooth passage, cancelling the old law that motorists may travel four miles a hour past a stationary street car and substituting therefor, that motor car must come to a complete standstill and wait until all passengers have boarded a street car and all those alighting have reached the curb.

George H. Gooderham, being an authority on the subject, spoke often on the proposed legislation. He wanted the sounding of horns during the night hours prohibited, but Mr. Hanna said that this was covered by the public nuisance legislation. Owing to the objections of the South Toronto member, hereafter it will be unnecessary for motorists to paint numbers on the front lamps. It was considered that numbers in such a position served no good purpose and a clearly decipherable number in the rear was all that was essential in the eyes of the law.

Mr. Hanna declared that the former speed regulations were not satisfactory and there was no reason why motorists should not be allowed a little more freedom. In desiring to have a machine travel at a maximum of ten miles in a city, it meant many violations of the law. The fifteen-mile rate would enable motorists to obey the law. "Let us have a law that is practicable," said the Provincial Secretary.

Mr. Gooderham succeeded in having the minimum age of drivers changed from 17 to 18 years.

The Speaker's decision on the point raised by Mr. Rowell on Wednesday in the Liberal leader's tiff with the Premier as to whether private bills should be given preference over Government orders on members' day, was to the effect that Mr. Rowell was right in his contention. However, so was the Premier, who opposed the leader of the Opposition. Said the Speaker when the Legislature opened:

"The Government through the leader of the House has the right to control the order in which Government business shall be taken up, and in practice, since I have been in the Legislature, and as I am informed for many years previous to my entering upon public life, the leader of the House has been practically allowed to control the other business to the extent at least of suggesting when other business should be taken up."

So carefully prepared was Hon. Mr. Hanna's bill respecting the public health that very little criticism was made of it. Both sides of the House seemed to appreciate that the legislation proposed by the Provincial Secretary was too progressive to be even modified. The bill, among other things, makes provision for the division of the province into a number of districts to be under the jurisdiction of district inspectors acting under the Provincial Board of Health.

Hon. Dr. Pyne, Minister of Education, introduced a bill to create an Ontario College of Art. His bill provides for the organization of a board which will have control of the college, with power to hold real estate, appoint teachers, and outline courses of study in fine and applied arts. The board will be made up of representatives of the Ontario Art Museum, the Ontario Society of Artists, the Canadian Art Club, the University Senate, the Graphic Arts Club, Toronto Architects Society, the Ontario Society of Artists, the Applied Arts Society, the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, Trades and Labor Council, and the City Council.

"INITIALS ONLY"

By ANNA KATHARINE GREEN

"He says that, does he? You found him on the whole intolerably straightforward, eh? A hard nut; but hard nuts are usually sound ones. Come, now! prejudice aside, what's your honest opinion of the man you've had under your eye and ear for three solid weeks? Hasn't there been the best of reasons for your failure? Speak up, my boy. Squarely, now."

"I can't. I hate the fellow. I hate any one who makes me look ridiculous. He—well, well, if you'll have it, sir, I will say this much. If it weren't for that coincidence of the two deaths equally under his eye, I'd stake my life on his honesty. But that coincidence stumps me and—and a sort of feeling I have here."

It is to be hoped that the slap he gave his breast at this point, carried off some of his superfluous emotion.

"You can't account for a feeling, Mr. Gryce. The man has no heart. He's as hard as rocks."

"A not uncommon lack where the head plays so big a part. We can't hang him on any such argument as that. You've found no evidence against him?"

"N—no." The hesitating admission was only a proof of Sweetwater's obstinacy.

"Then listen to this. The test with the letters failed, because what he said about them was true. They were not meant for him. Miss Challoner had another lover."

"Only another? I thought there were a half-dozen, at least."

"Another whom she favored. The letters found in her possession—not the ones she wrote herself, but those which were written to her over the signature O. B. were not all from the same hand. Experts have been busy with them for a week, and their reports are unanimous. The O. B. who wrote the threatening lines acknowledged to by Orlando Brotherson, was not the O. B. who penned all of those love letters. The similarity in the writing misled us at first, but once the doubt was raised by Mr. Challoner's discovery of an allusion in one of them which pointed to another than Mr. Brotherson, and experts had no difficulty in reaching the decision I have mentioned."

"Two O. B.'s! Isn't that incredible, Mr. Gryce?"

"Yes, it is incredible; but the incredible is not the impossible. The man you've been shadowing denies that these expressive effusions of Miss Challoner were meant for him. Let us see, then, if we can find the man they were meant for."

"The second O. B.?"

"Yes."

Sweetwater's face instantly lit up.

"Do you mean that I—after my egregious failure—am not to be kept on the dunce's seat? That you will give me this new job?"

"Yes. We don't know of a better man. It isn't your fault, you said it yourself, that water couldn't be squeezed out of a millstone."

"The Superintendent—how does he feel about it?"

"He was the first one to mention you."

"And the Inspector?"

"Is glad to see us on a new track."

A pause, during which the eager light in the young detective's eye clouded over. Presently he remarked:

"How will the finding of another O. B. alter Mr. Brotherson's position? He still will be the one person on the spot, known to have cherished a grievance against the victim of this mysterious killing. To my mind, this discovery of a more favored rival, brings in an element of motive which may rob our self-reliant friend of some of his complacency. We may further, rather than destroy, our case against Brotherson by locating a second O. B."

Mr. Gryce's eyes twinkled.

"That won't make your task any more irksome," he smiled. "The loop we thus throw out is as likely to catch Brotherson as his rival. It all depends upon the sort of man we find in this second O. B.; and whether, in some way unknown to us, he gave her cause for the sudden and overwhelming rush of despair which alone supports this general theory of suicide."

"The prospect grows pleasing. Where am I to look for my man?"

"Your ticket is bought to Derby, Pennsylvania. If he is not employed in the great factories there, we do not know where to find him. We have no other clew."

"I see. It's a short journey I have before me."

"It'll bring the color to your cheeks."

"Oh, I'm not kicking."

"You will start to-morrow."

"Wish it were to-day."

"And you will first inquire, not for O. B., that's too indefinite; but for a young girl by the name of Doris Scott. She holds the clew; or rather she is the clew to this second O. B."

"Another woman!"

"No, a child;—well, I won't say child exactly; she must be sixteen."

"Doris Scott."

"She lives in Derby. Derby is a small place. You will have no trouble in finding this child. It was to her Miss Challoner's last letter was addressed. The one—"

"I begin to see."

"No, you don't, Sweetwater. The affair is as blind as your hat; nobody sees. We're just feeling along a thread. O. B.'s letters—the real O. B., I mean, are the manliest effusions possible. He's no more of a milksop than this Brotherson; and unlike your indomitable friend he seems to have some heart. I only wish he'd given us some facts; they would have been serviceable. But the letters reveal nothing except that he knew Doris. He writes in one of them: 'Doris is learning to embroider. It's like a fairy weaving a cobweb!' Doris isn't a very common name. She must be the same little girl to whom Miss Challoner wrote from time to time."

"Was this letter signed O. B.?"

"Yes; they all are. The only difference between his letters and Brotherson's is this: Brotherson's retain the date and address; the second O. B's do not."

"How not? Torn off, do you mean?"

"Yes, or rather, neatly cut away; and as none of the envelopes were kept, the only means by which we can locate the letter is through this girl Doris."

"If I remember rightly Miss Challoner's letter to this child was free from all mystery."

"Quite so. It is as open as the day. That is why it has been mentioned as showing the freedom of Miss Challoner's mind five minutes before the fatal thrust."

Sweetwater took up the sheet Mr. Gryce pushed towards him and reread these lines:

"Dear Little Doris:

"It is a snowy night, but it is all bright inside and I feel no chill in mind or body. I hope it is so in the little cottage in Derby; that my little friend is as happy with harsh winds blowing from the mountains as she was on the summer day when she came to see me at this hotel. I like to think of her as cheerful and beaming, rejoicing in tasks which make her so womanly and sweet. She is often, often in my mind.

"Affectionately your friend,
"Edith A. Challoner."

"That to a child of sixteen!"

"Just so."

"D-o-r-i-s spells something besides Doris."

"Yet there is a Doris. Remember that O. B. says in one of his letters, 'Doris is learning to embroider.'"

"Yes, I remember that."

"So you must first find Doris."

"Very good, sir."

"And as Miss Challoner's letter was directed to Derby, Pennsylvania, you will go to Derby."

"Yes, sir."

"Anything more?"

"I've been reading this letter again."

"It's worth it."

"The last sentence expresses a hope."

"That has been noted."

Sweetwater's eyes slowly rose till they rested on Mr. Gryce's face: "I'll cling to the thread you've given me. I'll work myself through the labyrinth before us till I reach him."

Mr. Gryce smiled; but there was more age, wisdom and sympathy for youthful enthusiasm in that smile than there was confidence or hope.

CHAPTER XXIII.

DORIS.

"A young girl named Doris Scott?"

The station-master looked somewhat sharply at the man he was addressing, and decided to give the direction asked.

"There is but one young girl in town of that name," he declared, "and she lives in that little house you see just beyond the Works. But let me tell you, stranger," he went on with some precipitation—

But here he was called off, and Sweetwater lost the conclusion of his warning, if warning it was meant to be. This did not trouble the detective. He stood a moment, taking in the prospect; decided that the Works and the Works alone made the town, and started for the house which had been pointed out to him. His way lay through the chief business street, and greatly preoccupied by his errand, he gave but a passing glance to the rows on rows of workmen's dwellings stretching away to the left in seemingly endless perspective. Yet in that glance he certainly took in the fact that the sidewalks were blocked with people and wondered if it were a holiday. If so, it must be an enforced one, for the faces showed little joy. Possibly a strike was on. The anxiety he everywhere saw pictured on young faces and old, argued some trouble; but if the trouble was that, why were all heads turned indifferently from the Works, and why were the Works themselves in full blast?

These questions he may have asked himself and he may not. His attention was entirely centred on the house he saw before him and on the possible developments awaiting him there. Nothing else mattered. Briskly he stepped out along the sandy road, and after a turn or two which led him quite away from the Works and its surrounding buildings, he came out upon the highway and this house.

It was a low and unpretentious one, and had but one distinguishing feature. The porch which hung well over the doorstep was unique in shape and gave an air of picturesqueness to an otherwise simple exterior; a picturesqueness which was much enhanced in its effect by the background of illimitable forest, which united the foreground of this pleasing picture with the great chain of hills which held the orks and town in its ample basin.

As he approached the doorstep, his mind involuntarily formed an anticipatory image of the child whose first stitches in embroidery were like a fairy's weaving to the strong man who worked in ore and possibly figured out bridges. That she would prove to be of the anemic type, common among working girls gifted with an imagination they have but scant opportunity to exercise, he had little doubt.

He was therefore greatly taken aback, when at his first step upon the porch, the door before him flew open and he beheld in the dark recess beyond a young woman of such bright and blooming beauty that he hardly noticed her expression of extreme anxiety, till she lifted her hand and laid an admonitory finger softly on her lip:

"Hush!" she whispered, with an earnestness which roused him from his absorption and restored him to the full meaning of this encounter. "There is sickness in the house and we are very anxious. Is your errand an important one? If not—" The faltering break in the fresh, young voice, the look she cast behind her into the darkened interior, were eloquent with the hope that he would recognise her impatience and pass on.

And so he might have done,—so he would have done under all ordinary circumstances. But if this was Doris—and he did not doubt the fact after that first moment of startled surprise—how dare he forego this opportunity of settling the question which had brought him here.

With a slight stammer but otherwise giving no evidence of the effect made upon him by the passionate intensity with which she had urged this plea, he assured her that his errand was important, but one so quickly told that it would delay her but a moment. "But first," said he, with very natural caution, "let me make sure that it is to Miss Doris Scott I am speaking. My errand is to her and her only."

Without showing any surprise, perhaps too engrossed in her own thoughts to feel any, she answered with simple directness, "Yes, I am Doris Scott." Whereupon he became his most persuasive self, and pulling out a folded paper from his pocket, opened it and held it before her, with these words:

"Then will you be so good as to glance at this letter and tell me if the person whose initials you will find at the bottom happens to be in town at the present moment?"

In some astonishment now, she glanced down at the sheet thus boldly thrust before her, and recognising the O and the B of a well-known signature, she flashed a look back at Sweetwater in which he read a confusion of emotions for which he was hardly prepared.

"Ah," thought he, "it's coming. In another moment I shall hear what will repay me for the trials and disappointments of all these months."

But the moment passed and he had heard nothing. Instead, she dropped her hands from the door-jamb and gave such unmistakable evidences of intended flight, that but one alternative remained to him; he became abrupt.

Thrusting the paper still nearer, he said, with an emphasis which could not fail of making an impression, "Read it. Read the whole letter. You will find your name there. This communication was addressed to Miss Challoner, but—"

Oh, now she found words! With a low cry, she put out her hand in quick entreaty, begging him to desist and not speak that name on any pretext or for any purpose. "He may rouse and hear," she explained, with another quick look behind her. "The doctor says that this is the critical day. He may become conscious any minute. If he should and were to hear that name, it might kill him."

"He!" Sweetwater perked up his ears. "Who do you mean by he?"

"Mr. Brotherson, my patient, he whose letter—" But here her impatience rose above every other consideration. Without attempting to finish her sentence, or yielding in the least to her curiosity or interest in this man's errand, she cried out with smothered intensity, "Go! go! I cannot stay another moment from his bedside."

But a thunderbolt could not have moved Sweetwater after the hearing of that name. "Mr. Brotherson!" he echoed. "Brotherson! Not Orlando?"

"No, no; his name is Oswald. He's the manager of these Works. He's sick with typhoid. We are caring for him. If you belonged here you would know that much. There! that's his voice you hear. Go, if you have any mercy." And she began to push to the door.

But Sweetwater was impervious to all hint. With eager eyes straining into the shadowy depths just visible over her shoulder, he listened eagerly for the disjointed words now plainly to be heard in some near-by but unseen chamber.

"The second O. B.!" he inwardly declared. "And he's a Brotherson also, and—sick! Miss Scott," he whisperingly entreated as her hand fell in manifest despair from the door, "don't send me away yet. I've a question of the greatest importance to put you, and one minute more cannot make any difference to him. Listen! those cries are the cries of delirium; he cannot miss you; he's not even conscious."

"He's calling out in his sleep. He's calling her, just as he has called for the last two weeks. But he will wake conscious—or he will not wake at all."

The anguish trembling in that latter phrase would have attracted Sweetwater's earnest, if not pitiful, attention at any other time, but now he had ears only for the cry which at that moment came ringing shrilly from within—

"Edith! Edith!"

The living shouting for the dead! A heart still warm sending forth its longing to the pierced and pulseless one, hidden in a far-off tomb! To Sweetwater, who had seen Miss Challoner buried, this summons of distracted love came with weird force.

Then the present regained its sway. He heard her name again, and this time it sounded less like a call and more like the welcoming cry of meeting spirits. Was death to end this separation? Had he found the true O. B., only to behold another and final seal fall upon this closely folded mystery? In his fear of this possibility, he caught at Doris' hand as she was about to bound away, and eagerly asked:

"When was Mr. Brotherson taken ill? Tell me, I entreat you; the exact day and, if you can, the exact hour. More depends upon this than you can readily realise."

She wrenched her hand from his, panting with impatience and a vague alarm. But she answered him distinctly:

"On the Twenty-fifth of last month, just an hour after he was made manager. He fell in a faint at the Works."

The day — the very day of Miss Challoner's death!

"Had he heard—did you tell him then or afterwards what happened in New York on that very date?"

"No, no, we have not told him. It would have killed him—and may yet."

"Edith! Edith!" came again through the hush, a hush so deep that Sweetwater received the impression that the house was empty save for patient and nurse.

This discovery had its effects upon him. Why should he subject this young and loving girl to further pain? He had already learned more than he had expected to. The rest would come with time. But at the first intimation he gave of leaving, she lost her abstracted air and turned with absolute eagerness towards him.

"One moment," said she. "You are a stranger and I do not know your name or your purpose here. But I cannot let you go without begging you not to mention to any one in this town that Mr. Brotherson has any interest in the lady whose name we must not speak. Do not repeat that delirious cry you have heard or betray in any way our intense and fearful interest in this young lady's strange death. You have shown me a letter. Do not speak of that letter, I entreat you. Help us to retain our secret a little longer. Only the doctor and myself know what awaits Mr. Brotherson if he lives. I had to tell the doctor, but a doctor reveals nothing. Promise that you will not either, at least till this crisis is passed. It will help my father and it will help me; and we need all the help we can get."

Sweetwater allowed himself one minute of thought, then he earnestly replied:

"I will keep your secret for to-day, and longer, if possible."

"Thank you," she cried; "thank you. I thought I saw kindness in your face." And she again prepared to close the door.

"SALT RHEUM"

Had It On Hands For Two Years.

ITCHED SO DID NOT KNOW WHAT TO DO.

Tried Three Doctors and Went to Hospital.

All skin diseases are more or less occasioned by a bad state of the blood, and no one can expect to be free from some form or other of skin trouble unless the blood is kept in good shape. All skin diseases can be very easily cured by the wonderful blood cleansing properties of Burdock Blood Bitters.

This is due to the unrivalled purifying action of Burdock Blood Bitters on the blood, coupled with the thorough manner in which it cleanses and expels the impurities from the body.

Mrs. Richard Cousins, White Head, Que., writes:—"I have been bothered with salt rheum, on my hands, for two years, and it itched so I did not know what to do. I tried three doctors, and even went to Montreal to the hospital without getting any relief. I was advised to try Burdock Blood Bitters, so I got three bottles, and before I had the second used I found a big change, and now to-day I am cured."

Burdock Blood Bitters has been on the market for about 35 years and is manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

YOUNG PRINCE'S COLLEGE HOME

The Heir to Britain's Throne Will Mingle Freely With His Fellow Students

Dr. Warren, the President of Magdalen College, has allocated to the Prince of Wales a comfortable set of rooms entered direct from the Cloisters, which surround a charming old quadrangle. It was essential that the young Prince should have worthy quarters, on account of the amount of business correspondence which he will have to transact in the intervals of "Mixture" and "ball." From his windows the Royal freshman will catch glimpses of the Grove Park, where deer were established as far back as the day of George I., and also of the meadow on the other side of the Cherwell. This is surrounded by the famous Magdalen Walks, a part of which bears to this day the name of Addison, one of Magdalen's most distinguished "Damies."

It has been said that the Prince will sit with the president at the high table when dining in the big common hall, but it is absolutely certain that he will do nothing of the kind. He is a most democratic young fellow and though he may consent to take the end chair at one of the tables where his college chums will sit, anything in the nature of a Royal "set" would be repugnant to him, as he took care to make very plain when he was at Dartmouth. He may row occasionally in his boat, being quite keen with the oar, and will be a member of all the college societies of his year.

From the fact that he sang in the choir at Osborne, one imaginative gossip has been declaring that the Prince will take his place in the Magdalen choir. This he could not do, for the reason that the world-famed singing boys of the college are paid, and to the handsome tune of $2,500 a year.

LOW-PRICED TITLES

Ancient Spanish Family Brought to Poverty—One member a Domestic.

The granddaughter of a Duchess who was prominent in society in Madrid, is now employed in that city as a hotel servant. Her name is Teresa Acosta y Osorio de Moscoso and she is the granddaughter of the Duchess de San Lucan la Mayor. The young woman who is 29 years of age has made several appeals to prominent Spaniards who had known her grandmother well and had been her guest before she had lost her large fortune, but none of them have come to her assistance.

The young woman's mother Dona Josefa O'Shea y Osorio de Moscoso decares that by the death of her mother she became Duquesa de San a Mayor, and that she also inherited the titles to the dukedoms of Terranova, Auria, Soma, Baenia, as well as others which carry with them grandeships. She asserts that she relinquished her rights to the dukedom of San Lucar de Mayor some time ago to a marchioness, who purchased them for her grandson. For this she declares she received $600 her daughter agreeing to the arrangement. For the rights of the dukedom of Terranova she states, she received the equivalent of $1,400, payment being made by giving her a government tobacco shop, but the shop was not well located and the business was a failure. According to the mother the rights to the dukedom of Andria are still hers, and intends to claim them.

He rose from the ranks till finally he reached the position of lieutenant in 1886.

GUARD THEIR HEALTH!

Children Who Grow Very Fast Need Careful Watching.

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills would make her healthy and happy.

Next to infancy, the years between ten or twelve and eighteen are the most critical in life, especially for the boys and girls who grow too fast. Rapid growth and the physical changes that are taking place render them particularly liable to weakness and disorders of the digestive system, kidneys or lungs that very frequently, when allowed to run on, condemn them to a lifetime of suffering.

It is most important that at this period of life those organs which carry off the body's waste and impurities—the bowels, the kidneys and the skin—should be kept active and vigorous.

Nothing will do this more effectively than that good old-fashioned remedy, Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills. It acts directly on each of these organs, enabling them to do their work properly, and thus keeps the whole system pure and healthy.

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills are still made from precisely the same formula as when our grandparents used them, for nothing better has ever been devised.

NEW FRENCH SWINDLE

Police Officers Aided Bogus Detective in Robbing a Wealthy Man

Helped by the local police a swindler at Lalonde, a small town near Toulon, France, robbed a rich business man of $400 in a daring manner. A quietly dressed, but important looking man walked into the police station and said that he was a detective from Marseilles with a warrant to arrest Giachetto, a contractor of Marseilles, who has a villa in the neighborhood. Two officers aided the "detective" in making the arrest, and remarking that he must return to Marseilles to inform the authorities there of the arrest, the supposed detective caught the next train, taking with him the $400, and some papers found on M. Giachetto. As no instructions came from Marseilles, inquiries were made, and the police had to release M. Gachetto on realizing that they had been cleverly tricked.

GRAND DUCHESS MARIE OF LUXEMBURG

It is stated that the youthful Grand Duchess Marie of Luxemburg, who has become ruler of that small independent State by the death of her father, is anxious to establish a Luxemburg Legation in London. Her father, who was immensely wealthy, used to pay the entire expenses out of his own pocket of his diplomatic representatives in Berlin, Paris Vienna, Brussels and The Hague. In London Luxemburg is at present represented by the Netherlands minister. It is believed that the young woman will follow her father's example and refuse to accept more than forty thousand dollars per annum from the Duchy, which is a prosperous little state of one thousand square miles, with its own Parliament laws. There are four baby states besides Luxemburg which maintain their independence to this day in Europe. These are Monaco, with five square miles; the Republic of Andorra, with one hundred and seventy-five square miles tucked away in the Pyrenees; The Republic of San Marino in Italy, with thirty square miles, and Liechtenstein, which neither the Kaiser nor the Austrian Emperor has yet laid hands on and which has been ruled for more than half a century by the octogenarian Prince John of Leichtenstein.

FEATHERS VERY POPULAR

Capes of Plumes and Lace very Fashionable if You Can Afford Them

With the revival of soft feminine draperies and laces in place of the tight-fitting tube frock, comes a big demand for graceful ostrich plumes. A well-known feather merchant in the West End of London describes a new feather garment which he saw in Paris which is best described as a cape of plumes and lace. This cape has around the neck a high ruffle of ostrich tips, others of which fall flat down the back. Between this and a ruffle which wraps around the figure is an insertion of lace of about 36 inches.

"Blue shot with red or red shot with blue are the most popular feathers," he said, "I am making sets of feathers consisting one plume of 20 inches and feather trimming to decorate the brim of a large picture hat or to wind twice around the crown which is 50 inches in length."

Investigating the baseball trust would be as profitable, one critic says—at least nearly as profitable—as getting into the head of a dram to find out what makes the noise.

SOMALI SETTLERS IN OLD LONDON

Peculiar Subjects of the King Who are Learning the Ways of the English

In the very heart of the shopping district of London a tribe of sixty dusky Somali natives, sent hither by British residents at Aden, are now encamped and engaged in studying the ways and absorbing the learning of the white people that they may later act as teachers to their native brethren at home.

Few Londoners live with anything like the care of the Somalis, whose dietary is quite a science. They eat meat, it is true, but sparingly, and they usually prefer steaming hot rice, which is ordered by the hundredweight. They also take tea, milk and sugar and eat bread of their own baking. The Somalis do not like English butter, but they are a fruitless advertisement for oleomargarine. To get their meat supply is something of an ordeal. Two of the warriors sally forth in the early morning, and with them goes the Mullah, a particularly sane person, and the priest and teacher of the community. Arriving at the butcher's the Mullah examines various sheep, and selects such as he thinks are desirable. His attendants attend to the slaughtering, the holy man of the East meanwhile conducting a religious service. Then he inspects the carcases, and the result being satisfactory, he blesses the food, which is at once taken away by the Somalis, for none but a Mohammedan may touch it. In the Oxford street settlement, the meat is baked, and is eaten as warmly spiced as possible, pepper and chillies being especially favored, and with it is drunk tea. The Somalis never touch alcohol, nor do they smoke, in fact they do not seem to have any vices, unless one counts a multiplicity of wives.

These men are scrupulously clean and quite dandies in their way. Their robes are always spotlessly white. They bathe with the utmost regularity and they will spend hours dressing their hair—a frizzy, woolly growth which seems to require large quantities of oil.

COPPER IN SCOTLAND

Rich Lode Has Been Found Near Loch Fyne

A rich lode of copper ore has been discovered at Kilfinan, in Argyleshire, little more than a mile from Loch Fyne. That copper existed in the form of sulphides and carbonates has been known for years, but nothing was done to develop these deposits until lately, when the Shirven Mining Company, carrying on operations on the opposite side of Loch Fyne, took the matter in hand. In the heaviest deposits the workmen have excavated to a depth of six feet into the vein without reaching the other side of it. Samples of carbonate ore have yielded over 30 per cent. of copper, while some of the selected specimens of solid ore have assayed as high as 70 per cent. The superintendent of the operations expects that in the course of a few months between 200 and 400 workmen will be employed.

SPIES GERMANY'S NIGHTMARE

The disease which the German newspapers called "spionitis" is extremely prevalent in the vicinity of garrison towns. An English tourist and a German friend who were talking beneath the walls of the fortress of Spandau and stood for a moment to admire the Julius Tower, in which the money belonging to the war office is deposited, were promptly arrested as spies, and taken to the police station. It was with great difficulty that they were able to satisfy the authorities that they were harmless persons.

A TIME-PROOF LOVE STORY

A pathetic story of a daughter's devotion to her mother is recalled by the death of an octogenarian, Miss M. T. Turner at Fornham St., Martin, Suffolk. As a young girl she became engaged, but refused to marry while her mother was alive. Fifty years later the couple were still engaged, and the mother was still alive. Then Mr. Farrant, Miss Turner's fiance became ill and died. Miss Turner nursing him till the end, and now she herself has passed away.

Doan's Kidney Pills

Are the Best Remedy in The World FOR BACKACHE.

Many people fail to understand the significance of a lame, weak, sore or aching back.

You overtax the kidneys—give them more work than they can possibly do—then they cry out in protest through the pain in the back.

Backache is simply kidneyache and the best remedy in the world for backache and all kidney troubles is Doan's Kidney Pills.

We have thousands of testimonials from all quarters of the globe to prove this. Here is one from a party who used them in England, but who is now a resident of Canada.

Mr. P. R. Glanville, Wyndell, B.C. writes:—"When living in the 'Old Country,' three years ago, I suffered severely from pains in the back, and had to give up work. The pain was so bad that when I stooped down to pick anything up, I felt my back must break. I tried all sorts of remedies and several doctors, but all to no purpose. One day I read of Doan's Kidney Pills, and thought I might as well try them, and to my surprise, before I was half through one box the backache had entirely disappeared, and it has not troubled me since. I always keep "Doan's" in the house and shall always recommend them to all sufferers."

Price 50 cents per box, or 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

When ordering direct specify "Doan's."

PERILOUS ADVENTURES TOLD BY AND OF LIVING PERSONS

(Copyright, 1911, by the New York Herald Co. All rights reserved.)

THEOPHILE M. SOLOMON, general manager of the Central American Commercial Company, together with another American, is owner of the great Campusano estate in Nicaragua. Fighting his way up from the position of a small rubber trader in the forest he has become the owner of the only ice plant in the Republic of Nicaragua and owns the electric light and power plant in Managua. The Campusano estate comprises 87,000 acres of land, 2,500 head of cattle, 225,000 rubber trees, thirty-five miles of barbed wire fences, numerous sawmills, docks and industrial plants, constituting a tremendous export trade.

This story is a true account of an adventure which Mr. Solomon met with in 1887 while a trader in one of the great Nicaraguan rubber forests. The facts are detailed as he remembers them and as friends supplied them. Most of his life has been spent in Nicaragua, but he recently came to the United States for a few weeks' rest after a nervous breakdown. He will travel for a time, but will make his headquarters in New Orleans, where are situated the main offices of the company of which he is general manager.

Dr. William F. Thornton is a specialist in diseases carried by mosquitoes and has done notable research work in that line. The fee and donations which Mr. Solomon tendered him have enabled him to carry on the work.

Wading Into the River, While Martin Steadied the Canoe, She Bathed the Wounds in His Neck and Back.

IN the lonely heart of the great rubber forest of Nicaragua, Theophile M. Solomon sat in front of his low roofed bamboo hut and puffed blue nicotine rings skyward. The smoke from the breakfast fire rose in a straight, smudgy column against the clear azure of the March sky, and the crisp, appetising odor of well fried bacon still lingered in the air.

All about were trees, great monster, age-old trees that rose like giant temple pillars out of the rich, tropical soil, and through the dim aisles, where they were not too close together, Solomon could glimpse the silver dazzle of the Plantain River, down which lay the outskirts of civilization and the way to home, America, where there was chance to spend the money which had been accumulating.

It was near the end of the month and Solomon had been figuring on his accounts. Trade had been lively. There was much crude rubber and heavy bags of chugging English shillings which were to be sent to the coast by the trusted messenger who would soon arrive, the messenger that Solomon envied every time he paddled off down the sweeping Plantain.

Placidly contemplating the wealth that was growing, the American sat and half dosed, dreaming of his partner in Bluefields, Henry Brown, a native of Texas.

In the midst of his brooding he became conscious of a sound, not of the forest. Long seclusion had accustomed him to the wild sounds, and he could sleep through the cries of all the beasts that chattered or howled at the fringe of the little clearing. But this was something different and Solomon was alert on the instant, scenting danger with the instinct of the animal.

An irregular crackling of brush, as of somebody dragging slowly, close to the ground, was followed by a low moaning. The man of solitude knew it: knew it for the distress noise of one of his own kind. Plunging into the forest, he followed the sound for a few paces. It was dark in the wood, the slanting sunlight scarcely penetrating the dense foliage, and not until he almost stumbled upon it did Solomon discern the grovelling, emaciated form of a man worming his way, slowly, painfully, along the ground.

At the same instant the stranger saw his rescuer, and with a cry that began in a shout of joy, but ended in a wail of torture, the ragged man reared upright, like a mountain tiger wounded to death, then toppled sideway and lay very still. In his lithe strong arms Solomon carried the wasted form to the hut and stretched it on the floor.

He was no physician, but the ways of the forest had taught him a rude surgery, and in a matter of seconds he had learned that the stranger's kneecap was broken. Stimulants helped the feeble heart action, and after consciousness was restored the American placed the other in his hammock and, tearing his own white shirt into strips, bathed and bound the injured knee.

Days and nights the stranger tossed and raved in fever and in pain, and often Solomon bound him tight in the swaying hammock to prevent him falling or doing himself further harm. Sleep followed delirium, and delirium followed sleep, but during the wild wanderings of a mind that was well nigh destroyed Solomon gathered the details of the other's story.

The man he had saved was a half breed Spaniard named Fermin Guerro. Travelling in the mountains he had been lost and, short of provisions, had attempted to thread a dangerous pass by night. Pitching over into the inky darkness he had tumbled down a precipice and fractured the bone of his knee.

Memories of what the half breed had actually suffered in dragging himself over the cruel ground almost to the door of the little bamboo hut were mingled with fever fancies and imaginative horrors of his tortured brain. How far he had wriggled, serpentlike, Solomon could not learn, but for days it looked as though the feeble spark of life which was left for the American to nurture would of its own weakness flicker out.

During three long, weary weeks Solomon slept but little, snatching his rest whenever and wherever he might. Mostly he slept on the floor with an ear and an eye alert for trouble. Many times during the long nights he administered to the sufferer's wants and in the daytime his greatest efforts were used in nursing back the spent strength.

For some reason the messenger from Bluefields was detained and Solomon's own stock of provisions began to ebb startlingly. The best of everything was given to the sick man, whose health slowly returned under the constant, unremitting care, until at last, helped by the American, he could walk about and sit erect without a prop for his back. Sunken cheeks filled and the eyes that had been dim and slimy took on a lustre and a sparkle that gratified the trader.

From hard wood, which he cut himself, Solomon hewed a pair of crutches, with which his patient learned to hobble about with ease and rapidity.

And still the messenger from Brown did not appear. A month passed and the cripple was able to walk without the sticks, limping badly on one foot.

At last Solomon decided to make the trip himself. There was much to do in preparation, and after breakfast one morning he started to count the money, pack it into a trunk and close his accounts.

Treachery of the Half Breed.

In the hammock, which Solomon had abandoned for his own use, the half breed lay swinging lazily, seemingly asleep. The clink of the English shillings did not seem to disturb him, and the trader continued to count the heavy stacks, tumble them into bags, and pack them in the strong trunk. There was nearly $2,000, and most of it was in shillings.

Life alone and in the forest makes men suspicious of all things. Like animals, they see an enemy in all nature until friendship is proven, and once or twice Solomon looked narrowly at the sleeping Spaniard. His breathing was deep and even, punctuated with snores, and the American felt a flush of shame for his suspicions.

But Guerro, too, had been watching. From narrow eye slits he had seen the lightning glances Solomon had cast at him, and he judged that his suspicions were lulled. Stealthily, with the noiselessness of a puma, he slipped from the swaying hammock. In bare feet he crept across the floor, his hands gripping the handle of a machete, which he had somehow concealed.

There was not a sound above the clinking of the shillings, yet for some reason Solomon turned quickly, savagely, as though he knew already of the other's treachery. There was a flash of flesh hungry steel, the American sprang sideways from his sitting posture, wrenching for his pistol, but the heavy knife bit deep into his shoulder and, grinding against bone, severed the tendons of the neck.

Like a steer under the pole axe Solomon dropped with a dead thud, and Guerro in fever haste turned to the pile of shillings. As though in a nightmare the American saw him, and said later that he was unable to stir. Wounded and bleeding, but conscious, he lay there, and all the efforts of his iron will to drive his body into motion were futile. Unable to stir, he watched the half breed gather up pockets full of the silver coin and start to lift the bags from the trunk.

Then at last a torment of pain shot down his side and seemed to loosen his deadsome muscles. He struggled part to his feet, but Guerro heard the noise and turned wildly. Snatching Solomon's own rifle, he aimed it at his breast. Frenziedly the American clutched the barrel, supporting his head with one hand, for the cut cords let it hang helplessly toward one shoulder. Guerro pulled at the trigger with the muzzle of the gun point blank at Solomon's chest. Sickeningly the American was conscious of waiting for the roar of the report which did not come. The trigger was locked and the rifle would not fire. Neither man had known it.

In the struggle which followed Solomon fought blindly, with all the passion and desperateness of a man animal at bay and goaded into frenzy by pain. As though it were a wicked dream he remembers it. About the room the death grapplers swayed, biting, kicking, lunging, wrenching. Each was striking furiously to get the rifle. Solomon's head wabbled and dragged over his shoulder in a ludicrously grim manner. The great open gash in his neck bathed the other in the crimson flow that was fast sapping the American's life, but the unequal battle continued.

Suddenly there was a hot, stinging blow in Solomon's back and he staggered away from his opponent, crumpling to the ground. The fight was over. Guerro had managed to reach his knife and had plunged it into the other, consummating his dastardly act of treachery.

How long it was before the trader regained a hazy consciousness he did not know. Dragging himself, staggering, running wildly for a few steps and falling headlong, he managed to reach the water 200 yards away. Three times in the distance he lost his senses. At the river he dropped to drink greedily, but not a mouthful of water could he swallow to slack the hell-like thirst. From the great open wound in the tortured man's throat the water trickled in a reddish, ugly stream, tantalizing his parched palate until a curtain of unconsciousness again stopped his sufferings.

What followed is like a horrid myth to Solomon. Through the endless weeks of pain and suffering he had no sense of time, only pain. There was quality to his feelings, that was all. Time, space, intensity, all were obliterated. He simply knew he suffered. Months afterward, when he was strong enough to listen, friends told him the story of all that had happened.

For seven days he lay at the river's edge while Death crouched at his head, waiting only for the dissolution of some mysterious, tenacious something before claiming the body that seemed already his.

One night, just at the brief, fleeting, tropical dusk time, when the shadows of the great forest were settling and wrapping the grewsome scene in more intense sombreness, a Jamaican negro paddled leisurely down the gently rippling Plantain. He knew the clearing where Solomon dwelt and meant to stay the night there. Pushing softly in toward the shore he came suddenly upon the sight and was seized with terror.

Distorted in the flickering shadows, the wreck of what had been a man held terrors for the black which were not to be faced. Fear made him bend the supple paddle in his efforts to get away, and the graceful canoe shot out into midstream, leaving the trader to die. But further from the scene the Jamaican's courage returned, and Dick Martin, mumbling broken prayers and trembling so that he could scarcely paddle, returned and lifted Solomon into his boat.

The presence of life, however feeble, soothed his fear, and he started down the river for Rama, eight days' journey away. Medicine he had none, and the American could not eat nor drink, but the negro paddled vigorously, never sparing himself, and covered mile after mile in his race against the ebbing of the trader's life.

Saved by a Negress.

Once a negress, smoking before a mean hut near the river edge, called to him. Martin swerved toward the shore, shouting news of his errand to the woman.

"Wait!" she cried, and ran to the hut, returning with a towel and a pound bag of salt.

Wading into the river, while Martin steadied the canoe she bathed the wounds in his neck and back. Then together they stuck the stems of five clay pipes between the teeth of the dying man.

It was heroic treatment, but it was life or death, and there in the river, while the little craft bobbed and bowed in the waves, the man and woman poured the salt into the raw wounds, disinfecting them. The gnashing jaws of the American ground the pipestems into powder, but his teeth, strained by the agonized working of his mouth, were saved.

While a relentless sun almost baked them and the great spindle trees on either side of the river swayed comfortably of their own weight and a breathless breeze, the two negroes tortured the white man, oblivious of his groans, in order to save his life. Then they bound the wounds with the towel and, spreading a thin sheet over his body, renewed the race to Rama.

Hardly had the last knot been tied in the rough bandages when Martin dipped his paddle, and with perspiration streaming over face and limbs shot the canoe forward, while the woman waded to the shore. There was never a backward glance, for Martin knew that the fight was resolving itself into a matter of hours, and Rama was many miles distant. All that night he paddled, and all the next day and far into the next night, before the twinkling lights of the town, timid beacons of relief, shone round a bend in the river.

Too weak to lift the American from the canoe, Martin stumbled through the deserted streets and roused a surgeon. All that could be accomplished was done, but there were not the means in Rama to save the man's life, and it was decided to rush him to Bluefields. It was a long trip by water, but the land journey, over wretched roads, meant certain death, and although Solomon's chances were not one in a thousand it was decided to try the forlorn hope.

In a chugging launch the surgeon from Rama watched his patient hopelessly and loaded him with contrivances to delay the fast approaching death, and when they arrived at Bluefields Solomon was still alive.

Upon a stretcher they bore him toward the hospital through sun baked streets, in which a healthy man could scare endure, and yet the tenacious spark of life glimmered.

In a little church in Bluefields Dr. William F. Thornton, of St. Louis, was being married to the daughter of an English consular official. The guests were assembled and the ceremony was about to begin when Dr. Thornton saw through the open door the little group of men carrying the stretcher, and between them the pallid, wasted face of his old friend, Solomon.

It would take much to call a man from his own wedding, but Thornton remembered his oath, and with a few hurried words to the bride and to the minister he ran from the church. Kneeling beside the stretcher he did what he could to insure the man's living until he reached the hospital, then he ran ahead to prepare for him.

Hours he worked over Solomon, cutting and tying and plying needles and instruments in what seemed frantic haste. A slight slip of a knife would mean death, but so would the delay of a fraction of a second, and it was a desperate chance at best. Just what Dr. Thornton did is subject for a technical treating. He performed the great operation of his life, and has since lectured on it in Paris. But he saved Solomon and sent him from the operating table to the ward with multiplied chances for recovery.

Late that night when the American, bandaged and reeking of disinfectants, was unconsciously battling for existence on a soft, comfortable cot Dr. Thornton returned to the little church and was married.

Thereafter he shared the watch at Solomon's bedside with Brown, the rubber trader's partner. Tenderly as women the two men guarded the life of their friend, and the needs of every minute of day and night were promptly tended. Solomon grew stronger, but his fight had been terrific and the surgeons held out little hope.

At times he seemed to recuperate, then in a hot spell his strength would wane and death crept in close again. The eternity of torture seemed to have sapped the man's vitality, and after weeks of rest and care it looked as though there was no hope.

But ruling the broken body was a will of iron that was aiding the surgeon and was finally to win.

One day while Dr. Thornton was sitting on the edge of the cot in the hospital, his eyes dimmed, and with a broken voice he said:—

"Sol, old boy, I ought to tell you the truth. You've fought like seven devils, but you haven't a chance. If ever a man deserved it, you do, but I can't pull you through."

Solomon's voice was not strong and the wound in his neck marred his speech, but with an effort he replied:—

"That so, Doc? Well, you watch. I'll bet you a hundred that I get out of this bed, and I'll bet you another hundred that I bury you."

Heavy of heart Thornton humored his friend, but later he paid the first bet.

While Solomon was in the hospital a reward of $5,000 was offered for the capture of Fermin Guerro, who had tried to murder him. That was in 1887, but for twenty years Guerro was not heard of nor seen. Then he was arrested in Culculna, where he had hacked off a rubber worker's hand in a quarrel. When Solomon heard that the half breed was in jail in Wani, he went there to press the old charge against him, but revenge was denied him.

Escape of Guerro.

Guerro escaped while he was being transferred from Wani. How he eluded his guards is not known. Heavily manacled, he was taken in a river boat with his jailers and chained to the thwarts, but during the night he somehow gained his freedom and swam away.

Mr. Solomon, who is now general manager of the Central American Commercial Company, with headquarters in New Orleans, has made a standing offer of $1,000 for the arrest of Guerro, but the half-breed has disappeared as totally as though he were dead.

Down in Rama, in a neat little house in a clean section of the city, lives the negress who probably saved Mr. Solomon's life until he reached Rama. The house was a gift from him and was accompanied by money. To Dick Martin were given a house in Terre Alto, $100, and 200 pounds of tobacco, and Lucy McCoy, a creole who helped to nurse Solomon in Bluefields, received a house and money.

This is the story of Theophile M. Solomon, one of the wealthiest men of Nicaragua, and though his active life has been crowned with success the nightmare of terrible which he endured in the early days is not a thing to forget. Often at night he wakes to feel the torturing fists of a torrid sun beating down on a mangled dream body, an anguished cry for water hovering on his lips, and the agony of drowning, suffocating [illegible]

ON OTHER WORLDS

Lick Observatory Astronomer Doubts if any of the Planets Could Sustain Intelligent Life.

Under the heading "Life in Other Worlds" Prof. Robert Grant Aitken of the Lick Observatory discusses in the current Journal of the Royal Astronomical Society of Canada the probability as to the habitation of the planets. He summarizes all of the latest researches.

His conclusions are as follows:

The Moon—It may be that low forms of vegetable life are sustained by water vapor exuding through crevices from the moon's interior. But even if this plausible view the moon must still be regarded as practically a dead world.

Jupiter, the largest of the planets—It is a semi-sun, probably gaseous throughout, with matter distributed as on the sun. Jupiter has no well defined surface or crust. The conditions there are chaotic. Obviously, in such a world there can be no question of life.

Saturn, the outermost planet known to the ancients—It resembles Jupiter, but is probably not so far advanced and is even less fitted than its larger neighbor to be the abode of life.

Uranus and Neptune—Because of their great distance they are only minute disks in the largest telescopes. They present vague markings and they are so far from the sun that its heat and light can hardly be effective in protecting life upon these two planets even should life in any way originate there.

Satellites of Jupiter and Saturn—It is possible some of them may have water and an atmosphere dense enough for life. This is more conjectural and not probable.

Mercury—It apparently always keeps the same face toward the sun. It gets seven times as much heat as the earth and neither its eternal nor its everlasting roasting day is suitable for any form of life. It seems to have no atmosphere.

Venus—In size, mass, density and surface heavity it greatly resembles the earth. It has a dense, cloud-filled atmosphere. The whole question as to life on Venus turns on the problem as to the length of Venus's day. If its day equals its year that planet must be utterly desolate. The question is still an open one, though the evidence favors the belief that the day and the year on Venus are of equal length.

Mars—There undoubtedly are strong markings on Mars, but astronomers are not agreed as to whether the markings are natural or artificial, canals or mere earthquake cracks. The Martian atmosphere is rare and there are no permanent bodies of water on the planet. There is not enough water on the whole of Mars to fill one of the Great Lakes on the earth. The so-called polar ice caps and "frost" on Mars may be deposits of carbon-dioxide. The best that can be said is that while the temeprature on Mars is very low, there may be on that planet, to a limited extent, the conditions essential to life—probably only vegetable and animal life, but no beings of intelligence.

GRAND DUKE'S EASY WIN

Made a Good Sum at Roulette Without Even Watching the Play

The Grand Duke Michael of Russia created a sensation at Monte Carlo by winning a big coup at roulette. Strolling into the rooms, he handed the attendants $180 with instructions to divide the money into three lots and place them around number 22. Another $180 he staked liberally on the various tableaux on the same game. Without waiting for the result, the Grand Duke walked off, and stood watching the play at another table. Meanwhile the wheel spun round and the ball dropped into number 22, thus winning for the Grand Duke $6,120, or seventeen times his stake.

ABOLISH HAMMER THROW

Dangerous at Some Meetings, and Held in Corner Out of Sight

Another effort and one that seems likely to be ultimately successful, has been made to abolish the hammer throw by the International Collegiate Association of Amateur Athletes of America. There have been few changes in the list of events held in the annual intercollegiate games in the last dozen years, but for three or four seasons back there has been a steadily growing feeling that something should be done in reference to restricting, or abolishing entirely, the hammer throw. The plea made for its abolition at a meeting of the association was based entirely on the objection that it is an event which has to be held off in a corner some place where no one can see it, and if it does take place in the main arena there is great danger not only to the spectators, but also to other competitors.

DRASTIC NAVAL RULE

The Czar of Russia confirmed the decision of the Admiralty Council in favor of abolishing the article of the navy regulations providing for the surrender of a warship to the enemy under certain conditions and of superseding it by the following rule:

"The commander of a warship is compelled to destroy his ship whenever there is no possibility of continuing the fight and there is a danger of the ship falling into the enemy's hands."

YOUTHFUL MURDERERS

Boys of an Irish Industrial School Brutally Killed Their Teacher

"One of the saddest cases that has ever come before a court of justice—to see a boy of fifteen charged with the crime of wilful murder." Such was the statement of Lord Justice Cherry at Trim Assizes in Ireland when Thomas Reilly, a fifteen-year-old schoolboy, was sentenced to be detained in a reformatory for three years in connection with the death of John Kelly, the assistant master and teacher of the Trim Industrial School. Two other boys, William Smith and Peter Tuite, were found guilty of manslaughter and sentenced to three years' penal servitude. A lad named Farrelly was acquitted and a boy named Brennan was not charged. The Grand Jury had returned a bill of murder against the first but leave was granted to take the case of Reilly first of all and separately. The act, said the Attorney-General, was not the result of passion; it was deliberately planned several days before, and evidence would be given to the effect that the prisoner Reilly was heard by one boy in the school making an arrangement to beat the master. Mr. Kelly was attracted to the yard by a tar-brush being set afire. When he came out to investigate the cause he passed up and down the yard. As he turned round, Reilly, armed with a heavy scrubbing brush, dealt him such a blow on the head that he fell to the ground and never rose. The other boys rushed in and beat the dead man on the head and body.

BERNHARDT IN NEW ROLE

The Famous French Actress Has Interested Herself in Aviation Fund

Sarah Bernhardt has come to the rescue of the great national Press subscription in favor of military aviation by giving, as example in her theatre which may be followed by every other theatre in France. Something like $150,000 has already been subscribed by the Press, by the larger towns and by many private persons, but the enthusiasm did not seem as marked as might have been expected. Madam Bernhardt decided to enter into the field herself, and at one of the performances of "L'Aiglon," she left the stage between acts and took up a collection for the national aviation squadron, dressed as she was in her white buckskin suit of the Duke of Reichstadt. The audience was taken by surprise and gave her an enthusiastic ovation. She collected a handsome sum and promised to repeat what she had done at the next matinee.

Crowds flocked to the theatre which was packed, and this time Sarah's example was imitated by the young actresses of the company who joined her and who were enthusiastically cheered.

Education of Tinker Children

A committee of Forfar County Council have had under consideration the question of the maintenance in industrial schools of children who have no settled place of abode. It was agreed to ask the County Council to petition the Secretary for Scotland on the subject.

Extension of Glasgow

A petition which is being signed by owners and occupiers of lands in Govan, in favor of the extension of the boundaries of Glasgow, states that the development of Govan is mainly due to the communal advantages provided by Glasgow and the contiguity of the burgh to the city.

UNIFORMS DISAPPEARING

German Officers Like to Get Themselves as Civilians for Reasons

Old-time Berliners are lamenting the gradual disappearance of the military uniform from the streets. A quarter of a century ago more officers and soldiers in uniform were to be met with in the principal thoroughfares than civilians, while now, though the Berlin garrison if far larger, the presence of the uniform is hardly noticeable. Formerly, moreover, practically all military duties were over and done with by noon; nowadays, in consequence of the ever-increasing demands made on the soldier by modern requirements, there is hardly an hour in the day-time when officers and soldiers are unoccupied.

Another reason for the disappearance of the uniform is the increased wearing of civilian clothes, notwithstanding the fact that only soldiers on leave, out hunting, or with special permission are supposed ever to lay aside the Kaiser's uniform. For this the growth of sports like tennis, racing, football, rowing, and hockey is partially responsible, but the main cause is the increased cost of living. Tradition and custom require officers in uniform shall only frequent the best restaurants, occupy the parquet in the theatre, and in general spend money like a gentleman. Few officers possess private means, while the pay of all ranks is of the most modest character, and the result is that, if the officer or soldier is to have any enjoyment or recreation in the capital, he can have it only by clothing himself like the ordinary citizen who can suit his expenditure to his means. The regulations still forbid the use of mufti without permission but superior are wonderful shortsighted about noticing when the regulations are broken.

She has been made into a new woman by the climate of the South of France. She attributes it all to what she calls the "fresh air cure."

HORSE-PLAY NOT RELISHED

Being an Officer of the German Army Is a Serious Business

An angry controversy is raging in German military circles about a remarkable entertainment given at the Landwehr officers' casino in the Hardenberg Strasse. The Kaiser usually attends this entertainment, but this year, owing to the death of the Grand Duke of Luxemburg, he sent his son, Prince Eitel Friedrich. The chief feature was a "champagne dance." An officer in uniform led in a "lady," and danced with her in a very lively ultra-modern style. The "lady" then partially disrobed on the stage and turned out to be one of the officers.

Prince Eitel Friedrich applauded this entertainment; but some senior officers were highly indignant, and complained that the Kaiser's uniform was degraded. They were all the angrier because several privates were present as ticket-takers and door-keepers, and these, for the first time in their lives, were seen laughing at the antics of their superiors.

Drinking Equality

Mr. A. F. Hill, at Llandaff, Wales, Police Court, asked the magistrates for an expression of opinion in favor of public-houses at Whitchurch being kept open until eleven o'clock, as in Llandaff. He thought it very unfair that people were able to stay in a public-house at Whitchurch until ten o'clock and after that hour go into the next neighborhood and get served until eleven o'clock. Colonel Forrest intimated that the magistrates had no objection to both parishes being placed on a similar basis.

Ache they would be almost priceless to those who suffer from this distressing complaint; but fortunately their goodness does not end here, and those who once try them will find these little pills valuable in so many ways that they will not be willing to do without them. But after all sick head is the bane of so many lives that here is where we make our great boast. Our pills cure it while others do not.

Carter's Little Liver Pills are very small and very easy to take. One or two pills make a dose. They are strictly vegetable and do not gripe or purge, but by their gentle action please all who use them.

"FATHER" PASSES AWAY.

Sen. A. A. Macdonald of Confederation Fame Is Dead.

Ottawa, March 22.—Hon. Andrew A. Macdonald, Conservative Senator from Prince Edward Island, died here yesterday at the age of 83 years. He was ill only about a week and very few knew of his condition.

Born at Three Rivers, P.E.I., in 1829, he entered politics in 1863, in the Provincial Legislature, and Lieutenant-Governor of the province from 1884 to 1898, when he was elevated to the Senate.

The death of Senator Macdonald leaves Sir Charles Tupper the sole survivor of the fathers of Confederation. He was the one man in Canada who sat at the memorable conference at Quebec in 1867 and at the Charlottetown conference two months later. He took the only notes of the latter conference that were taken.

Until the last he was possessed of a wonderful memory and could clearly recall the events leading up to Confederation. He was an "Islander" born, was a storekeeper in the din and distant past, and built many of the trading ships that did business along the eastern coasts in the days gone by. Away back in 1853 he was making laws for Prince Edward Island in the Island Assembly, and was at one time Postmaster-General of Prince Edward Island.

Senator Macdonald remembered well the commercial struggles of the little Province of Prince Edward Island prior to Confederation, and no man knew better than he how great at one time was the danger of secession. As a business man he appreciated the powerful commercial influences which were being exerted in the direction of annexation.

TELEGRAPHIC BRIEFS.

The Tegetthoff, Austria's second Dreadnought, which was laid down in April, 1910, was launched at Trieste yesterday.

Loss of life is reported from a wind-storm that swept over north eastern Texas and southern Oklahoma Wednesday night.

Prince Edward Island has given notice to the Minister of Justice that it does not desire to be represented at the ne temere test case.

President Yuan Shi Kai has been obliged to postpone the payment of the former Emperor's monthly pension owing to lack of funds.

A movement is on foot among distinguished laymen to federate the Presbyterian, Methodist, Congregational and Anglican Colleges in Montreal.

Three alienists are reported to have examined Harry Thaw at Matteawan Asylum, and their report is in the hands of his New York counsel, Clarence Shearn.

The Turkish Minister of War announces a great Turkish victory at Benghazi, in Tripoli. The casualties on the Italian sides are given as four hundred killed or wounded.

Montreal's police dog attacked and held one of two newly-arrived emigrants who were fighting with an officer. The animal held on until reinforcements arrived. Both men were fined $10.

Fourteen more workmen were unexpectedly rescued from the Sans-Bois mine at McCurtain, Okla., yesterday. This makes a total of 25 miners brought forth alive. Fifteen corpses have been recovered.

Embargo on Grain Shipments.

Winnipeg, March 22.—Representatives of all Canadian railways are at Saskatoon, where the Railway Commission is in session, trying to secure an order to put an embargo on grain to Duluth.

Five weeks ago an arrangement was made by which Canadian railways could take Canadian grain into Duluth at a reduced rate. As a result, 6,300 cars of grain have been taken from Western Canada into Duluth, and 4,000 more cars are listed for that point. At the present time the available elevator capacity unused in Duluth amounts to about 4,500,000 bushels, and it is estimated that consignments on the tracks of different American and Canadian railways will about fill up the Duluth elevators.

The C.N.R. still has an embargo on grain going to Port Arthur, and should the embargo be put on at Duluth no western Canadian grain can be moved for months.

Woman Condemns Eaton's For Refusing to Arbitrate.

Toronto, March 22.—At a mass meeting called by the auxiliary of seven Toronto trades unions last night in St. Leger's Hall, Miss Gertrude Barnum declared that she had given up all hope of bringing about a conference between the T. Eaton Co. and their locked-out cloak makers. She urged her hearers to transfer their patronage until the firm should agree to arbitrate the dispute and also to organize the different neighborhoods in which they lived so that all the consumers would boycott the Eaton company.

It was not surprising, said she, that after all these weeks of fruitless efforts to get a conciliatory conference, acts of violence have and should break out. To her mind the employers and the public are responsible for the violence.

Thirty-seven days had passed while the well-disciplined body of a thousand faithful employes have waited without disorder. "I am sure," she continued, "that anyone should feel, as I feel, how shameful it is that the first breach of order, on the part of some hot-headed sympathizers of the strike, should be head-lined on the front page of a newspaper, when the press of the entire city has failed to head-line the company's refusal to grant a peaceful method of settling the issue.

"The slugging of 1,000 helpless working people by cold and hunger for five weeks with no comment from the press, pulpit or platform, yet the impatient act of some hot-heads will bring instant unsavory notoriety to innocent sufferers. No wonder the workers become class conscious, and condemn the 'capitalist press,' the clergy, the women's club and turning to their own class, cry out: 'Worker of the world, arise.'"

A resolution was passed by the meeting pledging those present to patronize other department stores until the Eaton company agrees to arbitrate.

OPERATORS DETERMINED.

They Refuse to Accede to Demands of U. S. Miners.

Cleveland March 22.—All the demands of the 200,000 miners in the bituminous coal fields of Western Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois for a ten per cent. increase in pay and shorter working hours were voted down by the operators yesterday.

As a final effort to prevent a prolonged shut down of the mines after April 1, and possibly a strike, the whole dispute was then referred to a sub-committee. This sub-committee, composed of eight miners' delegates and eight operators, will convene today to consider the possibility of a compromise to be recommended to the general conference.

Both operators and miners declared after the demands had been refused, that the coal situation throughout the country was grave. Intimations were made by John P. White, president of the United Mine Workers of America, that the negotiations here last night continue until next Monday, when the union's policy committee will convene.

Besides the 200,000 miners in the four states directly concerned, 150,000 bituminous coal miners in other states are dependent upon the present deliberations for a basis of making their wage scale, and about 170,000 anthracite miners. It was pointed out by Mr. White that the wages of more than 500,000 union miners after April 1 were in dispute and that the coal output of the country, other than that mined by non-union men was involved.

News from New York that the anthracite operators and miners might reconsider their differences however, had the effect of arousing confidence among union officials that the anthracite situation might be eliminated.

Packers Case Before Jury.

Chicago, March 22.—The case of the ten Chicago meat packers who have been on trial since December 6 before U. S. District Judge George A. Carpenter charged with criminal violation of the Sherman law, is scheduled to go to the jury this afternoon.

In closing the defendants' case, Attorney J. B. Payne said: "Cabinets in Europe await your verdict to decide whether fresh meat from the U. S. shall in the future be excluded from certain foreign countries. Do not send out word to the world that there is a dishonored cattle market in Chicago. The Government is asking prison term for these defendants if a verdict of guilty is returned. If men are to be deprived of their liberty on such evidence as this, then, indeed, our institutions are on trial.

"Not a witness has testified that the price of fresh meat has been raised or the price of cattle lowered."

Belleville's Waiting Patriots.

Belleville, March 22.—There are 87 members of the Belleville Veterans' Association who are entitled to receive $100 for services rendered during the Fenian Raid. Of this number 60 are residents of the city at present and the remainder are in various parts of the country.

No Man is Stronger Than His Stomach

A strong man is strong all over. No man can be strong who is suffering from weak stomach with its consequent indigestion, or from some other disease of the stomach and its associated organs, which impairs digestion and nutrition. For when the stomach is weak or diseased there is a loss of the nutrition contained in food, which is the source of all physical strength. When a man "doesn't feel just right," when he doesn't sleep well, has a uncomfortable feeling in the stomach after eating, is languid, nervous, irritable and despondent, he is losing the nutrition needed to make strength.

Send a man should use Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It cures those ills of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It enriches the blood, invigorates the liver, and tones the kidneys, nourishes the nerves, and so GIVES HEALTH AND STRENGTH TO THE WHOLE BODY.

You can't afford to accept a substitution as a substitute for this time-tested medicine of known composition, not even though the urgent dealer may thereby make a little bigger profit. Ingredients printed on wrapper.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, March 21.—There continues to be a fairly good demand from European sources for all grades of Manitoba spring wheat, but the volume of business doing from here is comparatively small. The demand for ocean grain room is fairly good and engagements for 1,250,000 bushels have been made so far this week at firm rates. An easy feeling prevails in the market for oats, owing to increased receipts and prices for some grades have been reduced another ½c per bushel. Owing to the temporary scarcity of butter on spot, prices have advanced ½c to 1c per lb. Cheese is quiet and firm. Eggs, fairly active. The demand for lard is good and prices have advanced ½c per lb. Hogs firm and fairly active.

Rich Potash Find in United States

Washington, March 22—Enough potash to supply the United States probably for the next thirty years has been discovered by Government scientists in Searles Lake, San Bernardino County, Cal. The estimate of the geological survey and the bureau of soils is that the deposit may amount to 4,000,000 tons, but the authorities here, from data in their possession, consider that estimate conservative and believe that more than 10,000,000 tons of potash is available there.

Succeeds Father in Parliament.

London, March 22.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Henry Keswick, son of the late member, was yesterday returned to Parliament unopposed for the Epsom division.

Still Hope to Save Richeson.

Boston, March 22.—Efforts to save Clarence V. T. Richeson, the confessed murder of Avis Linnell, from death in the electric chair, began yesterday when his counsel, W. A. Morse, conferred with Governor Foss. The date set for the former clergyman's execution is in the week of May 19.

Mr. Morse said that no petition for commutation would be sent to the governor for two weeks at least, and he further intimated that the matter would not be pressed until the date of the execution was less than a month away.

Richeson's friends hope to obtain a life sentence for him.

No Bail For Suffragettes.

London, March 22.—The suffragists, Mrs. Emeline Pankhurst, Mr. and Mrs. Pethick Lawrence, and Mrs. Mabel Tuke, were again remanded after a further hearing of the charge of conspiracy and inviting to commit malicious damage to property.

Smallest Parrot.

The smallest full grown parrot known is two and a half inches long. It was sent to the British museum by members of an expedition to New Guinea.

Choosing His Trade.

The future occupation of children in China is determined by chance, for the infant is seated in a large stove with various articles indicating the different professions, and the first thing he touches is to be his trade when he grows up.

Eskimo Doctors.

The Eskimo gives his doctor a fee as soon as he comes. If the patient recovers the fee is kept; if not it is returned.

The Nile and the Ganges.

The Nile is 3,400 miles long, while the Ganges is less than 2,000 miles in length. The Nile for the last 1,200 miles of its course does not receive a single brook, while the Ganges all through its course is constantly re-enforced by tributary streams. This may account for the fact that the maximum discharge of the Ganges at Rajmahal is five times that of the Nile at Cairo.

Illiterate Turkey.

Only one-half of the population of Turkey can read and write. Five per cent of boys and 1 per cent of girls attend elementary schools.

Hose of Olden Time.

In the very long ago hose were not stockings as now worn, but made long and were often drawn up even to the waist, and, oddly enough, had pockets in their sides. We read, moreover, that in the time of the Tudors and Stuarts they were of great variety, both of material and color, and for such as could command the luxury were richly trimmed and costly. They were often called "mother stocks."

Paper Rifle Barrel.

A rifle barrel has been made from paper, and through it a bullet has been fired. It resisted the shock just as well as steel, but it costs more and may be classed with the freak manufactures of paper.

Kitchen Alarm Clock.

One housekeeper has prevented many a burned roast or overbaked cake by setting the alarm clock to the proper time to open the oven door. Then she goes about her work in other parts of the house, knowing that she will hear the imperative call at the right time.

Starlight.

The total light emanating from all the stars is equal to 2,984 times the luminosity of a star of the first magnitude.

Plant Development.

Many well known plants have been developed from specimens discovered in various parts of the world, and there is no doubt that a number of charming novelties are still lurking undiscovered in remote spots. The chances of valuable finds are, however, becoming unfortunately less every year. A small army of collectors is always at work in every corner of the world searching for new treasures to enrich our floral store.

Will work when in condition.

It takes his whole ambition.

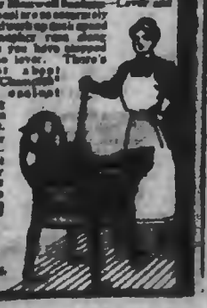
MAXWELL'S HIGH SPEED CHAMPION

is the Washer for a Woman

In the first place, Maxwell's "Champion" is the only washer that can be worked with a crank handle at the side as well as with the top lever. Just suit your own convenience.



Another Maxwell feature—Lower and Quicker Water is so scientifically arranged and worked up that the washer runs along even when you have stopped working the lever. There's no doubt about Maxwell's "Champion" being the easiest running washer on the market. Write for new illustrated booklet describing Maxwell's and how not to handle Maxwell's Water.

WOULD LOCATE HERE IF SUPPLY OF FEMALE HELP WERE ASSURED

Peterboro' Loses Factory Through Lack of Sufficient Supply of Girls to Meet Requirements of Manufacturers

HOUSEKEEPERS AFFECTED

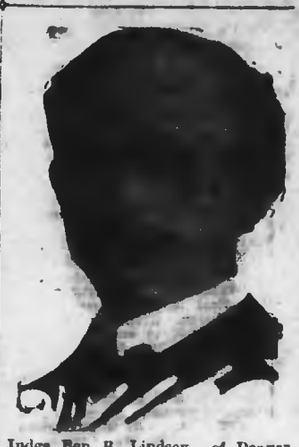
A dearth in the supply of domestic help is at present agitating the minds of those who are dependent upon this class of labour for the successful elimination of their labour difficulties. This not only applies to the everyday householder, but more especially to the factories. The local industries are compelled to advertise from time to time, for help of this nature, and it is seldom that the "Girl Wanted" sign can be dispensed with for any length of time. One local manufacturer recently declared that one of the worst problems which confronted the manufacturers of today insofar as the labour problem is concerned, was the lack of female help. While a visiting manufacturer voiced his opinion in the remark, to the effect that were a sufficient supply of girls available he would seriously consider the advisability of locating a branch employing between four and five hundred hands in this city.

Party of 25 Expected.

In order to ameliorate these conditions somewhat, Mr. Howson, local immigration agent, has been in communication with an Old Country employment agency, with a view to securing a number of girls suitable for domestic or factory service. The wages are good, ranging from one dollar to one dollar and twenty-five cents per day, and steady employment is assured all those who are willing to engage in an avocation of this nature. Mr. Howson expects a party of about twenty-five, in the course of a few weeks, and is confident of being able to place them in suitable homes, immediately upon their arrival. As regards the domestic servant problem, there are unlimited openings for the right class of girls, at good wages, in comfortable homes, under conditions which are, from almost every point of view, much more congenial than that which prevails in Great Britain.

Hired Help Situation.

The male help problem is one that appeals only to one section of the community, and that is the rural district. Farmers daily beslege the Immigration office, demanding information relative to the prospects of securing help. The biggest percentage of the applicants get nothing more than the satisfaction of having their names placed on the "Help Wanted" roll. The supply is not equal to the demand, and is not likely to be for some time at least. This circumstance is largely due to the development of Canada and constitutes one of the great ecoomic dramas of modern times. In twenty years the West has been transformed from a comparative wilderness into a centre of agricultural activity, and the process has attracted the attention of the whole civilized world. Over a hundred million bushels of wheat alone are being produced yearly from the prairie districts, and this amount is continually being added to by the inflow of settlers and the opening up of lands for farming which have hitherto bee considered outside the "wheat belt." In fact, it seems hard to place a limit at the present time to the agricultural possibilities of the West, as experience is proving the adaptability of soil and climate to the growing grain in regions in which only recently even the most sanguine settlers would not care to locate.



Judge Ben B. Lindsey, of Denver, author of a "Mothers' Compensation Bill," shortly to be voted on in Colorado. The idea is to do away with state institutions for the care of children, and pay mothers, where necessary, a sufficient sum to keep each of her children till they are able to work for themselves.

TO-DAY'S POLICE COURT REGISTER

Magistrate Dispenses Judgement in Whirlwind Fashion—the Common Complaint

CHARGED WITH VAGRANCY

Magistrate Dumble disposed of four cases in the morning session of the Police Court at the rate of one a minute.

John Moore and Walter Brooks became very boisterous in the vicinity of the Cereal Works, last night, and were even so obstreperous as to gain admittance into the plant, where they proceeded to disturb the tranquillity of the night shift. This action on their part earned for them a night's lodging in the cells. The men pleaded guilty to a charge of drunk and disorderly conduct.

A fine of $5 was imposed with an option of fifteen days in goal, attached.

"Mr. Nesbitt had better use them while he has the opportunity," suggested His Worship. It's not healthy to stall feed them," he added.

Charged With Vagrancy.

Bruce Rhoddy pleaded guilty to the charge of vagrancy which was registered against him. He was fined five dollars in default of payment, fifteen days in gaol.

Fined Two Dollars.

With his toilet showing evident signs of having been neglected, John McKee leaned heavily upon the dock rail, and entered a plea of guilty to a charge of being drunk and disorderly in a public place.

"Has he ever been here before?" inquired the Magistrate.

"Yes," replied McKee. "I was here last spring."

"$2.00 and ten days to pay it in," came from the Court; this, in addition to a little free advice as to what should constitute his actions towards his wife and family, in the future.

SERIOUS LOSS BY FIRE

Mr. John McGillen, of Keene, has just lost his barn, together with grain, fodder ,implements, three head of cattle and a horse, by fire, the origin of which is unknown. Mr. McGillen and his brother Charles were away at the time and did not know of the incident until well on the way home. The barn and contents are insured for $1500.

FOUND DEAD

Isaac Dunn, well known to residents of Keene, was found dead on Wednesday in a little shanty on the river shore just west of Mr. Jas. McConnell's premises by some ladies who had brought him some eatables. He had been in poor health for some time and had evidently been dead a day or two when found.

LABOUR AMENDMENT DECLINED BY ASQUITH DOOR CLOSED TO SETTLEMENT OF STRIKE

Labour Members Insist That Their Amendment to the Minimum Wage Bill Should be Carried and There is More Trouble Just as it was Thought the Disastrous Strike was Being Brought to a Close --Some of the Newspapers had Announced That the Strike was all Over

Special Wire to The Examiner.

LONDON, ENG., MARCH 22.—Premier Asquith, this afternoon, in the House of Commons, declined to accept the Labourites' amendment to the Minimum Wage Bill, providing a general minimum wage of five shillings for men and two shillings for boys.

Eneck Edwards, M.P., immediately announced that the Government's rejection of this amendment closed the door to the immediate settlement of the strike. There must be a general minimum wage without the necessity of a reference to the district boards.

This conversation only took up a few minutes of the session, but it again plunged the whole nation into the gloom which had been partly dissipated by the prospects of a quick settlement following the comparative ease with which the minimum wage bill passed the early stages in the Commons, last night, with 123 majority. Several morning papers went so far as to announce in the headlines that the strike was all over and the miners returning to work at once.

Asquith pointed out it would be inadvisable and dangerous to the men, themselves, to have parliament say that five shillings per day would be a fair minimum wage all over the country, as in some localities the work might be harder and worth more than in others. Edwards persisted in his demands.

Speaking for the Unionist Opposition, Bonar Law said the Government had taken the right course on this amendment. But the main thing is that Edwards has officially closed the door to the expected settlement of the most calamitous strike that ever affected the United Kingdom.

It is hinted in several Unionist papers this morning that Mr. Balfour's return to the leadership of the Unionist party is not temporary, but permanent, and necessitated by the discontent in the party with the leadership of Bonar Law.

Edwards amendment in the Commons was finally defeated without division. The labour members left the chamber declaring there will be no resumption of work in the coal mines till the amendment is adopted.

MANY MIRACULOUS ESCAPES WHEN FIVE CARS OF A SETTLERS' TRAIN PLUNGED DOWN EMBANKMENT

Left the Rails at Jackfish and Although Cars Were Crowded no One was Killed—Port Hope Man Injured

THREE ARE BADLY HURT

Special Wire to The Examiner.

PORT ARTHUR, MARCH 22.— The settlers' train, of which five cars plunged down a thirty foot embankment last night at Jackfish, was from Toronto and many people from Eastern and Western Ontario were aboard. The cars were loaded to their capacity with men, women and children, and their escape from death was a miracle. The passengers were dragged through windows and other openings just as the fire swept through the debris of the cars. Twelve men and one woman are in the hospital here. Three are in a very serious condition, Mrs. Hutchinson, Brantford, back hurt and internal injuries; A. Covery, Preton Station, Ont., internal injuries; Benjamin Watt, Port Hope, crushed.

THE RED MILL THEATRE

To-night and To-morrow Night

The special feature at the Red Mill from now on will be the music.

Two high-salaried artists, violin and piano, will appear and render excellent music each and every performance. Lovers of good music should not fail to hear this orchestra.

The management of this popular theatre gives a special invitation to all patrons of moving pictures to come and see "The Temptress," being shown to-day and to-morrow. This picture is very true to life and points to a good moral for both old and young. This picture is produced by the Great Northern Film Co., and is one worthy of mention and is worth the admission alone.

"The Birthmark," Reliance film, is a drama of excellent merit and worthy of special mention. A baby, left on a doorstep of wealthy people by a poor father, falls into the hands of thieves. The child, now grown to womanhood, is made to steal by her foster parents. The father, becoming rich, returns for his child and is informed that they know nothing of the occurrence. While in the act of robbing her father's home, she is found to be his own child, by the birthmark on her shoulder.

Special music by the Red Mill trio and orchestra. Come early, 5c. to all, 5c.

The United States Coal Situation Is Not Bright

Special to The Examiner:

CLEVELAND, MARCH 22.—An important conference is being held here to-day between representatives of the coal miners and owners, which may decide whether two hundred thousand bituminous coal miners of Pennsylvania, Ohio and Indiana go on strike on the first of April. Such a strike would tie up the railroads and greatly encourage the anthracite miners in their demands. It is stated here to-day that the conditions are not bright for a settlement. This strike would seriously affect Ontario.

BUILDING TRADES ARE BEGINNING TO SHOW SEASONABLE ACTIVITY

Some of the Principal Work That is Interesting Contractors ---General Feeling of Optimism is Manifested

The prospects for the building season for 1912 are still in the chrysalis stage. Contractors, prominent and otherwise, are beginning to show signs of their midseason activity, and like the ball teams, are limbering up preparatory to taking on a few contracts. Up to the present, the "Spring opening" is somewhat doubtful. To some it looks fair and others regard it as none too bright, but the latter are considerably in the minority.

The construction work that is being planned at the Canadian General Electric Company's plant, will afford considerable employment and the two new public schools will help boost the figures for building permits. Likewise the addition of two stories to the factory of J. J. Turner & Sons will be considered. Some of the builders have been enquiring about the erection of a new church, or enlargement to the Charlotte Street Methodist church, but several prominent members have intimated that it is unlikely that anything will be done this year.

It is learned that some work has already been commenced, but it is mostly remnants from last year that were not completed, owing to the cold weather. The number of dwellings to be erected this year is promising although many of them are still in an embryo form. There is a spirit of optimism among the builders and as the season unfolds itself the number of opportunities for work should gradually increase.

EKOS BEAT BROWNIES IN A CLOSE HARD BATTLE

Before a large crowd at the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium last night the veteran Eko Club just managed to dispose of the Brownies in by far the fastest game that has been played on the local floor for many a long day. The youngsters (Brownies) started out with a rush and at the breathing spell had the score doubled; but after the rest the Eko men woke up and raged the ball several times in succession, tieing the score, and from here on it was anybody's game, and when time was called the Eko Club were leading. Score, Ekos, 27; Brownies 23.

Following were the teams:

Ekos, A. Hall and Elliott, forwards; Canniff, captain, centre; Fleming and F. Turner, defence.

Brownies, Hanwell, Capt., and Nicholls, forwards; Downing, centre; Stewart and Irvine, defence.

Referee, C. E. Sisson; umpire, J. J. Thompson.

The next game of interest in the City Basketball Championship series will be the Hustlers-Eako game, which is scheduled for next Tuesday night ,at 8.30.

Everything is ready for the T. C. S. vs. Y. M. C. A. game, on Saturday night. The class of the local team is quite evident when you look at the men who have been chosen to defend Peterborough's laurels: Forwards, H. Hill of the Nemos; and Art Hall of the Eko Club; Centre, Hugh Wallis, of the Hustlers; defence, "General" Throop of the Nemos and "Teddy" Hanwell of the Brownies. Game called at 7.45 sharp, so that the visitors may be given time to catch the 9.00 p.m. train for Port Hope.

The Property of the late Dr. Boucher will be offered For Sale at the hour of 3 o'clock sharp on Saturday, March 23rd.

GRIEVANCES OF G. T. R MEN ARE AIRED IN COMMITTEE

Railway Committee of the Commons Takes up the Question This Morning and Government is Criticized

GOVERNMENT'S POLICY

Special Wire to The Examiner.

OTTAWA, MARCH 22.—The alleged Grand Trunk failure to carry out its agreement with its men who went out on strike in 1910, was the cause of scathing criticism in the railway committee of the Commons this morning. John Webster, M.P. for Brockville, told the committee that there were a number of men in Brockville who had not been taken back. Some of them had been offered a chance to get back by starting at the foot of the ladder and losing all the benefits of years of previous service. Hon. Mr. Crothers, the Minister of Labour, made a long statement of the government's policy, which he intimated, was to force the Grand Trunk to carry out its agreement with the men. The government could and would do this immediately.

W. N. Harding, the Indianapolis lawyer, who is conducting the defence of the indicted labour leaders.

CITY'S DEMAND TOO SWEEPING

Private Bills Committee Considered They Were Asking too Much When Whole County Included

UP AGAIN ON TUESDAY

Peterborough's bill asking for the right to expropriate power plants and equipments in the County of Peterborough will likely have to be pruned before it is again presented to the Private Bills committee of the Legislature on Tuesday next. One of the members stated that it looks as if the city may be given the right to expropriate the Peterborough Light and Power Company's distribution plant, but it was doubtful whether anything further would be gained. Mr. E. A. Peck introduced the committee and Mayor Bradburn and Mr. L. M. Hayes presented the city's request. As stated in yesterday's issue, Mr. Strachan Johnston, representing the Seymour Electric Power Co., spoke against the bill and Mr. Sam. Nesbitt of East Northumberland, opposed it. The chairman of the Private Bills committee, Mr. I. B. Lucas, asked that the case of the city be more clearly stated and the hearing was peremptorily adjourned until Tuesday next.

Members of the committee state that apparently the city was asking too much in its bill, and after the experience in Toronto, they admitted that they thought they had asked more than they really required. The members are a unit in their belief that they will be granted powers referred to above.

INJURED BY A CIRCULAR SAW

A serious and painful accident befel Mr. Robert Cleghorn of Otonabee yesterday afternoon. He was engaged in cutting wood with a circular saw, when he accidentally ran against the saw, which penetrated his knee cap. He was immediately taken to his home, where Dr. Greer who had been called from Peterborough, attended him. He is now progressing favourably.

PREPARING FOR "THE CRUCIFIXION"

A combined practice of St. John's and All Saints' church choirs was held last night for the "Crucifixion" music in All Saints church. About 70 voices are to take part this year and a rehearsal will be held in St. John's church on Sunday evening after Evensong.

It is proposed to present the work in both St. John's and All Saints' under the leadership of Mr. E. J. Dewey. Pleasing words of welcome and response were exchanged by the leaders of the choirs.

PRIEST'S BODY IS FOUND ON G.T.R. TRACK

Special to The Examiner:

WINNIPEG, MAN., MARCH 22.—Mutilated beyond recognition, the body of Rev. Joseph C. Zernowsky, of the Ruthenian Catholic church, was found on the Grand Trunk Pacific track 25 miles west of Melfortville, Sask., last night. The coroner's jury implicates John Aurischuk, a farmer living south of Goodeve, who was arrested, charged with the crime. The prisoner threatened the dead man two years ago for taking his soul away, and said he would get even if it was not returned.

GERMANY'S ANSWER

Examiner Special:

BERLIN, GERMANY, MARCH 22—Kaiser Wilhelm and the Fatherland today gave answer to Hon. Winston Churchill's reduction of armaments proposals by submitting the proposed Army and Navy bills in an unaltered state. They provide for great increases in army and navy.

When The Lungs Are Weak

To every person with weak lungs or who has a family history with records of consumption, a cough or cold is a serious matter.

Coughs have a tendency to hang on. They irritate the weakened membranes and prevent healing. There is always the danger that a cold may get a firm foothold and settle on the lungs. It is so easy under these conditions for pneumonia or consumption to develop.

About the surest means of controlling coughs and colds is by the use of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. This treatment loosens the cough, allays the irritation and inflammation and thoroughly overcomes the disagreeable symptoms. The success of this medicine has given rise to many imitations. It is only natural to suppose that the original possesses merit of an unusual degree.

FRIDAY, MARCH 22, 1912

THE COAL STRIKE OVER.

Through the action of the Asquith government in procuring legislation to that end, the deplorable strike of coal miners, in Great Britain, which had practically paralysed the manufacturing, commercial and transportation business of the country, is practically at an end. The government had exhausted every form of persuasion and argument, to bring the parties to the strike to a settlement, but without result. While legislative interference to settle the strike might be regarded as establishing an undesirable precedent, the terrible consequences of the strike, seem to justify the extraordinary measures taken. If the bill has the effect of ending the strike, it will put an end to the suffering of the striking miners, and the threatened calamity to material interests, without precedent, in the history of the country.

DON'T DO IT.

The proposal to vulgarize the beautiful national "driveway" of Ottawa by converting it into a glaring "whiteway" is objectional. The natural beauties of the "driveway' may be "improved" b yart, but there is a limit set by good taste to the extent to which art ma ybe decently applied. And this limit is not only reached, but greatly overpassed by the proposal to de-nature the driveway by pigging it under the staring blase of electric lamps, and thereby giving it a "Coney Island" finishing touch—"finishing touch" indeed as regards its beauty from an aesthetic point of view. The Ottawa Driveway is a national possession, maintained largely by the money of the people of the whole dominion and should be of a dignity compatible with the greatness of the country. This will be entirely lost if the Driveway is brought to the level of an "amusement park." The first step in this degradation seems to consist in the proposal to make it a "cheap-John" "whiteway."

AN EMBARASSMENT OF CASH.

Premier Whitney shows an unusual modesty in his searching for a man to spend the five million dollars to be devoted to the development of New Ontario. His own Government has not had bad success in spending the public money and if he has lost confidence in his own government he might look to Ottawa, where the Borden Government is showing indications of an ability to spend money easily, by the way they are making the money fly. There would be precedent for calling in the Dominion Government. According to the present partisan entente—some would call it conspiracy—there is, to use Premier Borden's phraseology, a very intimate "interlooking of Dominion and Provincial functions." Ontario is troubled with an embarras des riches. The province has voted more money than it can spend in developing New Ontario, and we have the Dominion piling responsibility upon this Province by its good roads grants and grants to agriculture. It is costing Canada a good deal in cold cash to have Mr. Borden implement the promises that paved his way to power, not to speak of concessions of principle made necessary, or at least, made, to help him to the treasury benches, and to the combination of the public sale.

FAILURE IN BOTH CASES.

Grand Master Clarke in his opening address to the Grand Orange Lodge of Ontario East, declares that bilingual schools must go—the law relating to them would be sure to be evaded. And he is right, judging by the inspection and oversight that have been given by the Ontario government, to the bilingual schools of the province. The report of Dr. Merchant shows that these schools have been criminally neglected. There has been failure to provide an adequate supply of qualified teachers and a failure to see that they were supplied with such teachers, the one neglect and direct consequence of the others. The Grand Master need not expect that the law in regard to Bilingual schools will be observed, when the law in regard to all schools, in the matter of the most essential element of successful teaching is evaded—an adequate supply of qualified teachers. Bilingual schools are not the only schools where the teaching equipment is defective. There are hundreds of teachers without the legal qualification, receiving money of the ratepayers and of the province, in connection with the public schools of the province. There is, and has been, all-round neglect and general inefficiency in the administration of the school interests of the province, apart perhaps from the Provincial University, in the case of which, happily, dependence is not placed upon Hon. Dr. Pyne to supply the teaching element. It is an easy thing to appropriate money, but it needs brains and good will to give it effective expenditure.

ON BEHALF OF THE HORSE.

The Duke of Connaught, in addressing the annual meeting of the Ottawa Humane Society, said that he thought it was a relic of barbarism to dock horses tails; it was a shame, he thought to deprive "this dumb animal of the tail that God had given it." His Royal Highness also condemned the reckless driving, overloading and abuse of horses. Whatever may be thought of the Duke's opinion regarding the docking of horses, which has its defenders among those interested in making horses more saleable, there will be found nobody to defend the practice of abusing horses in various ways, that so prevalent in this, as well as every other city. One is often led to reflect, why a merciful Providence permits man, who has the power and exercises it cruelly, to inflict so much suffering upon dumb animals, especially the horse. We see every day, almost, instances of heartless cruelty practised upon horses. We see irresponsible and reckless boys put in charge of delivery waggon horses, over-drive, abuse, beat, jerk and lash horses, that must not only suffer, but have their value lessened by the treatment they receive. If owners of horses, having less of the brute than the horses themselves, could see how some horses are ill-treated when out of sight of the owners, they would speedily put a stop to it. Then there are owners who seem bound to get the last pound of flesh—sometimes mighty little of it, too—by urging, goading and driving horses in front of heavy loads, with raw, galled shoulders, lame legs, etc., that should be in a horse hospital or out to grass. Appeal to the sensibilities and mercy of thoughtless boys or men, whose treatment of dumb animals show that they have neither sensibility nor mercy, is useless. The law of the land forbids cruelty to dumb animals, but unfortunately it is honoured more in the breach than in the observance. What is needed is somebody or something to enforce it, or influence its enforcement. We have societies of almost every character and shade, but we have no Humane Society, such as in other places does effective work in the prevention, and punishment of cruelty to animals. Here is room for a society that has a large field for really good work.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Premier Borden no longer doubts the truth of the anti-protectionist theory that the consumer pays the duty. After paying $375.00 duty on his court uniform, imported from England, he is thoroughly convinced upon this point, and will no doubt take unusual care that no other consumer will come into play—he will keep the moths out of his state clothes.

CALLS THEM BLUFFERS.

(Ottawa Free Press.)

This bank note contract business grows interesting. Some months ago it was announced under big two-column headings in the Conservative press that the Borden government, in the public interests, proposed to invite tenders from engraving establishments the world over, and particularly from English houses. Of course they did not say that this was just exactly what the Laurier government had done before awarding the contract.

The result, as officially announced this week, was that, like their predecessors, the Borden government received only two tenders, one from an American and the other from a Canadian firm, and also like the Laurier government they gave the order to the American house because its price was the lowest by some $20,000.

But what is this we read now? A special cable from London quotes a letter to the 'Times,' written by the head of the big Waterlow printing house, indignantly protesting against the treatment meted out by the Dominion government in connection with the bank note contract. He points out that they were given only seven days in which to figure on this big contract, which he declares is unreasonable.

His deduction is, therefore—in fact he says it is proved—that "the Canadian government never really intended to give us a chance."

Mr. Waterlow evidently does not know that this Borden government is the most ultra-British and ultra-loyal administration that Canada ever had.

PATRIOTISM THAT PAYS.

For its road through the mountains and in the interior of British Columbia the Canadian Northern holds the guarantee of its bonds by the Government of British Columbia for the colossal sum of $21,000,000, the rate being $25,000 per mile. It is now announced at Ottawa that the Government of the Dominion has acceded to the request of the Canadian Northern for a double subsidy of $12,000 per mile for the British Columbia section of the railway from the Yellowhead Pass to Vancouver, a total distance of 525 miles. The subsidy will amount to $6,500,000.

These vast subventions give point to the "patriotic" campaign of Mr. Z. A. Lash, Vice-President of the C.N.R., in opposition to the reciprocity agreement. Mr. Lash expressed his devotion to the principle of development along east and west lines. He succeeded in convincing a great many electors in Ontario that the future of the country was menaced by the lines of that dreadful renegade, Jim Hill, was prepared to build northward into Canada without any public aid whatsoever. The people of Ontario will now pay for their hurrah. Mr. Lash and his associates have presented their bill for saving the conutry. The total of six and a half millions down on the nail is moderate for the services rendered. Why haggle about it? Brother Zebulon and his principals need the money. It would not be patriotic to keep them waiting.—Globe.

PARTIZAN COMMITTEE CREATES TROUBLE

Hot Row Over Railway Bill in Railway Committee Room

OTTAWA, MARCH 21.— A lively row sprang up over the Grand Trunk bill in the railway committee of the Commons this morning. At the last meeting it was decided to appoint sub-committee to consider the bill, and such committee turned out to be composed entirely of Conservatives.

When the railway committee met this morning, E. W. Nesbitt protested against the departure from the usual custom of having the minority represented on all committees.

"I wish to protest against the studied and unnecessary insult to the Liberal members of the committee."

"Take that back," declared E. A. Lancaster, warmly.

"I'll take nothing back," retorted Mr. Nesbitt.

"I deny that there was any studied insult," explained Mr. Lancaster. "I asked the men who were taking the most part in the discussion. Two of them were opposing and two supporting the bill."

Major Currie, who is in charge of the bill, stated that Mr. Lancaster had not put any Liberals on the sub-committee and had put himself thereon with the object of killing the bill.

"I don't propose to take your shurs. There is no politics in this committee. The Liberals took no part in the discussion. Why then, should they be on the sub-committee?"

Mr. Nesbitt repeated that Mr. Lancaster's action was a studied insult to the Liberals.

Mr. Lancaster—"That's no true. Take it back."

Mr. Nesbitt—"It was a studied insult and everything you say is, too."

Mr. Lancaster—"Oh, go and take a dose of something!"

Mr. Nesbitt—"I will give you a dose if you want it. By—, I'll deal with you if you want it!"

Here Chairman Lennox intervened and the wordy war came to an end without any personal blows being struck.

Then it developed that the sub-committee had done nothing, the majority of the nominees having refused to act as soon as they discovered that there were no Liberals among their numbers.

REDUCE TIMBER DUES AND RATES TO SETTLERS

As Means to Development of Northern Ontario

A wealth of natural resources and immense trade possibilities are the keynotes of an exhaustive report on northern Ontario, written by Mr. Fred. W. Field on behalf of the Toronto Board of Trade, and published to-day. With 20,000,000 acres of splendid agricultural lands, large mineral deposits, an enormous aggregate in water powers, and a considerable area of valuable timber lands, Mr. Feld urges that immediate steps be taken to settle the great northland, and suggests some of the ways and means by which it may be accomplished. He shows that even with the present sparse population, there is to-day an annual purchasing power between North Bay and Cochrane of no less than $45,000,000. "To some extent," says the report, "the discussion of trade prospects and possibilities in a new country, which has known the railway for only a few years, has the appearance of extreme prophecy. Such is the case in northern Ontario, but imagination can be reduced to something more substantial by examining the extent of natural resources, the amount of development work accomplished, the probable trend of future development and the work on the part of the Provincial Government, Boards of Trade municipalities, and the individual, which appears to stand prominent."

Forest Wealth and Industry.

Two chapters are devoted to the forest wealth and products of the north, and their industrial possibilities. "The forest products of northern Ontario should create new industrial life in that country, giving employment to many thousands and producing a large revenue for circulation in the Province. The Provincial Government has provided that all pine sawlogs, spruce pulpwood and hemlock, must be manufactured in the Dominion, into lumber, pulp or paper. The effect of this decree should, naturally increase a market for many supplies. Canadian industrial development has been marked during the past decade, but it is doubtful whether any single industry has experienced such rapid progress as pulp and paper manufacturing. While the embargo has helped Canada's natural advantages have figured most. These are::

"(1) Large areas of forest, producing timbers best adapted to wood pulp.

"(2) More water powers than any other country in the world.

"(3) A population unusually well skilled in wood craft.

The report goes into details respecting the waterpowers of the north. One estimate gives the available supply at 2,000,000 horsepower.

Ontario's Crop Production.

Dwellers in the older parts of the Province, where thriving cities, well-cleared lands and prosperous farmers are found, are sometimes apt to conclude, says Mr. Field, that the northern belt is a comparatively unimportant strip. Largely to agricultural prosperity in old Ontario and the west can be ascribed the neglect of latent prosperity in New Ontario. The necessity of immediate settlement in the north can be realised to some extent when we know that of the 140,000,000 acres constituting the area of Ontario, only 46,000,000 acres are surveyed, leaving an area unsurveyed of 94,000,000 acres.

Sales, locations, etc., amounting to 24,000,000 reduce the total remaining in the Crown's possession to 116,000,000 acres. Of that, as previously noted, 20,000,000 acres are known to be valuable agricultural land. When the northern country becomes traversed farther that total will undoubtedly be enlarged. It was but ten years ago when the Provincial Government authorities thought we had only 16,000,000 acres of good land in that region.

Must Build Settlers' Roads.

The work which confronts the settler is sufficient without giving him the additional duty of hacking a way to his farm. As a business proposition the expenditure of a large sum of money on building roads is justified. Every new settler is a material asset, and with the many natural advantages of the north, together with Government assistance in road-cutting, new settlers will naturally turn their steps northward.

Veteran Claims.

In nothern Ontario, as elsewhere, grants of land have been made to war vetreans for their military services. In many cases the veterans have failed to utilise their lands for farming purposes, and they have fallen into the hands of speculators. Instead of being tilled they are being held for high prices. This prevents the bonafide settler from taking up the land unless he pays heavily for it. At the same time the Government is unable to build roads through the veteran claims held for speculative purposes.

Should Reduce Settlers' Rates.

The rates charged by transportation tion interests for the carriage of freight have always been the subject of criticism. The Government railway from North Bay to Cochrane is no exception. The rates on this road have been complained of, but in many cases an investigation of the facts has shown the complaint to have been based on misapprehension of this phase of railway operation. The question of freight rates on a Government colonization road is of the greatest importace, chiefly in reference to the carriage of settlers and their effects into the north country, and in regard to the transportation of raw materials from the north to factories elsewhere, and vice versa. Mr. Field contributes a lengthy chapter on this question, and notes that the suggestion is heard in some quarters that in view of the great desirability of rapid settlement in Northern Ontario the rates for settlers and their effects might undergo a reduction on the Government railroad.

MAKES HAIR GROW

McDermid and Jury, druggists, have an invigorator that will grow hair or money back.

The time to take care of your hair is when you have hair to take care of.

If your hair is getting thin, gradually falling out, it cannot be long before the spot appears.

The greatest remedy to stop the hair from falling is SALVIA, the Great American Hair Grower, first discovered in England. SALVIA furnishes nourishment to the hair roots and acts so quickly that people are amazed.

And remember, it destroys the Dandruff germ, the little pest that saps the life that should go to the hair from the roots.

SALVIA is sold by McDermid and Jury under a positive guarantee to cure Dandruff, stop Falling Hair and Itching Scalp in ten days, or money back. A large bottle costs 50c. The word "SALVIA" (Latin for sage) is on every bottle. Also sold at Payne's drug store.

THE EVENING CHIT-CHAT

By Ruth Cameron

IF ANYONE who had a physical deformity knew that by a reasonable degree of self-control and self-government he could cause the blemish to grow less, and perhaps finally disappear, so that he could be just like other people, wouldn't he make every effort to bring about that happy result?

But how many people there are, marked out from their fellow beings by mental deformities as ugly and as evident as any physical malformations who do not make the slightest effort to become normal, but even deliberately feed and aggravate their deformities!

And yet the physical deformity seldom seriously saddens more than one life, while the mental deformity almost always hinders the happiness, not only of the one who is afflicted with it, but of all who have to live with him.

I am thinking of a woman who has a hideously overgrown bump of caution. She was born with it, just as if she had been born with six fingers on one hand or any physical deformity. But where as, if she had the physical defect, I am sure she would willingly undergo the most painful operation, or give every cent she had to be rid of it, I don't think she has ever made the slightest attempt to reduce her mental deformity. And far from being such a comparatively unimportant thing as a superfluity of fingers, this malformation continually interferes with the happiness and ease and comfort, not only of its victim, but of her whole family. It has spoiled innumerable pleasure excursions by the obstacles and precautions with which it strews the path of every plan. It has kept her husband from many profitable business ventures. It has refused to allow the daughter to have her dearest wish of going away to college, "because I should be worried for fear something was the matter with you all the time you were gone." It has denied her son half the normal pleasures of boyhood during his minority, and caused perpetual discord in ough to defy this unjust and galling the family as soon as he was old en parental restraint.

This woman knows that other people do not feel about these things as she does. She knows that her point of view is abnormal, just as she would know that to have six fingers when other people have five, is not normal. And yet she feels no sensitiveness in regard to her mental deformity, no desire to hide it, no longing to be like other people. On the contrary, she apparently thinks the rest of the world is wrong, and spends her life in a peace-destroying effort to force her standards on all with whom she comes in contact.

Now there is no doubt that if she had admitted in her youth that this over-developed hump of caution was a deformity, and had deliberately tried to conquer it, she could have at least gotten it under control. Instead she has never put up the slightest fight against it, and this hideous, happiness-spoiling mental deformity has increased steadily, every year of her life spoiling more happiness and making more trouble.

A great many of us—I might almost say the majority—are born with some tendency far in excess of what it should be. It may be love of admiration, it may be sensuousness, it may be caution, it may be impulsiveness, but whatever it is, this incipient abnormality has within itself the possibility of spoiling infinite happiness—our own and others'.

Now if parents would only look at such an excess as an actual deformity, to overcome which no sacrifice is too great, and would teach their children as soon as they are old enough, to feel the same, how much unhappiness the world might be saved.

Ruth Cameron

SCENE FROM BUNTY PULLS THE STRINGS.

"Bunty" Biggar, the clever little diplomat of the still cleverer Scotch play "Bunty Pulls the Strings" that comes to the Grand next Wednesday, March 27th came and saw and conquered Americans, young and old alike. She is without a doubt, one of the "Canny Scots" we so often read about, and she has in this idyl of the Highlands full scope to give her talents free swing. The story is simplicity personified. It is the simple chronicle of a Highland family whose daily life is closely allied with the Kirk. "Bunty Pulls the Strings" to adjust the matrimonial affairs of her father, her brother and herself. Her father, years before the opening of the play, lost his nerve on what was to have been his wedding day, and left his bride to be, "waiting at the church." In the meantime, he has changed his name, made a success in business, and become the real corner stone of the Kirk in his adopted village. After 30 years he is found there by the "girl he left behind him," who like Mrs. Macawber never would desert him; she arrives just as he is being forced into a marriage to an aged spinster to whom he owes some money, and whose ultimatum is payment or go to jail for the debt. And then "Bunty Pulls the Strings" at which she is an adept She gives up the money her own "Weelum" has intrusted to her to buy furniture after their marriage. Then she arranges a wedding between her father and his bride that was to be in the long, long years ago. She also makes smooth the troubles of her brother "Rab" and his sweetheart, and proves the aged spinster has been withholding money that rightly belongs to "Weelum" Sprunt, "My Weelum" and enables everything to end happily. The same company which is playing to crowded houses in Toronto this week will be here. The seat sale opens Monday morning.

COOK RECIPES

CHEESE IN COOKERY.

The food value of cheese is pretty generally appreciated, but few housewives know how many dishes may be made by its help, as a change for either the meat or the pudding course of luncheon or dinner, or else as a savory addition to an otherwise simple menu.

The following recipes can be confidently recommended to everyone who cares for this valuable article of diet:

SPANISH SOUP.

Two large Spanish onions, 1 pint of water, 1 pint of milk, 1 ounce of butter or dripping, 1 ounce of flour, 4 ounces grated cheese.

Peel and chop onions up fine, put them into 1 pint boiling water. Boil gently till tender, and turn into a basin. Melt the butter in a white saucepan, blend the flour with it, add the onion stock, and stir till it boils. Add the milk and boil up. Season with pepper and salt, and add the grated cheese, and boil till it is dissolved. Serve in a tureen hot.

CHEESE AND POTATO PIE.

One-half or 3-4 pound mashed potato, 3 or 4 ounces grated cheese, 1 egg, 1-4 pint of milk, 1 ounce dripping, pepper, mustard, salt to taste, small eggspoonful of bicarbonate or citrate of potash.

Grease a pie dish with part of the dripping, put in a layer of potato and cheese and seasoning, and repeat till all is used, the top layer being potato. Beat the egg, dissolve the potash in the milk, add the beaten egg, and pour evenly over the top. Stick the rest of the dripping in small pieces over it. Bake in a quick oven until a nice golden brown. Serve very hot.

CHEESE CUSTARD.

Three ounces grated cheese, 2 heaped tablespoons of breadcrumbs, 1 pint of milk, 2 or 3 eggs, 1-2 ounce of butter, pepper, mustard, salt.

Boil the milk and pour it over the breadcrumbs, add grated cheese and seasoning. Stir well. Beat the eggs and add them last. Bake in a buttered pie dish for about 20 minutes and serve hot.

CHEESE FONDUE.

One pound grated cheese, 2 ounces of butter, pepper and salt to taste, 1-2 tumblerful of white wine, some slices of buttered toast.

Put cheese and butter into an enameled pan. Stir till dissolved, then add the wine and seasoning. When all is well mixed, pour contents of the pan over slices of toast, lay on more slices, one over each, so as to look like sandwiches. Cut into strips and serve very hot.

CHEESE BISCUITS.

One-half pound grated cheese, 1-4 pound of flour, 2 ounces of butter, 1-2 teaspoonful of dry mustard, 1 eggspoonful of pepper, 1-2 eggspoonful of bicarbonate or citrate of potash, 1 egg, a little cold milk or water.

Incorporate cheese, butter and flour in a small basin; add the seasoning. Beat up and work in the egg. Dissolve potash in milk or water, and with it work the mass into a paste. Roll out very thin on a floured board, fold it over and repeat twice. Cut into small biscuits, prick. Bake 20 minutes in a quick oven, and when cold put into an airtight tin.

CLIFTON CARAMELS

Folk who like to make home made candies and want something just a little different from the things you buy at the stores should try Clifton Caramels, from an old English receipe. Put three tablespoonfuls of butter into a saucepan, and three tablespoonfuls of molasses, three tablespoonfuls of Fry's Cocoa, one and a half cups granulated sugar. Then add one-half cup of milk, and boil until it clings when tried in cold water. Stir while boiling. When done, add one tablespoonful Vanilla extract, one-half cup broken walnut meats, and one-half cup of Sultana Raisins. Beat till creamy and stiff enough to pour into a buttered pan. When cool cut into squares and wrap each caramel in paraffin paper.

SEEN AND HEARD

blacking. After rubbing a small quantity on the leather very little "elbow grease" will be required.

"There would be fewer divorces," said "Big Tim" Sullivan, at a banquet in New York, "if men treated their wives with absolute equality. Ther are too many husbands of Cholmondeley's samp."

"As Cholmondeley blew he froth from a large glass of beer one evening, a frind said to him:

"'I hear you've had your pay raised, Cholmondeley.'

"'Yes, but it did me no good,' and Cholmondeley drained his glass and pushed it to the bartender for refilling.

"'Did you no good? Why not?'

"'I talked in my sleep,' Cholmondeley remarked, 'and my wife got on to it.'"—Washington Star.

ONE OF BOARDMAN'S

The late Dr. Boardman of Philadelphia used to relate this on himself: "I spoke a funeral sermon at one time and spoke on the resurrection. I am sure that I spoke longer than is my custom. The undertaker was a man of nervous temperament, and as the afternoon was going he began to be anxious to be on the way to the cemetery. He finally whispered to one of my members: 'Does your minister always preach as long as that at a funeral?' 'Well,' said the brother, 'that is a good sermon.' 'Yes,' said the undertaker, 'the sermon is all right, and I believe in the resurrection, but I am afraid if he does not stop pretty soon I will not have this man buried in time.'"—Philadelphia Ledger.

MOTHER HAS WORRIED

Because Young Daughter Coughed So Much—What She Did.

Just think how anxious Mrs. William Archer, of Long Branch, N.J., must have been about her 14-year-old daughter. She says: "She was very thin, had a bad cough, was nervous and did not sleep well. Vinol has helped her wonderfully. She can sleep all night now without coughing once, in fact her cough is gone. Her appetite is greatly improved and she has gained weight. I wish every mother knew what Vinol will do for delicate children."

Nothing can possibly be more important than the health of children and that is why we earnestly advise the use of Vinol in all cases where a child is weak, pale, run down, has a cough, or poor appetite. We have seen it make so many children strong and rosy that we believe in it.

Children take Vinol eagerly because it tastes good and it puts new strength into their little bodies. We guarantee Vinol to give perfect satisfaction and give back your money if it does not. HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Put an ordinary "pie eggmuney" or "tart funnel" in the saucepan of milk. The milk, when nonng, will rush up through the funnel and back again into the pan without any overflow, and there will be no danger of boiling over. This plan will also prevent a tea kettle from boiling over, but the water must not be allowed to come quite up to the chimney point.

Trouble with starch sticking in unsightly patches and streaks on colored clothes may be avoided if the starch is made perfectly fresh, and as hot as the hands can bear. When it is necessary to get white clothes out easily make new starch, and use it hot for the colored clothes. Dark blue and red will then come out as free from spots of starch as do white clothes.

A sheet of fine emery paper is one of the most useful things about a house. A small strip makes the best kind of grip for unscrewing fountain pens, metal covers, etc. A strip pasted on a pretty card will light matches and so save the paint.

FACTS FOR THE CURIOUS

Daniel Tombs, 7 years old, of Bowling Green, Mo., is said to be the youngest cattleman with a bank account in America. He has an account in a bank in Bowling Green, and makes out his own checks. Last week the boy bought several calves, selecting them himself, and paying for them with his own money.

In most countries 13 is always spoken of as "the baker's dozen," but in Italy it is called "a cobbler's dozen." There is a tradition in that land that formerly there was a law compelling cobblers to put 12 nails round the edge of a boot heel, and that when nails were cheap a thirteenth nail was driven in the centre for luck.

A woman 35 years old who started the other day to travel from an Oklahoma town to join her husband in Oregon, was fearful last she might not get on the train and might not be told to leave the train at the right place. So she attached to her waist a circular-shaped piece of red silk, on which was painted in white letters, "Bound for Klamath Falls."

COCA PREVENTS FATIGUE.

One Eating the Dried Leaves Can Endure Much Exertion.

Some remarkable properties pertain to coca—the dried leaves of a small tree growing in Peru and Bolivia—the chief being its power to enable one eating it to put forth long continued exertion without fatigue. Coca has nothing to do with cocoa.

The property was known and prized long before the Spanish Conquest, the leaves being employed even as a medium of exchange, so highly esteemed were they. After the conquest they became one of the most valuable articles of export. At Potosi alone one hundred thousand bushels were consumed yearly.

Under the influence of the leaves of this plant miners can work night and day, with only brief intervals of rest and sleep. The slightest amount of food, together with a handful of the leaves, enables the natives to endure the severest and most protracted toil of every kind. They take them three times a day, chewing them and lodging them in the side of the mouth like a quid of tobacco.

Some time ago an interesting test was made in Canada of the power of coca. A lacrosse club, consisting of sixteen players, all of sedentery professions, held forth against all comers, white men or Indians. The clubmen were fortified mainly by coca, which they chewed during the game, swallowing the saliva. One day, during which the heat in the sun was 110 degrees Fahrenheit, though their antagonists, mechanics and tradesmen of sturdy build, were exhausted before the game was finished, the men with the coca were as free from fatigue as at the beginning.

TIME FOR SPRING HOTBEDS.

How to Prepare for Early Vegetables for the Table.

Radishes and lettuce!

Sounds like spring, doesn't it? Well, if you are going to get them early out of your own garden it's time to think about constructing a hotbed. A good method, of which the cost is small, is as follows:

Dig a hole two feet deep, a little larger than the size of the hotbed frame. If the hotbed is to be permanent, the walls of this pit should be lined with brick, stone or cement. When possible, have a shed or board fence on the north side of the bed; it will take less manure to heat the soil. Put two feet of well mixed fresh horse manure in the hole, wet thoroughly, and tramp.

What Material to Use.

Two-inch material makes a better and stronger frame and will last longer. The front of the frame should be six inches high, the back eighteen inches. Put five inches of dirt on the manure, preferably the richest soil you can get. Fill in around the frame with manure and earth and put the cover on the frame.

Glass sashes are best for covers. Cloth may be used late in the season. The size of a sash is three by six feet. The bed, then, should be six feet wide and as many times three feet long as desired.

Time to Prepare Now.

The temperature of the hotbed will be high at first. Use a thermometer. When the heat has fallen to 65 degrees, the seed may be planted. Keep the bed well watered, but do not soak. Too much water rots the manure rapidly. Be sure the bed is well ventilated. When sashes are used, they must be raised to let in the fresh air in mild weather. Extra covers should be provided for cold days and nights.

Hotbeds for growing early garden truck for transplanting should be made the second or third week in February. If early vegetables for the table are desired, make the bed the last of January.

THE EVENING CHIT-CHAT

By Ruth Cameron

IF ANYONE who had a physical deformity knew that by a reasonable degree of self-control and self-government he could cause the blemish to grow less, and perhaps finally disappear, so that he could be just like other people, wouldn't he make every effort to bring about that happy result?

But how many people there are, marked out from their fellow beings by mental deformities as ugly and as evident as any physical malformations who do not make the slightest effort to become normal, but even deliberately feed and aggravate their deformities!

And yet the physical deformity seldom seriously saddens more than one life, while the mental deformity almost always hinders the happiness, not only of the one who is afflicted with it, but of all who have to live with him.

I am thinking of a woman who has a hideously overgrown bump of caution. She was born with it, just as if she had been born with six fingers on one hand or any physical deformity. But where as, if she had the physical defect, I am sure she would willingly undergo the most painful operation, or give every cent she had to be rid of it, I don't think she has ever made the slightest attempt to reduce her mental deformity. And far from being such a comparatively unimportant thing as a superfluity of fingers, this malformation continually interferes with the happiness and ease and comfort, not only of its victim, but of her whole family. It has spoiled innumerable pleasure excursions by the obstacles and precautions with which it strews the path of every plan. It has kept her husband from many profitable business ventures. It has refused to allow the daughter to have her dearest wish of going away to college, "because I should be worried for fear something was the matter with you all the time you were gone." It has denied her son half the normal pleasures of boyhood during his minority, and caused perpetual discord in ough to defy this unjust and galling the family as soon as he was old en parental restraint.

This woman knows that other people do not feel about these things as she does. She knows that her point of view is abnormal, just as she would know that to have six fingers when other people have five, is not normal. And yet she feels no sensitiveness in regard to her mental deformity, no desire to hide it, no longing to be like other people. On the contrary, she apparently thinks the rest of the world is wrong, and spends her life in a peace-destroying effort to force her standards on all with whom she comes in contact.

Now there is no doubt that if she had admitted in her youth that this over-developed bump of caution was a deformity, and had deliberately tried to conquer it, she could have at least gotten it under control. Instead she has never put up the slightest fight against it, and this hideous, happiness-spoiling mental deformity has increased steadily, every year of her life spoiling more happiness and making more trouble.

A great many of us—I might almost say the majority—are born with some tendency far in excess of what it should be. It may be love of admiration, it may be sensuousness, it may be caution, it may be impulsiveness, but whatever it is, this incipient abnormality has within itself the possibility of spoiling infinite happiness—our own and others'.

Now if parents would only look at such an excess as an actual deformity, to overcome which no sacrifice is too great, and would teach their children as soon as they are old enough, to feel the same, how much unhappiness the world might be saved.

SCENE FROM BUNTY PULLS THE STRINGS.

"Bunty" Bigar, the clever little diplomat of the still cleverer Scotch play "Bunty Pulls the Strings" that comes to the Grand next Wednesday, March 27th came and saw and conquered Americans, young and old alike. She is without a doubt, one of the "Canny Scots" we so often read about, and she has in this idyl of the Highlands full scope to give her talents free swing. The story is simplicity personified. It is the simple chronicle of a Highland family whose daily life is closely allied with the Kirk. "Bunty Pulls the Strings" to adjust the matrimonial affairs of her father, her brother and herself. Her father, years before the opening of the play, lost his nerve on what was to have been his wedding day, and left his bride to be, "waiting at the church." In the meantime, he has changed his name, made a success in business, and become the real corner stone of the Kirk in his adopted village. After 30 years he is found there by the "girl he left behind him," who like Mrs. Macawber never would desert him; she arrives just as he is being forced into a marriage to an aged spinster to whom he owes some money and whose ultimatum is payment or go to jail for the debt. And then "Bunty Pulls the Strings" at which she is an adept. She gives up the money her own "Weelum" has intrusted to her to buy furniture after their marriage. Then she arranges a wedding between her father and his bride that was to be in the long, long years ago. She also makes smooth the troubles of her brother "Rab" and his sweetheart, and proves the aged spinster has been withholding money that rightly belongs to "Weelum" Sprunt, "My Weelum" and enables everything to end happily. The same company which is playing to crowded houses in Toronto this week will be here. The seat sale opens Monday morning.

GOOD RECIPES

CHEESE IN COOKERY.

The food value of cheese is pretty generally understood, but few housewives know how many dishes may be made by its help, as a change for either the meat or the pudding course at luncheon or dinner, or else as a savory addition to an otherwise simple menu.

The following recipes can be confidently recommended to everyone who cares for this valuable article of diet:

SPANISH SOUP.

Two large Spanish onions, 1 pint of water, 1 pint of milk, 1 ounce of butter or dripping, 1 ounce of flour, 4 ounces grated cheese.

Peel and chop onions up fine, put them into 1 pint boiling water. Boil gently till tender, and turn into a basin. Melt the butter in a white saucepan, blend the flour with it, add the onion stock, and stir till it boils. Add the milk and boil up. Season with pepper and salt, and add the grated cheese, and boil till it is dissolved. Serve in a tureen hot.

CHEESE AND POTATO PIE.

One-half or 3-4 pound mashed potato, 3 or 4 ounces grated cheese, 1 egg, 1-4 pint of milk, 1 ounce dripping, pepper, mustard, salt to taste, small eggspoonful of bicarbonate or citrate of potash.

Grease a pie dish with part of the dripping, put in a layer of potato and cheese and seasoning, and repeat till all is used, the top layer being potato. Beat the egg, dissolve the potash in the milk, add the beaten egg, and pour evenly over the top. Stick the rest of the dripping in small pieces over it. Bake in a quick oven until a nice golden brown. Serve very hot.

CHEESE CUSTARD.

Three ounces grated cheese, 2 heaped tablespoons of breadcrumbs, 1 pint of milk, 2 or 3 eggs, 1-2 ounce of butter, pepper, mustard, salt.

Boil the milk and pour it over the breadcrumbs, add grated cheese and seasoning. Stir well. Beat the eggs and add them last. Bake in a buttered pie dish for about 20 minutes and serve hot.

CHEESE FONDUE.

One pound grated cheese, 2 ounces of butter, pepper and salt to taste, 1-2 tumblerful of white wine, some slices of buttered toast.

Put cheese and butter into an enameled pan. Stir till dissolved, then add the wine and seasoning. When all is well mixed, pour contents of the pan over slices of toast, lay on more slices, one over each, so as to look like sandwiches. Cut into strips and serve very hot.

CHEESE BISCUITS.

One-half pound grated cheese, 1-4 pound of flour, 2 ounces of butter, 1-2 teaspoonful of dry mustard, 1 eggspoonful of pepper, 1-2 eggspoonful of bicarbonate or citrate of potash, 1 egg, a little cold milk or water.

Incorporate cheese, butter and flour in a small basin; add the seasoning. Beat up and work in the egg. Dissolve potash in milk or water, and with it work the mass into a paste. Roll out very thin on a floured board, fold it over and repeat twice. Cut into small biscuits, prick. Bake 20 minutes in a quick oven, and when cold put into an airtight tin.

CLIFTON CARAMELS

Folk who like to make home made candies and want something just a little different from the things you buy at the stores should try Clifton Caramels, from an old English receipe. Put three tablespoonfuls of butter into a saucepan, and three tablespoonfuls of molasses, three tablespoonfuls of Fry's Cocoa, one and a half cups granulated sugar. Then add one-half cup of milk, and boil until it clings when tried in cold water. Stir while boiling. When done, add one tablespoonful Vanilla extract, one-half cup broken walnut meats, and one-half cup of Sultana Raisins. Beat till creamy and stiff enough to pour into a buttered pan. When cool cut into squares and wrap each caramel in paraffin paper.

blacking. After rubbing a small quantity on the leather very little "elbow grease" will be required.

"There would be fewer divorces," said "Big Tim" Sullivan, at a banquet in New York, "if men treated their wives with absolute equality. There are too many husbands of Cholmondeley's samp."

"As Cholmondeley blew he froth from a large glass of beer one evening, a frind said to him:

"'I hear you've had your pay raised, Cholmondeley.'

"'Yes, but it did me no good,' and Cholmondeley drained his glass and pushed it to the bartender for refilling.

"'Did you no good? Why not?'

"'I talked in my sleep,' Cholmondeley remarked, 'and my wife got on to it.'"—Washington Star.

ONE OF BOARDMAN'S

The late Dr. Boardman of Philadelphia used to relate this on himself: "I spoke a funeral sermon at one time and spoke on the resurrection. I am sure that I spoke longer than is my custom. The undertaker was a man of nervous temperament, and as the afternoon was going he began to be anxious to be on the way to the cemetery. He finally whispered to one of my members: 'Does your minister always preach as long as that at a funeral?' 'Well,' said the brother, 'that is a good sermon.' 'Yes,' said the undertaker, 'the sermon is all right, and I believe in the resurrection, but I am afraid if he does not stop pretty soon I will not have this man buried in time.'"—Philadelphia Ledger.

MOTHER HAS WORRIES

Because Young Daughter Coughed So Much—What She Did.

Just think how anxious Mrs. William Archer, of Long Branch, N.J., must have been about her 14-year-old daughter. She says: "She was very thin, had a bad cough, was nervous and did not sleep well. Vinol has helped her wonderfully. She can sleep all night now without coughing once, in fact her cough is gone. Her appetite is greatly improved and she has gained weight. I wish every mother knew what Vinol will do for delicate children."

Nothing can possibly be more important than the health of children and that is why we earnestly advise the use of Vinol in all cases where a child is weak, pale, run down, has a cough, or poor appetite. We have seen it make so many children strong and rosy that we believe in it.

Children take Vinol eagerly because it tastes good and it puts new strength into their little bodies. We guarantee Vinol to give perfect satisfaction and give back your money if it does not. HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Put an ordinary "pie eatmeny" or "tart funnel" in the saucepan of milk. The milk, when coming, will rush up through the funnel and back again into the pan without any overflow, and there will be no danger of boiling over. This plan will also prevent a tea kettle from boiling over, but the water must not be allowed to come quite up to the chimney point.

Trouble with starch sticking in unsightly patches and streaks on colored clothes may be avoided if the starch is made perfectly fresh, and as hot as the hands can bear. When it is necessary to get white clothes out easily make new starch, and use it hot for the colored clothes. Dark blue and red will then come out as free from spots of starch as do white clothes.

A sheet of fine emery paper is one of the most useful things about a house. A small strip makes the best kind of grip for unscrewing fountain pens, metal covers, etc. A strip pasted on a pretty card will light matches and so save the paint.

IN LIGHTER VEIN

A SEQUEL.

Mr. William Watson, the famous poet, has been talking very gloomily to the New York reporters about affairs in England. He says that only a few Englishmen take the proper interest in politics ,that all we are really interested in is sport, and that taken all round, we're very far from perfect. Alas!

One remembers hearing a story connected with one of Mr. Watson's books.

"Have you," a customer asked at one of the big lending libraries—"have you Mr. Watson's 'Eloping Angels'?"

The clerk looked worried. "No; I'm afraid all our copies are out," he replied. Then, remembering that another book was very popular just then, he went on more cheerfully: "But we've got Madame Sarah Grand's 'Heavenly Twins.'"

"Ah!" said the customer; "a sequel, I presume?"—Pearson's Weekly.

A MODERN MOTHER.

"Well, Mary," said the modern husband, "what have you been doing today?"

"Everything," she answered. "I've had such a busy day, you can't imagine. At nine this morning we had a meeting at Mrs. X.'s—such a beautiful time. Mrs. X. read us a paper on 'The Architecture of the Probable Capital of Mars'—I do wish you could have heard it, dear—and after that Prof. W. gave us a little talk on the 'Microscopic Insects of Central Africa.' It was so interesting.

"It must have been."

"Then at eleven there was a meeting of the Seventeen Great Religions Club, and at eleven-thirty a meeting of the Ways and Means Committee of the Society for the Reformation of Murderers. And at noon I lunched with Mrs. Z."

"Yes?"

"And in the afternoon we went to the rehearsals of the Women's Garrick Club. And then coming home I saw such a lovely child playing in the street in front of the house. Such a dear little boy! I quite wanted to kiss him. I wonder whose child he is?"

"Did he have yellow hair?" asked the modern mon.

"Yes."

"And blue eyes?"

"Beautiful blue eyes."

"And an old scarf?"

"Oh, a horrid old scarf."

"Then I know whose child he is."

"Well?"

"He's ours!"—Tit-Bits.

"Waiter!" said the absent-minded professor.

"Yes, sir?"

"If I have dined, bring me the bill. If I haven't, bring me steak and mushrooms."

The moving picture shows are shortly to have matrons assigned to them, for the protection and policing of the young children who attend performances in these places. This is as it should be, but we wish that the idea might be carried further. There is nothing in the life of a great city so helpless and unprotected as a male shopper in a department store. He is pushed and shoved here and there, his eyes are jabbed with hatpins, his ribs are battered with umbrellas, he is squeezed in doors, and pinched in elevators, and if by chance there is a bargain sale going on he is trampled under foot. We humbly petition that husky, Amazonian matrons be stationed in sufficient numbers in all the department stores to protect the male shopper. Until this is done, the average-sized male householder has a moral right to refuse to match ribbons.—Judge.

TRUTH WILL OUT.

As an illustration of great devotion to truth, a would-be M.P. was telling his auditors that he "underwent a severe thrashing when a boy, for telling the truth," when a gruff voice called out from the audience: "I guess it cured yer, guv'nor!"

TO OPEN UP ROAD

Mr. E. J. Chamberlain, General Manager of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, is now on his way back to Winnipeg after a tour of the western lines of his company. He went as far as the end of steel beyond Fitzhugh, proceeding thence by trail to the Tete Jaune Cache. At Edmonton, Mr. Chamberlain stated that everything would be done to open up the road as soon as possible to the Fraser River, but in view of the exceedingly difficult nature of the work he feared that the route would not be open before June at the earliest. The chief hindrance met with is the heavy rock work, and some of the contractors are putting on shifts so as to work both day and night.

TIT-BITS

Every now and then some careless thinker, with none too sure a grip on fact, tells us that the Christian church is losing its hold. What he really means is that he himself is just beginning to appreciate the tremendous task which has been imposed on the church. He manifestly does not grasp the significance of the conflict which has been going on between Christianity and the forces of evil for nineteen hundred years. Because "isms" are rife, unbelief aggressive and many Christians faint-hearted, it by no means follows that the Christian church is losing ground. Before we can accept such a statement as that we must see some parallel statement of the position of Christianity to-day, and the position which it has occupied at other climacteric periods of its history. Will the timorous counsellors who cry out that the church is losing ground dare to affirm that the position is worse to-day than it was when the Apostles started on their labours? Is it worse than it was when Nero was burning living torches in the streets of Rome, or Athanasius standing alone against a world which seemed to have become Arian? If unbelief is rampant to-day, there was unbelief in the thirteenth century and again, in a more insidious form, in the eighteenth. Yet the church emerged from the conflict stronger than she was when she entered into it. If, seeing these things, our hearts fail us, it is because we are of little faith.

And, if we are of little faith, this of all seasons of the year, is the season of self-examination and recollection. Lacordaire once said: "To retire into one's self and in God is the greatest force in the world." While many of us clamour for outward manifestations of the church's life, are we not apt to forget that the miracle of conversion is an inward matter, an affair of the soul? Now that Lent is with us and the church is sorrowing for the griefs of her Founder we can with advantage turn our eyes inward and see whether the doubts which come upon us as to the stability of the church and the progress she is making may not be the outcome of our own imperfections. We talk about converting the heathen at home and in foreign lands. What about ourselves? Is it not a fact, that if each one of us were to do his best to live up to the dictates of conscience, the world would be like paradise? But perhaps that is too much to hope for, though it is not too much to work for. The church brings before our eyes the sufferings and Passion of Christ to win us to a manifestation of that better self which could find expression if we would but will it so with all our might and appeal with all sincerity to God for help.

This is the twentieth century and there are more Christians in the world to-day than there ever were before. Moreovers while the different denominations remain true to their own interpretation of Christian truth there has sprung up among them a mutual respect and toleration which cannot but make for the furtherance of their common ideal. Catholic and Methodist may differ profoundly; but both believe that Christ is the Son of God, and that through His death on Calvary an opportunity is given to all sinners to be saved. Episcopalians and Presbyterians, Baptist and Lutherans all recognize certain essentials in which they can stand shoulder to shoulder against sin and unbelief.

Lent reminds us that nineteen hundred years ago, He who had come down from heaven and put on the weeds of mortality, suffered like a malefactor, was scourged, crowned with thorns, and put to death. In all the orthodox Christian churches—and by orthodox I mean those churches which recognize the divinity of Christ—you can feel the atmosphere of grief. If Christ suffered it was not merely for some folk who lived in the Orient; it was for you and it was for me. There is none so lowly that Christ's death was not meant for his or her especial redemption. It was not for nothing that the Saviour allowed Himself to be anointed by a woman who had once been a wanton, and that this same woman was the first to see Him when he was risen from the grave.—Rochester Post Express.

A clever woman described a certain social climber as one of those "frightened members of society." The characterization was so deliciously apt that it is worth passing on.

There are such a lot of frightened ones in the social world—men and women who are so afraid of their prestige that they only trust themselves to be polite to those whom they think important.

These are the women who flaunt their exclusiveness. They like their names in the paper closely flanking social leaders, and permit no obligations, business or family, to swell their visiting list with the socially negligent.

If policy demands a courtesy to some one beyond the pale, how apologetic they are! Hostesses have been guilty in their own homes of explaining the presence of a guest. One such snob said deprecatingly to a woman whose favour she courted, "I had to ask Mrs. Blank; her husband is in a business deal with my husband."

And the leader replied: "Think you are lucky to get her. She could not come to me to-morrow, to my great regret."

The frightened ones, if they consent to talk to those who do not bask in the sunlight of their favour, do so with wandering eyes, ready to shy at the first approach of one of their set."

They think they are being very exclusive, when they are often laughed at as ill bred. For the woman of assured social position does not fear to be gracious to every one.

And the airs of the frightened ones, likewise the boasting? They fortify themselves in the social position by condescension. When they deign to be anything but coldly indifferent, they patronize graciously in the crumb throwing styles of a Dives. And like that rich man of old, the despised Lazarus often is the better man.

The odd part is that not always are the frightened ones "climbers." Theoretically they should be but there are women who by birth or breeding should be sure of themselves and their positions, who dislike exceedingly to associate with any but the select few. They are too well bred not to be polite when forced in contact with "outsiders," but they are restless.

Oh, the foolishness of such fright and the narrowness! The woman of cosmopolitan training delights in the "outsider." She may not want to become intimate with a wide circle of acquaintances, but she enjoys the casual meeting with all sets and all ages, dreading nothing more than the narrowness that comes with travelling in any narrow orbit.

A girl when reproved by one of these snobbish ones for her friendship with a clever girl, socially unknown, replied, "Thank goodness, I can afford to have the courage of my friends.'

WHEN PRIDE IS JUSTIFIED

Far too many mortals are vain and self satisfied because of some temporary mercenary advantage, and in their eagerness to display that advantage at every opportunity often destroy their greatest blessing, the physical counterpart of sunshine, which is their own health. Neglected colds, irregular meals, overloaded stomachs and night revelry result in shattered nerves, depressed vigour and fatigue all of which invite decline and disease.

Each person stands sentinel at the portals of his own health and he who guards, protects, strengthens and builds up a rugged constitution is justified in pride and finds therein his own recompense—the capacity to enjoy the fullness of life.

The strain of modern commercial and social living taxes strength and energy and in maintaining the highest self-efficiency we should not only cultivate deep breathing, out of door exercise, regularity and temperance in all things, but study the greatest of all physical power-creators which is body nourishment. In this, alcoholic preparations should be carefully shunned and such-digested nourishment as Scott's Emulsion which enriches the blood and creates vitality by building, healing and strengthening, should be selected.

Scott's Emulsion is scientifically prepared and is good for teething babies, nursing mothers, growing children, the aged and infirm. It contains no wine or stimulant, but is wholesome and pure and has helped millions to regain health and sustain it. Worthless substitutes are sometimes offered, but Scott's Emulsion is the genuine pure-food medicine.

TRIP TO ENGLAND

A meeting of the Board of Trade has been called for Monday, March 25th to discuss the question of immigration to Canada, and also to consider the proposed trip to members of the Ontario Associated Boards of Trade to England in May. Mr. Vincent Eastwood received a telegram this morning from the Ontario Association asking that accredited delegates from the Peterborough Board be appointed to attend a meeting to consider the trip. This meeting will be held in Toronto to discuss the feasibility of the proposed British trip. It is planned to leave Montreal on May 15th on one of the Royal lines of steamers. First class accommodation will be secured and travelling expenses are placed at $200. The proposal is still in its initial stage and the co-operation of the Boards is asked to decide what action shall be taken.

UNNATURAL MODESTY

Lord Tankerville, who is sending his son to an American school in order that the boy may escape from the toadyism of English school boys, said the other day in New York:

"There are too many Englishmen—and English boys as well—who develop in the presence of a lord, a painful and unnatural modesty. Their modesty reminds me of an English tinker.

"This tinker had a rather crusty disposition, and his pastor said to him one day:

"'My man, you should love your neighbor as yourself.'

"'Yes, sir, said the tinker.

"But the pastor had in mind a nasty black eye that the tinker had given the bricklayer next door, and so he went on.

"'Do you though, do you honestly love your neighbour as yourself?'

"'Yes, sir; oh, yes, sir,' said the tinker; and he added, 'but I'm a modest man, yo see, and to tell the truth I ain't a bit stuck on myself, sir.'"—Los Angeles Times.

GREAT BILL AT THE PRINCESS

The beautiful Irish picture, "Shamus O'Brien," as presented at the Princess Theatre this afternoon, proved very popular with the large audience that crowded every section of the theatorium. The film is remarkably clear and life-like and the fascinating story is developed in a very interesting manner. The entertainment is made enjoyable by the singing of "My Wild Irish Rose," in a manner that leaves nothing to be desired. There will undoubtedly be a big crowd at the Princess to-night and to-morrow for this special picture and bill.

WEDDING BELLS

STINSON—PETERS.

A most pleasing event took place at the home of Mr. Harry Peters, Percy township, on Tuesday of last week, when his sister, Miss Jessie, youngest daughter of the late Andrew Peter, of Percy, became the bride of Mr. John Stinson, of Fowler's Corners, near Peterborough.

To the strains of the wedding march played by the bride's cousin, Mrs. Robert Reid of Peterborough, the bride entered the drawing room on the arm of her uncle, Mr. George Peters of Dummer, who gave her away. After the ceremony, which was performed by Rev. Wm. Burns, of St. George's church, the happy couple and guests, to the nubmer of about two score, sat down to a sumptuous wedding dinner, after which Mr. and Mrs. Stinson took the afternoon train here for the east. The bride's wedding dress was of white all over embroidery, and her going awa ygown of dark blue cloth with hat to match.

In the evening the guests assembled at the home of Mr. Peters and enjoyed the evening with music and dancing.

DRUGS IN SOME HEADACHE POWDERS

OTTAWA, MARCH 22.—A bulletin issued by the Chief Analyst of the Inland Revenue Department contains important warnings and recommendations in regard to the sale of headache powders. The report is the result of three hudred analyses, of two tests each of 150 samples of patent or proprietary medicines purchased throughout the Dominion as headache powders. It is the first test since 1905. In some of the patent medicines there is found to be acentanilide and phenacitin is found in a number of samples, while in a few cases the chief ingredient was found to be aspirin, a drug not scheduled in the patent medicine act. The analyst points out that the drugs used are known to the medical profession by other names than those by which they are known to the public.

To employ a synonym of technical import only," says Mr. McGill, "is as effectively to disguise the presence of the drug as the omission of the name altogether for most people. I wuld suggest that a departmental ruling be made so as to make compulsory the employment on the label of the commonly accepted names of drugs.

He also suggests that the name of the patent drug be prominently indicated, instead of being placed in a lot of reading matter, as is often done. In fifteen samples the schedule drug was found in excess without having any declaration on the label, and without being stamped, thus coming under the penal section of the act. Claims to curative powers, coupled with the words, "sure", "certain" or "instantaneous," are declared by the analyst to be unwarranted, and misleading, constituting misdescription or misbranding. This, he says, should be made punishable under the Act. A final recommendation is made against the putting up of these preparations in the form of lozenges and chocolates. It is declared to be a dangerous innovation. "A drug so potent as a heart depressant as acetanilide or phenacetitn should not be disguished in lozenge form. It is sufficiently dangerous to warrant every precaution against excessive use.

PRESENTATION TO RINK MANAGER

The members of the Girls' Athletic Society of the Collegiate Institute very pleasantly surprised Mr. Jack Thirnbeck, manager of the Brock St. Rink, yesterday afternoon, when they waited upon him in a body, and presented him with a very handsome amber-stemmed briar pipe, gold-mounted, and a caddy of tobacco. Mr. Thirnbeck has shown the girls many little kindnesses during their hockey games and practises, at the rink during the season just closed, and yesterday's presentation was an effort, on the part of the girls, to show their appreciation. He expressed his thanks for the kind gift in a neat speech.

A WONDER WORKER

"It heals like magic," is a favorite expression when Dr. Chase's Ointment is used. It works quickly, stops all itching at once, often heals in a single night. For eczema, salt rheum, barbers' itch, skin irritations or eruptions, it is a most satisfactory treatment. Being antiseptic, it prevents blood poisoning.

SPECIAL MATINEE OF "BUNTY"

The Toronto Globe says:

Complying with many requests from those who have been unable to procure seats for the delightful Scotch comedy, "Bunty Pulls the Strings," a special matinee will be given this afternoon at the Alexander Theatre. This week will afford the only opportunity Toronto people will have of seeing this most-talked-of comedy that has been presented in years. Mr. Graham Moffat, who was in the city yesterday says his company now playing in Toronto is equally as good as the original one now playing at the Haymarket, London, and is better than either of the other companies now in America.

EXPECTED THIS AFTERNOON.

Immigrants Due To-day Will, in all Probability, Come in on the 4.28.

Up to three o'clock to-day nothing had been heard of the party of immigrants that were due to arrive to-day. It is expected that they will arrive on the regular 4.28 train this afternoon, as the party is not of sufficient strength to warrant a special being pressed into service. A number of farmers invaded the immigration office with a view to securing one of these men, but they were disappointed. The party numbers about thirty.

RIFLE FOR CADETS

OTTAWA, MARCH 22.—Owing to a demand by instructors of cadet corps for a light rifle for cadet corps, the militia department is considering the adoption of a special service rifle for cadets.

The matter has been referred to the small arms committee and several patterns have been submitted. The one most approved is a miniature Ross rifle weighing about 5 pounds, and of 22 caliber. It is an exact pattern of the service rifle of the Canadian militia and is over three pounds lighter. The Cadet Ross is composed of over 40 separate pieces and is an ideal weapon for the lads.

It is probable that all the local corps will be equipped with the service Ross rifle this year. The G. G F. G. and the 45rd D. C. O. R. have been notified to turn in their issue of Lee-Enfields and they will receive th Ross. A recent order of the militia department gave notice that as quickly as they could be supplied by the factory the Ross rifle would be issued to all the militia of Canada.

Pruning the Appendix

What thousands of people are rushthe idea that pruning the appendix teh idea that pruning the appendix will rid them of the cause and effect of wrong habits of eating and living.

We eat too much, take too little outdoor exercise, breathe impure air, and when the system gets loaded with foul impurities, which irritate the digestive system and set up inflammation, we are told that the operating table is the only place for us.

Why not prevent appendicitis, as well as acute indigestion, peritonitis and Bright's disease of the kidneys, by keeping the liver active and the bowels regular. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills cleanse the digestive system of foul impurities more quickly than any treatment you can obtain. They awaken the liver and ensure the healthful action of the kidneys and bowels.

ON THE EMBANKMENT

(Short Story.)

It was a dreary afternoon in February, foggy and depressing. A cold drizzling rain was beating down; even the horses passing over Blackfriar's Bridge hung their heads dejectedly, as though in disgust at the weather.

James Kent sat huddled up in a seat on the Embankment, trying to defy the bitter, gripping cold by presenting as little surface to the elements as possible. He sat with shrugged shoulders, inert, listless, a world of tragic helplessness in his weary eyes. His head sank lower and lower, his eyes closed, and he dropped into a troubled sleep, lulled by the rythmic clatter of the electric cars.

Suddenly a shout rang above the roar of the traffic, and Kent opened his eyes with a start. Something was visible momentarily on the parapet guarding the river; then a policeman rushed forward excitedly; there was a wild feminine scream, and a splash.

Kent sprang to his feet, and the policeman turned a white face toward him, pointing downwards at the sluggish river and tearing at the buttons of his tunic.

"All right—I'll go!" said Kent, between his teeth. His eye caught a blurred glimpse of something white in the water below. In a flash, before the policeman could stop him, he flung off his ragged coat, and dived to the rescue.

The ice cold water clutched him remorselessly; it seemed as though the heart in his half-starved, enfeebled frame would stop beating in protest. There was a roar of advice and exhortation from the crowd which had assembled, and almost mechanically Kent found himself clutching at the woman whom he had come to save. She fought savagely, trying to tear herself away from her rescuer; but he held on grimly, a glow of satisfaction filling his veins. The woman was swooning, her struggles died away, and Kent swam on his back, supporting her with difficulty. He was but an indifferent swimmer, and he knew that unless aid came soon his effort would have been in vain. In his heart of hearts he was very little concerned as to the issue. Death appeared to him at that moment as unterrifying, even desirable. He had but to lie back and cease swimming, and eternal peace would descend on him like a pall.

He was stupefied; there was a roar as of surging waters in his ears, and he was deaf to the cries of the crowd lining the parapet, who were shouting directions and advice, exhorting him to keep afloat for another minute, and all would be well.

Kent's face sank beneath the surface; he spluttered, kicking out convulsively, instinctively. He would be gone in another moment, he knew, but still he held on desperately to the dead weight of the woman which was dragging him down. But the boat which had been pushed off hurriedly from the foot of the bridge was close beside him. Just as he was at his last gasp a hand fell on his collar, and he and the woman he had saved were hauled out of the water, shivering and dripping, and rowed hastily back to the steps, at the top of which a crowd had assembled.

As one in a dream he left the boat, and climbed the steps with the aid of a friendly arm. His teeth were chattering with cold, and everything was in a mist. He was hardly conscious of the cheering crowd, of the hands which clapped him heartily on the back, of the ubiquitous press photographer, who snapshotted him and hurried round the corner into Fleet Street with his spoil. "A Hero in Humble Life" was the legend printed at the foot of his photograph in the evening papers; it was accompanied by a stirring description of his brave act, written in the most approved style of journalese.

Kent was assisted tenderly into a private motor, the owner of which had insisted on taking charge of the brave fellow who had saved a would-be suicide at the imminent peril of his own life. The car drove off, and a tall, earnest-looking man seized the opportunity of speaking a few heartfelt words of eulogy to the assembled crowd, punctuating his words with emotional waves of the hand. The valour, the self-possession, the indifference to peril which had combined to make this country what it was had all been exemplified, typified by the noble deed which they had just witnessed. . . . Let them all take to heart the lesson in cool pluck which had just been given them by this social outcast. . . . His coat might be ragged, but his heart was a heart of gold. He was a man of whom all his country should and would be proud. . . . And so on, with the crowd applauding sympathetically at the close of each glowing period.

* * * * * *

James Kent was not in the least elated at the chorus of praise which his act had evoked; he appeared to be of a retiring frame of mind; he resented bitterly the publicity which was thrust upon him. Indeed, he had reason to, for some of the papers containing his photograph penetrated as far as Liverpool. And the following morning two officials from the northern city were waiting on his protector's doorstep.

They had not come to congratulate the hero, or to say that Liverpool was proud of her son; they wanted James Kent on a charge of murder!—H. J. F.

TIT-BITS

WHY GOLDFISH DIE.

Have you ever bough goldfish, brought them home, and then had them die? If so, someone has probably told you it was because you did not put green stuff in the wter, addthat green stuff gives off oxygen into the water. And you, acting on this advice, get water hyacinths, ferns, and umbrella plants, and put them in the water. Then the plants and the fish die.

This happened to me several times, says a writer in a contemporary, and I was in despair, when a friend presented me with two fish. I didn't expect them to live, so threw them into a bowl with some watercress. Wonder of wonders! The watercress and the fish lived. I have had the fish over a year now. Three months ago I put in a fresh bunch of watercress. It is larger now than when I put it in and the fish eat it and keep well and grow.

THE FLOWER OF LOVE.

Spring came: a flower budded
And bloomed within a heart;
Its petals wore hope-studded,
Its beauty knew no art.

It blossomed with the summer,
That rich, warm soil above;
Said each admiring comer:
"How sweet the flower of love!"

Then Autumn's winds came chilling,
With doubt in every breath;
Unfaith its roots instilling,
The flower sank to death.

Now, spring again is nearing;
Already, low in earth,
Dead flowers her call are hearing
To rise again to birth.

O spring, who all renewest,
Who bringest joy from pain,
While these good deeds thou doest,
O make Love live again!

—George Birdseye.

Distinction Without Difference.

The old negro preacher was exhorting his congregation to repent of their sins, and by way of stirring them up he shouted: "Ah see befo' me in dis heah tabe'nacle no less don twelve chicken thieves, includin' dat low down trifler, Zeke Taylor."

Zeke Taylor promptly got up and left the church. He was very angry, and after the services he told the preacher that he should make some retraction. The preacher listened, concluded that he had been in the wrong and promised to do so:

Accordingly the next Sunday he rose in his pulpit and said:

"Brethren, las' Sunday Ah tol' you all dat Ah saw befo' me twelve chicken thieves, includin' Zeke Taylor. Ah fin' Ah was mistooken and Ah desires to make retraction. What Ah oughter said orethern, was dat Ah saw befo' me twelve chicken thieves not includin' Zeke Taylor."

NOT SALTS; OIL OR PILLS BUT CASCARETS

No Odds How Sick Your Stomach; How Hard Your Head Aches or How Bilious — Cascarets Make You Feel Great

You men and women who somehow can't get feeling right—who have an almost daily headache, coated tongue, foul taste and foul breath, dizziness, can't sleep, are bilious, nervous and upset, bothered with a sick, gassy, disordered stomach, or have backache and feel all worn out.

Are you keeping clean inside with Cascarets, or merely forcing a passageway every few days with salts, cathartic pills or castor oil? This is important.

Cascarets work while you sleep; cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foulgases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry out of the system all the decomposed waste matter and poison in the intestines and bowels.

A Cascaret to-night will straighten you out by morning—a 10-cent box from any drug store will keep your entire family feeling good for months. Don't forget the children. They love Cascarets because they taste good—do good—never gripe or sicken.

THE REVERSE SIDE OF A VACATION

(Short Story.)

BY ALICE LOUISE LEE.

The August outing was decided on in May. "Think of it, Anne," cried Rebecca the day the question was settled. "I have never been inside a big hotel. Think of staying in one a whole month."

Rebecca's father puckered his brows. "Yes," returned he, with a humorous twinkle in his eyes, "and to think of the bills a big hotel is capable of sending in. You girls must get enough enjoyment out of it to pay costs."

"Indeed we shall. We shall!" responded Rebecca, enthusiastically. Anne's eyes shone, but she said nothing. "And be sure," added Rebecca's father, "not to bother sister or make Tom too much trouble." The girls were accompanying Rebecca's aunt, whose son Tom, a Cornell senior, had promised them his aid in a "jolly good time."

"You see," Rebecca had explained to Anne, "some of the Cornell sophomores are at the hotel, and Tom will introduce them all. Oh, what fun we'll have. But I dread getting ready to go—all the sewing—don't you?" At that Anne's eyes lost their sparkle, for into the prospective fun her father had reluctantly interjected a certain "if" to her mother. "We can afford to let Anne go if there are no extra demands for clothes. Business is dull this year."

"No," returned Anne's mother, "just a substantial walking suit and a few shirt waists, which I shall make myself." And the matter was settled. Across the street she reported to the Browns on the dress question, and Mr. Brown smiled his relief. "That's good. Neither can I afford to tog Becky here out to any extent; anyway, you're nothing but girls. You don't need many dresses." Rebecca and her mother exchanged glances; for Rebecca the matter was not settled.

"I can manage, I think," Mrs. Brown said, with a worried air, after the head of the house had gone. "Of course you must go well dressed. We will do the sewing ourselves and begin right away. Your father will not notice what is going on if I ask him for a little money now and then." Anne wriggled uneasily and coughed loudly, that she might not hear, but Rebecca clapped her hands joyfully.

"Summer clothes are not expensive," she cried eagerly, "and we can make them look beautiful by putting plenty of work on them." Then she looked commiseratingly at the uncomfortable Anne. "You know there are all Tom's friends. Couldn't you get a little money at a time out of your father?" Rebecca was as honest and sensible as her training would allow her to be. Anne rose. There was an indignant ring in her tone, but all she said was, "It's lovely of father to give me the month's outing without the new clothes." Then she turned to Rebecca impulsively frank. "Anyway, Becky, I'm not so becoming to pretty dresses as you are, so it's easier to go without."

"O Anne," protested Rebecca, weakly. Rebecca was undeniably handsome and knew it, while Anne laboured under the impression that she was "almost sallow." At least, Hilda always spoke of her younger sister's complexion in that way, and Anne, having great faith in Hilda's judgment, accepted the verdict. A few days later Anne met Rebecca hurrying home with her hands full of thread and insertion.

"Oh, Anne," she cried, "mother and I are making me the sweetest dimity for August. Not expensive, you know, but we are going to make it look lovely by putting lots of work on it." They did, and it proved as lovely as Rebecca represented it. Anne ran across the street to view it a week later. She tried the front door, but it was locked. She rang the bell, but only a distant and curious rumble answered her. The back door yielded to her push, and the rumble became more distinct. "They've taken the sewing machine upstairs," thought Anne, "where callers can't disturb them." Tucking her tennis racket under her arm, she climbed the stairs and came on two workers putting the last bit of lace on the dimity. "It's a beauty," declared Anne.

"Isn't it?" Rebecca's tone was rapturous. She whirled Anne round, facing the big mirror, and held the dainty waist up in front of her.

"Why," ejaculated Anne in surprise, "it's becoming to me." Owing to her being "almost sallow," Anne was always surprised to find that dainty clothes looked well on her. "How I wish—" she cried, and paused abruptly.

"Can't you?" asked Rebecca, understandingly. "I know your father would—"

Anne turned from the glass, interrupting gaily, "yes, to the extent of a walking suit and shirt waists." Rebecca drew a long breath of satisfaction as she looked about the room. "This," she explained, indicating a white fabric on the bed, "is organdy that we're going to put over that old blue taffeta of mine. Yes, it's got to be all made over, but won't the combination be sweet? And this is linen for a suit. And this is dotted mull for a little afternoon gown. We can't have too many thin things, you know."

"Yes," said Anne soberly.

She sighed as she crossed the street; but ten minutes later she recrossed it excitedly, the cause of the sigh forgotten, and burst into the room.

"Becky," she cried. "Will Dunmore says we're going to have two boat clubs and races, and the girls can belong. He wants us on his side."

"A boat club," returned Rebecca, promptly. "O dear no, Anne. With all this sewing I can't waste any time boating. Mother has just decided that I must have a cream coloured mohair for mornings, in addition to the other things."

Anne twisted the knob of the door and hesitated. "But, Becky, what about tennis? We play the first game this afternoon——" Rebecca interrupted with a firm shake of the head. "You know, Anne, we'll get all that at the lakes, rowin gand tennis and golf. Now I can't spend the time; must sew."

As the weeks passed that expression, "I must sew," became the only reply Rebecca gave, because the cream coloured mohair proved but the first of a number of additions to her pretty wardrobe. Tennis, croquet, boating, afternoon walks, evenings with her friends were all given up. "I must sew," said Rebecca, and one by one the dainty, filmy garments were hung away fresh and unworn for August and the big hotel. "I must sew," said Rebecca, and her cheeks grew hollow, while dark circles came under her eyes, for summer was also overworking that year, July heat prevailing in June and August sultriness in July. It was one hot afternoon in the middle of July that Rebecca threw open the wardrobe in the sewing-room for Anne's inspection, saying, in a tone weary but full of satisfaction, "Only see, Anne, all the pretty things have to wear."

"Indeed, they are pretty," assented Anne, heartily. Then her eyes travelled thoughtfully from the contents of the wardrobe to Rebecca's thin cheeks, and on to Mrs. Brown, bending over a shirt waist, on which she was laying insertion. Mrs. Brown's hands trembled nervously as she worked, and occasionally she paused to press her hand over her eyes. During one of these pauses, she asked listlessly, "Have you begun to get your new things, Anne?"

Anne still looked thoughtful. "You know all I'm to have is a walking suit and shirt waists. Mother is working on a shirt waist."

Mrs. Brown bent a compassionate gaze on her, while Rebecca murmured, "I supposed, Anne, that when you came to think hard about going you'd have—" She paused. Rebecca had a habit of implying the end of a sentence by a glance or a tone.

"No," replied Anne simply. She walked across the street slowly, and came to her mother also putting insertion in the front of a shirt waist, and her mother looked warm and tired. "Mother," said Anne decidedly, "there's enough trimming on that waist now." Abruptly she took the insertion out of her mother's hands, adding anxiously: "It's nice now out on the porch." Then irrelevantly, "you just ought to see Mrs. Brown."

Mrs. Tupper looked up inquiringly. "Mrs. Brown? Why, really I've scarcely caught a glimpse of her all summer. But I suppose she will let her friends see her again after you and Becky go."

They started the first of August. Mrs. Tupper went down to the station with Anne. They were preceded by an express waggon in which a little flat topped one storey trunk rattled round inconspicuously behind its heavy, three storey, iron-bound neighbour. Just as the train drew into the station Rebecca entered alone, bearing an umbrella and two hat boxes. "Mother has a headache," she explained listlessly, "and so have I."

During the journey the owner of the three storey trunk lay back in her seat, a wet handkerchief across her eyes, while Anne, her fresh, eager face in the open window, kept her informed of the varied outside attractions. Seberal days later a wail from the Twin Lakes arrived by mail. It was directed to Mrs. Brown, but Mrs. Brown was in no condition to read it. She lay in a darkened room suffering with inflamed nerves and inflamed eyes. Mrs. Tupper was caring for her, and it was Mrs. Tupper who raised the curtain a trifle and read the wail aloud.

"I haven't written much before," wrote Rebecca, "because I'm so tired I can't write or do anything else except watch the others have a good time—Anne especially. She has the best muscle of any girl here, and Tom's friends all want her on their side in tennis matches and boating and that sort of thing. She looks so well and happy and active that I hear people say they like to see her around. O dear. I'm so tired I can write just this one thing more. If I go away next summer, I won't kill myself getting ready. I'm glad, though, that you are well. I was afraid when I came away that you were going to be sick."

There was a restless movement in the darkest corner of the room. "I didn't write Becky that I am sick because I didn't want to spoil her good time," sighed the mother.

A STRONG CANADIAN INSTITUTION

Canadians are frequently urged to patronize home institutions. In Fire Insurance it is not always easy to do and at the same time obtain that absolute security which is so essential. You can however accomplish both these objects by insuring your property in the Manitoba Assurance Company which is not only a Canadian institution and thoroughly sound in itself but is guaranteed by perhaps the strongest Fire Office in the world. Ask for a "Manitoba" policy. Agent, Davis Thompson Co., Limited.

Woman's Rights.

Woman now has, or should have, the right to govern her own home. The right to vote is insignificant when compared to this. She must be its mistress, but never its slave. That she has made it immaculate in cleanliness and resplendent in beauty is not enough. She must feed the love and truth which should unitedly govern it. What power or dignity can reach higher? What is the ability to sway large audiences over a home with such skill that husband and children shall rise up and call her blessed? To be the ruling spirit in such a position is a more sacred honour than to rule an empire. "Woman's rights!" Has man any higher or more noble? And when husband and wife see eye to eye and heart to heart one in the interests of home, they have reached as near perfection as we are allowed to hope for while on earth.

TO CHECK A COLD

It is easy to check a cold if you begin in time. Frequent doses of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine keep the cough loose, allay the inflammation, and so prevent it spreading to the bronchial tubes and lungs. Mrs. S. M. Moore, Shortread, B.C., writes: "I wish to state my gratitude for Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, for it cured a cold which a friend said would soon put me in the grave."

THE "REO" SPECIAL

Stands as the ultimate production of the Reo Motor Car Co. of Canada. Designed by Mr. R. E. Olds, maker of the famous Oldsmobile Motor Cars and Olds Engines. The REO embodies all the refinement of construction, which adds to the joy and comfort of the owner. The REO is built in Canada and is essentially a Canadian Car. Its strong claims are:—Strength of Frame and Simplicity of Running Parts. It is a sturdy car, full of speed, with plenty of power. It is equipped throughout with the famous Timken Bearings, seldom found in any Car below the price of $2500. :: ::

The long wheel base and large wheels of the REO SPECIAL carry it along with the least possible amount of dipping and jolting. It is a light-weight car, and very easy on tires. Smaller tires would serve, and do serve on many rival cars, but these larger tires are more economical, so we supply them. With its lightweight and these generous tires, one's tire bill is very low.

EQUIPMENT—Touring Car includes the following equipment:— Nickel Trimming, Mohair Top and Side Curtains, Top Envelope, Folding Glass Front, Speedometer, Gas Head Lamps, Prest-o-Lite Tank, Self Starter, Electric Horn, Side and Tail Oil Lamps, Foot Rest and Robe Rail, Tire Irons, Pump, Tire Repair Outfit, Full Kit of Tools, Jack.

PETERBOROUGH CLUB SIGNS PITCHER HARRY SCULL

Young Trenton, N.J. Twirler Has Been Landed by Manager Templin Who Says That He is a Good One

Manager Curtis Templin of the Peterborough Canadian League, is evidently not letting any grass grow under his feet and although he has only been under contract for a week, has already coralled almost a complete team for Peterborough. This morning's mail brought Secretary Davidson the signed contract of Pitcher Harry Scull of Trenton, N.J. Concerning this twirler Manager Templin states that he has been pitching in a semi-pro League in Scranton, Pa. and that he is a good one. He is only a youngster, barely twenty-one years of age and is a youth of good habits. He is a right-hander, is five feet, nine inches in height, and weighs 160 pounds. Templin expects Scull to make good easily in the Canadian League.

The Manager gives some further information about Third-baseman Hartman, whose acquisition was announced yesterday. Hartman gives every promise of becoming a star in the Canadian circuit. He is a basketball player as well as a diamond artist, and has just finished a season in the Eastern League. He is a big boy, six feet in height, and is very fast. Hartman's habits are most exemplary, as he does not drink or touch tobacco, in any form.

Manager Templin announces that he has a deal on with the York Tri-State League team for Infielder Hoover, and with the Trenton Tri-State League Club for Richardson, another fast infielder. In addition, he is negotiating with the Colombia team of the South Atlantic League for Pitcher Ridgeway, and with a New England League club for another boxman.

"Okt Folks" says the weather is very fine—like summer—in Reading, and that the greater part of his team will be in good shape before they leave for the North.

"Electrics" "Possums" And "Magnets" Are Some Of The Nicknames Suggested

Nicknames for the Peterborough Canadian League ball team continue to pour into the Examiner, and the fans are evidently taking a deep interest in the contest.

Have you sent your selection in yet? By the way, it should be remembered that after a name has been submitted there is no use anyone else sending in the same name. If this cognomen happened to be selected, the first person who sent in the name would receive the prize. This morning's mail brought the name "Quakers," which has already been received. There is nothing to prevent you sending in as many names as you see fit.

"Electricites" is a new name sent in to-day. The contributor explains that Peterborough is known as the Electric City, and that therefore Electricites would be a good name.

Another suggests "Possums" because, as he say, "they will be like that little animal, very much alive, when some people think they are dead."

Another correspondent says: "I suggest that the team be named the "Invincibles," which means "cannot be beaten." My reason for naming the team the "Invincibles" is that when a bunch of rooters are yelling for the team they would try to live up to the reputation of the nickname.

Still another—"By reading the best paper in the city, I saw you were giving the fans the chance to select a name for the baseball team. Without further notice I propose the name "Magnets" as I am sure there will be lots of magnetism on the field when they get started."

"Electrics" find favour with another fan, who says: "I would suggest that the ball team be called the 'Electrics' as this city is very often mentioned in outside papers as the Electric City".

One youth, who evidently reads the newspaper, makes the suggestion that the team should be called the "Allan Outlaws," as he says, naively, they will have a battle to face, the same as the mountain outlaws.

A name that has much to commend it is "Kawarthas," which was submitted to-day. The writer says he thinks the team should be named after the well known chain of lakes upon which Peterborough is situated.

Among other names received to-day are "Electricians," "Electric Goers," "Knockouts," "Wanderers" and 'Cant Be Beats.'

Harold Hill Is Y.M.C.A. Senior Indoor Champion--Records Are Broken

In the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium Wednesday evening the annual senior athletic contest was run off, and as was the case in the junior contest, records were hung up that will likely stand for some time to come, the most notable of which was Harold Hill running the 60 yard potato race in 14 4-5 seconds, which equals the Canadian record for this event, and "Sandy" Hall's fence vault of 6 ft. 2 in.

Following are the results:

60 Yard Potato Race—H. Hill first, 14 4-5, E. Hanwell 15 2-5, W. Irvine 16 seconds. Hill's time clips 3-5 of a second off last year's time.

High Jump—S. Canniff tacked on 4 in. to the high jump record of last year, winning the event with a jump of 5 feet. H. Hill was second with 4 ft. 9 in. S. Hall third, 4 ft. 8 in.

The standing broad jump went to M. McCarrell with a jump of 9 ft., 2 3-4, which is 8 1-4 inches better than last year's mark. S. Canniff was second with 8 ft. 8 in. S. Hall and W. Irvine tied with 8 ft. 4 1-2 in.

The 12 lb. shot put fell to H. Hill, who boosted the pill 32 ft. 11 1-2in. adding 9 1-2 inches to his mark of last year. S. Canniff with 32 ft. 9 1-2 in. was second. M. McCarrell third with 32 ft. 4 in.

Every competitor in the fence vault did as well or better than the mark of 5 ft. 6 in. set last year, but 'Sandy' Hall raised the record to where it will likely remain for some little time, when he cleared the bar at 6 ft. 2 in. McCarrell was second with 5 ft. 10 ing men was as follows:

The 220 yard potato race was a new event on the programme this year, taking the place of the old 440 yard run. This event fell to H. Hill who covered the distance in 1.02 4 5. S. Hall second, 1.06 4-5, W. Irvine third in 1.10.

The standing by points of the leading men were as follows:

H. Hill 381 1-2 points; S. Hall 348, M. McCarrell 272, W. Irvine 271, S. Canniff 270.

ARTIE EDMUNDS IS HARD LUCK CHAMPION

The Toronto Star says of Artie Edmunds, who boxes Tony Hudson of Detroit, here, next Tuesday night:

"Artie Edmunds has been awarded another championship—the hard luck title. You've got to hand it to the Pocket Hercules. He jumped into the p rob.oxing game again around here a year ago at Belleville, and broke both his hands walloping the woodendeaded "Kid" Meyers—Tim Jordan with his black bat couldn't put this same Meyers out—blew back into Toronto and because of these same busted mawlies made a poor showing boxing a dub he should lick in three rounds. That kept him from coming to the front here when boxing was in its hey-day. Every local manager wanted to give him a preliminary bout, but he laughed at them and showed wires and letters from New York, offering him bouts with such men as Kayo Brown and Bert Keyes, and passed the preliminary bouts up But one thing after another cropped up and double-crossed Edmunds' bouts in New York until he was ready to jump off the nearest dock. Then he got mad, took on Harry Westerby and washed the public a sample of the rip-bang style of scrapping, which made him such a favourite in New York. The crowd liked the sample, and he was just preparing to show them more, when along came the police and crabbed the whole boxing game. A lot of local followers of the game, too, accused Edmunds of writing letters to himself about matches in New York, and the Pocket Hercules was in wrong all around, so when he got another offer a couple of weeks ago to go to New York and fight Willie Jones he said nothing but laid low and let things go along until the day he was to leave for New York.

Then he opened up, and again along came Mr. King Hoodoo, and put the kibosh on. A wire arrived from New York saying that Jones had broken his hand and could not battle the night of March 16, the date set. Edmunds thought a few unprintable things—he never says them—and kept his trap shut, only to open up again when he found out that Jones' hands were well enough to let him fight and trim another boy in Brooklyn the same night. That the offer for Edmunds was on the level is shown by the fact that the Toronto lad received railway transportation down to Gotham from the promoters. It certainly looks as if Jones got cold feet and ducked Edmunds' game. Edmunds is going down to Gotham and will make some body put up their mitts or shut up their mouths.

GOLF CLUB FORMED.

An enthusiastic meeting was held in Havelock on Thursday night of last week, when it was decided to form a Golf Club for the ensuing season. The grounds south-east of the C.P.R. property have been leased for the purpose, and a nine-hole course will be laid out as soon as possible. A large number of the leading professional men, merchants and citizens, have decided to play this splendid game this year as a means of adequate recreation and exercise denied them in any other sport. The membership fee was fixed at $1.00, and the following officers were elected: President—Dr. Holdcroft; Sec.-Treas., P. J. Wright; Grounds committee—M. Hunt, J. E. Fowler and A. C. Denike.

Curling Notes

Curling is still in vogue at the Charlotte street curling rink, and will continue so, as long as the weather remains favourable. The recent mild spell had little or no effect upon the ice, as by careful adjusting the ventilating arrangement and darkening the rink, deterioration of the shiny surface was avoided. The curlers are well satisfied with the results of their season's work, and the advent of mild weather would occasion very few regrets among their ranks.

The Neil-Sheppard trophy, whose scintillating rays have brightened the shadows of Charlotte street rink for the past season will perform this perfunctory duty no more. It is now in the hands of a local jeweller where it will receive its final rub down previous to its departure for Orillia, where it will summer during the remainder of the year. A 22 shot lead gives the Orillia club right of possession to the trophy for one year at least.

Following is the draw for to-night and Saturday in the President's and Vice-President's Curling Competition," which is being played off at the rink:

Friday, March 22nd.

President	Vice-President
J. H. Connol	R. Hicks
W. H. Taylor	A. Moore
J. E. A. Fitzgerald	G. H. Giroux
Adam Hall	J. W. McDermid

News From League Circuit

LONDON, MARCH 22. — Another change will take place in the London Canadian League baseball team this season. The local management have decided that the nickname 'Cockneys' is not altogether suitable for such a dignified bunch of ball players as they intend placing in the league, so they have adopted the name "Tecumsehs". In the old days, every baseball team that London ever turned out was named the Tecumsehs, and by thus adopting the name for the local Canadian League team, the London management are only following out the old custom, and going back to the name that first made London famous as a baseball town.

The name Tecumseh has always been connected with sports in this city. The fact that Tecumseh Park is where all the big baseball fixtures are pulled off, has its own significance in applying the name to a London ball team.

The name "Cockneys" was given the local baseball team by the papers of the other towns on the circuit. It first coming into prominence in the old Canadian League of 1900. Since then the application has fastened onto every professional ball team that has represented London and the grand old name of Tecumsehs has been almost forgotten. However this season the local management will revive the name Tecumsehs, and the team will be known by that nickname.

Of course, it is taken for granted that the team will get termed "Indians," or the "braves," or something like that now that they have been christened Tecumsehs, but these are thought to be more suitable than "Cockneys". It is not unlikely that an Indian's head will decorate the left sleeves of the London club's uniforms this season.

OTTAWA, MARCH 22.—Word was received this morning from both the Petersburg and Roanoke Virginia League clubs closing the deal for the purchase by Ottawa of Pitcher Larry Hannifan and Harry Draper. Contracts have been forwarded both men and they will report whenever required.

The signing of these two men gives Ottawa a front that makes the club look a formidable pennant contender long before the start of the Canadian League season. The roster now includes two first-class pitchers, two catchers, two infielders and one outfielder of class. Around this nucleus the team will be built.

Ottawa Free Press:

Publicity bureaus, boards of trade and chambers of commerce can advertise in magazines and periodicals till the cows come home, but they will never succeed in having their town brought to the attention of folks in distant climes like the natural advertisement given a center o a recogized racing circuit, or represented in organized baseball. Through sport channels are conveyed all the good of a city commercially, socially and geographically,—also the ills, worse luck for the hamlets nursing such things.

People come for hundreds of miles to see the bang tails. They give the town a "looking over" and when they go back to South Carolina, Arkansas or California they tell of both the good and bad they saw. The press of a great continent carries daily reports of entries, results and incidents of the meeting, placing before millions of readers the name of a town perhaps ever before heard of. Same in organized ball. The sport pages all over Canada and the U. S. bristle with the slightest piece of information of the signing of a player, the purchase of another and the daily results in the league. The most potent example of this is illustrated in a recent three-quarter column article in a Galveston Texas daily under the captain—"Louie Cook, will manage Ottawa." Cook was a former player in the Texas league and is prominently known in baseballdom. The article spoke of Ottawa as "a beautiful city modelled after Washington" and was copied in a New Orleans paper, and found its way for further scissoring and paste brush use in Milwaukee and Philadelphia journals. Thus before the baseball team has been gathered together, the city is becoming widely spoken of by the greatest of all advertising tentacles—sport.

That is why 1912 will see Ottawa ten times more talked of and better known than in 1911 or any other year The coming of Connaught Park and the Canadian Baseball League has done it. And it never cost the city a nickel.

Sammy Smith, that erratic youth who hurled for London in the Canadian League last year, and who created more trouble than a baby of three years, is at present warbling in a five and ten-cent house across the line. Sammy is extendig his thorax muscles for the amusement of the townsfolk, or perhaps for his own amusement and their misery.

Big Bill Lane, who has been mentioned for the managerial berth of the London club team, was married recently in Detroit. Lane is employed by the water commissioners' department of the city of Detroit, and has a good position. He has not yet sent in his signed contract to the London club management, but it is likely he will be heard from before log.

Mrs. Louis Bierbauer, mother of Louis Bierbauer, the London club's first sacker, and wife of Louis Bierbauer, who played second base for the old London International league team, attempted to commit suicide by jumping into the river at Niagara Falls on Monday morning. She was rescued by some immigration officials Mrs. Bierbauer has been ill for some time, and it is thought that her mind was temporarily affected.

The London management expect to land a good catcher before the season opens. Neither McWhirter nor Reske have signed contracts yet, although McWhirter has signified his intention of signing in a few days. Reske has not been heard from in some time, and it is just a question whether he will play with the team or not this season. A deal may be made with some of the other teams, and Reske may be traded or sold.

A RUNAWAY.

Horse Belonging to Stock's Bakery Runs Foul of the Speed Laws.

Pandemonium reigned on Sherbrooke street to-day at noon for a few minutes, when a horse attached to one of Stocks' bread wagons, made a break for liberty. The animal tore up Sherbrooke street at a record breaking clip and was intercepted in its movements by James Anglesey who swung onto the horse's bridle, bringing it to a standstill. The rig was overturned, but beyond this no damage was done to the outfit.

Civil Service Reform.

Toronto, March 23.—N. W. Rowell is carrying out another of his pre-election pledges in a notice that he will move on Wednesday next: "That in the judgment of this House the spoils and patronage systems are inimical to the highest efficiency of the public service, and to the best interests of the country; that the public interests demand the immediate creation of a non-partisan civil service commission with ample powers, and that all appointments and promotions in the public service shall be by merit after competitive examination except in those cases where the conditions of the public service render this impracticable."

Back to Hoboken For Hetty.

New York, March 23.—After giving New York what she considered a fair trial Mrs. Hetty Green has found the metropolis too "dull," and she has moved back to a flat in Hoboken, N. J.

The richest woman in the world, whose self-accumulated fortune is generally estimated at $75,000,000, made her home for years in Hobbken in a flat costing her $19 a month. She made friendship with a large number of neighbors, whom she missed greatly after coming to New York to live in a big town house near Central Park. She has now left the city house to her son, Col. Edward Green, and moved to a $40 flat in Hoboken, which she has fitted up simply but inexpensively.

LIBERALS OPPOSE CHARTERS TO TWO NEW RACE TRACKS

Strong protest From the Opposition—Hon. Mr Doherty defends the Measure

YESTERDAY IN COMMONS

Ottawa, March 23.—When Hon. Mr. Doherty's race track bill was before Parliament yesterday, the Minister came in for some pretty sharp criticism from members of the Opposition over the recent granting of charters by order-in-council to two racing associations at London and Thorncliffe.

Hon. W. T. White stated to the House that, in calling for tenders for the printing of Government notes, etc., the Government was saving $60,000 a year, or $300,000 on a five years' contract. The contract went to the American Bank Note Co., which had done the work for the past fifteen years. A condition of the contract was that all the work should be done in the city of Ottawa.

Hon. Mr. White gave a hint of a few of the reforms he hoped to accomplish when he revises the Bank Act next session. Something could be done, he thought, in connection with the organisation of banks to safeguard the interests of shareholders and depositors from promoters, thus preventing such a state of affairs as had been disclosed in connection with the Farmers' Bank. Something could also be done in connection with the administration of banks in inspection, whether by Government inspectors or otherwise, to prevent malfeasance. He also thought penalties could be imposed for negligence.

This bill and the bill to amend the Quebec Savings Bank Act were read a third time and passed.

Hon. W. T. White introduced a bill providing for an additional annual subsidy of $100,000 to Prince Edward Island. That province, he said, had been badly treated from the date of Confederation. He hoped a new era would dawn for P. E. I., with the increased subsidy.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier thought that this action formed a serious departure from established precedent.

Hon. Mr. Doherty's race track bill came up in committee of the afternoon session. He explained that, under the present law, letters patent had to be granted to associations conforming to the technical requirements. This amendment would require them to come to Parliament for incorporation.

Another consideration that he pointed out was that, by the Miller bill, associations were limited to two meetings of seven days each year. The effect of this limit, however, was nullified by several associations using the same track. By the extension of this practice, continuous racing might be possible. By the present bill, this was corrected by providing that only two meetings a year could be held on the same track, and these should have an interval between them.

Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux approved of the general principle of the proposed legislation, but criticized the Government for granting recent applications for charters. There was a widespread public opinion against any increase in the number of race tracks, and he thought in view of this that these two applicants should have been required to come to Parliament for their charter. They had probably been aware that this legislation was in contemplation when they made application.

Hon. Wm. Pugsley argued that the Secretary of State had discretion under the law to grant or withhold charters. These two associations had only got their charters five days ago and had no vested rights. Why, therefore, should not they come under the criminal law?

Hon. Geo. P. Graham declared that no harm could have come from delaying the granting of these charters a few days longer, till this legislation had been passed. The public would argue, rightly or wrongly, that these charters had been granted when they were because their promoters were afraid that Parliament would not grant them, especially as the former Secretary of State had delayed them for two years.

The bill was reported and stands for third reading.

The Liberal majority in the Senate again overruled the Government yesterday by adopting an amendment to the highway aid bill to which the Government objected and which had been defeated in the Commons.

In committee on the Government Highways Aid Act, Hon. Mr. Longheed said he still held the view that Senator Power's amendment would render the bill inoperative. There was no need for it, as the Government would this session bring down an estimate providing a sum which would be divided among all the provinces, according to their population, or at least all provinces who qualified to the terms proposed.

Senator Power's amendment was carried by 36 to 11.

On the motion of Senator Power, the clause authorising the Minister of Railways to undertake the work of improving a highway upon obtaining consent of the Provincial Legislature was struck out of the bill.

Harry Lovelock, the retiring Grand Master of the Grand Orange Lodge of Ontario West.

Price to Oppose Local Option.

Annapolis, Md., March 23.—That the charge that State Auditor-elect John F. O'Malley offered delegate Wm. R. Smallwood of Prince George County $2,500 to vote against the state wide local option bill in the House of Delegates, has been substantiated to such an extent as to call for action by the grand jury of Anne Arundel County, was the substance of a unanimous report to the House last night by the committee appointed to investigate the charges.

Allies Samee London Ladies.

London, March 23.—Chinese suffragettes at Nanking, dissatisfied with the National Assembly's academic resolution favoring women suffrage, are reported to have forced an entry to the assembly and after knocking down the police on guard, smashed the windows of the building.

The meeting had to be suspended for a time and was re-opened under military protection.

Gets Trenton-Belleville Contract.

Belleville, March 23.—The contract for the construction of the C.P.R. line between Trenton and Belleville has been awarded to F. R. Wilford, who is at present engaged on a power house at Dam No. 5, on the Trent River.

LESSON NO. 3
From
J. W. BROWETT, Optometrist

My talk to you this week is very important, if you are a sufferer from headaches caused by straining the eyes. It is very important to you, of course, that you should use your eyes, but nature never intended that you should abuse them. We know that headaches come from straining the normal eye or from using imperfect eyes or, in other words, eyes which do not focus. My experience leads me to believe that all strained eyes can be relieved by properly fitted glasses. When this strain is relieved the headaches disappear. Now reason a little: If you are a sufferer from headaches, and you suspect that the cause is strained vision then my argument must appeal to your case. My experience, gained from so many cases of eye strain during the past twenty years, is valuable to you. Try the remedy of glasses as we fit them, and you will not be disappointed.

MAY NOT NEED BILL

British Owners and Miners Show Show Signs of Agreeing—Men Show a Desire to go Back

ACT IN COMMITTEE

London, March 23.—The Government's minimum wage bill, introduced by Premier Asquith, in an endeavor to bring about a settlement of the coal strike, passed through the committee stage in the House of Commons at 1.30 o'clock yesterday morning, practically in the original form. Nearly all the amendments submitted had been withdrawn or defeated.

Whether the bill ever will reach the statute books is questionable, for it is not unlikely that a conference of the mine owners and miners called by Premier Asquith for Monday will result in an independent agreement between them, rendering the bill unnecessary. In this case the measure might be withdrawn.

It is believed that the labor leaders, having failed to induce the Government to define in the bill the minimum rates to be paid underground workers, would prefer a settlement of the controversy without legislation.

It is clear that the strike movement is weakening, and that the men are anxious to return to work. The attitude of the leaders yesterday was in strong contrast to the spirit of defiance they previously had shown. They appeared to have realized the uselessness of fighting both the coal mine owners and the Government, while dependent upon their rapidly exhausting union treasuries, and the present indications are that work in the mines will be resumed in a few days. The situation, however, changes so rapidly that nothing concerning the strike can be predicted. It was considered significant that yesterday Lloyds was ready to accept low rates of insurance against the strike continuing beyond March 31.

In yesterday's debate in the House of Commons the miners' representatives plainly intimated that if the Government's bill was amended in the committee stage by providing for a daily minimum of $1.25 for adults and 50c. for boys working underground the miners would not insist on the inclusion in the bill of their entire schedule and the way would be cleared for the speedy passage of the bill and the settlement of the strike. It was the general impression that the Government would accept the compromise and make this concession to the miners, but Premier Asquith's flat refusal yesterday to accept a labor amendment inserting a clause covering the $1.25 and 60c. minimum or to put any fixed rates in the bill, changed the whole situation.

Venezuela Likes Philander.

This wonderful grand production in three reels, of Bousicault's celebrated play introducing the best scenic views of Ireland, such as the Lakes of Killarney, The Peat Bogs, The Old Castles, Rustic Cottages & Rugged Mountains, will be seen at the Royal Theatre To-day. These are exceptionally fine pictures and will appeal to all. Usual prices of admission. Don't miss seeing this great Romantic Drama. 2669

THIS BILL GETS HOIST

Eight-hour Day for Miners is Postponed Although Allan Studholme Most Vigorously Fought for It

THE LEGISLATURE

Toronto, March 23.—Allan Studholme fought labor's fight in the Legislature yesterday afternoon when he rose to champion the bill to provide an eight-hour day for miners. The member for East Hamilton demonstrated beyond all doubt that he is quite capable of defending the rights of the people he represents, no matter how much the odds are against him in point of numbers. With both feet, hands, head and everything else, Mr. Studholme jumped on Hon. W. H. Hearst, when the Minister of Lands, Forests and Mines pleaded for a delay in passing the bill until the whole circumstances had been investigated and arrangements made as to details.

"If the hon. the Minister had held a brief for the mine owners he couldn't have done it better," declared Mr. Studholme, after Hon. Mr. Hearst had spoken. "With his legal mind he put every little objection possible in the way, in order to defeat the bill."

Directing his remarks to Mr. Hearst, the member for East Hamilton made some very pointed statements.

"You say you are in favor of the miners," said Mr. Studholme, "but your mind has been trained in the legal school. You know nothing about miners. Your evidence, sir, has been gathered from the men who owns the mine and not from the men who work in the mine."

Commenting on the support several of the members from New Ontario gave to Mr. Hearst in asking for a delay in passing the bill, Mr. Studholme made some very emphatic statements.

"In view of the remarks of some of the Conservative members from the north," he declared, "I wish an election was pending instead of being just passed. The results in those ridings might be different."

The discussion arose over Mr. Rowell's explanation of his bill to regulate the hours of employment in underground work. A similar bill was introduced by Sir James Whitney, and Mr. Rowell asked that the House adopt the principles of the bills and leave the details for further consideration next session. Sir James stated that he was entirely in favor of the eight-hour day, but he thought the bills should not receive their second reading this session till an investigation was held. In that way there would be no fear of the results of the investigation being different to what had already been recommended. Mr. Rowell, however, said he felt justified in not letting any opportunity so he proceeded to explain the features of it.

A six months' hoist was then moved. The motion reads:

"In the opinion of this House the regulation of the hours of employment in underground work is a matter in which undue haste should be avoided, and should be the subject of careful investigation; that such investigation can be made during the recess and in time for the results of it to be laid before this House at its next session, and that therefore the said bill be not now read a second time, but be read a second time this day six months."

"I'll ask my hon. friend if it wouldn't be the height of absurdity to pass this bill," said Sir James Whitney, when the bill introduced by N. W. Rowell to amend the Judicature Act was up for its second reading. A unanimous request was made by the high court judges for provision for an increase in their members. Sir James explained, and nothing to the contrary had been received by the Government since then.

"Does the hon. gentleman think that the high court judges are keeping this Government in the dark as to what they want or don't want," enquired Sir James. "They either want additional judges still, or else they are wishing the Government to do something they don't think is right."

The Premier said he had great respect and even admiration for Sir Alan Aylesworth, but the latter had been handicapped by his political friends. With regard to Sir William Meredith conducting investigations, the Premier said that for eighteen years Sir William hadn't an hour's leave of absence from the service of the province.

After a thorough discussion in which both the Prime Minister and the Attorney-General crossed swords with the leader of the Opposition and Hon. A. G. MacKay, the bill was defeated.

K·RYPTOK
INVISIBLE BI-FOCAL
Why Look Older Than You Are?

Double vision glasses need not mar one's appearance. They need not make one look older, or cause embarrassment by being conspicuous. KRYPTOK LENSES in your frame or Eyeglass mount would be an add to good appearance. KRYPTOK LENSES—a recent achievement, in optical science—comprise many view and far view lenses in an integral piece of glass.

They have an absolutely smooth surface, and are entirely free from the seams, dirt-catching lines, cement and bulky appearance characteristic of old-style bifocal lenses.

KRYPTOK LENSES are being eagerly adopted by all who require double-vision glasses or who have been using two pairs of glasses. They are good looking and in no way do they suggest advancing years.

CHANGE IN WOMAN'S LIFE

Made Safe by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Graniteville, Vt.—"I was passing through the Change of Life and suffered from displacement, irregularities and other annoying symptoms, and I can truly say that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has proved worth mountains of gold to me, as it restored my health and strength. I never forget to tell my friends what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me during this trying period. Complete restoration to health means so much to me that for the sake of other suffering women I am willing to make my trouble public so you may publish this letter."—Mrs. Chas. Barclay, R.F.D., Graniteville, Vt.

No other medicine for woman's ills has received such wide-spread and unqualified endorsement. No other medicine we know of has such a record of cures as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

For more than 30 years it has been curing woman's ills such as inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains and nervous prostration, and it is unequalled for carrying women safely through the period of change of life.

Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., invites all sick women to write her for advice. Her advice is free, and always helpful.

"INITIALS ONLY"

But Sweetwater had one more question to ask. "Pardon me," said he, as he stopped down on the walk, "you say that this is a critical day with your patient. Is that why every one whom I have seen so far wears such a look of anxiety?"

"Yes, yes," she cried, giving him one other glimpse of her lovely, agitated face. "There's but one feeling in town to-day, but one hope, and, as I believe, but one prayer. That the man whom every one loves and every one trusts may live to run these Works."

"Edith! Edith!" rose in ceaseless reiteration from within.

But it rang but faintly now in the ears of our detective. The door had fallen to, and Sweetwater's share in the anxieties of that household was over.

Slowly he moved away. He was in a confused yet elated condition of mind. Here was food for a thousand new thoughts and conjectures. An Orlando Brotherson and an Oswald Brotherson — relatives possibly, strangers possibly; but whether relatives or strangers, both given to signing their letters with their initials simply: and both the acknowledged admirers of the deceased Miss Challoner. But she had loved only one, and that one, Oswald. It was not difficult to recognise the object of this high-hearted woman's affections in this man whose struggle with the master-destroyer had awakened the solicitude of a whole town.

XXIV.
SUSPENSE.

Ten minutes after Sweetwater's arrival in the village streets, he was at home with the people he found there. His conversation with Doris in the doorway of her home had been observed by the curious and far-sighted, and the questions asked and answered had made him friends at once. Of course, he could tell them nothing, but that did not matter, he had seen and talked with Doris and their idolised young manager was no worse and might possibly soon be better.

Of his own affairs — of his business with Doris and the manager, they asked nothing. All ordinary interests were lost in the stress of their great suspense.

It was the same in the bar-room of the one hotel. Without resorting to more than a question or two, he readily learned all that was generally known of Oswald Brotherson. Every one was talking about him, and each had some story to tell illustrative of his kindness, his courage and his quick mind. The Works had never produced a man of such varied capabilities and all round sympathies. To have him for manager meant the greatest good which could befall this little community.

His rise had been rapid. He had come from the east three years before, new to the work. Now, he was the one man there. Of his relationships east, family or otherwise, nothing was said. For them his life began and ended in Derby, and Sweetwater could see, though no actual expression was given to the feeling, that there was but one expectation in regard to him and Doris, to whose uncommon beauty and sweetness they all seemed fully alive. And Sweetwater wondered, as many of us have wondered, at the gulf frequently existing between fancy and fact.

Later there came a small excitement. The doctor was seen riding by on his way to the sick man. From the window where he sat, Sweetwater watched him pass up the street and take the road he had himself so lately traversed. It was so straight a one and led so directly northward that he could follow with his eye the doctor's whole course, and even get a glimpse of his figure as he stepped from the buggy and proceeded to tie up the horse. There was an energy about him pleasing to Sweetwater. He might have much to do with this doctor. If Oswald Brotherson died—but he was not willing to consider this possibility—yet. His personal sympathies, to say nothing of his professional interest in the mystery to which this man—and this man only—possibly held the key, alike forbade. He would hope, as these others were hoping, and if he did not count the minutes, he at least saw every move of the old horse waiting with drooping head and the resignation of long custom for the reappearance of his master with his news of life or death.

And so an hour—two hours passed. Others were watching the old horse now. The street showed many an eager figure with head turned northward. From the open doorways women stepped, looked in the direction of their anxiety and retreated to their work again. Suspense was everywhere, the moments dragged like hours; it became so keen at last that some impatient hearts could no longer stand it. A woman put her baby into another woman's arms and hurried up the road; another followed, then another; then an old man, bowed with years and of tottering steps, began to go that way, halting a dozen times before he reached the group now collected in the dusty highway, near but not too near that house. As Sweetwater's own enthusiasm swelled at this sight, he thought of the other Brotherson with his theories and active advocacy for reform, and wondered if men and women would forego their meals and stand for hours in the keen spring wind just to be the first to hear if he were to live or die. He knew that he himself would not. But he had suffered much both in his pride and his purse at the hands of the Brooklyn inventor; and such despoliation is not a reliable basis for sympathy. He was questioning his own judgment in this matter and losing himself in the mazes of past doubts and conjectures when a sudden change took place in the aspect of the street; he saw people running, and in another moment saw why. The doctor had shown himself on the porch which all were watching. Was he coming out? No, he stands quite still, runs his eye over the people waiting quietly in the road, and beckons to one of the smaller boys. The child, with upturned face, stands listening to what he has to say, then starts on a run for the village. He is stopped, pulled about, questioned, and allowed to run on. Many rush forth to meet him. He is panting, but gleeful. Mr. Brotherson has waked up conscious, and the doctor says, He will live.

XXV.
THE OVAL HUT.

That night Dr. Fenton had a visitor. We know that visitor and we almost know what his questions were, if not the answers of the good doctor. Nevertheless, it may be better to listen to a part at least of their conversation.

Sweetwater, who knew when to be frank and open, as well as when to be reserved and ambiguous, made no effort to disguise the nature of his business or his chief cause of interest in Oswald Brotherson. The eye which met his was too penetrating not to detect the smallest attempt at subterfuge; besides, Sweetwater had no need to hide his errand; it was one of peace, and it threatened nobody — "the more's the pity," thought he in uneasy comment to himself, as he realised the hopelessness of the whole situation.

His first word, therefore, was a plain announcement.

"Dr. Fenton, my name is Sweetwater. I am from New York, and represent for the nonce, Mr. Challoner, whose name I have simply to mention, for you to understand that my business is with Mr. Brotherson whom I am sorry to find seriously, if not dangerously, ill. Will you tell me how long you think it will be before I can have a talk with him on a subject which I will not disguise from you may prove a very exciting one?"

"Weeks, weeks," returned the doctor. "Mr. Brotherson has been a very sick man and the only hope I have of his recovery is the fact that he is ignorant of his trouble or that he has any cause for doubt or dread. Were this happy condition of things to be disturbed, — were the faintest rumour of sorrow or disaster to reach him in his present weakened state, I should fear a relapse, with all its attendant dangers. What then, if any intimation should be given him of the horrible tragedy suggested by the name you have mentioned? The man would die before your eyes. Mr. Challoner's business will have to wait."

"That I see; but if I knew when I might speak—"

"I can give you no date. Typhoid is a treacherous complaint; he has the best of nurses and the chances are in favour of a quick recovery; but we never can be sure. You had better return to New York. Later, you can write me if you wish, or Mr. Challoner can. You may have confidence in my reply; it will not mislead you."

Sweetwater muttered his thanks and rose. Then he slowly sat down again.

"Dr. Fenton," he began, "you are a man to be trusted. I'm in a devil of a fix, and there is just a possibility that you may be able to help me out. It is the general opinion in New York, as you may know, that Miss Challoner committed suicide. But the circumstances do not fully bear out this theory, nor can Mr. Challoner be made to accept it. Indeed, he is so convinced of its falsehood, that he stands ready to do anything, pay anything, suffer anything, to have this distressing blight removed from his daughter's good name. Mr. Brotherson was her dearest friend, and as such may have the clew to this mystery, but Mr. Brotherson may not be in a condition to speak for several weeks. Meanwhile, Mr. Challoner must suffer from great suspense unless—" a pause during which he searched the doctor's face with a perfectly frank and inquiring expression—"unless some one else can help us out. Dr. Fenton, can you?"

The doctor did not need to speak; his expression conveyed his answer.

"No more than another," said he. "Except for what Doris felt compelled to tell me, I know as little as yourself. Mr. Brotherson's delirium took the form of calling continually upon one name. I did not know this name, but Doris did, also the danger lurking in the fact that he had yet to hear of the tragedy which had robbed him of this woman to whom he was so deeply attached. So she told me just this much. That the Edith whose name rung so continuously in our ears was no other than the Miss Challoner of New York of whose death and its tragic circumstances the papers have been full; that their engagement was a secret one unshared so far as she knew by any one but herself. That she begged me to preserve this secret and to give her all the help I could when the time came for him to ask questions. Especially did she entreat me to be with her at the crisis. I was, but his waking was quite natural. He did not ask for Miss Challoner; he only inquired how long he had been ill and whether Doris had received a letter during that time. She had not received one, a fact which seemed to disappoint him; but she carried it off so gaily (she is a wonderful girl, Mr. Sweetwater—the darling of all our hearts), saying that he must not be so egotistical as to think that the news of his illness had gone beyond Derby, that he soon recovered his spirits and became a very promising convalescent. That is all I know about the matter; little more, I take it, than you know yourself."

Sweetwater nodded; he had expected nothing from the doctor, and was not disappointed at his failure. There were two strings to his bow, and the one proving valueless, he proceeded to test the other.

"You have mentioned Miss Scott, as the confidante and only confidante of this unhappy pair," said he. "Would it be possible—can you make it possible for me to see her?"

It was a daring proposition; he understood this at once from the doctor's expression; and, fearing a hasty rebuff, he proceeded to supplement his request with a few added arguments, urged with such unexpected address and show of reason that Dr. Fenton's aspect visibly softened and in the end he found himself ready to promise that he would do what he could to secure his visitor the interview he desired if he would come to the house the next day at the time of his own morning visit.

This was as much as the young detective could expect, and having expressed his thanks, he took his leave in anything but a discontented frame of mind. With so powerful an advocate as the doctor, he felt confident that he should soon be able to conquer this young girl's reticence and learn all that was to be learned from any one but Mr. Brotherson himself. In the time which must elapse between that happy hour and the present, he would circulate and learn what he could about the prospective manager. But he soon found that he could not enter the Works without a permit, and this he was hardly in a position to demand; so he strolled about the village instead, and later wandered away into the forest.

Struck by the inviting aspect of a narrow and little used road opening from the highway shortly above the house where his interests were just then centred, he strolled into the heart of the spring woods till he came to a depression where a surprise awaited him, in the shape of a peculiar structure rising from its midst where it just fitted, or so nearly fitted that one could hardly walk about it without brushing the surrounding tree trunks. Of an oval shape, with its door facing the approach, it nestled there, a wonder to the eye and the occasion of considerable speculation to his inquiring mind. It had not been long built, as was shown very plainly by the fresh appearance of the unpainted boards of which it was constructed; and while it boasted of a door, as I've already said, there were no evidences visible of any other break in the smooth, neatly finished walls. A wooden ellipse with a roof but no windows; such it appeared and such it proved to be. A mystery to Sweetwater's eyes, and like all mysteries, interesting. For what purpose had it been built and why this isolation? It was too flimsy for a reservoir and too expensive for the wild freak of a crank.

A nearer view increased his curiosity. In the projection of the roof over the curving sides he found fresh food for inquiry. As he examined it in the walk he made around the whole structure, he came to a place where something like a hinge became visible and further on another. The roof was not simply a roof; it was also a lid capable of being raised for the air and light which the lack of windows necessitated. This was an odd discovery indeed, giving to the uncanny structure the appearance of a huge box, the cover of which could be raised or lowered at pleasure. And again he asked himself for what it could be intended? What enterprise, even of the great Works, could demand a secrecy so absolute that such pains as these should be taken to shut out all possibility of a prying eye. Nothing in his experience supplied him with an answer.

He was still looking up at these hinges, with a glance which took in at the same time the nearness and extreme height of the trees by which this sylvan mystery was surrounded, when a sound from the road on the opposite side of the hollow brought his conjectures to a standstill and sent him hurrying on to the nearest point from which that road became visible.

A team was approaching. He could hear the heavy tread of horses working their laborious way through trees whose obstructing branches swished before and behind them. They were bringing in a load for this shed, whose uses he would consequently soon understand. Grateful for his good luck—for his was a curiosity which could not stand defeat—he took a few steps into the wood, and from the vantage point of a concealing cluster of bushes, fixed his eyes upon the spot where the road opened into the hollow.

Something blue moved there, and in another moment, to his great amazement, there stepped into view the spirited form of Doris Scott, who if he had given the latter a thought he would have supposed to be sitting just then by the bedside of her patient, a half mile back on the road.

She was dressed for the woods in a blue skirt and jacket and moved like a leader in front of a heavily laden wagon now coming to a standstill before the closely shut shed—if such we may call it.

"I have a key," so she called out to the driver who had paused for orders. "When I swing the doors wide, drive straight in."

Sweetwater took a look at the wagon. It was piled high with large wooden boxes on more than one of which he could see scrawled the words: O. Brotherson, Derby, Pa.

This explained her presence, but the boxes told nothing. They were of all sizes and shapes, and some of them so large that the assistance of another man was needed to handle them. Sweetwater was about to offer his services when a second man appeared from somewhere in the rear, and the detective's attention being thus released from the load out of which he could make nothing, he allowed it to concentrate upon the young girl who had it in charge and who, for many reasons, was the one person of supreme importance to him.

She had swung open the two wide doors, and now stood waiting for horse and wagon to enter. With locks flying free—she wore no bonnet—she presented a picture of ever increasing interest to Sweetwater. Truly she was a very beautiful girl, buoyant, healthy and sweet; as unlike as possible his preconceived notions of Miss Challoner's humble little protegee. Her brown hair of a rich chestnut hue, was in itself a wonder. On no head, even in the great city he had just left, had he seen such abundance, held in such modest restraint. Nature had been partial to this little working girl and given her the chevelure of a queen.

But this was nothing. No one saw this aureole when once the eye had rested on her features and caught the full nobility of their expression and the lurking sweetness underlying her every look. She herself made the charm and whether placed high or placed low, must ever attract the eye and afterwards lure the heart, by an individuality which hardly needed perfect features in which to express itself.

Young yet, but gifted, as girls of her class often are, with the nicest instincts and purest aspirations, she showed the elevation of her thoughts both in her glances and in the poise with which she awaited events. Sweetwater watched her with admiration as she superintended the unloading of the wagon and the disposal of the various boxes on the floor within; but as nothing she said during the process was calculated to afford the least enlightenment in regard to their contents, he presently wearied of his inaction and turned back towards the highway, comforting himself with the reflection that in a few short hours he would have her to himself when nothing but a blunder on his part should hinder him from sounding her young mind and getting such answers to his questions as the affair in which he was so deeply interested, demanded.

THOUGHT IT WAS CANCER

"Fruit-a-tives" completely restored me

SYDNEY MINES, N.S., Jan. 25th, 1910.

"For many years, I suffered tortures from Indigestion and Dyspepsia. Two years ago, I was so bad that I vomited my food constantly. I also suffered with Constipation. I consulted physicians, as I was afraid the disease was cancer, but medicine gave only temporary relief.

I read in the 'Maritime Baptist' about 'Fruit-a-tives' and the cures this medicine was making and I decided to try it. After taking three boxes, I found a great change for the better and now I can say 'Fruit-a-tives' has entirely cured me and when every other treatment failed, and I reverently say "Thank God for 'Fruit-a-tives'."

RUM DELENDA EST.

Have YOU heard how Roman fathers in the days of Roman might Led their sons to Roman altars on the Forum's noble height;
Pledged them there in bloody basins,
in the name of wrongs afar,
To the Carthaginian Moloch and the heathen gods of war.

You have heard how in the Highlands, men of Wallace and of Bruce
Slew without the thought of quarter, died without the cry of truce;
Swept away the smiling heather with the ravaging of fire,
Till the bloody-eyed oppressor found no beauty to desire.

You have heard how hapless Holland, with the vengeful wrath of God,
Battered wide the dykes that freed her, met the tyrant with the flood;
Gave a hundred years of toiling in a moment to the sea,
Drowned her present with the ocean,
that her future might be free.

You who know the ancient story have the message of to-day,
'Tis the brother tale of races and it changes not for aye.
For though in a thousand guises, ages past, or times to be,
'Tis the battle hope of freedom and the shout of liberty.

O my brothers, we are standing where our brother men have stood,
In the place of great decision, by the altar of our God;
And a million souls in bondage send to us high freedom's call,
As an ancient Carthage tumbles to another Moloch's fall.

Shall the patriot of Holland, or the Roman, or the Scot,
Be more valiant than the Freeman to a holy trust begot?
Shall we hold the gift too precious, or the price too great to pay,
When the demon of the ages, reeking
mawed, disputes the way?

'Tis the challenge to the races and the battle of the strong,
War of brothers undivided, Right triumphant over wrong;
And we pledge our blood and virtue,
as one man we lift the call,
By our homes and land and altars,
Rum "delenda est!" SHALL FALL.

PHYSICAL DETERIORATION.

Report of the Borough of Camberwell.

The Report of the Committee, presented to Parliament by command of His Majesty, states that:

The abuse of alcoholic stimulants is a most potent and deadly agent of physical deterioration.

Alcoholic persons are specially liable to tuberculosis and all inflammatory disorders.

Evidence was placed before the Committee showing that in abstinence is to be sought the source of muscular vigour and activity.

The lunacy figures show a large and increasing number of admissions of both sexes which are due to drink.

The following facts recognized by the medical profession are published in order to carry out the recommendation of the Committee and to bring home to men and women the fatal effects of alcohol on physical efficiency:

(a) Alcoholism is a chronic poisoning resulting from the habitual abuse of alcohol (whether as spirits, wine, or beer), which may never go as far as drunkenness.

(b) It is a mistake to say that stimulants are necessary for those doing hard work; this can usually be done better without alcohol.

(c) Alcohol is really a narcotic, dulling the nerves like laudanum or opium. Its first effect is to weaken a man's self-control, while his passions are excited; hence the number of crimes which occur under its influence.

(d) For persons in ordinary health, the practice of drinking even the milder alcoholic drinks apart from meals is most injurious.

(e) The habit of drinking to excess leads to the ruin of families, the neglect of social duties, disgust for work, misery, theft, and crime. It leads also to the hospital, for alcohol produces the most various and the most fatal diseases, including paralysis, insanity, diseases of the stomach and liver, and dropsy. It also paves the way to consumption, and frequenters of public-houses furnish a large proportion of the victims of this disease; typhoid fever, pneumonia, and erysipelas are much more fatal in the subject of alcoholism.

(f) The sins of the parents who have drunk to excess are visited on the children.

(g) In short, alcoholism is the most terrible enemy to personal health, to family happiness, and to national prosperity.

THE RED FLAG.

An engineer gave his little girl a small red flag to play with ,and explained that on the road the red flag signifies danger. "Would you stop your train if you saw a red flag on the track?" she asked. "Yes," he said, "or there might be an accident." After her papa had left, the little one found her mamma crying. "Why are you crying, mamma?" she asked. The mother gave no answer. But as the child saw the decanter on the sideboard she said: "Is it because papa drank some of that nasty brandy before he went to work?" "Yes, dear; you see, he is getting worse, and will surely lose his place. He thinks the people do not notice, but they must notice it. And he will, I fear, completely wreck his life."

The child did not forget her mother's worry. All day long she thought of what she might do to help, and at last she thought of the red flag, and what her papa had told her it stands for. Going to the sideboard, she firmly fastened the flag to the decanter and then went to bed satisfied. The father came home, went to the sideboard for the usual nightcap, but saw the flag, and understood, and heeded the warning.—Selected.

CATHOLIC VOTES.

The Catholic Abstainer for February discusses the question of whether or not Roman Catholic voters oppose the barroom. It calls attention to the fact that there are some four or more cities in Massachusetts having over fifty thousand inhabitants each, which are under no-license. These cities are Cambridge, Lynn, Somerville, and Brockton.

The religious census of 1908 shows the church-going population over nine years of age in these cities to be as follows:

Cambridge, 45,866, of which 33,545 was Catholic.

Lynn, 31,511, of which 20,533 was Catholic.

Brockton, 20,516, of which 13,532 was Catholic.

Somerville, 25,683, of which 17,150 was Catholic.

Total Catholic 84,258; non-Catholic 39,408. Over 68 per cent. Catholic.

LOVE ON ICE

School District No. 1 in the County of Rose was at the foot of Plum Lake and School District No. 2 was at the head. Plum Lake was three miles long. Justice of the Peace Fleming was Moderator of No. 1, and Farmer Davis of the other. The Moderator is the Chairman of the School Board in a county district and what he says is law.

There was a time when the two schools dwelled together in unity, but there had long been war between them. It started with an outside thing and should not have been dragged into the schools at all. One day Farmer Davis met up with the Justice in the village and challenged him to a horse trade in the following language:

"Judge, how much boot will you give me between this hoss and your gray mare?"

"You are Moderator of School District No. 1, I believe," replied the Judge, in judicial tones.

"Of course."

"And it's your duty to push the cause of education along?"

"It is."

"And yet you say 'hoss' for 'horse!'"

"It is 'hoss.'"

"Any child 5 years old knows better."

"Look-a-here, Judge. I'm 60 years old, and I've always said 'hoss' and no one has had the impudence to say that I was wrong. Where do you get your authority?"

"In the dictionary."

"Show me."

Farmer Davis was taken into the office and the word pointed out. It was spelled and pronounced "h-o-r-se."

"That's all right," said the farmer. "That probably means a lay horse, but I'm talking about a black hoss. Turn over till you find it. I've been charged with hindering the cause of education. Let's see whether I have or not."

The word couldn't be found, but Farmer Davis owned the only wind-mill in the township and had the biggest barn and it was not for him to give up. Other people interfered and one school district became "hoss" and the other "horse" district. There had been spelling contests in the winter, and now these were abolished. There had been sleighrides, but these were given up. Both had always hired men teachers, but now Farmer Davis said to the others on the board:

"What we want here is a female teacher and the best-looking one in four counties—one to take the rag right off the bush."

"But she can't lick the big boys," was objected.

"She won't have to. We'll be the licking committee ourselves."

"But a gal can't wade through snow drifts."

"Some of us will drive her to school and back in a sleigh."

"But if they have a young man in the other district and we have a gal in this district, won't they fall in love?"

"Not by 40 ring-tailed coons!" replied the Moderator, as he smashed his fist down on the desk. "Our gal has got to be told in advance that there's got to be nothing of the sort going on. The minute she falls in love away she goes. We ain't going to run a matrimonial bureau at this end of the lake."

When the winter term came on one school district had Edward Carston for teacher, and the other had Miss Mary Burton. Mr. Carston was about 24, and Miss Burton three years younger. It was agreed on all sides that both had style. When instructed with both received plain warning as to what would be expected of them. They were to look upon each other as enemies, and if they happened to meet on the highway they were to pass each other with the most supreme indifference.

Mr. Carston was a fine skater. So was Miss Burton. On Saturday, if the weather permitted, they were on the ice; also on moonlight nights and after school hours. A line was drawn across the centre of Plum Lake and each district kept to its half.

One night when skating alone Mr. Carston crossed the boundary and went on a scout into the enemy's country. He saw a girl dodge into a little bay. He paused for a moment. Her movements on the steel runners were so graceful that he knew it must be "the gal teacher." They were alone on the lake, but they must not come within 10 rods of each other. Mr. Carston went his way, but at daylight next morning he was skating into that bay. The ice there was as smooth as glass. Only one pair of skates had left marks. After a look around he wrote this message on the ice with the heel of his skate:

"Greeting to You."

That night after the lake was well clear of skaters he scouted down to the bay again. His message had been scratched out and another left. It read:

"And the Same to You."

That was the beginning. She had known who had left that greeting, and she had answered. They must not cross that line by day and even bow to each other. They must be careful not to be seen at night. The fight was on more bitter than ever. The Judge had said of Farmer Davis:

"Think of a Moderator who says 'hoss' for 'horse!' Is it any wonder that some of the greatest men in the country are saying that the cause of education is going down hill?"

And Farmer Davis had said of the Judge:

"The blamed old jackass is a back number in education! He hasn't found out yet that it's pronounced 'hoss' to make it easier for the children. It was getting this good-looking teacher that gave him the cute."

And Mr. Carston's next message read:

"What a Queer Lot of Folks!"

And the answer to it was:

"I Should Say!"

And then:

"Let's Resign."

And the answer:

"Can't. I Need the Money."

Then came a few days of soft weather when no skating could be indulged in, and no more messages written. During this interval Mr. Carston sounded the Judge by saying:

"I hear they have a very thorough teacher in the lady in the other district."

"And I don't hear any such thing!" was the vigorous reply. "I hear she ain't worth her salt, and that she says 'horse' can be called 'hoss' under certain circumstances."

"I doubt if she said that."

"Well, I don't care whether she did or not. Davis has called me a blamed old jackass, and this 'ere quarrel is to keep right on."

And then came freezing weather and Mr. Carston visited the bay and wrote on its surface:

"I'm Going to Raise a Row."

And within 24 hours he got the answer:

"What About?"

And he replied:

"So as to Get Introduced to You!"

This was the last message on ice. Mr. Carston got out handbills, calling a public meeting in the village, and when he had his crowd assembled he rose up and gave them fits. He showed the envy and hatred them of the evils, and when he stopped speaking Farmer Davis and Judge Fleming were shaking hands over the chasm.

A few hours later the farmer was driving to two very modest and retiring individuals:

"Miss Burton, this is Mr. Carston, the other teacher. Mighty nice man! Mighty nice gal! Hope to see you skating together."

And they did skate together the rest of the winter, and if the reporter's information is reliable they are skating together yet, and a very happy couple they are.

"It may be 'hoss' and it may be 'horse,'" says Farmer Davis, when the question comes up, "but I'm getting around it by saying 'animal' in place of either."—Donald Allen in St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

BUNTY PULLS THE STRINGS

The Famous Scotch Comedy Now Creating a Furore in LONDON, ENG., NEW YORK and CHICAGO.

A SCENE FROM THE COMEDY.

Graham Moffat, Author Talks On Birth of "Bunty Pulls the Strings"

The question which seems to have [illegible] with the striking success of "Bunty Pulls the Strings" both in London and New York—a success which has been in the nature of a surprise to everybody, author, managers and public alike—was "What steps did we take to reach a million theatre?"

Well, I suppose I ought to trace the thing from the start. My father was the first Scottish public entertainer and reciter. He adopted for recitative purposes the works of Scott, Galt and other native writers of his own and previous periods, and every soon became a great favorite all over Scotland. In those days there were no theatres or variety houses in the country, their place being taken by bare halls in the larger towns, where the lightest form of entertainment was choral singing and lectures. My father died when I was fifteen, and up till then I had shown no promise and felt no inclination for such work.

In the course of the next few years, however, I had begun to find a real interest in it, and at the age of twenty I founded a club in Glasgow called the Junior Dramatic, among the members of which were my sister Kate (now playing Bunty at the Haymarket) and my brothers Sanderson and Watson (now playing the part of Weelum in New York and London respectively). Then I began to have engagements as a reciter and entertainer, and I was soon joined by my sister in this work, and she has remained with me ever since. Meanwhile I was having an excellent opportunity for studying Scottish character and for going to the theatre. This led to my starting to write for the stage, approaching the task from the point of view of the outsider, while being at the same time thoroly conversant with stage requirements.

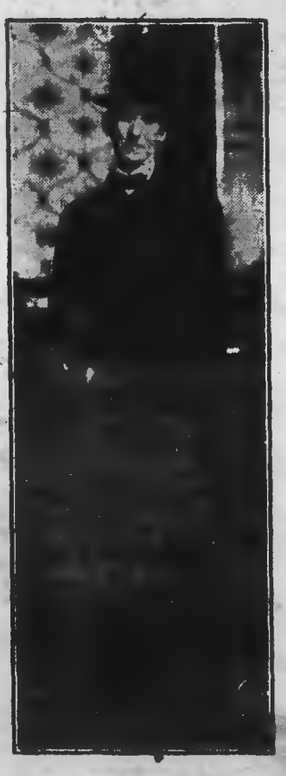
During a visit of Irish players to Glasgow about four years ago I became greatly interested in their work and in their praiseworthy efforts on behalf of their native drama. It there and then struck me that I might, perhaps, be able to do something for the Scottish writers along similiar lines, and possibly succeed in establishing a Scottish National Theatre.

I had by this time written quite a number of sketches in my native dialect, and appeared in them with my sister Kate during our platform entertainments. The fact that these were always so favorably received without scenery or costumes led me to believe that still greater success might be achieved with the assistance of proper scenery and stage effects. Therefore I picked out a small company, the members of which were till then almost amateurs, and produced two short plays—"Till the Bells Ring" and "Annie Laurie"—at the Glasgow Athenaeum. With me were my wife, my sister and other Scottish players who are nearly all now in one or other of my companies in London, New York or on tour. I called my company at that time the Scottish National Players. The good notices which our work received in the Press encouraged me to go on, and I set about getting two fourther pieces. "The Concealed Bed" and "A Scrape of the Pen" which indue course were produced at the Glasgow Athenaeum.

Then came the inauguration in Glasgow of the Scottish Repertory Theatre one of the main objects of which, it was stated, was the giving of assistance to Scottish authors and the production of plays dealing with Scottish life. So it occured to me that I might be able to join forces therewith. I approached the management with the suggestion that the idea of having English actors to play Scottish roles was one that would most probably result in an injustice to both the actors and the roles. But, somehow nothing came of my overtures, and I decided therefore, to fall back upon my own resources, and try the variety stage with "The Concealed Bed." The piece was cut down to suit music hall requirements, and was played as a farce at one of the Glasgow houses. However, even tho as a draw it set up a record for the theatre, we had no little difficulty in persuading other managers to give it house room. Still, we persisted, and bookings followed intermittently. At Aberdeen Mr. Walter Hast saw it and was so taken with it that he 'phoned and wired to London forthwith for an engagement. We appeared at the London Pavilion last Easter.

By special request we then arranged a small private performance before some agents of my play, "Till the Bells Ring." It took place in daylight, without any scenery, but it quickly led to an introduction to Mr. Cyril Maude, and to our appearance in the piece as a curtain-raiser, first to "Cousin Kate" and then to "Pomander Walk" at the Playhouse. The next steep was to collect an all Scottish company and rehearse "Bunty Pulls the Strings" for an invitation matinee at the same theatre. This performance was such a hit that before two o'clock next day we had received offers of four westend London theatres.

I had written "Bunty" during leisure hours in the off-weeks; whilst touring with "The Concealed Bed." The scenes quite naturally suggested themselves to my knowledge of and long association with the villages in the Blane Valley, which is just over the hill from my home at Milngavie, and a good impression of what they are like is given by the black-cloth scenery in act II of the play. The church has its exact prototype in the old Kirk at Baldernock, where on a Sunday even now you may see a Weelum standing by the plate outside.



WEELUM, BUNTY'S FIANCE.

The characters in the play are all taken from life, and that of Bunty herself was built upon my conception of what my mother was probably like as a young woman, and many of the phrases that occur in the course of Bunty's conversation are those which I have been in the habit of hearing from my mother's lips. You will remember the incident of the clocks in act III; that also is a reminiscence of my younger days at home, where it was a habit of my mother to have the clocks in the different rooms showing different times, so that one could point to the particular one that showed an hour which best suited her when something had to be done.

Since the production of the play in London, I have had letters of almost every description—letters of appreciation, letters of suggestion, and so on. One gentleman, a well-known merchant in the city, has been to see the play nearly thirty times, and has on almost every occasion brought friends with him, to whom he has explained that the play is a wonderfully realistic picture of his own early home life. It appears that an old aunt of his was on a visit recently from Scotland, and was taken to see "Bunty," the effect upon her was such that during every interval and on the way home she indulged in vigorous denunciation of the author and everything connected with the piece and theatres in general. Next morning she returned home in high dudgeon.

The character of Tammas—in its blend of the humorous and serious is, I believe, that of almost every Scotsman. Another of my correspondents told me that his father was a poplar writer of humorous prose and verse, yet this is how his family had to spend Sunday: morning prayers, breakfast, church, dinner on food cooked the previous day, afternoon church, tea preparation for and followed by Bible class, family worship, bed.

A suggestion which certainly contained humor, tho it did not seem such as could well be made use of, was put to me to the effect that in the scene outside the church an elder, who on week-days was the local carpenter (and, therefore, coffin-maker), might come up to Weelum with the remark in a much-concerned tone that the minister had not yet arrived, and as the congregation were getting impatient, Weelum might take his place in the pulpit and "say a few words." After some argument, in which Weelum showed strong disinclination to fill the vacancy, the elder would conclude with the tempting offer, "Come! just say you'll do it, and I promise to make your coffin free of charge."

As a mark of appreciation of our success the following is eloquent: A few weeks back a copy of an illustrated paper, in which "Bunty" was dealt with at considerable length, was sent home to Milngavie, and was carefully perused, among other, by an old man who had been in the habit of working occasionally for us. As he handed back the paper his only remark was, "well, well, and to think that I cut their grass."

Already the word "Bunty" seems to have come to possess a meaning of its own, and is applied to the eldest daughter in a household over the members of which she is apt to exercise a somewhat dictatorial authority. Thus, here is an expression which I am told one of a certain family used towards another lately: "You won't come Bunty over me."

In New York a thoroly rehearsed and efficient company is playing to enormous business, and there seems every prospect of its running thru two seasons. A touring company has just sailed for New York to take the play out on the road, and in less than two months another company is going out with Mr. Walter Hast to play "The Concealed Bed" in the big towns of the republic. Meanwhile, I am rehearsing another company to take "Bunty" into the English provinces.

Future plans. When "Bunty" has run its course I have ready a new play dealing with Scottish farm life, which was originally produced in two acts at the Athenaeum in Glasgow. It has now been lengthened to three, and I have every confidence in its proving itself as big a draw as "Bunty." It has already been referred to as "A Scrape of the Pen."

HELEN "THE PERPETUAL BRIDE."

Reflections From "Bunty"

Most of the contented wummin are plain.

An angry wumman turns out a-clean washin'.

There's nae progress wi'out something new, and I'm not among the wummin who believe that the new thing is necessarily undesirable.

A plain lassie is often more important than she thinks. What would the warld of men wi'out her is a terrible thing to think aboot. In the hoose and in the shop she is often the only possible wumman to be found because she is born wi'out foolishness. Thatis one of the compensations of the plain wumman, but she does na' always know it.

Sometimes a plain wumman wishes she was a beautiful as a lily; then she cud take her pick of the men. It's opeenien there's no much choice among them.

Some wumman has to manage nearly every man in the world, and Hoo most unfortunate man who will nae be managed.

No wumman is so plain she canna be guid merchandise for any man that's a man. She must be an airly riser, a guid washer, and experienced plain cook and economical in her household affairs. Aye, and she must hae obedience—when 'tis convenient. Never let your man think he's no' the maister, but be sure you manage him yersel'.

Wummin make a great mistake when they think a' a man cares aboot is to see ye lookin' bonnie. It's true that he dinna' want a wumman aroond lookin' like a hen that's been out in the rain. No matter how plain ye are ye maun continue to look attractive enough for a kiss; but it's nae use if ye are a wumman of sense.

Even tho ye are plain-dressed be as plain as ye look.

I see ye've had a disappointment, but ye canna arrest a man simply because he refuses to marry you.

Oh, O, aye, she's a peely-wooly looking object.

If he did leave me on the said blotted page—surely that's nobody business but my'ain.

"If you'll put up with an auld man, I'll be an affectionate husband."

"There are few things I couldna do if men would let me—and I tried."

"If you're a Jonah and He's a Daniel, we're fairly among prophets."

"Oh, O, aye, she's a peely wooly looking object."

"You canna' wish I'd be a man more than I do."

"Bairns have a habit o' growing up to be men and weemin, and authority may take a stick to brake its ain back,"

KIT'S COLUMN

Before this sees print there may be a volte face in the matter of female suffrage. One of the jailed women might succumb and a reaction in favour of the militants might set in but as matters stand to-day, there is a reaction against the suffragettes. Persons who favoured the movement are silent, others who were tepid, shrug shoulders and go upon their indifferent way; while the antagonist element frankly rejoices. The piles of broken shop windows make their practical appeal to the business man. Sympathy is alienated from the cause. And the poor lonely women are shuddering in their cold cells. Mrs. Pankhurst—gallant and indomitable spirit!—has been reduced to sobs. There have been shrill riots in prisons. Wardresses—somehow I detest the title—have had their respectable clothing torn from their respectable bodies. I have little sympathy for these men-women who guard women prisoners. I should be intensely afraid of them were I in jail. For it takes a woman to really hurt a woman, you know, not by blows, but by means far more subtle and terrible.

Why are women like Mrs. Pankhurst, Mrs. Fletcher, Mrs. Jacobs enduring these things?

It is not, dear brother, you who refer so contemptuously to us as the short-legged race (by the way, you found that in H. G. Wells, and he got it from Schopenhauer); it is not for love of notoriety. It is not for self-aggrandisement, for money, or for fame; nor is it born altogether of mere hysteria. It is because certain British laws for and about women are distinctly rotten, and because Englishmen are absurdly obstinate, and "set in their ways" of considering woman a chattel and nothing else.

Now the whole agitation—all the row, in fact, could be settled in the proverbial fifteen minutes, and without giving the franchise to women (since the men are so averse from giving it) by correcting the said laws, by obliterating them, as the Irishman would say, and constructing other and more favourable laws. Why don't the law-makers ask the women to tabulate their grievances, and then set quietly about abating these? If all the wrongs were redressed and then women wanted the vote, and broke windows to get it, the paternal government would have a grievance in their turn, and could go after the disturbers with some justice. As far as I can make out the reason woman wants the vote is that she may bring powerful influence to bear on redressing the laws relating to property, marriage, and children. A married woman in England has no rights at all along these very personal and intimate lines. Give her her rights, and withhold the vote if you will—though, really, if I were a Prime Minister of any place but my own kitchen, I would give her anything she asked mainly because I would be afraid to do anything else.

Persiflage apart, now that everybody seems to be "down" on the suffragettes, I want to register a word of consideration and kindness in their regard. After all they are the sufferers. The women who come after them will reap the benefit of their efforts for freedom, and justice for all women and children. It can not be pleasant for Mrs. Pankhurst—a small, nervous, slight and gentle-voiced woman, you remember, to feel herself forced to take violent measures in an effort to benefit her sisters. Prison isn't beer and skittles for anyone, least of all for these women of gentle birth and upbringing. There is no dividend that I can see for them in this sort of thing. Nor is notoriety of an unenviable sort attractive to any woman. You will hear superficial people—mostly women—say, "Oh, they just do it to attract notice!" Heavens! Did anyone ever hear a more silly "argument?" My dear madam, once, when the writer was examining—frankly, to make "copy"—an old convict ship which was moored in the Liffey in "dear, dirty Dublin," she voluntarily entered the Black Hole—the cell used for solitary confinement. The great oaken door, 'steen feet thick, was shut, and a frightful sensation as of rats running up her back and over her boots instantly descended upon her. And she shrieked. Oh how that poor soul shrieked! And the blackness became red, and devils in red hot boots danced before her, and she pounded madly on the door. Hours they kept her in there! They had forgotten her, and had gone away! She would die there, but first she would go mad! Then the door opened. And they were laughing at her in the sun and wind outside. She had been immured exactly three seconds!

All the same it is to be deplored that the wife of W. W. Jacobs is evidently without a sense of humour.

The women were talking on the allowance question—"a chiel amang them takin' notes, to prent them." Said the one with the beady black eyes: "Why should there be any question of allowance at all? Why shouldn't it be a common purse between man and wife, each to take a helping when it is wanted?"

"Because, my dear," said the oldest woman who had learned the art of humour, "you would dip in and empty it the very first time you got your claws on it. A fine chance the man would have after you, Alphonsine."

"I think it's absurd even to ask the question, Do wives want allowances?" said a third. "Why, of course they want them. It is simply awful to have to go to your husband every time you want a quarter and then have him ask, 'What did you do with the dollar I gave you last week?' What right has a man to treat a woman like that? He didn't marry, it is to be hoped, to make a servant of his wife, and yet what girl could be hire at fifteen a month that would work for him as his wife does. I'd be a suffragette tomorrow and break windows, and go to jail for it if by that means I could have a law made securing a stated allowance to every wife, same to be sued for in the courts if it was not promptly paid."

"I really think the average wife makes money go farther, and do more than the average man," said the quietest little woman of them all. "I know that men say that women don't know how to spend money, but from experience and observation I can truthfully say that seven out of ten women are better economists than men."

After that everybody joined in, and you could make nothing of it till the summing up, when it was decided that the world would be better if it were run by the women, and the men put in their proper places, which, as far as this poor scribe could gather, would be turning the spit and minding the baby.

And then they played bridge for the rest of the afternoon and let the men and the dinner look after themselves.

"Will you please say something in favour of the single life for women, some day? The bachelor girl does not get a fair deal," writes one who boldly signs herself "An Old Maid."

Assuredly much has been made of the married state and motherhood for women. It has been called woman's "natural position," and many a time has it been said, bitterly enough, that the wife and mother enjoys nothing more keenly than what is called "crowing" over the old maids.

To me, there is no indignity about the term old maid. It is the "old," I think, that stings. In former days the woman who remained single until middle life was deemed to be a failure. That was in the time of the clinging-vine type of girl, the fainting, helpless, sentimental sort. To-day the very term "old maid" is obsolete. Or it is only used by women who deliberately want to sting and hurt another woman. I have heard a childless wife use it towards a woman cleverer than herself, because she thought it would hurt. And in turn I have heard mothers lord it over the childless wife. To-day all that is changed. While I believe a woman married, and a mother fills the happiest and most natural role, I cannot but feel the greatest respect and affection towards those brave women who elect to fend for themselves, to live their own lives, and make their own places in the world; who, while independent are by no means haters of men, but rather enjoy masculine society on the common ground of friendship and comradeship. There are women who are not born to be domestic, who would never be satisfied mending a man's socks or rocking the cradle. These are in no sense masculine women, for they are usually capable of the most tender affection for women friends and children. They are of that growing school of women who want real things, who work out a career and prepare for themselves a place in the artistic or professional world.

After all, marriage is a mere matter of taste for woman as for man. It is not a question of sour grapes with the many women who prefer to remain unwed. I do not think the woman lives who at one time or other did not have a proposal, or see Love entering her life. The cheerful, self-satisfied attitude of many unmarried women to-day is perfectly sincere. If the troubles of the single woman may sometimes be termed pathetic, are not those of her married sister too often tragic? It is said to be lonely, especially when the winter of life is upon one, but is any single loneliness to be compared in its capacity for paingiving, with the exquisite tortures of justified jealousy? Did ever maid, young or old, suffer as the betrayed wife suffers? Is there any loneliness in the world so lonesome as that which invades the heart of the deserted wife?

Assuredly there is much to be said for the single life. To be an old maid does not always mean that you have missed happiness. It sometimes means that you have escaped misery.

To sum up, in the natural way, that is with statistics—it has been proved that in a number of homes for aged and forlorn females throughout the country, ninety per cent. of the inmates had been wives and mothers. Is it necessary to say more?

Terrible Itching Got Little Sleep

Mr. T. Williams, Winnipeg.

Until Cuticura Remedies Cured Him

Those who have suffered long and hopelessly from torturing skin eruptions will read with interest this letter from Mr. T. Williams, 215 Pacific Ave., Winnipeg (dated Jan. 14, 1911): "The Cuticura Remedies certainly did work finely, and I am thankful that there is such a remedy, and that I tried it. About three months ago a terrible itching commenced on my body. I could not understand it. It gradually grew worse and covered a large portion of my body. There was also a slight eruption of the skin, sort of a rash. I suffered greatly with the itching and at night time I had little sleep. I tried one or two remedies which did no good, and then I tried Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Resolvent. In about ten days I was completely cured."

For more than a generation the Cuticura Remedies have afforded the speediest and most economical treatment for itching, burning, scaly and bleeding skin and scalp humours, of young and old. Sold by druggists and dealers everywhere. For a liberal sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment, with 32-p. book on the care of the skin and treatment of its affections, send a postal to the Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., sole props., 51 Columbus Ave., Boston, U. S. A.

THE FAMILY HEARTH

It isn't enough to believe that "every cloud has a silver lining," and then sit down and wait for the lining to reveal itself. We can, if we will, take the X-ray of determination, and pierce the cloud and find its bright side.

The poorest girls in the world are those not taught to work. There are thousands of them. Rich parents have petted them, and they have been taught to despise labour and to depend upon others for a living, and are perfectly helpless. The most forlorn women belong to this class. It is the duty of parents to protect their daughters from this deplorable condition.

Some men respond more slowly to the touch of a woman's hand displayed in their homes and upon their surroundings. The task may seem hopeless to the wife at times. But sooner or later the effect will show itself. There is something in every man which responds to a higher and gentler influence. Let his home be rough and he will be rough. But infuse into that home a softening touch, be it ever so simple, and the man feels it even though he may not directly notice it. He imbibes it unconsciously, and its effect is sure upon him.

While we carefully guard whatever is womanly in our daughters, let them be trained to more of fibre and firmness. Educate them to self-denial if pecuniary circumstances demand it, and not to self-indulgence. Accustom them to be of service in the household, to regard economy as praiseworthy and even heroic, and to add to their other accomplishments a practical knowledge of work and the possession of some lucrative position or industry by which they can support themselves. Such girls, when portionless, will carry to their husbands dowries in themselves.

When we learn to be polite, not only as society people, but as husbands and wives, sisters and brothers, parents and children, we shall do well. No home can be happy wherein sarcastic speech and rude disregard for one another's rights is the rule.

If you make children happy now you make them happy twenty years from now by the remembrance of it.

We fear many good housewives make a serious mistake in giving too much time to Sunday cooking. Others perhaps are equally in error by overworking on Saturday, so that they cannot properly rest or enjoy the Sabbath day. Parents and children ought to be more to each other on that day than on any other. A day of uplift and delight it ought to be made in every home.

* * *

Happiness is a perfume that one cannot shed over another without a few drops falling on one's self.

God intended that there should be one day each week as an especial day for the culture of home ties. A day when the father would be home from work, and the children home from school, and the mother have less of household care, when all could put on their best clothes, sing their sweetest songs, and enjoy a day of love. The Sabbath should never be made a day of labour in the home. The work of each home should be so arranged that it can be done almost entirely in six days and as evenly as possible in each day. "Six days shalt thou labour and do all thy work."

A home without children is like a garden and no flowers.

In seeking the good of others, we find our own.

Do you know how many books are in the Bible? Let us tell you one good way to remember, so as never to forget. First write down the word "Old Testament." Now how many letters are in the word "Old?" Three. How many in the word "Testament?" Nine. Put three and nine together, and you will have 39, the number of books in the Old Testament. Next write down the words "New Testament." There are also in "New" and "Testament" three and nine letters. Now multiply 3 by 9 and you have 27, the number of books in the New Testament. Of course by adding 39 and 27 you have 66, the number of books in the Bible. Any boy or girl who will read this over twice will never forget how many books are in the Bible.

"Dr. Miles' Nervine Completely Cured Our Little Boy of Fits."

A family can suffer no greater affliction than to have a child subject to fits or epilepsy. Many a father or mother would give their all to restore such a child to health.

"I am heartily glad to tell you of our little boy that was completely cured of fits. He commenced having them at 20 years of age and had them for four years. I tried three doctors and one specialist but all of them said he could not be cured, but Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine and Dr. Miles' Nerve and Liver Pills made a complete cure. He is now quite hearty and gay. It has been three years since he had the last spell. I shall give Dr. Miles' medicines praise wherever I go. You are at liberty to use this letter as you see fit and anyone writing to me I will gladly answer if they enclose stamp for reply."

Can You Have Your Ceilings Washed?

You cannot if they are plaster. You could, if you ceiled with PRESTON Steel Ceilings. And unless you do your home, your office, your store, has at least one surface that is a dust-trap, a harborage for germs, an absorber of grime and dampness—as every plaster ceiling is. Put a PRESTON Ceiling on over the old cracked, crumbling, dangerous plaster ceiling. It will cost but little; it will be fire-proof and damp-proof; and it will outlast the building itself. Will you look at some of our beautiful new designs? Just send for the book to-day.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON QUESTIONS

March 24, 1912.

(Copyright, 1911, by Rev. T. S. Linscott, D.D.)

Feasting and Fasting.—Mark ii., 13-22

Golden Text—I came not to call the righteous, but sinners.—Mark ii., 17.

1. Verse 13—Why is it not the duty of every Christian to be like Jesus, who made the chief work of his life the extension of the kingdom of God?

2. If the masses will not come to the church, is it or not, and why, the duty of the church to take the gospel to the masses as Jesus did?

3. Verse 4—When is it the duty of a business man to follow the example of Levi, give up his business and devote himself wholly to preaching the gospel?

4. If God calls any man to preach his gospel and he refuses, can he remain the reconciled son of God? Give your reasons.

5. Verse 15—What good or harm is done the cause of God by having banquets or other festive gatherings in connection with Christian work?

6. What, in view of this incident, can you say for or against ministers or other earnest Christians freely mixing with worldly men at social functions?

7. Verse 16—How would you characterize the criticisms of these Pharisees of Jesus for mixing with publicans and sinners?

8. Verse 17—Did eJsus mean that he loved the bad more than He did good people, and what was His attitude to both classes?

9. What was the real mission of Jesus in the world?

10. In what sense is Jesus interested in a very bad man more than in a very good man?

11. Verses 18-19—Why did the disciples of John fast and the disciples of Jesus not fast?

12. What purposes were supposed to be accomplished by fasting?

13. Why did Jesus fast when His disciples did not?

14. Verse 20—Does this verse amount to a command as well as a prediction that Christians should and would fast after Jesus' departure from the earth?

15. It was the practice of the early church to fast, especially before solemn appointments. Why was it discontinued, and would it be a good thing to recommence the practice?

16. Verses 21-22—What is the use of forms without the spirit necessary for carrying them out?

17. Why is it not possible for mere formalism to exist if the church is energised by the Holy Spirit?

DOCTORS ADVISE MEDICATED AIR

It Cures Catarrh, Colds, Bronchitis, Asthma, Throat Troubles, Hoarseness.

For diseases of the lungs, throat and nasal passages mountain air has always been deemed salutary because of its pureness and freedom from disease germs. The air of pine forests, laden with minute particles of volatile germ-destroying principles, has enjoyed an almost unexampled reputation in these diseases also.

A MARVELLOUS DISCOVERY.

After years of exhaustive study a chemist devised a means of supplying right at home a healing balsamic remedy that is even more effective in catarrhal diseases than the air of the pine woods. Of course, this remedy was copyrighted in every civilized country and was at once offered to the public under the name of "Catarrhozone." Its success has been phenomenal.

Just think of it! A healing, soothing substance capable of destroying those noxious organisms which excite and maintain disease. Capable, also, of allaying congestion and of stimulating the healing processes of nature, which are combined in that invaluable compound so well and so favorably known to the medical world as "Catarrhozone."

CATARRHOZONE CURES.

Catarrhozone is simply the concentrated qualities of the air of pine woods. If you breathe it you will derive more benefit in one hour than you could possibly get from the woods in a year.

This great advantage arises from the fact that, in addition to those healing emanations from pine, other ingredients distilled from the vegetable kingdom are so united as to give results that could not possibly be derived in the simple form in which nature supplies medicated air.

30,000 PHYSICIANS ENDORSE IT

For all diseases of the nose, ear, throat, bronchial tubes and air passages—for catarrh in every form—cure is certain with Catarrhozone, which is not a nostrum, but a high-class scientific treatment. Large size, sufficient for two months' use (guaranteed), price $1.00, smaller size 50c. at all dealers or the Catarrhozone Company, Kingston, Ont.

About 500 students at Toronto University feel the effects of the new programme, some of whom live as far west as Victoria and Vancouver.

HOW NERVE CELLS ARE BROKEN DOWN

Every man or woman who works with the brain uses up daily an enormous amount of nerve force. Millions of tiny nerve cells are broken down and must be replaced if mental and bodily efficiency is to be maintained.

If brain fag, headaches, sleeplessness or irritability set in, the evidence is plain that nature is not rebuilding as fast as work is breaking down. You cannot allow this depleting process to continue long if nervous prostration or paralysis is to be warded off.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food will help you to get the balance on the other side of the account, so that each day will add a little to your stock of health and vitality. A man whose work is largely mechanical may keep going with health below par, but the brain worker mus thave a clear head or fall behind in the race. Restore the wasted nerve cells with Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and know the joys of good health and success.

DEADLY TEMPER.

Doctors tell us that anger is a fatal enemy to health, and that every time one flies into a violent passion one's life is considerably shortened. It is a significant fact that our word "passion" is derived from a Latin root meaning "to suffer." Passion is what the angry person suffers—not the one against whom anger is directed, but the angry one himself. Violent anger, from cool and moderate resentment, hurts no one so much as him or her who gives way to it. It is usually quite futile, and makes one look ridiculous and lose dignity. Don't give way to your temper. It's dangerous—to yourself.

WAS TERRIBLY NERVOUS.

WOULD START AT THE LEAST NOISE.

Whenever there are people who are troubled with deranged nerves they will find that Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills will restore the equilibrium of these deranged centres, and bring back the shattered nervous system to a perfect condition.

Miss Emma Read, Lesley, Ont., writes:—"I have great pleasure in writing to tell you about the great benefit I have received by using your Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. About a year ago I was very badly run down and could hardly do my work. I tried different medicines but none of them did me any good. I was terribly nervous, and would start at the least noise, and even start in my sleep, which made me very weak. I used two boxes of your pills and I am now well and strong again."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50 cents per box, or 3 boxes for $1.25. For sale at all dealers, or will be mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

This Food-Tonic Quickly Restores Strength

After a siege of Pneumonia, Diphtheria, Typhoid or any other prostrating disease, there is usually a need for some other source of strength besides ordinary food.

NA-DRU-CO Tasteless Cod Liver Oil Compound

meets this need perfectly. While decidedly pleasant to the taste, without a trace of the nauseating properties of plain cod liver oil, it embodies the well-known nutritive and curative elements that have made cod liver oil famous. To these have been added Hypophosphites to build up the nerves—Extract of Wild Cherry to act on the lungs and bronchial tubes—and Extract of Malt, which, besides containing valuable nutriment itself, helps the weakened digestive organs to assimilate other foods.

For run-down children there is no better "builder-up".

DRIVING NORTH SEA WATER TO LONDON

A Proposal to Build a Great Aqueduct as a Memorial to King Edward

Many are the suggestions which have been made for a suitable memorial to the late King Edward, but among all these probably none is more original than the idea of Mr. Norris, of Erith, who is trying to convince the committee in charge of the Memorial that the most appropriate way of immortalising the memory of the "peacemaker" would be to build an aqueduct from the North Sea to London to enable us to indulge in the luxury of real sea baths at home without having to go to Brighton or Margate for a dip in the briny deep. "If the sea water," he said, "is attracted daily through celestial influences from the German Ocean to London along the muddy channel of the River Thames, why should not the same invigorating element be drawn into the Metropolis from a similar source through a clean conduit, to the great advantage of everybody?

"My idea is that a memorial to King Edward should be something large, an idea, far-reaching in its effects, and a boon that the whole British public, rich and poor alike, would benefit by. Now, London is the heart of Great Britain and the British Empire. Sooner or later nearly everyone goes into or through London. The health and vitality of London are of great importance to every British citizen, and it must be admitted that this project includes important hygienic questions. Just consider one or two points that occur to me.

"First of all it would effect a great saving in the London supply of fresh water through the application of seawater to street watering, sewage, and a large percentage of baths. Then again, for hygienic reasons salt water is superior to fresh water in the matter of sewage. I believe there are less bacteria in the ocean than anywhere. In addition to this, surely vast numbers of London residents would be daily greatly invigorated by a seawater bath. Some people say that salt water is much superior to fresh water for laying dust, but I have no practical experience of this.

"It is a big thing, no doubt, the sort of undertaking the Roman Emperors would have tackled, or M. Lesseps, who proposed, I believe, once upon a time, to let the Mediterranean in upon those portions of the African Sahara that lie below the sea level; but I cannot help believing that the return would justify a gigantic outlay.

"The project involves elaborate calculations of levels, storage, corrosion, as well as the displacements of all sorts of vested interests. I do not suppose corrosion would be much of a problem, nor air resistance. The enamelled conduits of the modern world are very different from the pipes of even a hundred years ago, and surely vertical shafts would relieve air pressure. What I feel strongly is this, that somewhere in London at this moment there is more than one man who is quite capable of giving an impartial and qualified opinion on the practicability or non-practicability of the scheme, and that is what I want. Everybody would like a salt-water bath at home or in public institutions; everybody would welcome the ocean into the Metropolis; the only question is, 'Can it be brought here?'"

MANY GENERATIONS

Curious Cases of Youthful Grandmothers and Great-grand-dames

Writing to the "Echo de Paris," a correspondent declares that his wife, who is twenty-one, has a little daughter of eighteen months. The baby's grandmother is forty-five, and this lady's mother is seventy-four and her grand-mother ninety-five. These five generations are all parish-born and lived, with the exception of the youngest, who first saw the light in the suburbs.

From Libourne, however, another correspondent hastens to inform the world that a baby has just been born to him by his young sixteen-year-old wife. The following is the antecedent family tree in the feminine line of this newcomer into the world: Grandmother, 35; great-grandmother, 53; great-great-grandmother, 71, and great-great-great-grandmother 86, while the mother of this last old lady unfortunately died at the age of 105 recently, just three months too soon to allow of her being one of the greatest of all great-great-grandmothers.

HOME SCIENCES IN ENGLAND

The sum of $500,000 has been raised privately for the endowment of a department of home science in connection with King's College for Women, University of London. The scheme was first announced when the gigantic loss of infant life due to preventable disease was under consideration. As then stated, "the object of the movement is to foster a sounder knowledge of the laws which govern health, sanitation and household economy, by insuring that in future every girl's education shall include some knowledge of the science which affects her home problems, and some practice of the domestic arts, the whole standard of home life would be raised, and trained experience substituted for instinct and tradition, which have hitherto been the chief guides for mothers."

Queen Mary has taken a keen interest in the scheme from its inception.

(Carriage and Duty Paid.

Curzon's $8.60 Suit has been ordered by thousands of their Canadian friends at $20.

All Curzon clothing is sold with a guarantee (satisfaction given or money returned) and is produced from genuine British Textiles.

That "There's comfort in the Curzon cut" is no mere idle statement, but a truth which has been attested by clients residing at all points of the habitable Globe.

Greatest attention is paid to the cutting of every individual order, and the style of production of these suits is equal to anything sold anywhere at twice and thrice the money—at least, this is what the Curzon clientele say about the Curzon $8.60 Suit.

Then there is the tailoring. As is well known, London is the hub of the tailoring craft, and Messrs. Curzon Bros., as practical tailoring experts themselves, are in a position to secure the most qualified workmen in the trade. For all these reasons Curzon tailoring is sold with the following guarantee:

SATISFACTION GUARANTEED OR MONEY RETURNED IN FULL.

Awarded 1 Silver and 4 Gold Medals for Tailoring Excellence.

Our methods appeal to the thoughtful man: that is perhaps why we number among our clientele such well-known men as the following:—Rev. R. J. Campbell, Hon. G. E. A NEW PERFUME

A Perfect Substitute for the Precious Attar of Roses.

Mr. Peter M. Short, an English chemist, has made an invention which ought to gladden the heart of John D. Rockfeller, for he has succeeded in manufacturing from evil-smelling petroleum an essence which is said to be a perfect substitute for the most precious of all perfumes, attar of roses, the wholesale value of which is about three cents a drop. Mr. Short admits that he made his discovery quite accidentally. He has for several years past been carrying out experiments with liquid air. One of these experiments was to produce a candle from paraffin by freezing it. No known natural temperature will freeze paraffin. But at a temperature approximately 70 degrees below zero, which can easily be obtained by means of liquid air, paraffin becomes solid. Mr. Short found that in his experiments, certain free agents remained floating at the top. These he proceeded to investigate, and after four years of constant experiments, he produced this synthetic product, which imitates attar of roses. He is now working at other synthetic products from the paraffin group, and has already got a violet perfume. As far as the odor is concerned, it is a perfect resemblance, but the alkalis in the essence turn cream pink, and as it is necessary that the supply be white, the commercial success of this scent is not yet assured.

PROTECTING THE GRAVEYARD

Recreation Must Cease in an Irish Burial Ground.

A legal decision has been given in Ireland, in an action referring to a graveyard that was turned into a recreation ground, where people used to "walk, saunter and lounge, play cards on tombstones, and otherwise amuse themselves, even to the extent of dancing to the music of an accordeon." The Representative Church Body asked for an injunction against James Hayes and fifteen other residents of Dungarvan, to restrain them from trespassing upon the burial ground and premises adjacent to the Church of Ireland Parish Church of St. Mary's, Dungarvan. The defendants admitted the acts complained of, and maintained the right of the inhabitants of Dungarvan to use certain portions of the burial ground as a place of recreation.

In the course of an elaborate judgment, which took three hours t odeliver, the Master of the Rolls held that the privilege had been permissive, and was not a right. The churchyard had been dedicated, and still remained dedicated, to the service of God, and not to the recreation of men.

An injunction was accordingly granted. The church dates back to Henry VIII.

$3.50 Recipe Free, For Weak Kidneys

Relieves Urinary and Kidney Troubles, Backache, Straining, Swelling, Etc.

Stops Pain in the Bladder, Kidneys and Back

Wouldn't it be nice within a week or so to begin to say goodbye forever to the scalding, dribbling, straining, or too frequent passage of urine; the forehead and the back-of-the-head aches; the stitches and pains in the back; the growing muscle weakness; spots before the eyes; yellow skin; sluggish bowels; swollen eyelids; leg cramps; unnatural short breath; sleeplessness and the despondency?

I have a recipe for these troubles that you can depend on, and if you want to make a quick recovery, you ought to write and get a copy of it. Many a doctor would charge you $3.50 just for writing this prescription, but I have it and will be glad to send it to you entirely free. Just drop me a line like this: Dr. A. E. Robinson, K1810 Luck Building, Detroit Mich., and I will send it by return mail in a plain envelope. As you will see when you get it, this recipe contains only pure, harmless remedies, but it has great healing and pain-conquering power.

It will quickly show its power once you use it, so I think you had better see what it is without delay. I will send you a copy free—you can use it and cure yourself at home

"THE FINEST COUNTRY"

A Globe Trotter, the "Prince of Tramps," Favors Australia

Having completed a walking tour of 34,700 miles to win a wager of $25,000, Captain H. M. Seaton, who styles himself the "Prince of Tramps," has arrived at Penzance. He undertook the task to walk around the world because he was told it was impossible and that the nine previous attempts had failed. The conditions were that the captain should walk 35,000 miles in four years, cross every country, and earn a good living by lecturing. Backed by a stout heart and a good constitution, Captain Seaton set out on his journey from New York on April 9th, 1908. According to a statement made by him to a press representative he has had some perilous times, especially in Tibet. Twice he tried to reach Lhassa, but failed. On one occasion he was bound hand and foot and tortured on the chest and legs with red hot irons. He escaped by chewing through the thongs which bound him. Terrible as these experiences were, he suffered greater pangs from hunger and thirst in his journey over the Australian continent, where, for hundreds of miles, he did not meet with a human being. Despite these experiences, Captain Seaton says Australia is the finest country he has ever struck. On my way back, late in the after-

GRAPHIC STORY OF BRUTALITY

A London Correspondent's Story of What he Saw on the Italian-Turko War in and Around Tripoli

A graphic account of the Italian Turko conflict was given by a staff photographer for the Daily Mirror, who had returned from Tripoli. He was one of the first eye witnesses of the massacre that aroused the world to a realization of the seriousness of a conflict that was at first regarded in the light of an opera bouffe. The photographer says:

"It is a somewhat curious fact that I drove to the front in a cab, yet it is literally true, as the cab took me to the very trenches where the Italian soldiers were repulsing the Arab attack.

"The driver was an Arab, and he could have given points to a London cabby. His legal fare was $1.25. He demanded $5. He accepted $1.50.

"I was admitted by ticket. Yes, actually as though I were attending a football match. At the trench I presented my permit, signed by General Caneva, to the commanding officer. Then I was allowed anywhere.

"After getting away from where the troops were attacked in the rear, near Shara Shlaf, I crawled along through the trenches, and made my way around under cover of the plantations in company with a detachment of the Italian troops until I was able to reach a deserted Turkish house, on the southern limits of the line of outposts, and there I had to stay from about noon, when I reached it, until late in the afternoon.

"I had nothing to eat.

"The house had an enormous courtyard of the customary type and all the afternoon prisoners were being brought in in batches.

"There was no attempt made at inquiring into individual cases, nothing approaching a trial or court-martial.

"After some little time an officer arrived, and from that time on the soldiers who had caught prisoners marched them out to the trenches and shot them in batches as fast as they were brought in.

"They were splendidly indifferent to their fate, the majority of them maintaining a stolid silence, and making no attempt to protect or resist.

"Whole basketfuls of arms were brought in, an extraordinary conglomeration. British bayonets, French bayonets, old horse-pistols, flint-locks, bluderbusses, the majority of them utterly useless.

"They had been taken from the prisoners, and had evidently been served out to the Arabs by the Turks, more to make a show than for any practical use they could possibly be.

"Among the prisoners were several batches who protested vigorously that they were innocent of having taken part in the hostilities against the Italians.

"They had been caught in the plantations in from which the rear attack had come; but they maintained that they had been gathering dates, and in confirmation of this drew out handfuls of dates from the pockets of their voluminous robes.

"The only answer they received was to be clouted with the butts of rifles by their captors. They were marched off like the rest and shot in the back, just outside the house.

"I went out at the back some little distance from the house as a large gang of them—forty or more—were being led out to their death.

"Most of these unlike the fighting men who had been taken red-handed under arms, were lamenting their fate bitterly, and suddenly the whole group broke and fled in different directions, shrieking and yelling.

"A fusillade promptly followed, their escort firing on them as they ran. Several of them fell wounded.

"I saw scores of women and children brought into the house, but I never saw one of them leave again. I can only imagine what happened.

"There were also any number of poor old infirm men and women cripples driven in hobbling on sticks or umbrellas.

"They were scarcely able to drag one leg after the other. Many of them were so infirm they could scarcely walk at all but they were constantly prodded and butted along by their escorts, who used the butts of their rifles and the points of their bayonets to hasten them on.

"I saw dozens of cases of this kind in one instance as a very old prisoner was being brought in, a mounted officer cantered up alongside him, and began slashing at him an belaboring him with a kind of sjambok.

"I ran forward, and the moment the officer saw me he stopped and dropped back again, looking very sheepish.

"There is no doubt the officers did not like correspondents to see what was going on. They were most anxious to prevent having any outside witness.

"I was constantly challenged and stopped by officers who were anxious to turn me back when I was passing along the trenches, but I had a pass signed by General Caneva himself, and they had to recognise it.

"I was, however, the only correspondent who was allowed to get through the lines.

noon, I told some of the officers in the trenches of the disgraceful carnage and other horrid sights I had witnessed at that house. The troops all round received the news with delight.

"There is one thing I must say for the Italian soldiers. They are incredibly magnificent under fire. I saw some fine sights and steady coolness in the South African campaign, but everything has been eclipsed by what I saw in Tripoli.

EDUCATED HORSES

They Understood Two Languages and Can Juggle With Figures

"Clever Hans," the German calculating horse, and "Don," the talking dog have two promising successors in Elberfeld, Central Prussia, in the form of a pair of "thinking horses," Arabian by birth, and named Zariff and Muhamed. They are the property and "pupils" of a teacher named Karl Krall. Certain German journalists who have examined Zariff and Mu named declare that the animals can read and understand both German and French, when spoken or written, and can perform prodigous feats in arithmetic. Answers to questions in subtraction, addition, multiplication and division are stamped out by their forefeet, with accuracy and quickness.

WILL GIVE $500 TO SICK OF PETERBOROUGH AND VICINITY

Famous Scientist Who Originated the Now Wonderful "Home Treatment" Offers $1.00 Package Free to Sick and Ailing

In order that every reader of The Examiner who needs treatment may have an opportunity to test this celebrated medicine, the now famous scientist has come to the front with an offer to give absolutely free a full size $1.00 package to five hundred persons to prove the wonderful claims which have been made for it. In making this offer the scientist said: "I know that there are many people who have been suffering for years with some chronic disease and many of them have spent large sums of money seeking a cure. I know that these people hesitate about investing money in medicine because they have despaired of ever getting well. Thousands have told me that story and many thousands of the same people have told me afterwards that my treatment had cured them after doctors and everything else had failed. I want to show these despairing people that all the newspaper talk about my treatment is absolutely true. I want to prove to a limited number—no matter what the disease, no matter how long they may have suffered, no matter how blue and discouraged—that my treatment really and actually does accomplish the wonderful results that have been reported."

People who suffer from Rheumatism, Kidney Trouble, Stomach Trouble, Liver or Bowel Disorders, Catarrh, Bronchitis, Asthma, Chronic Coughs, Weak Lungs, Lumbago, Piles, Urinary Disorders, Female Weaknesses of any kind, the weak, worn out, broken-down and despondent will be delighted at the effect of a few doses. This wonderful treatment creates a fine appetite and helps the digestive organs to carry on their functions as they should. It strengthens the kidneys, too, and drives rheumatism poisons from the blood as if by magic. That is why people who try it become so enthusiastic.

Any reader of The Examiner who will try this extraordinary medicine that has created so much excitement by its cures can obtain absolutely free a full $1.00 treatment by simply filling in the coupon below or writing a letter describing their case in their own words, if they prefer, and mailing it to-day to James W. Kidd, Toronto, Canada. No money need be sent and no charge of any kind will be made.

As this offer is limited, you should write at once, in order to be sure to receive your free treatment.

NO WONDER HE LAUGHED

The minister cleared his throat, as the small child was brought forward to be baptized.

"Beloved hearers," he said, "no one can foretell the future of this tiny mortal. He may rise to the highest points of fame. He may become a great scientist, a great astronomer, or even become the Prime Minister of England."

There was a loud snicker from one of his hearers at this juncture.

"Ah, friend," said the minister, "you do wrong to scoff. Again I say the child may become Prime Minister of England. Now, what is to be the name of this child?"

"Mary Ann," said the mother meekly.

A MAN WITH PILES CANNOT WORK

The depressing, undermining influence of piles seems to affect mind as well as body until the sufferer from this annoying ailment feels miserable and utterly cast down.

The itching, stinging sensations which accompany piles are bad enough. The search for cure and thought of a surgical operation do not tend to cheer one up. Many get discouraged and allow their futures to be ruined by this wretched ailment.

It is so easy to relieve piles by the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment that it seems strange that anyone should neglect to give this treatment a thorough trial. If you could only read some of the letters from cured ones who had suffered ten, twenty or thirty years you would no longer doubt the effectiveness of Dr. Chase's Ointment in the relief and cure of piles.

RADWAY'S READY RELIEF

RHEUMATISM, SCIATICA

Strong Testimony of Emigrant Commissioner the Hon. George Starr, as to the Power of Radway's Ready Relief in a Case of Sciatic Rheumatism.

Van Nest Place, New York.

Dr. Radway—With me your Ready Relief has worked wonders. For the last three years I have had frequent and severe attacks, sometimes extending from hinter regions to my ankles, and at times to both lower limbs. During the times I have been afflicted I have tried almost all the remedies recommended by wise men and fools, hoping to find relief, but all proved to be failures. I have tried various kinds of baths, mashphaltics, external application of liniments too numerous to mention, and prescriptions of the most eminent phy sicians, all of which failed to give me relief.

Last September, at the request of a friend (who had been afflicted as myself), I was induced to try your remedy. I was then suffering fearfully with one of my old turns. To my surprise and delight the first application gave me ease, after bathing and rubbing the parts affected, having the limbs in a warm glow created by the Ready Relief. In a short time the pain passed entirely away.

Although I have since had occasional return, approaching a change of weather, I know how to cure myself and feel quite master of the situation. Radway's Ready Relief is my friend. I never travel without a bottle in my valise. Yours truly,

GEORGE STARR.

WANTS MORE MONEY.

Col. Hughes Would Have Drill Halls In All Towns.

Toronto, March 23.—Hon. Sam Hughes and Sir Frederick Borden, sat side by side at the dinner tendered to the new Minister of Militia by the officers of the Toronto Garrison in the National Club last night. Col. Hughes gave reasons for his seemingly advanced views on the necessity of a more adequate system of defence, and Sir Frederick Borden endorsed his successor and hoped that he would accomplish everything in his progressive program, which would be to the benefit of the people of the Dominion. Brig.-Gen. Cotton presided and told the Minister what Toronto wanted, with the result that all the city's needs will be "seriously considered," in the words of the guest of honor himself.

Col. Hughes ridiculed the idea that the militia was a burden on the country. Switzerland spends many times more on her militia than Canada does. Each municipality paid the cost of maintenance, instead of it being entirely borne by the Federal Government, as in Canada.

Col. Hughes thought that the cost of the militia should be borne by each municipality. In that case it would be hardly felt. At present it was said that it is a burden on the Federal Government because of it being all in one lump sum. When the people saw the terrible amount, they said: "My, see how the farmers are taxed." It was the way so-called politicians had to sway sentiment in this matter, but he considered the farmers intelligent, and they knew the benefits of an adequate system of defence.

He advocated drilling in the schools for the betterment and development of children. People said there was little use spending money on the militia, but advocated more railways, etc. All through the west, in every small town, were custom houses which were needless. He thought that the Government should build drill sheds, they were more important. The boy scouts and school children could in these places put on entertainments, and altogether they would be greatly of service to the country. "I am going to boom these things for all they are worth, too," he declared.

Sir Frederick Borden said it augured well for the future of the militia when it was possible to have the Minister, who presided for fifteen years, and the Minister who now presided, and whose length of office he couldn't at the time determine, in attendance. He said Col. Hughes had his entire endorsation as Minister of Militia.

"I do not believe in throwing away money but I do believe that Col. Sam Hughes should be given all the money necessary to perfect the military system," he said. "My friend, the new Minister, need not hesitate to ask, but to demand, a fair share for his undertaking. I did something in my time, but there is much more to be done. When I went into office the military force was practically an unorganised mob; when I went out it was a pretty good system."

Federal Square For Toronto.

Ottawa, March 23.—It is understood that a recommendation has been forwarded to council for a large appropriation in the supplementary estimates for beginning work this year on the scheme for the proposed federal square in Toronto, west of the City Hall, as urged upon the Government some days ago by Mayor Geary and the Toronto members.

The Minister of Public Works is personally very much in favor of the proposal for a comprehensive scheme of new federal buildings in Toronto to meet the needs of the second largest city in Canada. Tentative plans for the proposed block are now under consideration, and a total expenditure of about two and a half millions is contemplated.

In view of the Toronto representation in the Cabinet and in the Commons it is practically certain that the Government will treat the "Queen City" generously, and it is expected that the proposal for the federal square will be endorsed by the Cabinet and the recommendation of the Minister of Public Works concurred in.

Jap Antarctic Expedition Returns.

Wellington, N.Z., March 23.—The Japanese Antarctic expedition returned here to-day. They report having seen nothing of the British polar expedition of Capt. R. F. Scott.

The Japanese reported all on board well. They were engaged chiefly in coastal exploration on King Edward Land.

Supplied Liquor to "Indian Lister."

Chatham, March 23- Herbert Lewis, a laborer, who came here recently from St. Thomas, was fined $29 in all by Magistrate Stanworth yesterday for supplying liquor to a crippled Indian lister named Charles Henry. Lewis could not pay his fine, so he goes to jail for thirty days at hard labor.

Thomas MacKenzie, Minister of Agriculture and Commerce, was yesterday elected Prime Minister of New Zealand by 72 votes to 5.

The feeling in favor of a strike among the miners of Bohemia, which has been smouldering for some time, is spreading considerably.

Mrs. Jacob Gould, aged child, aged over, residing near Vanessa, Ont., were burned to death in a fire which destroyed their residence yesterday morning.

While walking on the tracks of the street railway on Gerrard street, Toronto, Edward Maine, 28 Charles street, was struck by a car and had his head, arms and back injured.

The bill to create a public service commission, which is one of the most important pieces of legislation in the history of Manitoba, received its second reading in the Legislature yesterday.

John Moore, a Montreal traveling man, who escaped from the Regina Isolation Hospital suffering from smallpox and boarded a train for the west, was captured at Maple Creek, Sask., and returned.

Negotiations between the 200,000 miners in the bituminous coal fields of Western Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois, and the operators for an adjustment of wage differences, were postponed again.

The eleven-year-old son of Thomas W. Timms, Kingston's foreman of streets, is in a serious condition as the result of a playful boxing match with a school companion. His companion gave him a blow which affected his heart.

Coal Strike Checks Immigration.

Montreal, March 23.—One phase of the British coal strike and of the general labor troubles in Great Britain is the effect which they will have upon the immigration to Canada.

Mr. Southhall of the Canadian Northern's immigration department, is of the opinion that the result will be a decrease rather than an increase of the normal amount of immigration from the old country.

Mr. Southhall has just returned from a trip to the old country. He says that conditions in the provincial towns of England at present are appalling. "The coal strike was just starting when I sailed, but there were hundreds of thousands of people starving before that. What things are now is unimaginable," said he.

"This discontent, it might be at first supposed, would cause many to leave the country, but, as a matter of fact it will have rather an opposite effect.

"The people have not the means of getting away from the misery which surrounds them. The middle classes are in sympathy with the strikers, but the aristocracie are adamant against demands for a living wage."

Vickert Case Finished.

Woodstock, March 23.—After a three-day session in which sixteen witnesses were heard, the enquiry into the charge of offensive partisanship on the part of Fred. Vickert, postmaster at the village of Princeton, came to a close last night, and in the course of a few days Commissioner McDonald will report to the Postmaster-General.

James G. Wallace, K.C., of Woodstock, and Mr. Fred. Vickert were the only witnesses called yesterday. Mr. Wallace, who was the Conservative candidate in the last federal election, was brought down to dispute the statement made by Mr. Vickert in the local press that he (Wallace) had invited the postmaster to speak at the Conservative meeting held in the village of Princeton. Mr. Wallace denied this most emphatically.

Mr. Wallace admitted that he had laid the charge of offensive partisonship against Mr. Vickert.

Mr. Vickert repeated that on the afternoon of the day of the Wallace meeting in Princeton Mr. Wallace asked him to speak at the meeting

A Simple Antidote to Poison.

It is a valuable thing to understand thoroughly what simple antidote to take if one is so unlucky as to swallow poison of any kind. Sweet oil is to be found in nearly every house, however humble, and half a pint of it taken immediately is an effectual antidote to almost all poisons. Any one with a strong constitution should take a larger quantity of this simple remedy.—London Family Herald.

Many Victims of Wreck.

Fortville, Ind., March 23.—Two persons were killed and more than thirty injured, many seriously, last night, when two crowded cars on the Indiana Union Traction Co.'s lines collided just west of this place.

The cars were running only about twenty miles an hour, but the vestibules of both were jammed, crushing the life out of both motormen. Short circuits of heavily charged wires and overturned heaters set fire to the wreckage. The least injured turned rescuers and carried from the burning cars those who were unable to help themselves.

While some gave attention to the safety of the injured men and women, others, stifled with the odor of seared flesh, attempted to reach the bodies. It was almost impossible to search the smoking compartments and some fear is held that other persons may have been burned to death.

Officials of the traction line say they cannot account for the accident as it happened on a straight track.

To Fight Drainage Canal.

Montreal, March 23.—On Monday next the Canadian representatives will leave for Washington to meet the American Secretary of War to present objections to the proposed diversion of great lake waters by the Chicago drainage canal, which it is proposed to increase to a diversion of 10,000 cubic feet per second.

A special hearing of these objections from Canada will be held March 27.

A delegation of Chicago representatives will be present at the hearing and will reply to the objections of the Canadian representatives.

Coal Shortage Hits Brockville.

Brockville March 23.—A shortage of chestnut coal prevails in town and dealers are at their wits' end to keep the trade supplied. During the past few days only portions of ton orders could be delivered.

ECZEMA

Mrs. Ballard Potter, Salt Springs, Prospect, Nova Scotia, Writes:

"ECZEMA CAN BE CURED TO STAY, and when I say cured I mean just what I mean—CURED, and not merely patched up for awhile, to return worse than before. So sure I am that Dr. Chase's Ointment will positively cure every case of any kind of itching skin disease that I am willing to guarantee a cure in every case or refund the money. I suffered for years with Eczema on my hands and limbs and handling in the meantime a quantity of a million cases of this dreadful disease. Now, I do not care what all you have read, nor how many doctors have told you that your case was incurable—all I ask is a chance to show you that I know what I am talking about. If you will write me TO-DAY I will send you a FREE TRIAL of my mild, soothing, guaranteed cure that will convince you more in a day than I or anyone else could in a month's time. If you are discouraged and discouraged, I dare you to give me a chance to prove my claims. By writing me to-day you will enjoy more real comfort than you have ever had in this world. Address me right here to-day and you will see I am telling you no untruth.

New It's the Sugar Trust.

New York, March 23.—After two days of testimony, the Government rested its case yesterday in the trial of John E. Parsons, Washington B. Thomas and other directors of the American Sugar Refining Co. for criminal violation of the Sherman law. This will allow the defence to begin its testimony on Monday, though it was announced by the defendants' attorneys that their first move would be to ask for a dismissal of the indictments.

Urge Old-Age Pensions.

Ottawa, March 23—The special committee on old-age pensions met yesterday and heard a number of witnesses, all favoring the adoption of such a scheme. J. J. Joy of the Longshoremen's Union, Halifax, and J. J. Kelso, superintendent of neglected children in Ontario, believed it would tend to discourage slums and do away with poor houses, while improving social conditions in many ways. W. A. Sherwood of Toronto explained the system prevailing in New Zealand. W. McCenachie of Kingston and John Keane, superintendent of charities of Ottawa gave evidence on a similar line.

No Conference Yet.

Montreal, March 23.—The delegates of the Grand Trunk conductors and trainmen are still in the city discussing the revised rates of pay which are to go into effect on April 1 for branch lines men. So far, no conference has been held with the management of the company, and the lengthy discussions which are taking place among the delegates would indicate that there is considerable difference of opinion among them as to what course to adopt now that it has been intimated to them that the Labor Department will not appoint a conciliation board to enquire into the proposed reductions.

MARKET REVIEW.

Liverpool Wheat Futures Close Lower, Chicago Higher—Live Stock —Latest Quotations.

CHICAGO, March 23.—Complaints of extensive crop damage in late seeded soft winter wheat east of the Missouri River rallied the market to-day from the effects of bearish cables. The close was firm with prices varying from ⅛c to ⅜c off to ⅛c advance. Corn scored a net gain of ⅛c to ⅜c, and oats a rise of ⅛c to ⅜c. May provisions finished within a trifle either way from last night.

Liverpool wheat closed ½d to ⅝d lower than yesterday, and corn ½d to ⅝d lower. Paris wheat closed ½ higher to ½c lower, Antwerp ½c higher, Berlin unchanged and Budapest is lower.

500 Talesmen For Canadian's Trial.

New York, March 23.—A panel of 500 talesmen — the largest ever summoned for a trial here—has been called for the trial of Charles Hasen Hyde, a native of Truro, N.S., former city chamberlain, who is accused of taking bribes and favoring certain banks in making city deposits. In the Molineux and Thaw murder cases only about half that number were needed.

The trial is set for April 1. District Attorney Whitman yesterday asked Justice Seabury to call this extraordinary large panel. Hyde's attorneys made no objection.

Beaver Consolidated

At a meeting of the directors in Beaver Consolidated, held a few days ago, a three per cent. dividend was declared and will be payable April 30th, to stockholders of record on March 29th.

The annual meeting of this company will be held on Saturday, April 13th, and it is anticipated the report soon to be issued will show a material strengthening of Treasury resources, together with more high-grade ore in sight, in spite of the heavy output during the past year, than ever before.

From Cobalt, we are advised, the new mill at this mine is now running smoothly and the recovery of silver is exceeding the expectations of the management. With this addition to the mining equipment, the earning capacity of this company is greatly increased and at prevailing prices we strongly advise the

IMMEDIATE PURCHASE OF BEAVER CONSOLIDATED

We anticipate at least 12 per cent. will be distributed among the stockholders in Beaver Consolidated during the current year. At prevailing market quotations this will mean a return of 25 per cent. on the investment, and with high-grade ore in sight at every level, an immense tonnage of low-grade ore blocked out and awaiting treatment at the mill, we would not be surprised if an extra bonus would be distributed before the end of the company's fiscal year.

Increased earnings mean a continuance of dividend disbursements with an occasional bonus, and to all who desire a practically safe investment we recommend Beaver Consolidated.

Do not overlook this important fact—not one-quarter of this company's total acreage has as yet been mined and from the deepest levels the ore is growing richer. To all who desire further information on this excellent security we will gladly furnish same on request. In the meantime, we advise the immediate purchase of this stock, in which a sharp advance is practically certain and warranted from a mining standpoint.

OUR WEEKLY MARKET LETTER, issued every Thursday, contains the most authentic and latest developments at the leading mines of Cobalt and Porcupine. No investor can afford to be without the valuable information contained therein. WRITE FOR IT. As a guide in making investments our Market Letter, according to successful operators, is acknowledged to be the best issued and its contents several days in advance of the leading newspapers.

ORDERS IN BEAVER CONSOLIDATED EXECUTED FOR CASH OR ON MARGIN. CERTIFICATES OF STOCK IN OTHER COMPANIES WILL BE ACCEPTED FOR COLLATERAL ON THE MARGINAL PURCHASE OF THIS STOCK WHEN PROPERLY ENDORSED.

The best places should be cut into squares and carefully hemstitched. These squares do excellently to spread over the cloth where the meat dish stands. A carver is very apt to soil the part round the dish, and this plan gives a clean cloth a longer lease of life.

A Family Necessity

Is a remedy capable of affording immediate relief to the hundred and one ailments that constantly arise. It may be a cold, perhaps toothache, neuralgia, pain in the back—use Polson's Nerviline, it's penetrating, pain-subduing, and powerful.

NERVILINE

is at least five times stronger than ordinary remedies and its worth in any household can't be overestimated. For man or beast, Nerviline is a panacea for all pain.

"Was It Is Cost Two Dollars
A bottle, would I be without Polson's Nerviline," write J. A. Ruth, a farmer living near Trenton, Ont. "Nerviline is the best household liniment I know. We use it for stomach troubles, indigestion, headache, and Summer complaint. I know of nothing better to take in hot water to break up a cold, or to rub on for rheumatism or neuralgia." Every farmer should keep a few bottles of Nerviline handy, and have smaller doctor bills.

Nerviline is a protection and safeguard against the pains and aches of the entire family, and cures constipation, neuralgia, toothache, etc. It costs 25c a large bottle.

G.T.R. Heads Refuse to Say Anything Until Their Company Has Had a Conference With Government

MAKE NO STATEMENT

Special to The Examiner:

MONTREAL, QUE., MARCH 23. — "We can say nothing until after our conference with the Government." This was the only statement obtainable at the Grand Trunk offices this morning in regard to the situation concerning the reinstatements of employees who lost their positions at the time of the strike.

No official would consent to make any comment whatever regarding the scathing criticism of the company made by Hon. Mr. Crothers, Minister of Labour in the House, and the statement that the company would have to reinstate the men before its bill, providing for increased subsidies would be passed.

Chas. M. Hayes, the president of the company, is in Europe.

Vice President Kelly, who has charge of the transportation problems has been summoned to Ottawa and will meet Mr. Borden and his Ministers early next week.

It is likely that the Company will oppose Mr. Crothers proposals, taking the stand that all of the strikers who were deserving of reinstatement have been taken back by the company.

There has been no conference yet between the company and employees about the anticipated cut in salaries.

DON'T PULL OUT THE GRAY HAIRS

A Few Applications of a Simple Remedy Will Bring Back the Natural Colour

"Pull out one gray hair and a dozen will take its place" is an old saying, which is, to a great extent, true, if no steps are taken to stop the cause. When gray hairs appear it is a sign that Nature needs assistance. It is Nature's call for help. Gray hair, dull, lifeless hair, or hair that is falling out, is not necessarily a sign of advancing age, for there are thousands of elderly people with perfect heads of hair without a single streak of gray.

When gray hairs come, or when the hair seems to be lifeless or dead, some good, reliable hair-restoring treatment should be resorted to at once. Specialists say that one of the best preparations to use is the old-fashioned "sage tea" which our grandparents used. The best preparation of this kind is Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy, a preparation of domestic sage and sulphur, scientifically compounded with later discovered hair tonics and stimulants, the whole mixture being carefully balanced and tested by experts.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur is clean and wholesome and perfectly harmless. It refreshes dry, parched hair, removes dandruff and gradually restores faded or gray hair to its natural colour.

Don't delay another minute. Start using Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur at once and see what a difference a few days' treatment will make in your hair.

This preparation is offered to the public at fifty cents a bottle, and is recommended and sold by all druggists. Special agent, Warne Drug Co.

VOTES FOR WOMEN IN CHINA NOW

We western nations have always been in the habit of regarding China, that land of the far east, as many centuries behind us in civilization, progress and education. Yet to-day, (March 22) comes the news, that in the new Chinese Republic, women have been granted the right to vote, and to sit in Parliament, on exactly the same terms as men, thus putting civilised nations to shame by establishing a true democracy, that is, a government of the people, by the people, not a government of the people by the male half only, while the other half remains unenfranchised.

The Chinese evidently have sufficient education and intelligence to realise that "people" means men and women, and not men only; and that a truly representative parliament should consist of representatives of both sexes, elected by the votes of both sexes. And the qualification required of Chinese voters is rightly, an educational one, namely, they must be able to read and write. A contrast indeed to conditions in our civilised and progressive land where any illiterate immigrant, unable even to sign his name, is allowed to exercise the franchise, whilst our educated and intelligent women are not fit to have a share in the government of their country. The ideas of the Chinese are advanced, indeed, compared with our archaic notions of representative government.

PRESENTATION OF ATHLETIC TROPHIES

Interesting Event Took place at the Y.M.C.A. Last Evening—S. Canniff Wins Howden Trophy Two Consecutive Years

OTHER EVENTS COMPETED

A pleasing feature in connection with the carnival at the Y.M.C.A. last evening was the presentation of prizes, consisting of the Howden Trophy, Eastwood Trophy, Huycke Cup, Park Cup and Stratton Cup and medals. These prizes are indicative of athletic prowess and are competed for annually. The winner of the Howden Cup and medal given for the all-round athletic championship of the county was Mr. S. Canniff, a performance which he duplicated last year. He also led in the first round of the competition for the Stratton Cup. Second and third competitors were H. Wood and J. Mahoney, respectively. Competition for this trophy is confined to Y. members only, and is played off at different periods throughout the year. The Eastwood Cup went to J. B. Manu. O. Cavanagh secured first place in the competition for the Huycke trophy and Gurnas Phillips was the successful aspirant for the Peck trophy.

WILL OF HON. EDWARD BLAKE

Examiner Special:

TORONTO, MARCH 23.— The will of the late Hon. Edward Blake, the Canadian and British statesman, admitted to probate this morning, disposes of an estate of two hundred and ninety-nine thousand dollars, largely to Mrs. Blake, the widow, and his children and grandchildren and favourite servants. It was expected there would be a big legacy for the Home Rule cause, but it was not mentioned. The estate is largely realty and stocks.

BURIED AFTER FIFTEEN YEARS

Special to The Examiner.

WASHINGTON, MARCH 23.—With all the pomp and glory that the nation can pay to heroes of war, the bodies of the last unidentified dead from the blowing up of the battleship Maine in Havana Harbour fifteen years ago, were laid away in Arlington cemetery, Virginia, to-day. President Taft attended.

WHEN BLOOD IS POISON

The blood must be filtered, otherwise you are poisoned. If the kidneys fail the liver is overworked, and becomes torpid. By using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills you get both these filtering organs working right, and also secure healthful action of the bowels. For this reason these pills are an ideal family medicine. They cure biliousness, constipation, chronic indigestion and kidney disease.

EGGS DOWN TO 18 CENTS

Have Lost Their Strong Market Position and Were Plentiful To-day

BUTTER WAS FIRM

Eggs went a-begging at the market this morning at prices that were very favourable to buyers. Twenty-six and twenty-seven cents a dozen were the opening quotations, but they began coming so rapidly that prices dropped to 20c. and then to 20c. and they were finally selling around 19 and 18 cents.

On the other hand, butter was scarce and held firmly. The price hovered all morning from 32 cents to 35 cents and closed at the latter figure with practically none offering.

Poultry was as scarce as prehistoric birds, and the few that were shown, some of them at any rate, appeared to be almost equally ancient.

On the whole, the market was fairly satisfactory, but was not marked by any special features, with the exception of eggs. The offerings of potatoes were fairly liberal and while there were hold outs asking $2.00, there were several farmers who accepted $1.85 for stocks that looked as good, if not better, than those that were quoted at the higher figure.

Plenty of Eggs.

At eleven o'clock the benches presented basket after basket of eggs, broken here and there with a few pounds of butter. At that hour the butter supply was all but exhausted but the farmers and their wives were standing around with plenty of eggs and answering in chorus 20 cents, and according to the laws of supply and demand they shouldn't have been more than 18 cents. Grocers, who claim that the farmers should be made quote retail and not wholesale prices, would scarcely be pleased with this morning's quotations. They claim that the farmers are in a position to ask prices which grocers have to pay for their supplies and when customers claim that they should pay only what farmers are asking, it is an injustice to them. Naturally, the farmer is in a position to ask any price he likes, but the grocer who has to purchase butter and eggs from first hands does not welcome customers who quote the wholesale of farmer's price to him and demand that he charge the same price as the farmers ask.

A wholesale buyer stated to-day that eggs were worth about 18 cents and at that price fresh American eggs were being brought into Canada and were selling in the larger cities. To-day's prices were:

Butter—32 to 35c. per lb.
Eggs—19c. to 22c. per doz.
Chickens—each 50 to 75c.
Potatoes—$1.65 to $2.00 per bag.
Pork—Fronts 11c., hinds 12c.
Beef—Fronts 8c., hinds 9c.
Veal—Fronts 10c., hinds 12 1-2c.
Mutton—Fronts 11c., hinds 12 1-2c.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY IN CAMPBELLFORD

Campbellford's observance of the 17th of Old Ireland was marked by much enthusiasm. On Sunday the special St. Patrick's Day oration was delivered by Rev. P. J. Finnegan, O.M.I. of Ottawa University. The social side of the festival was honoured by a lecture and concert on Thursday evening. Rev. F. J. O'Sullivan of Port Hope, was the speaker of the evening, and his address on "Ireland's Last King and Ireland's Last Saint" was a notable deliverance. In a scholarly and interesting manner he sketched the closing years of Ireland's independence, when the Emerald Gem of the Western Sea was passing to the land of the stranger. He grouped his remarks about the two outstanding figures of the time—King Roderick O'Connor and St. Lawrence O'Toole. Short addresses were also made by Rev. Fr. O'Brien, Lakefield; Rev. Fr. Meagher, Rev. Fr. Whibbs, and the chairman, Rev. Fr. Casey. The concert was in every respect worthy of the occasion, all the numbers being distinctively Irish and exceedingly well delivered.

MEN MAY GO BACK TO WORK

More Hope of Strike Being Settled To-day Than There Has Been for Weeks But it is a Gloomy Week End

FEW TRAINS RUNNING

Special to The Examiner.

LONDON, ENG., MARCH 23.—Merry England is spending one of the gloomiest week-ends of its history, with part of the population starving, but for the assistance of the charitably disposed. A great part of London's crowd which generally gets out into the country on the week-end, was forced to stay at home to-day, as the railways are running no more trains than are necessary to carry mails. However, there seems more hopefulness of settlement of coal strike to-day than for weeks, and this optimism was reflected on the stock exchanges.

It is believed that whether the strike leaders give orders or not, a large number of strikers will seek to return to work Monday, feeling that they have already won great concessions.

The strike pay funds of most unions are already exhausted. Several mine owners have posted notices to-day that if sufficient men return on Monday on the terms of the minimum wage bill, operations will recommence.

TORTURED FOR NEARLY TWO YEARS

MRS. POULIN FOUND RELIEF IN DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

Rheumatism, Backache, and Headaches Were Her Portion But Now She is a New Woman.

McGREARY, Man., March 23. — (Special)—"Four boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills made a new person of me.' The speaker is Mrs. Oliver Poulin, of this place, and her numerous friends here fully verify her statement.

"For nearly two years," Mrs. Poulin continues, "rheumatism tortured me. My back and head also ached. My eyes were puffed and swollen. I am sixty-three years of age, and you can see I was a pretty sick woman. But Dodd's Kidney Pills cured me."

Mrs. Poulin is only one of many who have had a similar experience. They were weak and run-down, and sick all over. Dodd's Kidney Pills cured them. How? Simply by curing the kidneys. The diseased kidneys were the cause of all the trouble. They were failing to strain the impurities out of the blood, and the result was disease all over the body. Dodd's Kidney Pills cured the kidneys, the impurities were strained out of the blood. The result was pure blood and good health all over the body. The cause of the disease had been removed.

INDORSE THE PROPOSITION

International Harvester Company in Favour of the "Made in Peterborough" Exhibition to be Held in June

MR. CAMFIELD'S OPINION

That the International Harvester Company of Canada, Limited, who operate the Peterborough Twine Mills are heartily in favour of the "Made in Peterborough" exhibition, which is to be held in the Armouries in June, under the auspices of the Ladies' Auxiliary of Peterborough Health Association, is evidenced by the following letter from Mr. C. J. Camfield, the Superintendent, in response to a request from the Examiner that he should express the views of his Company on the question:

"Industrial Expositions Attract the Attention of the Whole World"

"Manufacturing Concerns Create Cities".

We have some sixty or more factories here, in Peterborough, manufacturing different products. A 'Made in Peterborough' exhibition would be very attractive, every firm exhibiting to the public would assist their sales agency to dispose of their product.

We should advertise our railroad facilities, our beautiful waterways, the extensive iron works and tool manufacturers.

We could use the Peterborough Power Company's good power, which they have for sale, as a special inducement for more manufacturing concerns. A factory could be built in any part of Peterborough, and power would be delivered to them, which would avoid installing power plants, which is very expensive.

Building lots are cheap, and we should map out suitable buildings to fit the purchaser's purse. More manufacturing plants mean more help, therefore we should invite more people to come and live in beautiful Peterborough. We have plenty of retail stores to take care of a larger population.

Our city car service could spread out and take in more territory. Our steam railways would run trains more frequently if business in Peterborough would warrant it.

We should make special efforts to invite people from the nearby towns to do their trading in Peterborough.

We have fine churches, schools, and well-equipped hospitals, and everything that goes to make up a first-class city. Therefore, we are heartily in favour of an Industrial Exposition.

C. J. Camfield.

The firm of F. R. J. MacPherson & Co., have been successful in securing the contract for the installation of a number of mantel pieces in Thompson's Hotel, Bobcaygeon. Mr. F. R. J. MacPherson was in Bobcaygeon this week in connection with the matter. The firm were in competition with several Toronto concerns but were successful in getting the contract.

NOMINATING COMMITTEE

Prior to Prof. Hutton's address at the Canadian Club meeting last night at which Mr. T. L. Goodwill presided, a nominating committee was appointed to submit a list of officers for the coming year. The personnel of the committee is as follows: Mr. Hamilton Munro, Rev. F. J. Sawers, Mr. A. H. Stratten, Mr. H. R. H. Kenner and Dr G. S. Carveson.

The attendance last night was quite encouraging and deservedly so in view of the splendid address that was given. The report of the committee will be presented at the next meeting of the Club.

"IS THE CHURCH TOO RESPECTABLE?"

The subject to be discussed by the Men's Bible Class of the Charlotte Street Methodist Church to-morrow afternoon, will be "Is the Church too Respectable?" All those interested are invited to attend. The meeting will be held in the body of the church.

JUDGE HUYCKE ON THE BOARD

Was One of the County Judges Who Have Been Meeting in Toronto to Revise Rules

AN IMPORTANT CONFERENCE

His Honour Judge Huycke returned last night from Toronto, where he has been all week attending a meeting of the Board of County Judges of Ontario, of which he is a member. This Board has been appointed by the government to make and revise rules and practice and generally to give directions regarding all procedure in the Surrogate Courts, County Courts and Division Courts of the Province.

No such revision has been had for the past twenty years or more and on account of the many changes in both the law and jurisdiction of the courts within that period, much thought and consideration is found necessary to modernize, simplify and harmonize the practice of these various courts. This will require some time and attention, but it is expected substantial improvement will be made by the work of this Board.

Besides our local judge, the other members of the Board are: Judges McDonald, of Brockville, (chairman), Chadwick of Guelph, Hardy of Brantford, and Harding of Lindsay. Judge Harding is at present in Europe and therefore not in attendance this week. The next meeting of the Board will be held at the Parliament Buildings, Toronto, on the 23rd of April.'

Judge Huycke informs us that it is hoped and expected their labours will be concluded and a report presented this summer.

RED MILL THEATRE

Same old genial smile at the Red Mill. The Nightingale violin solo will be the attraction for Monday and Tuesday. Lovers of good music, do not fail to hear this popular hit. This was the greatest rage when Mrs. Foster appeared at Massey Hall, Toronto, and will be worth the admission alone. Anything that can be given in the line of entertainment, the management of the Red Mill can make them all sit up and take notice, and when they do they will always see something out of the ordinary. Mr. F. Lounden, piano accompanist, will render his services, and is well worth hearing. Mr. Donaldson (Baritone) and Mr. Ayres (tenor) Peterborough's favourites, will appear each and every performance, in all the latest song hits. All the best motion pictures available will be shown. Our feature for Monday and Tuesday will be Chinese Smugglers. Do not fail to see this big bill. 5c. to all, 5c.

MAJORITY FOR UNION

The vote on Church Union for the Presbytery of Peterborough is now completed and returns received. The totals are as follows:

In favour of union—Elders, 794; members, 2,689; adherents, 479. Total, 2,762.

Against union—Elders, 78; members, 1,715; adherents, 416. Total, 2,209.

In total of the proposed basis—Elders, 11; members, 1,820; adherents 378. Total 2,148.

Against the basis—Elders, 74; members, 1,289; adherents, 326. Total, 1,-bers, 1,289; adherents, 326; Total, 1,-

Of a total of 226 elders, 212 voted; of 6,284 members, 3,409 voted, or about 45 per cent.

DEATH'S CALL WAS SUDDEN

Mrs. Jas. Kinsey a Resident of the River Road, Otonabee Was Found Dead in Her Bed This Morning

CAUSE IS UNKNOWN

The call of death came with tragic suddenness during the night to Mrs. James Kinsey of River Road, Otonabee. She retired last night in her usual health, but was discovered dead, in bed, this morning, by Mrs. Waldie, with whom she and her husband resided. The deceased was an elderly lady and had resided in that vicinity for the space of one year. She had no family.

Dr. Glover, Coroner, had not been notified of the particulars of the death at the time of going to press. He will, however, inspect the remains this evening, and decide whether or not it will be advisable to hold an inquest.

SPRING IMPURITIES IN THE BLOOD

A Tonic Medicine is a Necessity at This Season

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are an all year round tonic, blood-builder and nerve-restorer. But they are especially valuable in the spring when the system is loaded with impurities as a result of the indoor life of the winter months. There is no other season when the blood is so much in need of purifying and enriching, and every dose of these pills helps to make new, rich, red blood. In the spring one feels weak and tired. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills give strength. In the spring the appetite is often poor — Dr. Williams' Pink Pills develop the appetite, tone the stomach and aid weak digestion. It is in the spring that poisons in the blood find an outlet in disfiguring pimples, eruptions, and boils — Dr. Williams' Pink Pills speedily clear the skin because they go to the root of the trouble in the blood. In the spring catarrh, rheumatism, indigestion, neuralgia, headaches, and many other troubles are most prevalent because of poor, weak blood, and it is at this time when all nature takes on new life that the blood most carefully needs attention. Some people dose themselves with purgatives at this season, but these only further weaken themselves. A purgative merely gallops through the system, emptying the bowels but it does not cure anything. On the other hand Dr. Williams' Pink Pills actually make new blood which reaches every nerve and organ in the body, bringing new strength, new health and vigour to weak, easily tired men, women and children. Try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills this spring—they will not disappoint you.

Sold by all medicine dealers or sent by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

A SUCCESSFUL ENTERTAINMENT

A very creditable entertainment was rendered by the boys of St. James' Guild last evening, the occasion being the presentation of prizes. The programme was under the direction of Messrs. CARRYING DEADLY WEAPONS.

The habit of carrying firearms, such as revolvers, has placed a Montreal man named Ross, in prison for six years. If he had not had the weapon convenient he would not have used it to commit the crime for which he is punished. If, in his altercation with another man, he had had to depend upon his fists, a broken head would have been the probable result, and the crime of manslaughter would probably have resolved itself into common assault, punishable by a fine. In this country there is no excuse for carrying loaded firearms, or if there is the slightest excuse for one man, it is because others go about loaded for murder. The practice only incites to crime. In the altercations that arise between people of low morals and unbridled passions, the possession of a deadly weapon is an irresistible temptation. If the law does not forbid the carrying of concealed weapons it should do so; if it does the law should be rigidly enforced. In a Christian country we should have regard to the Christian prayer, "lead us not into temptation" and we should have the answer in the deliverance from a large proportion of the evil ,that crimes of violence, represent.

HATS AND HAPPINESS.

The cawing crow; the twittering sparrow in search of nest-weaving straws; the dripping eaves; the slushy pavements; the swelling buds, and sundry other signs, besides the almanac, forecast the advent of spring. But the most infallible sign of approaching spring is to be found in the display windows of the milliner shops. As becomes the pretty generally expected spring season, these windows are veritable floral bowers, and present a piquant paradox, for, while the hats, hidden in heaps of flowers are new styles, the flowers are old-fashioned, there being a rather strong run on the old floral stand-bys—holly hocks, pansies, petunias, peonies, lilacs,et cetera. While of course, the styles of hats are all new, with their profusion of flowers, harnessed up with ribbons, mostly white and black, or ring-streaked and speckled in combination, there is no change in the fashion of the prices, reminding paterfamilias and hubby of Prince Hal's exclamation, apropos of Falstaff's luncheon bill—"Monstrous! but one half-penny's worth of bread to this intolerable deal of sack!"—Monstrous; but one-half penny's worth of material to this intolerable deal of bill! Hats come high, but the ladies must have them. The same old mortgage will do for the home, but the new hat at Easter is de rigeur, even if the mortgage has to hold its grip. Goethe's "eternal feminine" may stay with us in the old, dear form, but the hat must be new. If in the family councils the economic balance trembles between the new automobile and the new hat—if both can't be afforded—the new hat turns the scale. Who would have it otherwise? When we led our blushing brides to the altar of Hymen, we weak, but well-meaning men swore within ourselves that we would make them happy, and as hats and happiness are synonymous, we buy the hat—and the happiness looks out for itself.

To be practical and to implement its sentiments in favour of the ladies, the Examiner assumes the duty of guiding the ladies to the best opportunities for the choice of a hat. Millinery merchants, who advertise in the Examiner will be sure to have something in the way of fashionable headwear worth selecting. In this connection, and to aid their selection the fair reader is referred to page nine of this issue, where will be found detailed descriptive references to the millinery displays of the merchants and millinery experts, most worthy of patronage.

RELATIVE CONDITIONS.

Miss Roberts, of Young's Point, in a letter which appears in another column, makes much of the fact that China has accorded to women the right to vote and sit in parliament, and seems to consider this circumstance a reproach to western civilization. Is not this concession a rebound? In China, like other heathen countries, women have held a subordinate, if not degraded position. China has become politically revolutionised; it has declared for the extreme form of democracy, and in its new-born zeal for "reform," naturally takes to extremes. In countries under evolved constitutional government the empirical principle largely influences reform; and "hasten gently" is the mode of progress, from one tried step to another. Theoretical political constitutions, ready-made, so to speak, are not a success altogether. The United States is finding many grave faults in the working out of its written constitution. In like manner, China may be taking too many and too long advanced steps, which may not lead to desirable results. It does not seem, under the circumstances, that civilised countries should take to themselves reproach because China has taken a course whose meaning they cannot appreciate. Woman's right to the franchise as an abstraction, will not be denied, but as St. Paul says, "all things may be lawful, but all things are not expedient." The question of the expediency of women entering on equal terms with men into politics, seems to arise in connection with the demand for votes. Contrasted with conditions in China, women in civilized countries have compensations that abundantly replace the right of voting. In our country, and in other Christian countries, we surround women with a special pale of deference, respect, reverence, and in comparison with the Chinese and other heathen countries we deify our women. Would our Canadian women consent to exchange the exalted place they occupy in our hearts and homes, in our social system, for the social standing, the social degradation of Chinese women, and accept, as a satisfactory equivalent, the right to vote and sit in parliament, that is accorded to Chinese women?

STRIKING AT THE ROOT.

Dr. Forbes Godfrey, M.P.P., for West York, in the Ontario Legislature, has correctly diagnosed the nature of one of the gravest maladies that affect the body politic—the existence of congenital imbecility and criminality—an ulcer that is eating into the vitals of the country, and deteriorating the quality of its citizenship. Like a good practitioner, Dr. Godfrey prescribes, so far as it goes, the right treatment—treatment of the cause. We have been treating symptoms too long with indifferent results. The cause is still allowed to operate, and, of course, the effects persist. Dr. Godfrey has introduced a bill, designed to prevent the marriage of imbeciles and persons of drunken habits. Marriage is one of the most important matters with which the state has to deal. It is the recognised Christian means providing for the reproduction of the citizenship of the country, whose quality determines the loftiness or the degredation of the state. It is the way of the world to regard affairs of the heart with a tendency to matrimony, as a subject of cheap humour and badinage. But a marriage is a more solemn matter than a funeral. With the latter the trouble of mortals is at an end. With marriage, according to the humourists, and according to the experience of far too many married persons, trouble is only beginning. If the primary object of marriage is, as it is, the orderly and legitimate means of reproducing the race, it follows that it should be surrounded with the most favourable conditions. Like begets like, and as are the married, so will be the children. As a rule, we see the children of good moral, steady, sober, right-minded parents assume the good qualities of their progenitors. In like manner, we see the children of imbeciles, the weak-minded, the hereditarily diseased, or morally and mentally unfit become like their parents. Our public institutions are crowded with imbeciles, and criminals that are the direct result, not of environment or exterior influences, but of parental transmission of evil qualities of morale and physique. The evil is intensified by permitting promiscuous and uncontrolled intermarriage of bad subjects. Dr. Godfrey's bill aims to regulate, or, in extreme cases, prevent, the marriage of persons unfit to assume the responsibilities of the married estate, and liable to increase the present lamentable deterioration of our population—a deterioration, that is becoming the source of the foul stream that is pouring imbeciles and feeble minded by thousands, into our public institutions that now cost the Province something like two million dollars per year. Dr. Godfrey's bill places the responsibility upon ministers performing marriage ceremonies and forbidding them to marry any persons that are imbecile, or insane, or drunkards; and a penalty of $500 is provided for infraction of the law. This is all right, so far as it goes, but it's scope might be made more inclusive. What is wanted is the throwing of such safeguards around marriage as will prevent the physically, mentally and morally unfit from adding to the polluted stream of citizenship represented by the weak-minded, the idiotic, and the inherently vicious.

How British Government Spins The Bond Of Empire

(Montreal witness)

There are those who complain that the British people living on their islands are an insular people and not only do not know, but do not care to know, how the rest of us of the world wags, especially the British Colonies. If there is an atom of truth in the charge it is certainly not reflected in their postal laws. For the very purpose of making an imperial tie, the British post office not only adopted the 'penny an ounce' letter rate, but adopted what is called the 'triple system' of imperial British parcel rates. These rates are one shilling for three pounds, two shillings for seven pounds, and three shillings for eleven pounds. Put into cents per pound, these rates amount to eight cents per pound for packages of three pounds, seven cents per pound for packages of seven pounds, and six and a half cents per pound for packages of eleven pounds. It may be objected that this rate is a losing one, only put on to strengthen the imperial tie. If so, all honour to those who have done it. There is, however, nothing to indicate that this is the case. The British Post Office has a large annual surplus. Its parcels post rate inside the kingdom is only two cents a pound. Its parcel rate throughout the rest of Europe is about eight cents a pound, though here the railway hauls are long and there is expensive handling at foreign customs offices and over foreign government-owned railways. From many careful comparisons we would gather that this triple system was not far from a cost rate.

At this rate, which as above shown runs from six and a half to eight cents a pound, the Government will carry packages by sea around the world to India and distribute them by rail over a country that is not so much smaller than Canada. It will carry them right around to New Zealand or to the savages of British North Borneo, in the Pacific. It will carry them to British East Africa, on one side of Africa, or to the Gold coast, on the other side. The British Government supplies this excellent and cheap mail service right into the heart of savage Africa. Far Northern Nigeria, which runs almost up to Lake Tchad, in innermost Africa, enjoys it. So do Uganda and Zanzibar, and such little out of the way places as Tortola, the Falkland Islands and the Caicos Islands. In fact, distance is no bar whatever. If in some cases, like Australia, there are higher tolls charged, it is because the local Government would not join with the Imperial Government in establishing the rates.

It will perhaps be more astonishing to many to learn that the Britisher enjoys the privilege of mailing parcels to the farthest confines of Canada at this rate of six and a half to eight cents a pound. Yet, our post office charges us sixteen cents a pound to mail a parcel from one part of our country to another. As we have shown before, there is only one reason for this. It is a rate purposely maintained by the post office to its own financial disadvantage for the very purpose of preventing Canadians from mailing packages that the express companies may enjoy the privilege of their carriage and announce every year, as they just have done, net profits of a million dollars on an investment of only four millions. How long the people of Canada will stand for this treatment it is hard to say. Mr. Pelletier is doing his best to stave off a demand for it by using up the present post office surplus in starting rural routes. The country wants rural routes, but it should be clearly understood that this in no way lessens the demand for a parcel post. Indeed, it strengthens that demand. Had we a parcel post rate fixed not on an exclusive but on a revenue basis the Postmaster-General would have a bigger surplus to establish many more rural routes.

England has been far-seeing enough to establish cheap letter, parcel and telegraph rates, with her colonies, the last of which was done at a sacrifice. Have we in Canada no need of binding together the sentiment of our widely strung-out provinces? Is it not as necessary that British Columbia should be facilitated in her connection with Alberta and Alberta with Nova Scotia as it is that English people should be able easily to send gifts or receive tokens of esteem from the British settlers in outlying corners of the world? The parcel post it must be recognised is not a mere shopping business. It is very largely used as the truest manner of keeping up friendship. Witness, for instance, how full the mail bags are at Christmas. Had we reasonable rates, packages would be sent in great numbers throughout the year, attesting thought and friendship. If established in Canada it would be a very great help to break down the almost insurmountable barriers that divide our population into sections. Canada and the United States are the only two civilized countries in the world that maintain the rate of sixteen cents a pound. If Canada does not hurry she will have the proud distinction of calling herself the only country that refuses to adopt modern postal regulations.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The death of Hon. Senator Macdonald, of Prince Edward Island, reduces the "fathers of Confederation" to one Sir Charles Tupper, who, it is hoped, will long remain the sole survivor.

A Toronto barrister is suing the Toronto Street Railway Company for $50,000 damages for injuries received in an accident. If the injury was to the hand that is usually associated with the pockets of clients ,the demand is reasonable.

In the bill before the Ontario Legislature, the lawful speed limit for automobiles in cities has been advanced from ten to fifteen miles. There does not seem to be much difference in the change. Everything depends upon the way of driving. A reckless driver at six or eight miles an hour can do more damage and be a greater menace to the safety of the citizens, than a careful driver going at ten or fifteen miles an hour. It all depends upon the man, not the machine.

It is only one way of putting it, remarks the Montreal Herald, when Mr. Balfour says that the miners' organization is paralysing the whole trade of the country in the exercise of its legal rights. The miners' organization is merely refusing to work at the wage offered by the mine owners. The mine owners are refusing to pay the wage asked by the miners. Whatever paralyzing is being done is done just as much by the owners as by the miners. But perhaps it is no use expecting a Conservative party to see that.

A Glimpse at Peterborough's Spring Millinery Re-Openings

ELLIOT'S MILLINERY OPENING

MISS NOBLE, HEAD MILLINER

Large Hats in the Psyche Style For Dress Wear—Ribbon and Flower Trimming—Cerise One of the Leading Shades

Many sailor hats for street wear are shown with medium crowns and with slightly rolling brims.

There is the particularly mannish style, with the large round crown, wide band and slightly rolling sides in the derby style, to be used as a walking and suit hat.

Continental ideas are featured in many styles and sizes in which the chief characteristics are modifications of the pointed front, raised sides and drooping back.

Dutch bonnets are featured in a variety of styles, and there is a new tam effect which looks extremely well.

Soft tailored hats made in a variety of designs are shown. For dress hats the large psyche hat is the favourite for dress occasions. Many of these are shown in flat shapes, but many of these are trimmed with very high tree mounts of flowers or enormous loops of ribbon, etc.

Toques are being featured for the spring and early summer. Naturally, there is the Dunbar turban, in many modifications.

Tagal, mohair, milan or fine betal braids are shown in hats of all shapes in the finer variety, while smartly trimmed walking and suit hats embrace all of these straws, they are also shown in the stylishly plaited rough straws.

Trimmings, except where flowers are used, are simple and sparingly used. Ospreys and French mounts are much used.

But flowers are the trimming par excellence and especially small flowers, small rose buds, wreaths of small moss rose buds, sweet peas in natural shades, forget-me-nots, mignonette, lily-of-the-valley, in sprays, wreaths, tree-mounts, fancy buckles and ornaments ,etc., are largely shown in a bewildering array of design and combination.

In the children's hat section there is a very extensive showing of pretty hats all made up in girlish modification of their older sisters.

Ready-to-Wear Department.

This department is the leading ambition of Elliot's Store, judging by the pleased expressions of the many admiring customers.

The various departments have all been redecorated this season and many additional new fixtures, figures, forms, etc., make it so easy for the customers to inspect the new styles.

On the ready-to-wear floor are being shown all the new ideas in the latest dresses, suits, spring mantles, blouses, dress skirts, and here also are shown all the little garments worn by infants and girls of all ages.

The dress skirts and separate blouses are going to be very popular this season. The new skirts are shown in the high waist and side effect; also many effective styles in the natural waist line. The lawn waists are very dainty in short set in sleeves, some with all-over embroidery, some with the new Irish lace pattern, etc.

RICHARD HALL & SON, LTD.

There is a bright touch of Eastertide and the cheerful tone of springtime throughout the departments of the store of Richard Hall & Son, Ltd., that make a pleasant appeal to the senses and vividly the spirit of the season formally opened during the past week.

The tastefully decorated show windows are in themselves suggestive of the new season, and on entering the ear is greeted with a chorus of canaries' flutings, from cute little cages standing out against the lattice work that has been employed to relieve the pillars on the main floor. Touches of green vines and leaves twining the lattice work with natural effect create a pleasing impression to the eye. The spirit of the season is heightened by the light airy spring dress materials that stand out prominently on the ledges or attractively shown in counter displays. White wear, gloves, parasols and other accessories so necessary to Milady's summer attire, combine to intensify the approaching change of season.

The millinery department on the second floor has been the centre of attraction for the crowds who have attended the opening during the past week. Smart tailored hats seem to possess a particular appeal, and many ideas are shown in the modes of New York and Paris, and designs presented by the expert designers of the Richard Hall store.

In dressy hats, trimmings of matrame lace and mounts of flowers are extensively used, and it is noticed that the flowers are largely of the old-fashioned kind, hollyhocks, orchids, pansies, and sweet peas. Little touches of primrose added a pleasing note of colour in many of the creations. The strictly summer hats are made almost entirely of flowers, and a noticeable fact is the large number of different flowers found on individual hats.

Passing to the ready-to-wear department, there is an extensive display of tailored suits representing the perfection of the Canadian tailoring art. There is also a wide range of motor and afternoon coats imported direct from Germany. They may be generally used during summer, particularly for evening and boating purposes. They are shown in champagne, copper brown, and tweed colours, and from the interest they attracted are bound to be popular, as they are dainty; light and airy. Hand embroidered bridal sets afford another feature of this department.

HOME FURNISHINGS.

The home furnishing department is not overlooked at this season. Here are to be found a host of features that please those who love the combination of daintiness and utility in home furnishings. Artistic window and door draperies and hangings made up to order in any combination of colours are shown at various prices. These are very dainty and not expensive. For instance, a curtain of muslin trimmed with narrow gold galloon and side curtains made of blue poplin, trimmed with two-toned blue gimp and finished with two gold rosettes, represented an expenditure of $4.00 complete. Bedroom curtains of point d'esprit net trimmed with cut-out borders, are extensively shown Rugs, of course, are a feature in themselves, and the harmonizing of colours in home decorations—by the way, a specialty in this store—is demonstrated in a section of this department. A Louis XVI. rug, with curtains and other furnishings, was being shown when the reporter happened along.

Returning to the main floor, silk dress goods are shown with a lace and floral border effect that should be popular, besides a green silk with black dots with which a metallic trimming is used. On this floor are hair line or pencil stripes that are very new, besides white and cream serges, black and whites, and other suitings that will be fashionable this season.

The window displays of this store are particularly attractive, and are worthy of more detailed description. With the interior decorations, they were designed and carried out by Mr. J. A. McNabb.

ROBERT FAIR & CO., LTD.

The attractive window and interior decorations, coupled with millinery that is a delight to the feminine eye, have been features of the formal spring opening at the store of the Golden Lion.

The colour scheme of the windows employs pink, white, and gold, with backgrounds of panelled lattice work twined with roses and apple blossoms. In the centre of each window is a large white and gold urn, the ensemble making a most striking and seasonable display.

In the windows are displayed the latest Paris models in ladies' millinery and ready-to-wear suits. The showing of the former on the second floor reflects the splendid taste of the heads of the millinery department, and displays the season's favourite styles, including the "Bunty" sailors, Durbar turbans, Harry Lauder tams, and Hussars, with plenty of floral trimmings predominating. The larger hats, such as Panamas and Milan, will be popular later in the season.

Among the most admired hats in the millinery department was a large white model of Tagel braid and black velvet facing, trimmed with pink and black willow mounts and wreath of pink and black cowslips around the crown; another that seemed particularly popular was the Dunbar turban of mixed straw in tan and green shades, trimmed with macrame lace and Egyptian ornaments.

The ready-to-wear department received special attention. A smartly tailored suit in grey stripe reversible cloth, with the short coat so popular this spring, trimmed in reseda and glass buttons, was very attractive. A pretty marquisette gown neatly trimmed with touches of blue satin and ball fringe and the skirt embroidered in silk, was another favourite.

The window and interior decorations were planned and carried out by Mr. Russell Wotten.

THE J. C. TURNBULL CO.

No previous exhibit has uncovered such a myriad of pleasing styles as shown in the Turnbull millinery parlours during the past week, and Miss Gamble, the new head of this department, was the recipient of many deserved complimentary remarks on her first style-showing.

Among the many handsome models was a very chic Hindoo turban made of white tagel, with macrame lace and white ospreys. Another, called the "Harry Lauder," had a tam crown, with high willow mount; also many two-tone sailors, in black or Tuscan in Java or tagel, with velvet stick-ups in bright colourings. One of the most pleasing features was the surprisingly low prices attached to these high-class models.

The showing of the new season's styles on living models has only been attempted heretofore by the leading departmental stores in the large cities but this season the ladies of Peterborough had that privilege afforded them by this most enterprising firm, the J. C. Turnbull Co. That this feature was appreciated was evidenced by the huge crowds of pleased customers and the hundreds who were turned away, unable to secure a view. The garments worn by the models or their duplicates may be seen in the ready-to-wear section on the second floor.

The J. C. Turnbull store presents a splendid variety of Easter suggestions and spring and summer styles not only in millinery and gowns, but in the many dainty articles that make a lady's wardrobe a bower of delight.

MISS ALLAN

The approaching spring season is taking effect in the establishment of Miss Allan, already, her assistants having much to do to cope with the demands of those seeking headwear for Easter. The millinery parlours of this establishment, which are particularly suited to the purpose for which they are used, are now filled with spring and summer hats of great variety. London, Parisian, and New York styles all may be found there, and it would not be difficult for the most fastidious to suit themselves from the stock. Here again roses of various shades—red roses, champagne roses, roses of more delicate hues—hang in gay confusion on some of the hats, while ribbons are in evidence on others. A detailed description would not do justice to the stock, as only a personal survey would convey a good idea of the respective qualities of the various styles of headwear. Suffice it to say that Miss Allan and her assistants will spare no pains in satisfying her customers, which should not be a difficult matter, in view of the splendid stock at her disposal.

MISS McGIVERIN.

The millinery parlours at Miss McGiverin's establishment present a very enticing appearance now that the spring and summer models are daintily arranged therein.

Ribbons seem to be very much in evidence and high mounts of flowers. Roses hang in charming profusion along the walls and round many of the various hats. Beautiful French mounts in osprey effects are also in vogue.

Among the many pretty models shown are the Gaby Hat, Derby Sailor and many other tailored styles. One of the little French hats was in champagne roses and hair tulle with border of paradise osprey. A pretty model in cerise and black, trimmed with black osprey, was very effective, while another in pale pink hyacinths trimmed with a pleated lace crown and cascade of lace at the back was superb.

There is no necessity of searching hard for suitable ladies' headwear in this store, for there is ample variety to suit every taste. Indeed, the array in general presents a very fascinating aspect to prospective purchasers, who could not fail to find something suitable to their needs.

MISSES ENNIS & ARMSTRONG.

In addition to the extensive stock there is one distinguishing feature that places the 1912 spring millinery opening of the Misses Ennis & Armstrong far in advance of its predecessors, and that is added excellence. The daintiest and most fashionable creations of New York in millinery has been gathered together in one magnificent display, ad is on view to the public. The styles in many instances are as exclusive as one would find in Broadway, and the models represent not only quality, but distinction.

The display is one in which every woman will be more or less interested, and whether you purchase or not, your visit will be made none the less welcome. Ready-to-wear hats and untrimmed models are here shown in a variety of styles and patterns that cannot be excelled for beauty and exquisite design in the city.

A detailed description of but a few of the leading styles would fail to do the exhibit justice, and it remains for the prospective purchaser to visit the showrooms, which are located on the corner of Simcoe and George Streets, and inspect for themselves some of the daintiest millinery offerings that have ever come across the line.

THE CRESSMAN CO., LTD.

The display of spring and summer goods shown by The Cressman Co., Ltd., presents so wide a range, extending, as it does, into all its departments, that the purchaser will surely find no difficulty in making selections that will surely please her. There has possibly not been a season affording such an extensive variety of millinery as this. Becomingness seems to be the dominant factor. It is more difficult to say what will not be fashionable than what will be, so wide is the range of designs that are a la mode. Both tailored and dressy types of millinery are extensively shown and while it cannot be said that 1912 produces any radical changes in headwear fashions, the styles are, nevertheless, intensely interesting. The small and medium shapes are the centre of attraction, and in the majority of cases the upturning of the brim is a noticeable feature of their designing. However, the drooping brim is not by any means neglected, and some of the shapes are typical of the mushroom design.

Combinations of materials are quite frequently noted, velvet and taffeta being shown in a great variety of unique designs. The crowns and underbrims are often of velvet, and their upper brim of braid. Many of the hats show deep flanges of velvet or taffeta, and underbrim facings either of velvet or silk are shown on practically everything. One of the newest features in millinery is the taffeta hat, and in practically all instances it is shirred, or put upon the frame full. The crowns are frequently of the Tam O'Shanter design, but not in the straight, flat style that is usually seen, but lined softly to give it irregularity and therefore making it immeasurably more becoming to women.

Fancy leather effects in 'stick-ups' or in cockade effects, the latter being made of ribbon, feathers or malines, are much in evidence as a trimming of the tailored millinery, while flowers, aigrettes, paradise, and ostrich are conspicuous in the trimming of the more dressy millinery.

In dress goods there is a splendid showing of navys, greens and Paris tan colours in serges, tweeds, whipcords, and in finer cloths like broadcloth. Shot or radium silks, colines and crepe meteors in shades of blue, champagne, greys, Paris and leather tans are a particularly popular line for summer wear. In cotton materials marquisettes are a feature. White predominates and bordered wash fabrics should find a large demand. Ready-to-wear goods are shown in navy blue, grays and tans. Coats are a little shorter than usual, being from 24 to 30 inches. Straight lines are noticeable and narrow skirts, creating a silhouette effect. The cutaway design is a novel, and smart feature to some of the coats. Quite a mannish effect is thus secured. These are found in tweeds and broadcloths. There are a few reversibles with touches of braid and buttons as trimmings.

In the shoe department a white-buttoned Nubuck, made on a new last, known as "goinsome," is exceedingly dainty, and should be extremely popular as soon as the weather permits. This shoe should have a wide appeal to those who demand dainty footwear.

The homefurnishing department presents a great variety of suggestions and in this store women can select their wall paper and greatly facilitate their plans of securing harmonious colour combinations in their home furnishings and decorations.

Mr. Jas. McNicholl, who is in charge of the advertising work for the company, has in his window displays during the past ten days, made a feature of one colour groupings. Some of those shown were white and black, gray and white stripe, tans and other shades.

EMPLOYING PRINTERS

Hold Annual Meeting of Mid-District Employing Printers' Association in Lindsay Yesterday.

The annual meeting of Mid-District Employing Printers' Association was held in Lindsay yesterday.

The following delegates were in attendance: Messrs. A. V. Nolin, Uxbridge Times; W. H. Keller, Uxbridge Journal; W. S. Given, Millbrook Reporter; J. Cave, Express, Beaverton; R. M. Glover and D. D. C. Dawe, Peterborough Examiner; J. R. Stewart, Bobcaygeon Independent, G. H. Wilson, Lindsay Post; Allan Gillies, Lindsay Warder.—Post.

WILL OPEN UP IN LINDSAY.

Mr. Louis Yeates Takes Over the Premises Recently Occupied by Mr. J. L. Primeau.

Lindsay is to have another Greek store. Mr. Louis Yeates, of the firm of Yeates Bros., Peterborough, was in town yesterday, making arrangements. This firm has one of the leading billiard and pool parlours, etc. in Peterborough and propose to open a similar store in Lindsay. They have secured the premises occupied by Mr. J. L. Primeau and expect to be open for business on Saturday, April 6th.

The store is 120 feet deep and Yeates Bros. have secured a ten-year lease of the property. The firm intend to overhaul and repaint the store, and make it into one of the best tobacco stores in town.—Post.

BABY THIN—HAD NO APPETITE

Mrs. Ulderic St. Georges, St. Mathias, Que., writes: "I am writing to say I am well satisfied with Baby's Own Tablets. My baby was ill and I tried several remedies, but the result was discouraging. He became very thin, had no appetite, hardly slept at all and was extremely weak. I got Baby's Own Tablets and they soon set him right again, till at the age of eleven months he was able to walk and was a strong healthy child. I do not think there is anything to equal Baby's Own Tablets for little ones." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

IMPORTANT TO LADIES

Prof. Dorenwend of Toronto, begs to announce that he will be at the Oriental Hotel on Wednesday, April 3rd, with a complete display of the newest London, Paris and New York creations in hair goods. You are invited to call and inspect his goods.

SEPARATE COATS

Are To Be Extremely Smart This Season

This season the stylish, serviceable, Separate Coat will be strongly in favour. Canada's Duty To Herself And The Empire Outlined In A Brilliant Address

Prof. Hutton Provided an Intellectual Treat for the Canadian Club —One of the Most Successful Meetings the Club Has Ever Held

DELIGHTFULLY TREATED

It has seldom been the privilege of the Canadian Club of this city to listen to a more entertaining speaker than Prof. Maurice Hutton, Principal of University College, Toronto, who addressed the club at a banquet held in the Oriental Hotel last night. His subject really dealt with Canada's Place in the British Empire and the brilliant and unusual manner in which he approached his subject was only possible from one who, like Prof. Hutton, is steeped in the classics. His little flashes of humour were greatly enjoyed and the clear cut manner in which he presented reasons why Canada should remain an integral part of the British Empire was eloquent and convincing. Prof. Hutton pleased a large gathering of the club members, who shared in a literary treat that is not often equalled in public addresses in this city. His address in part was as follows:

In a very charming book by a charming writer, "The Future in America," by Mr. H. G. Wells, I find the author auguring good for America in proportion to the attention given to political science in its Universities, and evil for America on the strength of the Greek letters, which he also found inscribed upon the blackboard of some of the same Universities.

Now, this is a hard augury. I have been reading Greek letters, chiefly in Plato, for a third of a century and more, and I have been read-Mr. Wells for a third of that time, and I thought until I came across that augury that I was reading in pari materia. I fancied Plato a forerunner of Mr. Wells and Mr. Wells a later Plato. I had supposed, therefore, that Mr. Wells would welcome the study of Plato in America, as leading directly to that scientific Utopia, to which he also devotes himself, his ability, his imagination, and his charm of style. He is strangely ungrateful to the H. G. Wells of Athens.

However, it is of Plato that I am writing here. Plato's mission, said Emerson, is to raise in Athens all the problems which are still interesting thoughtful men. Among these is the problem of incompatible virtues, the problem of virtue casting out virtue, or of Satan also being divided against Satan.

For Plato is at once confronted with this problem when he starts out to found an Ideal State: the first requisite for any State or family or individual, as I understand him, is that virtue, which was Virtue (with a capital V) to the ancient world; Virtues, manliness, self-reliance, aggressiveness; the power of government and organization, and the spirit of adventure; the Imperial or the Roman spirit, as it has been called since his time. Aristotle, for example, remarks that Sparta would never have lost her Empire if she had retained her "virtue," that is, the military spirit, which is to him (and to Plato) a considerable factor in perfection. A modern humanitarian and anti-militarist would retort that Sparta would never have gained her Empire had she been more "virtuous"—so profoundly has the connotation of the word altered.

Christianity Second.

But Plato does not put our "Virtue" first, he puts it second, for he continues his argument with the proposition, that the second requisite for any State or family or individual, the second great commandment, is unlike the first, is even the opposite of the first, even as the two great Christian commandments of loving God and our neighbour seem often incompatible; it is the virtue of gentleness and sweet temper, of patience and amiability, of loyalty and consideration; or, more broadly—for Plato characteristically overlooks even deep distinctions and lumps together qualities moral and qualities intellectual, such as we (or Aristotle) should certainly have sharply distinguished—the virtue of thought, intelligence, and philosophy. Without this second and opposite virtue Plato sees no salvation for the State or the individual; Christianity, therefore, by interpretation, is only less necessary and original than Paganism; it comes into Plato's world as it came into the actual world, second not first.

Each alike, continues Plato, is necessary, but how are they compatible? And if incompatible, what becomes of the new vision of the Ideal State, the Heavenly Jerusalem? Or rather, what becomes of the chance of any State or individual prospering, except for a moment? One State or individual will be submerged because it has waxed fat and kicked (like Jeshurun) and has turned its hand against everyone (like Ishmael), and has ridden the primary and Pagan virtue of self-reliance to death; and another because it has yielded its individuality, its will and its own way at the bidding of the first aggressor; and has turned the other cheek to every neighbour, has been Christian and nothing else. And so the Ideal State begins to vanish again, and with it also the lesser hopes of some small progress in civilization, or at becoming despondent, when his mind's eye falls on a familiar and homely figure, the common watchdog. Why, surely out of the bark of sucklings, Nature has perfected praise! For has not even this poor, simple creature the two virtues feigned to be incompatible? Is he not full of all gentle virtue, of all patience, of all trust, and loyalty, and old memories towards his master? Nay, is he not friendly to all the faces that are familiar to him, even though their owners have never noticed him? While conversely he is full of all virtuous vice (or of all Pagan virtue) and of all aggressiveness to the stranger, and wayfarer, even though these strangers be from God, these wayfarers be angels unawares. Obviously then, the dog is a natural philosopher; all his virtue is based on knowledge, all his vice is based on ignorance, which is, as Plato thinks, the real roots of all vice; here, then, even in the kennel is discovered the paragon, who seemed undiscoverable, and yet who must be discovered if man is not to despair. And now, why should man despair where his poor servant and poor relation has succeeded? If a dog is a philosopher, cannot philosophers be dogs?

Our Claim of Virtues.

All this is very characteristic fooling on Plato's part; it is his habit to protest "with scholarly seriousness, and with that playfulness which is seriousness' twin-sister." And who shal lsay of his protests where the seriousness ends and the playfulnes begins? Did he know this himself? Does any philosophic humorist or humorous philosopher know as much about himself? But my point is not to try and plumb the depths of Plato's seriousness or of his humour, but to set up a rival against that same watchdog for the possession of the two (or three) incompatible virtues: the moral virtue of self-reliance and self-will; the moral virtue of self-sacrifice and loyalty; the intellectual virtue of thoughtfulness. Let us now call up the ghost of Plato and invite him to judge the claims of another Ideal State, not of dogs, which may seem to rival his watchdog, and point more hopefully to the realization by man of the Platonic Callipolis. We will ask him to debate with us this question, but first to be merciful and speak to us not with the voice of a ghost (which is also the ghost of a voice); for that voice, says Homer, is as abhorrent as the squealing of bats! Or, in our days, as the phonograph, which is the ghost of the voice and is also truly bat-like, and proves that Homer was never deaf at any rate, but measured quite accurately the ghostliness of voice and the voice of ghostliness. He will speak to us then, we beg of him, not through portentous modern mis-invention into which, fortunately for him, he never spoke, but quite simply and colloquially.

The British Family Tree.

"Plato," we shall begin, "there is in the isle of Atlantis a people who ought to combine these opposite virtues; in the first place all great civilizations arise from the blending of races; your own civilization has been ascribed to the blending of aggressive Dorians with reflective Mycenaeans, and of reflective but still vigorous Mycenaeans with the more dreamy, brooding, sensitive spirit of Asia; whence the civilization of Greece and of Ionia. Well then, this race in Atlantis comes from a land conspicuous for its blend of races; for the blend of the Anglo-Saxon (himself a blend of Norman, Saxon, Dane, and British) with the Huguenot and the Celt; so blended, the resulting type, the British type, has displayed those virtues which you place first, the gift of organization and administration, of self-reliance and mastery; its has reproduced the Roman type which overthrew Greece and ruled the ancient world. But it has done more than that; it has mixed once again in Atlantis, and this time with the race which is foremost in the world for everything that your Greece contributed to the Empire of Rome; for literature, language, logic, science, and art, for everything that was greatest in the Roman Empire, except the masterful spirit, the law-making spirit, of the Roman; it has mixed itself with the French race.

Canada's Melting Pot.

"If then the Anglo-Saxon or British element in this Atlantean blend can provide the primary virtue, self-reliance, aggressiveness, the French element can provide the secondary, 'can soothe us with their finer fancy, can touch us with their lighter thought,' can supply the keener intelligence and the more feminine graces. Or if there be still doubt of this Plato, look at another element in this kingdom of Atlantis; one section of the British stock of this kingdom came up from the south when their neighbours, henceforth called Americans, quarrelled with their British mother-country, as your Greeks always quarrelled with their mother-city This part of the people refused to quarrel lightly with their mother-country; they thought of their duties no less than of their rights; they cherished ancient memories; they were loyal to old ties; they refused to break with all their past for an old man's obstinacy and a few pounds of tea ;and they sacrificed their American homes and came north in recognition of the virtues of ameience, loyalty, considerateness; yes, and they must have had their full measure, too, of the other and first virtue of self-reliance and aggressiveness, or they could never have hewed them hopes and home out of the northern wilderness where the timber-wolf howled after its prey and sought its meat from God.

"And so, Plato, have not these Atlanteans the promise of the three virtues, self-reliance, forbearance, intellect—the masterfulness of the Briton, the fidelity of the Loyalists, and the genius of the Frenchman? What do you say?"

Plato's Reply.

"I say," whispers the ghost, "that they may discover the second and third virtues perhaps; I am doubtful of the first; I have seen no men yet who combined the three; certainly my own Athenians did not; they never possessed the faculty of administration, organization, conquest, and government. I was a 'Little Athenian' myself; I did not believe in building an Athenian Empire, but Pericles and those who were not, failed no less to make Athens an Imperial City; neither, again, did the Athenians possess the loyalty that clings in spite of slights, to old ties; they were fickle as well as anarchical; they had nothing but intelligence—not instinct; and too much intelligence, they knew everything and did nothing. I never found these three virtues combined in man when I was upon earth—only in what men call the lower animals, especially in well-bred dogs; a good dog, my mind misgives me, is still better even today than a clever man. He is not debauched by cleverness. And besides, I have another reason for my doubts. This State of yours, as I understand your description, is still a colony united to its mother-country, with all the virtues of a colony—fidelity, patience, loyalty; but you cannot have everything, you cannot have the passive and gentle virtues of a colony with the masculine and aggressive virtues of an independent State, you cannot be like these Americans of whom you speak, who resented British dictation ,and yet retain also the virtues of your 'Loyalists' who submitted thereto; a colony which is still a colony, and an independent State have antithetic virtues."

Our Mission in the World.

"Plato," we shall answer, "much Elysium has made you melancholy; we have heard all about this antithesis, and we are convinced our mission is to show the world that however it may have been the antithesis holds no longer; we have the secondary virtues already, you are willing to believe as much; well, we cannot, if we would, escape the primary also; for many reasons which can be reduced to one, that all the forces which make the American type the self-reliant type are moulding us also, unconsciously even, and even against our will, to that primary virtue.

"And first and foremost, these same Americans, who withstood the mother-country and broke loose from her, are about us and around us and go in and out among us, influencing us in a thousand ways. These Americans antagonise and Americanise us equally; they make us Americans, even against our will.

"In the second place we have the same climate which moulded them, only keener and more bracing; and philosophers have told us by your lips and other lips that a keen climate, if it does not produce the earliest civilizations, produces the most enduring.

"We have the same influx of all the enterprising spirits of Europe, only fewer of the neglected and unbalanced southern immigrants, and more immigrants of the sturdy northern races; and a large number, too, of Americans and of our own Americanised native-born citizens, for a time lost to us and now returning to our commonwealth.

Sure Conditions of Life.

"We have the same simple conditions of life only more so, the conditions which make a man a jack-of-all-trades, a handy, useful man. We have the same scantness of wealth, ease and culture, only much more so; these things breed the highest triumphs of art and science, but they also unnerve men and make civilization as weak and helpless as it is artistic and refined.

"We have the same consciousness of countless acres and virgin resources which the Americans once had; the same hopes as boundless as the acres, the same self-confidence as indestructible as the resources.

"In brief, we have all the same conditions which made the Americans great, only not the unhappy quarrel with the mother-country, which gave

Beautify Your Home With

Artistic Wall Papers

DO YOU encourage Art in your Home? Are your rooms decorated in such a manner as to bring forth exclamations of praise from your friends when they call on you? And if not—Why not—when artistic, harmonions effects are made possible at a very moderate cost by the means of suitable wall coverings? How often have we seen a richly furnished room look cold, hard and uninviting because the wall covering was of a type that did not correspond with the decoration of the room?

Some time ago one was content with any kind of wall covering but in this "Artistic Age" comes the demand for a wall decoration that furnishes the ground work and supplies the tone to an harmonious decorative scheme—a decoration that improves the appearance of the furnishings in the room and increases the value of the property without increasing the taxes.

Our showing of new and artistic Wall Papers embraces the cleverest designs and most exquisite colourings of the foremost Canadian and American Manufacturers. Papers of a class that are distinctly novel and will impart an artistic atmosphere to even the most ordinary room.

CANADA'S DUTY TO HERSELF AND EMPIRE

a twist to their civilization at its start, and has left the trail of rebellion, demagogism, arrogance, and ignorance ever since, across their politics; which hampered their hero Washington from the first with unscrupulous demagogues for colleagues; which led them then and ever since to mistake sharp practice for statesmanship, in their dealing with the mother-country; in the maps which they produce or do not produce, when boundary treaties are being negotiated; and in the 'jurists of repute' whom they appoint to represent them for these purposes; for men bear a long grudge against those whom they once have wronged.

What We May Expect.

"But from the same conditions we expect the same results; from our general stock, from our American climate, our American neighbours, our Americanised citizens, the primary virtues, self-reliance, aggressiveness; from our British immigrants and our 'Loyalists' the virtues of patience, loyalty, and fidelity to our past and to the motherland; and from our French partners—if we do our duty by them and unite with them and add the Fleurs-de-Lys of France, which has now no other home upon the wide earth, to the flag of Great Britain and Ireland, and to the maple leaf of Canada—from the French we expect all that Greece gave to Rome, language, literature, logic, science, and art; courtesy, good manners, and the power of attracting alien races (as the Briton and Roman have never attracted them); historic memories and a sense of the past; independence of mind and freedom from that tyranny of custom and convention under which the Briton and the Roman have continually fallen; in short, the genius and imagination, which reach their highest power only in Greeks and Frenchmen; the genius and imagination which renewed the world once, at the Renaissance, by the rediscovery of Greek literature (a literature whose geographical speculations prompted in some measure the discovery of Atlantis), which renewed the world again, two hundred years later, one hundred and twenty years ago, by the spirit of the French Revolution.

"And now, Plato, I have exhausted myself and you and my theme. Is there not here in this part of Atlantis material adapted to your trinity of virtues? Is not this 'Canada' of ours (so it is called), is not 'Canada' a dog, yea, and more than a dog, that she also should do this great thing?"

Professor Hutton then took up the question of Canadianism.

What are the prospects for Canadianism? In the answer to that question lies one of the strongest of all reasons for remaining in the Empire.

Canadianism, provided Canada remains in the Empire, becomes an ever-growing local patriotism, a variety of Imperial loyalty most potent in its influence upon the fortunes of the Empire. That Empire, if Canada and the other outlying portions remain within it, will become like heaven, a house with many mansions, one mansion whereof is set apart for Canadians. That Empire will include not merely every variety of thought and religion, climate and tongue, commerce and conditions, not merely portions of every zone of the earth's surface, it will include every species of political system, every variety of political citizenship.

No such experiment has ever been tried in history. Is it not all the more, on that account, an experiment worth trying? A revolution for which the time may be ripe?

Considering the question as to what the results would be if Canada were merged with United States, or if she set up housekeeping for herself, Prof. Hutton said that Canadianism would be in great danger of becoming assimilated (whether with or without political absorption) to Americanism. It would become merely a subspecies of Americanism, scarcely distinguishable as time went on.

The Empire preserves for Canadianism an identity, a pride and a history of its own, a separate existence of its own not in name only, but in deed also.

The Empire is also a refuge against mere commercialism. Does anyone here want to see Canada absorbed in the contemplation of its railways only, of its wheat harvest or of its exports of hogs and logs?

The Empire is a refuge from politics. Does anyone want to see the highest politics of Canada taking the shape of the intrigue, the wire-pulling of a Presidential election? Monarchy saves us from the three curses of civilization, the ambitions of the demagogue, the soldier and the millionaire, which sets above all such upstarts a quiet hereditary ruler. A system like ours seems wholly good, almost perfect. Perfect for this imperfect world.

In concluding, Prof. Hutton pointed out that it had been said that nature intended Canada to be part of the United States, that there should be a union of the two. "Canada," he said, "is not the only nation which is fighting or has fought geographically," and instanced the achievement of Prussia. "Soft hands breed soft people," wrote the old historian of Greece, and the obvious corollary that hard hands breed strong people. Whatever be the hardness against which a people fight, whether of the soil or of geographical conditions, the fight hardens the fighters. If the best inheritance we can leave to our children be a strong national character, all patriotism and all regard for the past and for the future seem to coincide in suggesting that Canada should make this fight against geography—that it is worth while.

Some clothes you buy as "Semi-ready" are not Semi-ready Tailoring

BECAUSE it stands so high in public estimation most clothiers who can't get Semi-ready clothes parody the name with "Semi-ready made" or "just like semi-ready" and pretend that our trade name is an adjective or a descriptive term.

The way to be certain it's Semi-ready is to look for the trade mark and the price mark.

It's in the pocket—a silk label which is the only "seal that is real."

Think it over

The price is there always—whether the garment is $15, $18, $20, $25, or as good as $30 and $35. For we do tailor the most expensive cloth now—the exclusive weaves that the high-priced tailor asks $40 and $50 for.

"There Is No Subject So Entrancing As Patriotism"

Mr. Daniel O'Connell Gave an Interesting Discourse to the Members of the Ladies Literary Society in St. Alphonsus Lyceum Last Evening—A Large Gathering

"There is no subject so entrancing—no subject which plays such an important part in the making of nations as patriotism," said Mr. Daniel O'Connell, when addressing a meeting of the Ladies' Literary Society in the St. Alphonsus Lyceum, last evening.

Young people, he continued, should possess this quality if they wish to take part in the building of this great nation. There are four requisites necessary for the rise of a nation: extended territory, natural resources, self-relying people, and free and liberal institutions.

To what extent does Canada possess these things? Its territory extends from the Atlantic to the Pacific; it has minerals, timber and grain in abundance, and what of the people? The basis of Canada's population is taken from the greatest nations of the world—England, Ireland, Scotland, and France. With the English we have that sense of personal liberty which is extended in the colonies. The Scotch possess thrift and caution and the Irish are vivacious, witty and tender of heart. Then we have the French. The difference between the English and the French-speaking people is, I consider, too much emphasized. We do not realize the qualities of these people. There is no sturdier and better race than the French people, who are the inhabitants of this country at the present time.

And what about the institutions? No country can exist without institutions and the British Empire possesses the greatest institutions the world has ever seen. But there is one great danger which threatens this country, and that is the influence of the country to the south of us. You know that when Rome began to acquire wealth and fame, it was accompanied by corruption, and the people actually laughed at their old forms of religion. And you know the result. The nation began to deteriorate. The country close at hand is experiencing the same conditions, and the danger is that Canada will be influenced by its proximity.

Prior to Mr. O'Connell's discourse some very creditable musical items were rendered. Mr. J. Minnicollo rendered a cornet solo entitled "A Dream of Paradise," with marked effect, while the Misses E. McCabe and K. Ganon were applauded for an attractive vocal duet. Messrs. V. and J. McCabe and V. Condon rendered a violin trio which also was accorded applause.

Y.M.C.A. Boys Present Their Mirth Provoking Sketch

The Pumpkin Centre Athletic Club Play to a Capacity Audience at the Y.M.C.A. Gym Last Evening---Sketch is Featured by Many Ludicrous Phases That is Provocative of Uncontrollable Laughter.

Most authorities have agreed for centuries that a laugh prolongs life; laugh and your digestion is good; laugh and you grow fat. If this be true, the Pumpkin Centre Athletic Club has created a record for prolonging life, that will be hard to beat. They presented a side-splitting, grotesque farce, entitled, "Pumpkin Centre Athletic Carnival' 'at the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium last evening to a crowded house, and in so doing presented one of the biggest laughs that has been registered on an amateur stage in this city for some time. The boys were garbed in costumes consistent with the nature of the performance, and while the situations were far fetched and extravagant in many respects, they showed an intelligent conception of the characters and the ability to interpret them.

Synopsis of the Programme.

The grand entry of all the seeds to the sonorous tune of a selection by the rubes' band, acted as a curtain raiser, and was followed in quick succession by the Ground Ticklers' drill consisting of a battalion of Rubes, armed with garden rakes, hoes, shovels and other articles used by the farmers in tickling the soil when seed time comes around. The Broncho Busters' exhibition in which the vaulting horse was pressed into service, created a sensation, and for a time the performance resembled a clown act, usually seen at a three-ring circus. The arrival of Uncle Josh and his family, and also the vegetable drill were two clever hits, in which many laughable situations were introduced with good effect. Another outstanding feature was the exhibition on the fence rails by the Pumpkin Centre gymnastic team. Roars of laughter from the audience greeted this number, which was replaced by games in the barn yard by the young seeds, and an exhibition by Uncle Silas' performing bear, that proved to be a fun producing variation. Fun over the hay stack by a bunch of seeds and rubes concluded a programme that, for good, clean comedy, would be hard to beat. Sparkling with humour, the ludicrous situations created by the boys was irresistible. The performance was interspersed by up-to-date selections by the Rubes' band, which was in constant attendance.

Mr. J. J. Turner, Jr., acted as chairman, and Mr. Thompson, physical director, put the boys through their paces in a manner that lent vigour and precision to the movements of the performers.

A Sane Saturday Should Secure A Sacred Sabbath

Some Suggestions Written For the Examiner by Roy Gilray

During my recent visits to the churches of the city I was impressed with the dearth of worshippers at the morning services: empty seats everywhere—with one or two exceptions—indicating a condition for which there must be some cause.

Either there must be something wrong with the churches, or there is some outside influence which makes church-going an unpopular exercise.

Let us look first at the churches. Is there anything about them which would cause a person to stay at home in the morning? Of all those visited there was only one that was insufficiently heated, all the others were very comfortable. As far as the sermons were concerned, they were all that could be desired; in fact, I enjoyed them much better than some I have heard at night from those preachers who dearly love to be sensational and draw a crowd. (If these ministers have empty seats to preach to in the morning they have only themselves to blame.) As for the music, there is always a little better bill of fare put on at night, but this is largely due to a lack of singers at the morning service. So we must look outside the church for the cause that keeps so many people at home—and that is where they are.

It does not take much investigation to discover that our insane activity on Saturday is largely the factor in producing that "tired feeling" on Sunday morning which induces the great majority of workers to remain at home, in a close, stuffy room, of rest, instead of going out into the open to enjoy their heritage of fresh air and sunshine—the only day of the week on which it is their privilege—and afterwards proceeding to church to give thanks for all the blessings they enjoy.

Is it any wonder so many people are tired on Sunday? Think of the work they do on Saturday, in the stores, especially! The clerks have to cram three days' work into one. They not only have to cater to the many and uncertain wants of the country people, but they are pestered with the whimsical caprices of the city folks all day and long into the night, who never seem able to make up their minds just what they want till they see the front blinds being pulled down—and then they want it "sent up."

It seems to me that merchants could do something towards splitting this day up (or the work it represents) and distribute it more evenly over the week.

I recognize the fact that it would produce a revolution if they attempted to change "Farmers' Day" from any day but Saturday. Farmers are "set" in their ways. "What was good enough for grandma is good enough for us." (Notice the gender). This is the pet reason assigned to anyone who tries to introduce some labour-saving device into the house for the benefit of the poor women: but I notice that the "lords of creation" never give you that favourite quotation about grandpa when it comes to installing any convenience in the barn. Oh, no! That is quite a different matter. They must have their windmills, pulpers, choppers, grinders, individual drinking cups for the cows, (what style), cement floors, manure carriers and spreaders, self-binders, etc., etc.; but the poor woman, she has to pump her own water and carry it half a mile (or less), carry her own wood, cook in the same old stove that grandma used, throw the dishwater out the front door, or walk a hundred yards and in a hundred and one other ways put up with inconveniences almost unbearable. No wonder so many farmers' wives want to leave the farm, when they see the animals in the barn receiving more consideration than themselves!

Take it for granted that Saturday must remain "Farmers' Day" then why not try and induce the city people to do their shopping on some other day of the week. Friday is not the best day, as it would leave two busy days close together. Thursday would be better, as Friday could then be used to straighten up the stock and get ready for Saturday. Thursday, as bargain day, would do much towards relieving the strain at the end of the week.

If the citizens of Peterborough were to look at this matter from a humane standpoint they would not be long in co-operating with the merchants in establishing a "live and let live" Saturday, and a Sunday that would not be filled up with yawns and stretches, but would be spent as the Creator intended.

We are not only commanded to refrain from work one day in seven, but nature demands it. France tried to alter this proportion by establishing one day in ten as the day of rest, but it was not long before physical nature rebelled. This was particularly noticeable among the beasts of burden, and they quickly played out and died. Needless to say it was not long before they reverted to one day in seven. According to the system in vogue in this city the proportion is about one-half day in seven, or one to fourteen. The experience of the French should teach us that we are "burning the candle at both ends" and before long nature will be sending in her little bill for repairs,—and no matter what else we cheat we cannot cheat nature.

If all the stores were to close on Saturday night at six or seven o'clock such a change would come over the employees for the better, that the employers would be surprised at the result, and they would receive a full day's work on Monday, instead of a half-day, which is now usually attributed to "blue Monday." No wonder Monday is "blue" when the poor clerks have to work so dangerously close to Sunday. If Monday is "blue," what must Sunday be?

The manufacturers could aid very materially in producing a more profitable Sunday by closing their factories at noon on Saturday, which would enable their employees, who are housed up all week, to seek recreation on Saturday afternoon instead of desecrating the Sabbath and returning to a new week's work tired out.

If some consideration along these minor points were given those who toil there would not be so much friction between capital and labour. Who will be the first to start the ball rolling and eventually make Peterborough an ideal city in which to live?

PRESENTED WITH A SIGNET RING

Mr. William Rogers of the William English Canoe Company, was agreeably surprised last evening when a number of his friends gathered together and presented him with a beautiful signet ring. Mr. Rogers has severed his connection with the firm after twenty-two years' faithful service, and will shortly leave for the west.

It was in commemoration of the long years of service and the pleasant associations which marked his connection with the firm and its employees, that prompted his fellow-workmen to recognize his coming departure in the manner indicated.

Mr. Joseph White made the presentation, and the address which is here appended was read by Mr. Charles Dummitt:

Peterborough, Mar. 22, 1912.
Mr. William Rogers, City:

Dear Billy,—It is with regret that we learn of your intended departure from Peterborough. After twenty-two years in which you have been employed by this firm, and many of us having had the pleasure of working with you all or part of that time, we wish to say that we have always found you of a most agreeable disposition, and always doing everything possible to help your fellow workmen, and make things run along harmoniously.

As we have already said, we indeed regret to learn that you are leaving us, but sincerely trust that both yourself and Mrs. Rogers will prosper in your western home, and that you may both be spared to enjoy many years of health and happiness.

As a remembrance, we ask you to accept this ring, which will serve as a tie to bind us together when you are many miles from us, and remind you of the many friends you have in your old home town.

Trusting that you will have a pleasant trip, we are sincerely yours,

(Signed) James English,
S. W. English,
P. Dunsford,
J. E. White,
C. Dummitt,
J. Morden,
Wm. Andrews,

H. Dummitt.

Mr. Rogers was completly taken by surprise and in a neat speech thanked his fellow workmen for their kind recognition and the many courtesies which they had extended him during his connection with the firm.

DANGERS OF FAT

HOW FAT AFFECTS THE BRAIN

affects and finally destroys the brain, is not exactly known; however, degeneration, and final collapse of brain tissue, due to this cause, is of frequent occurrence. Head pains, and head heaviness, which are often experienced by fat people, may indicate that this degenerating process is imminent. The return of this fatty tissue to normal brain substance, may and probably will result if the overproduction of fat is stopped in other parts of the body. Thousands of fat people have depended entirely for reductions to normal weight, upon Marmola Prescription Tablets, which are made after the exact formula of the famous liquid Marmola Prescription. While taking these tablets for the reduction of fat, no dieting nor exercise are necessary, as a reduction of 10 to 16 oz. a day is accomplished by prevention as well as elimination of fat. Marmola Prescription Tablets are sold at all druggists or the Marmola Co., 833 Farmer Bldg., Detroit, Mich., at the uniform price of 75c for a large case. They remove the fat already the complexion and tone up the enformed, prevent its reforming, clear tire system.

NO FURTHER DEVELOPMENTS

No further developments have transpired in the proposed project for the inauguration of a summer camp for the boy scouts. In a telephonic conversation with one of the moving spirits in the scheme, it was learned that the movement was practically at a standstill, and would probably remain so until after the close of the Parliamentary Session, which will take place about Easter. The only hitch in the arrangements at present appears to be the reluctance of the militia authorities at Kingston to give their consent to the project. It is expected that this will be forthcoming atfer Easter when the Militia Department will have time to take the matter up.

The scheme is a new one in Scout history, and embodies a plan whereby the Boy Scouts of the country will be given an opportunity of attending a two weeks' camp, which will be conducted on a basis similar to that which pertains to the volunteers' annual field camp. Instructions in all kinds of Scout work, with a series of daily drills, thrown in, will be the order of the day.

THOUGHT COLD WOULD TURN INTO CONSUMPTION

LEFT LUNG GOT VERY SORE, HEART DID NOT FEEL ANY TOO GOOD.

Mr. Robert McLarnon, Sherville, Que., writes:—"I am writing to tell you an experience I had with a bad cold and a bottle of your valuable medicine. I was up in the lumber camps teaming horses, and I caught a very bad cold. I thought it was going to turn into consumption, for my left lung got very sore and my heart did not feel any too good. I came home and tried some different remedies but they did me no good. A friend told me about Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, so I tried it, and when I had taken two bottles my cold was gone. I think it is a great remedy, and will advise any one with a cold to use it. I can't praise it enough."

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup contains all the lung healing virtues of the Norway pine tree, which combined with Wild Cherry bark and other pectoral remedies, makes it one of the greatest known preparations for Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, and all Throat and Lung Troubles.

Put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; price 25 cents.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

BREWSTER'S MILLIONS.

The dramatiastion of George Barr McCutcheon's famous story, "Brewster's Millions" was presented at the Grand last night to a large and appreciative audience, whose enjoyment in the play was not in the least interfered with in the fact that the majority had read the book and were familiar with the story. With Louis Kimball as Monty Brewster and a thoroughly adequate caste, the dramatization was delightful and few productions seen here this season have been more enjoyable. Every fiction reader knows the details of the situation—how Monty Brewster by the conditions of his uncle's will is required to spend a million dollars in a year and to be penniless without a visible asset at the end of that time in order that he may secure seven millions. The many schemes he employs to work out this problem provide the fun of the play. For a while his task looks hopeless, as a show he backs turns out to be a winner, a stock speculation ends in more revenue for him, a selling-plater he bets on wins at 40 to 1, and as a climax he breaks the Bank at Monte Carlo. However, he is finally successful and everything ends happily. Louis Kimball's interpretation of Monty was thoroughly clever—his comedy methods are quiet and restrained and his conception of the part intelligent and pleasing. The supporting company was all that could be desired and the scenic equipment most lavish, the scene on Monty's yacht during a storm being decidedly realistic.

LOCOMOTOR ATAXIA

"My nerves were very bad, and I could not sleep at night, nor could I control my arms or legs," writes Mrs. Robert Bastard, Maxwell, N.B. "Dr Chase's Nerve Food cured me of what I believe was the early stage of locomotor ataxia or paralysis. I cannot describe what I suffered, but now I am entirely cured."

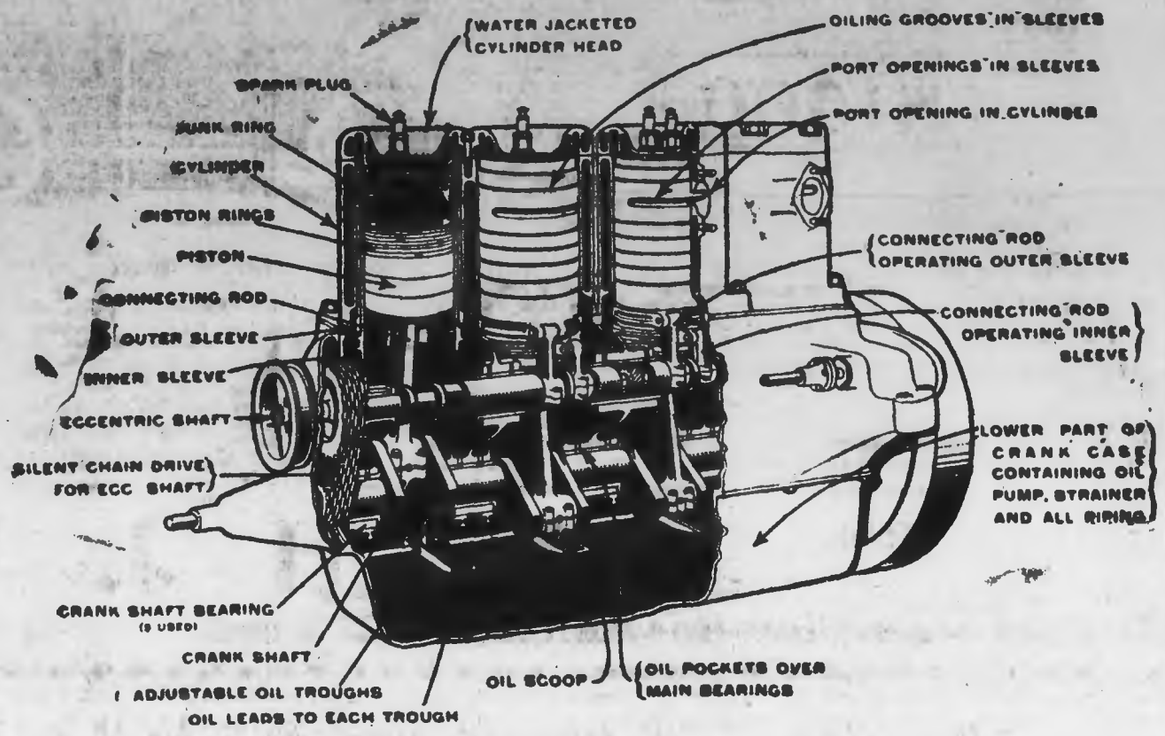
Here is the Construction OF THE Famous Knight Motor



Here Are the Reasons for Its Supremacy:

MORE Power, Greater Quietness and Smoothness, Greater Simplicity and Reliability, Greater Durability, Greater Economy in Fuel and Oil.

THE KNIGHT MOTOR has one-third fewer parts than any other motor of the usual type. Fewer parts means less wear and tear---less opportunity to get out of order.

The Knight Motor increases in efficiency under load.
It does not lose power at high engine speed.
It runs as smoothly at 50 miles as at 15.
It needs no tinkering.
There are no valves (in the usual sense) with their accumulation of carbon—no valve springs to weaken and break.

WE will send an interesting book, completely describing the working of this remarkable engine, now used by thousands of motorists, including practically every reigning monarch in Europe. The Russell car has the exclusive Canadian rights to this motor.

Three Knight Motor RUSSELL Models

Russell "38," $5,000 equipped. Russell "26," $3,850 equipped.
Russell "22," $3,000 equipped.
Also two-valve Engine Cars, $2,350 and $2,500.

HELD LUCKY NUMBER

Among the thousands who visited the Toronto Motor Show, the great majority took slips at the "O-Tak-A" Tire Remover booth, entitling them to a chance to secure one of the five removers that were given to those who held the lucky numbers which were set for them. Mr. J. J. Duffus received notification to-day that the number he received is one of the five and has been asked to forward his slip and receive the tire remover.

"The Hair and Its Care," Sent Free Upon Request.

The Herpicide Company wants everyone to have a copy of their booklet telling how to take care of and possess nice hair. The booklet contains much valuable information on the subject of saving and cultivating the hair.

If the present-day men and women would begin to live up to the teachings of this little booklet it is doubtful if the next generation would find a baldheaded man or lady wearing false hair.

It is just as easy to have robust and beautiful hair as to have thin, scraggy hair or no hair at all. If the scalp is kept clean and free from dandruff the hair grows naturally and luxuriantly.

The booklet tells how this may be most effectively accomplished by the use of Newbro's Herpicide. Herpicide destroys the germ which causes dandruff, frees the head from dirt and scurf flakes. The hair becomes light, fluffy and beautiful.

Newbro's Herpicide is the original remedy that kills the dandruff germ for which there are many imitations and substitutes said to be just as good. Buy nothing but the original.

All reliable druggists sell and guarantee genuine Herpicide in one dollar size bottles.

Send 10c. in postage to The Herpicide Co., Dept. E., Detroit, Mich., and a nice sample will be sent with the booklet.

THE "REO" SPECIAL

Stands as the ultimate production of the Reo Motor Car Co. of Canada. Designed by Mr. R. E. Olds, maker of the famous Oldsmobile Motor Cars and Olds Engines. The REO embodies all the refinement of construction, which adds to the joy and comfort of the owner. The REO is built in Canada and is essentially a Canadian Car. Its strong claims are:—Strength of Frame and Simplicity of Running Parts. It is a sturdy car, full of speed, with plenty of power. It is equipped throughout with the famous Timken Bearings, seldom found in any Car below the price of $2500. :: ::

The long wheel base and large wheels of the REO SPECIAL carry it along with the least possible amount of dipping and jolting. It is a light-weight car, and very easy on tires. Smaller tires would serve, and do serve on many rival cars, but these larger tires are more economical, so we supply them. With its lightweight and these generous tires, one's tire bill is very low.

EQUIPMENT—Touring Car includes the following equipment:— Nickel Trimming, Mohair Top and Side Curtains, Top Envelope, Folding Glass Front, Speedometer, Gas Head Lamps, Prest-o-Lite Tank, Self Starter, Electric Horn, Side and Tail Oil Lamps, Foot Rest and Robe Rail, Tire Irons, Pump, Tire Repair Outfit, Full Kit of Tools, Jack.

GREAT INTEREST IN TUESDAY NIGHT'S BOUTS IN GRAND OPERA HOUSE

The seat plan for the boxing bouts to be held in the Grand Opera House on Tuesday night, which bring together such well known mit artists as Artie Edmunds and Harry Westerby of Toronto, Tony Hudson of Detroit, and Kid Ryan of Rochester, opened this morning, and judging by the advance sale there will be a big turnout of fight fans for this classy programme. Although there was a good demand today there are a number of good seats still left and those who intend to go are advised to secure their seats as early as possible on Monday.

The main bout of the evening is the Edmunds-Hudson go, which promises to be a top-notcher. Edmunds is out to show the Toronto fight followers what he has. He has been handicapped in the past by injuries and is now right. He wants to give the Toronto sporting public a demonstration of what he can do before he leaves for New York. In Hudson, he will have a worthy opponent. The Detroit boy has a string of victories behind him that would make any boxer sit up and take notice, and if Edmunds hasn't about as busy a cup of tea as he has ever had, a good many Peterborough people will miss their guess. Both men have other bouts ahead of them and are in the pink of condition. They will go ten rounds.

The Westerby-Ryan affray which was to have been the main bout, will be a twelve-round affair and will be a hummer. Ryan's record includes a ten-round draw with Billy Allen, the Canadian lightweight champion, while Westerby's reputation has always been a good one.

The preliminary bouts will be of six ruonds each.

SPRING CURLING NOW IN ORDER

Six out of the fourteen games that are scheduled for the President and Vice President's competition were disposed of last evening. Some of the strongest rinks in the draw lined out on the ice, and some rattling good games were in order. A summary, at the finish, gave the victory to the Vice President's side, to the tune of six shots. The remainder of the games will be obliterated from the order book this evening, when the following rinks will muster out:

Draw for to-night.

President	Vice-President
W. H. Taylor	A. Moore
W. D. Campbell	S. T. Medd
Dr. Wightman	R. Neil
G. O. Maitland	D. Davidson
R. Harstone	G. B. Stevenson
W. M. Laing	W. J. Thompson
T. F. Matthews	R. M. Waddell
W. G. Morrow	R. G. Sturgeon

Following are the results of last night's play:

President	Vice President
J. H. Connal, 7	R. Hicks, 16
J. E. A. Fitzgerald 12,	G. H. Giroux 8
Adam Hall 13	J. W. McDermid 13
W. G. Read 11	H. Foote 7
T. E. B. Yeates 5	J. H. Ferguson 14
J. S. Knapman 12	T. Brightman 8

CONVENTION AT BETHANY TABERNACLE

Yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock, at the convention in Bethany Tabernacle, the Rev. Mr. Hamilton spoke about the people of India being by nature, just like the people of our own land, and the difference which we now see, being due to the Gospel.

At 3.30, Mr. Chandler spoke of Jesus taking His disciples apart for prayer, and how He led them up to the mountain top experience so that while they waited and prayed Jesus filled their vision.

At 4.15 Mr. Chandler addressed the school children, who gathered, on that which is most important—"Seek ye first the Kingdom of God."

At 8 p.m., Mr. Kuykendall spoke of his work in China and of the distressing conditions of revolution, pillage, famine and spiritual darkness of that land.

This afternoon Mr. Kuykendall spoke again on China, and Mr. Chandler spoke on "Does Jesus Heal Today?" and later spoke to the children.

This evening Mr. Hamilton will speak at 8 o'clock on India, and at 8.30 Mr. Chandler will speak on the second coming of Christ.

On Sunday morning Mr. Chandler will give a missionary address and a missionary offering will be taken.

At 3 p.m., Mr. Kuykendall and Mr. Hamilton will give missionary addresses.

Seats Are All Sold Out Until The First of June

New York People Will Have to Wait Months for a Chance to see "Bunty" so Great is the Popularity of the Play

Bunty Pulls the Strings must be a great play, as is evidenced by the phenomenal demand there has been for seats in every city which has been fortunate enough to be favoured with a visit by any one of the three companies now en toure. London, Eng., magazines have devoted scores and scores of pages to the play and the various characters in it, and owing to its remarkable popularity, the entire plan at the Comedy Theatre, New York, where the play is now running, has been sold out up to June 1st. This means that persons desiring to see this play in New York, who have not yet booked their seats are unable to secure same until after that date. At the Royal Alexandra Theatre, Toronto, where the same company that will visit Peterborough, is playing, the seat sale was opened a week earlier than usual, with the result that, during the first three days of the advance sale, over $7,500.00 worth of seats had been disposed of. In Montreal where the Company appeared the week of March 4th, so great was the demand for seats that the management of the Theatre were obliged to arrange for a special engagement the following week.

This Year's March Weather As Compared To Other Years

To-day is the 23rd day of March, but by the record of the thermometer this morning, 4 degrees below zero, and the appearance of the huge drifts of snow to be seen in the outskirts of the city and in the country, winter is still in full swing. As we have not had a genuine thaw during the winter, practically all the snow that has fallen is still with us.

At this date last year, the weather was quite sharp; sleighing was gone, but there were some three or four inches of snow in places. A snowstorm on April 2nd brought out the plows again, but by April 11th the last remnants of winter had gone.

The spring of 1910 was much earlier. All snow, except some drifts in secluded places, was gone on March 19. Robins and other birds were plentiful at this date. Some roads were dusty. Temperatures of 70 degrees in the shade were being recorded. April was fine and warm. May, however, was unusually cool, and growth was retarded.

Quite a snowstorm occurred March 24, 1909; the snow did not stay long, however, and was completely gone by April 8th. Sleighing had been poor all March.

In 1908 at this date there was a foot of snow still on the ground, and 1 degree below zero was recorded March 24th. Spring-like conditions came by April 1st.

On March 23, 1907, there was a thunderstorm. Spring was here in all its glory and lasted for several weeks, but snow came again—about the middle of April.

The spring of 1906 was out of the ordinary. Snow had disappeared by Feb. 15. Spring-like conditions prevailed until March 23rd when the thermometer took a tumble to 12 below zero (considerably worse than this morning.) Cold weather continued for several days. Fine weather began April 1st.

Over two feet of snow remained on the ground at this date in 1905. By the 1st of April it had disappeared.

Much the same conditions existed in 1904. The winter of that year was an exceptionally severe one.

March of 1903 was much like May usually is. Blackbirds, robins and bluebirds were plentiful after the 15th, and the watering carts were on their rounds.

Spring set in early in 1902, in fact it was the earliest spring since 1879. Cool conditions prevailed during May and June when warm weather was needed.

In 1901 the snow was gone by the last week of March. Several minor falls occurred during the following month.

In 1900, as well as the three previous years, four to six inches of snow was on the ground at this date.

In none of these years, however was there the depth of the beautiful so late as there is this "spring." As the season is now getting late it will probably go off with a rush when it does begin to move. Another ten days should see a marked diminution of winter's white mantle.—W. P.

SPLENDID SINGER FOR THE PRINCESS

Popular Theatorium Specializes in Pictures as Well

The management of the Princess Theatre have been successful in securing the services as vocalist of Mr. Edward Barton, one of Toronto's best known baritones, and he will be heard in solos at every performance in the popular theatorium.

Mr. Barton has been heard in Peterborough before and it will be welcome news to music lovers that he is coming to reside here. The Princess, however, does not specialize alone in music, but in pictures as well, showing the best line of films, both as regards beauty of photography and interest of subject, that has been seen here. Needless to say, it is a very popular amusement place. The enterprise of the management in securing such an accomplished singer as Mr. Barton should be, and no doubt will be, encouraged by the public.

ANOTHER VETERAN

Mr. A. S. Maguire, 100 London st., is another Fenian raid veteran whose name has not been previously published. When the trouble broke out he was at Titusville, Pa., and immediately came to Canada to engage against the raiders. He is a veteran of Point Edward. At the conclusion of the outbreak he returned to Titusville, altogether at his own expense. He has never made any claim as a participant.

HARD TO DROP
But Many Drop It.

A young Calif. wife talks about coffee:

"It was hard to drop Mocha and Java and give Postum a trial, but my nerves were so shattered that I was a nervous wreck and of course that means all kinds of ills. (Tea contains caffeine — the same drug found in coffee and is equally harmful.)

"At first I thought bicycle riding caused it and gave it up, but my condition remained unchanged. I did not want to acknowledge coffee caused the trouble for I was very fond of it.

"About that time a friend came to live with us, and I noticed that after he had been with us a week he would not drink his coffee any more. I asked him the reason. He replied, 'I have not had a headache since I left off drinking coffee, some months ago, till last week, when I began again, here at your table. I don't see how anyone can like coffee, anyway, after drinking Postum'!

"I said nothing, but at once ordered a package of Postum. That was five months ago, and we have drunk no coffee since, except on two occasions when we had company, and the result each time was that my husband could not sleep, but lay awake and tossed and talked half the night. We were convinced that coffee caused his suffering, so he returned to Postum, convinced that the coffee was an enemy. Instead of a friend, and he is troubled no more by insomnia.

"I myself, have gained 8 pounds in weight, and my nerves have ceased to quiver. It seems so easy now to quit the old coffee that caused our aches and ails and take up Postum." Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont.

NAMES FOR BALL TEAM

A number of new names have come in for the Peterborough Canadian League Club to-day. Among those received by the Examiner were "Pirates," "Blue Sox," "Thistles," "Lifters" and "Connaughts". ENDS INDIGESTION IN A FEW MOMENTS

Gas, Heartburn, Sourness and All Misery in Stomach Vanishes

Nothing will remain undigested or sour on your stomach if you will take a little Diapepsin occasionally. This powerful digestive and antacid, though as harmless and pleasant as candy, will digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood all the food you can eat.

Eat what your stomach craves, without the slightest fear of Indigestion or that you will be bothered with sour risings, Belching Gas on Stomach, Heartburn, Headaches from stomach, Nausea, Bad Breath, Water Brash or a feeling like you had awal- suffering now from any stomach disagreeable miseries. Should you be suffering no whrom any stomach disorder you can get relief within five minutes.

If you will get from your pharmacist a 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin you could always go to the table with a hearty appetite, and your meals would taste good, because you would know there would be no Indigestion or Sleepless nights or Headache or Stomach misery all the next day; and, besides, you would not need laxatives or liver pills to keep your stomach and bowels clean and fresh. Pape's Diapepsin can be obtained from your druggist, and contains more than sufficient to thoroughly cure the worst case of Indigestion or Dyspepsia. There is nothing better for Gas on the Stomach or sour odours from the stomach or to cure a Stomach Headache.

You couldn't keep a handier or more useful article in the house.

A NEW RAILWAY COMPANY

Application is to be made to the Provincial Assembly of Saskatchewan to incorporate a company to be known as the "Grand Trunk Pacific Saskatchewan Railway Company," with the following powers:

To lay out, construct, equip, maintain and operate in Saskatchewan the following lines of railway: From a point at or near the town of Watrous, south-westerly through or near the town of Swift Current to a point on the International Boundary between ranges 22 and 30 west of the third Meridian.

From a point at or near the city of Saskatoon westerly and north-westerly to a point at or near the town of Battleford.

From a point at or near the town of Melville northerly and north-westerly to a point at or near the city of Regina.

From a point at or near the city of Saskatoon south-easterly, southerly and south-westerly to a point at or near the city of Regina.

From a point at or near township 36, range 8, west of the third Meridian, south-westerly and westerly to join the Biggar-Calgary line.

The construction of this line would give Watrous a direct communication with the Pacific terminals, and would make that town much more easy of access from such large centres as the cities of Spokane, Seattle, Victoria and Vancouver, than is at present the case. This line moreover if built to run between ranges 22 and 30 would also tap three important States, Montana, Idaho and Washington, making connection with the towns and cities in the two Dakotas to the east and the principal cities to the west.

WORK OF THE TRANSCONTINENTAL

Authoritative testimony as to the character of the work done by the National Transcontinental Railway Commission as well as to the importance to Canada of their work was delivered by Major R. J. Leonard, Chairman of that body, at the annual banquet of the Brantford Board of Trade, held recently, where he was the guest of honour.

"The Transcontinental," he declared, "is being built in the best and most durable manner known. It is also of great military advantage, giving Canada an unlimited width, and, in spite of the millions that will be spent in its construction, the railway will prove a great national asset and of a liability."

With reference to the construction work in progress on the Winnipeg-Moncton section, Major Leonard announced that a further expenditure of $112,000,000 would be unavoidable. With few exceptions all of the 1,804 miles were under construction and there were between 400 and 500 miles of track still to be laid.

He hoped that, by the end of next autumn the line between Winnipeg and Cochrane would be completed, and by the ensuing season, the whole line with the exception of the Quebec bridge that would require an additional outlay of $12,000,000. Major Leonard also referred to the 400 miles of clay belt in Ontario, whose fertility was equal to anything on the prairies, and which would be so much nearer the sea by rail as to greatly enhance the value of Ontario lands.

C. P. R. Trains Collide Near Jackfish—Three Men Die

Peterboro Man was Badly Scalded and His Condition is Precarious—Settlers' Train and Freight Collide With Fearful Results—Mistake Made in the Orders

Toronto, March 25.—Three men were killed and three or more were seriously injured in a head-on collision which occurred between a freight and a settlers train on the C.P.R. line, Lake Superior division, near Amyot Station, 322 miles west of North Bay, on Saturday morning.

Jas. Smith, an engineer of Chapleau and John Loist, a trainman of Peterboro, on the settlers' train, were sent to the General Hospital, Toronto, where they arrived early yesterday morning. Smith was so terribly scalded that he died at seven o'clock last night. Loist was in an unconscious condition and badly scalded when he was admitted to the hospital, but at an early hour this morning there were hopes for his recovery.

Dead.

James Smith, engineer, Chapleau died in Toronto General Hospital last night.

—— Jamieson, passenger, Owen Sound.

—— Nyal, fireman, buried in wreckage.

Injured.

Engineer Looner.

Trainman Loist, Peterboro, in serious condition in Toronto General Hospital.

——Conley, a farmer, may not recover.

Misinterpretation of the train orders was the cause of the wreck, the second which happened within three days on the division. Both trains had orders to meet and pass at Birch Station, six miles west of Amyot. Instead of waiting the westbound settlers' train passed Birch Station, resulting in a frightful impact a few miles west. A number of cars were demolished, the tracks were torn up for a considerable distance, the engines were both battered into shapeless masses of steel and hurled clear from the tracks. Both trains were running at a rate of about 25 miles an hour. Shortly after C. P. Winnipeg train, No. 4, due in Toronto at 11:30 yesterday afternoon, was delayed over eight hours. It arrived at about midnight last night.

Smith and Leister were brought to Toronto, and the former was also accompanied by his wife, who stayed in the hospital until his death.

A fireman named Nyal on the eastbound freight train could not be located and it is believed that he was buried in the wreckage. Those who received minor injuries were attended to at Chapleau. Fortunately there were just a few settlers going west.

Seven cars of settlers' effects were destroyed and many horses and cattle were killed. The scene of the catastrophe is just 100 miles east of the Jackfish disaster which happened three days ago.

Government at Ottawa Wants to End Session on Saturday.

Ottawa, March 25.—Parliament is now on the home stretch and there will be a race against time this week to try to complete the session by Saturday. Both sides are anxious to wind up work, although the whips are none too hopeful of being able to clean off the order paper until possibly April 3 or 4.

At an all day session of the Cabinet on Saturday, the supplementary estimates were completed and will be presented to the House by Hon. W. T. White either to-day or to-morrow. There has been no hint as to the amount of the estimates, but it is believed they will be heavy. Among some of the more important items will be one for a liberal sum to start work on the new Welland Canal and for preliminary work on the Georgian Bay Canal.

The Government is also determined to push forward the Hudson Bay road. Two millions has already been voted for construction work and a large amount, it is understood, will be placed in the estimates to start work on the terminals so that by the time the road is completed, the harbors will be ready for a line of steamers running to England.

It is the intention of the Government to push work on the new Welland Canal. Supt. Weller, who has been placed in charge of the work on the new canal, is in Ottawa conferring with Hon. Frank Cochrane and a definite announcement as to the route which has been adopted will be made in a few days. Mr. Weller favors what is known as the Ten-Mile Creek route, and his recommendation will likely be followed. Work will start this spring.

It is the intention to build a canal which will be ultimately thirty feet deep and will be able to accommodate the largest boats on the great lakes. The construction of the canal will, it is believed, prevent western wheat going via the Erie Canal to New York, and will mean a saving to western farmers of two to four cents a bushel.

Crothers Is Firm.

Ottawa, March 26.—The ultimatum which Hon. T. W. Crothers, Minister of Labor, has laid down to the Grand Trunk Railway that he would oppose any further legislation for the road until it lived up to the agreement it made with its men is already producing fruit. Mr. Crothers has received word that Supt. Kelley of the Grand Trunk operating department will be in Ottawa to-day to take up the matter with him.

Two things Mr. Crothers is insisting upon: That the 136 men who were never reinstated by the company after the last strike be given an opportunity to return to work and that the recent announcement of a cut in wages be withdrawn.

Mr. Crothers stated last night that if the company does not come to time he will fight the present financial bill of the Grand Trunk when it comes before the House tooth and nail. It is, of course, a private bill, and not a Government measure, but Mr. Crothers is confident the majority of the members will support him in his stand.

Knox in Venezuela.

Caracas, March 25.—A whirlwind finish marked the last day of the visit of the American Secretary of State, Mr. Knox, and his party to the Venezuelan capital. He leaves to-day for Puerto Cabello. The Secretary drove yesterday morning to the residence of the Foreign Minister, Gen. Manuel Matos, where he was entertained. He had luncheon with the American mission, Elliott Northcott, at the legation. There were special races at the hippodrome, and later a reception and ball given by President Gomez at the Miraflores palace.

Foreign Minister Matos, in welcoming Secretary Knox, said that his visit meant closer ties of friendship and the development of commerce. The Secretary, in responding, said: "The volume of incoming and outgoing commerce between Venezuela and the United States is relatively larger than between Venezuela and any other country. Good will and mutual confidence will make it actually larger. Thus interest in Venezuela should increase.

Mimic Battle Is Fatal.

New York, March 25.—"I didn't know it was loaded" was the explanation which the police say 12-year-old Julius Maitland gave yesterday for shooting and killing Henry Lockhardt, nine years old, Saturday, during a "battle" in a vacant lot in the Bronx. The Maitland boy was arrested early yesterday morning while asleep at his home and locked up on a technical charge of juvenile delinquency.

Arthur Hawkes To Report.

Ottawa, March 25.—Arthur Hawkes, special commissioner of immigration, who returned a few days ago from his trip to England, has put in a report to Hon. Robert Rogers, Minister of the Interior, on the co-ordination of the immigration policies of the Dominion and the provinces.

BRITISH LABOUR SITUATION NOW APPEARS TO BE MORE HOPEFUL

Conference To-day Between Mine Owners and the Men is Expected to Bring an Agreement in Great Britain

CRISIS IN UNITED STATES

London, March 25.—A hopeful feeling prevails that the conference today between the coal owners and the miners will prove successful and bring to an end the strike which is affecting millions of people of the United Kingdom.

Several of the miners' leaders, addressing meetings yesterday, spoke more encouragingly than for a long time. At Gateshead, Joseph English, president of the Northumberland miners, said he believed that some understanding would be arrived at between the miners and coal owners with regard to the minimum wage.

Albert Stanley, M.P. for Staffordshire, secretary of the Midland Miners' Federation, and a member of the joint conciliation board of coal owners and miners, speaking at Stoke, thought that the end of the struggle was near.

James Haslam, M.P., agent of the Derbyshire Miners' Association, in an interview, also spoke hopefully, but said that it would be imperative to have a ballot of the men on any agreement, and that the miners could hardly resume work under another week.

The South Wales owners and miners are still skeptical. They believe that nothing will come of the conference. In North Wales the strike seems to be collapsing. Three hundred men, mostly members of unions, have returned to work in the colliery at Chirk. A similar disposition is apparent at other collieries.

The feature of the week-end has been the wild cry of protest against the arrest of Tom Mann, the labor leader, who is charged with having incited the King's forces "to commit traitorous and mutinous practices" by articles published in a Salford paper called The Syndicalist. At Glasgow, Liverpool, Huddersfield and elsewhere big demonstrations have been held in protest, and fiery speeches have been made denouncing the Government for invoking an obsolete seventeenth century law to suppress syndicalistism.

This Week Will Tell.

Cleveland, March 25.—A crisis in the coal situation determining whether more than 450,000 miners in the bituminous and anthracite fields shall strike on April 1, or suspend until new wage agreements can be effected, is expected this week.

Members of the executive board and policy committee of the United Mine Workers of America began to arrive here yesterday to prepare to draw up recommendations for a referendum vote by the union. They will not act, however, until after the operators and miners of the bituminous fields of Western Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois at their session here Tuesday have decided whether they can agree on a two-year wage scale.

John P. White, president of the union, and the district presidents yesterday considered a proposal that the bituminous miners drop all their demands except that for an increase in pay, and that they ask for five per cent. instead of ten. The compromise was not definitely agreed upon, but it was considered as a probability in view of the stand taken by the operators that they were not inclined to yield.

It was proposed that the single suggestion for a five per cent. increase be considered by both sides before it was taken into conference. Even if this plan was agreed upon, it was declared, it still would have to be adopted by the policy committee and then supported by a referendum vote.

The union officials are in doubt whether such a compromise would be approved at the referendum vote, since the full convention at Indianapolis several months ago expressly stood, not only for a ten cent. increase, but for many changes in conditions such as a reduction of eight hours a week in the working time.

The union officials say an agreeable adjustment of the bituminous dispute would have much influence in securing for the 175,000 anthracite miners a settlement of their differences.

Austrian Miners to Strike.

Prague, Austria, March 25.—The miners in the Aussig district have resolved to call a general strike on Tuesday. Thirty-six thousand men will be affected.

TAFT CRITICIZED BY ROOSEVELT

His Proposals Mean Boss Rule Says the Republican Candidate

THE PLATFORM COLLAPSES

Portland, Maine, March 25.—The most direct criticism yet levelled at President Taft by his predecessor in office was contained in a speech delivered here Saturday night by Col. Roosevelt. The colonel spent twelve hours in Portland and received a cordial welcome. He was the chief guest at a luncheon and a dinner, shook hands steadily for two hours in the afternoon, attended a conference of Maine politicians, and spoke in the evening for an hour before a crowd which filled the armory auditorium.

Col. Roosevelt repeated the statement which he made in his New York speech on Wednesday night that President Taft had declared in favor of government "by a representative part of the people."

"In its actual workings," he said, "the President's scheme would be a government of the people for the people by the bosses."

The collapse of the speakers' platform in the auditorium created some excitement, although Col. Roosevelt was uninjured. The platform, which was elevated about three feet from the floor, was crowded with about 30 persons. As Col. Roosevelt ascended the platform on entering the hall, it gave way with a crash. The middle portion sank to the floor. Col. Roosevelt stepped quickly to the front of the structure, which did not give way, and waved his hand at the crowd to show that he was uninjured.

As Col. Roosevelt entered the hall the people rose to their feet with a cheer. For two minutes the applause continued. When Walter E. Brown, president of the Roosevelt committee of Maine, introduced the colonel, there was another outburst of hand-clapping. Frequently during the speech he was interrupted by applause.

Col. Roosevelt named Senator Penrose of Pennsylvania, Senator Gallinger of New Hampshire, Wm. Barnes, jr., of New York, Congressman McKinley, of the President's campaign management, and Congressman Tawney of Minnesota, representing the chief present adherents of the President, and said that they were "precisely the men who under the President's theory, would be, as they to a certain degree already were, the 'representative part of the party of the people, which governs the rest of the people, and which does not really represent them at all, but misrepresents them.'"

The speaker added that the difference between what he termed President Taft's theory of government and Lincoln's theory, "explains why in so many matters the progressives do not feel that the President, however good his intentions can properly represent them or pay to progressive ideas the kind of loyalty which results in the translation of words into actions."

Both Sides Claim Indiana.

Washington, March 25.—Conflicting claims of the results of the Republican primaries on Saturday are made by the National Taft Bureau and the Roosevelt executive committee here.

Director McKinley of the Taft bureau last night issued this statement: "The latest advices from Indiana indicate beyond doubt that the Taft people control the state convention by a majority of at least 250 and will send four delegates at large instructed for President Taft on Tuesday, March 26. It is settled beyond any question that Taft will have 22 out of the 30 in the state.

Another Bomb For Judge.

New York, March 25.—Notwithstanding it has become known that the police are in possession of a second bomb mailed to Judge Otto A. Rosalsky of the Court of General Sessions, the trial judge in the Brandt case, detectives would not disclose on what clews they are working to solve the two mysterious attempts upon the life of the jurist.

The new bomb, which fortunately was detected in the mails and kept intact, coupled with threatening letters sent to De Lancey Nocoll, attorney for Mortimer L. Schiff, in the case of Folke E. Brandt, Mr. Schiff's former valet, are believed to have encouraged the police to renewed efforts in running down the sender. The latest bomb is said to be identical with that which exploded a week ago in Judge Rosalsky's library while being examined by an officer.

A list of bomb and dynamite outrages in New York from July, 1908, to date shows a steady increase each year with a grand total of no less than 102 attempts to take life or destroy property by such means.

Tried to Bunco Brantfordite.

Brantford, March 25.—The old Spanish prisoner game, in which an appeal is made for funds by an alleged Russian banker being held in jail and awaiting extradition, on the promise that, if financial aid is forthcoming, the benefactor will share an immense fortune, has been attempted on John McGraw, contractor, in this city. The game has been frequently exposed.

It is believed the game is being extensively worked throughout Ontario. Needless to say, McGraw declines to render assistance.

K·RYPTOK·
INVISIBLE BI-FOCAL
Why Look Older Than You Are?

Double vision glasses need not mar one's appearance. They need not make one look older, or cause embarrassment by being conspicuous.

KRYPTOK LENSES in your frame or Spectacle mount would be an aid to good appearance.

KRYPTOK LENSES—a recent achievement in optical science—comprise near view and far view lenses in an integral piece of glass.

They have an absolute smooth surface, and are entirely free from the seams, dirt-catching lines, cement and shiny appearance characteristic of old-style pasted double vision lenses.

KRYPTOK LENSES
are being eagerly adopted by all who require the best vision glasses or who have been using two pairs of glasses. They are good looking and in no way do they suggest advancing years.

LOST 45 POUNDS IN WEIGHT

NOW WEIGHS 125 POUNDS, THANKS TO "FRUIT-A-TIVES"

PLANTAGENET, ONT. Jan. 31st. 1910.

"About March 1st. 1909, I was taken deathly sick with Liver Congestion and Stomach Trouble. I failed from 125 pounds to 80 pounds and was confined to bed for eight weeks. The doctors said they could do nothing for me, and as a last resort, one of the doctors told me to try "Fruit-a-tives"—if they would not cure me, nothing would.

My husband bought some "Fruit-a-tives" and inside of ten days, I was able to leave my bed. My stomach got strong and I could eat and retain my food. Today, I weigh 125 pounds".

CHAPTER XXVI.
SWEETWATER RETURNS.

"You see me again, Miss Scott. I hope that yesterday's intrusion has not prejudiced against me."

"I have no prejudice," was her simple but firm reply. "I am only hurried and very anxious. The doctor is with Mr. Brotherson just now; but he has several other equally sick patients to visit and I dare not keep him here too long."

"Then you will welcome my abruptness. Miss Scott, here is a letter from Mr. Challoner. It will explain my position. As you will see, his only desire is to establish the fact that his daughter did not commit suicide. She was all he had in the world, and the thought that she could, for any reason, take her own life is unbearable to him. Indeed, he will not believe she did so, evidence or no evidence. May I ask if you agree with him? You have been Miss Challoner, I believe. Do you think she was the woman to plunge a dagger in her heart in a place as public as a hotel reception room?"

"No, Mr. Sweetwater. I'm a poor working girl, with very little education, and almost no knowledge of the world and such ladies as she. But something tells me for all that, that she was too nice to do this. I saw her once and it made me want to be quiet and kind and beautiful like her. I never shall think she did anything so horrible. Nor will Mr. Brotherson ever believe it. He could not and live. You see, I am talking to you as if you knew him,—the kind of man he is and just how he feels towards Miss Challoner. He is—" Her voice trailed off and a look uncommon and almost elevated, illuminated her face. "I will not tell you what he is; you will know, if you ever see him."

"If the favorable opinion of a whole town makes a good fellow, he ought to be of the best," returned Sweetwater, with his most honest smile. "I hear but one story of him wherever I turn."

"There is but one story to tell," she smiled, and her head drooped softly, but with no air of self-consciousness.

Sweetwater watched her for a moment, and then remarked: "I am going to take one thing for granted; that you are as anxious as we are to clear Miss Challoner's memory."

"O yes, O yes."

"More than that, that you are ready and eager to help us. Your very looks show that."

"You are right; I would do anything to help you. But what can a girl like me do? Nothing; nothing. I know too little. Mr. Challoner must see that when you tell him I'm only the daughter of a foreman."

"And a friend of Mr. Brotherson," supplemented Sweetwater.

"Yes," she smiled, "he would want me to say so. But that's his goodness. I don't deserve the honor."

"His friend and therefore his confidante," Sweetwater continued. "He has talked to you about Miss Challoner?"

"He had to. There was nobody else to whom he could talk; and then, I had seen her and could understand."

"Where did you see her?"

"In New York. I was there once with father, who took me to see her. I think she asked Mr. Brotherson to send his little friend to her hotel if ever we came to New York."

"That was some time ago?"

"We were there in June."

"And you have corresponded ever since with Miss Challoner?"

"She has been good enough to write, and I have ventured at times to answer her."

The suspicion which might have come to some men found no harbor in Sweetwater's mind. This young girl was beautiful, there was no denying that, beautiful in a somewhat startling and quite unusual way; but there was nothing in her bearing, nothing in Miss Challoner's letters to indicate that she had been a cause for jealousy in the New York lady's mind. He, therefore, ignored this possibility, pursuing his inquiry along the direct lines he had already laid out for himself. Smiling a little but in a very earnest fashion, he pointed to the letter she still held and quietly said:

"Remember that I am not speaking for myself, Miss Scott, when I seem a little too persistent and inquiring; you have been told the fact of her secret engagement to Mr. Brotherson and you have been witness to his conduct and manner for the whole time he has been separated from her. Do you, when you think of it carefully, recall anything in the whole story of this romance which would throw light upon the cruel tragedy which has so unexpectedly ended it? Anything, Miss Scott? Straws show which way the stream flows."

She was vehement, instantly vehement, in her disclaimer.

"I can answer at once," said she, "because I have thought of nothing else for all these weeks. Here all was well. Mr. Brotherson was hopeful and happy and believed in her happiness and willingness to wait for his success. And this success was coming so fast! Oh, how can we ever tell him! How can we ever answer his questions even, or keep him satisfied and calm until he is strong enough to hear the truth. I've had to acknowledge already that I have had no letter from her for weeks. She never wrote to him directly, you know, and she never sent him messages, but he knew that a letter to me, was also a letter to him and I can see that he is troubled by this long silence, though he says I was right not to let her know of his illness and that I must continue to keep her in ignorance of it till he is quite well again and can write to her himself. It is hard to hear him talk like this and not look sad or frightened."

Sweetwater remembered Miss Challoner's last letter, and wished he had it here to give her. In default of this, he said:

"Perhaps this not hearing may act in the way of a preparation for the shock which must come to him sooner or later. Let us hope so, Miss Scott."

Her eyes filled.

"Nothing can prepare him," said she. Then added, with a yearning accent, "I wish I were older or had more experience. I should not feel so helpless. But the gratitude I owe him will give me strength when I need it most. Only I wish the suffering might be mine rather than his."

Unconscious of any self-betrayal, she lifted her eyes, startling Sweetwater by the beauty of her look.

"I don't think I'm so sorry for Oswald Brotherson," he murmured to himself as he left her. "He's a more fortunate man than he knows, however deeply he may feel the loss of his first sweetheart."

That evening the disappointed Sweetwater took the train for New York. He had failed to advance the case in hand one whit, yet the countenance he showed Mr. Gryce at their first interview was not a wholly gloomy one.

"Fifty dollars to the bad!" was his first laconic greeting. "All I have learned is comprised in these two statemnets. The second O. B. is a fine fellow; and not intentionally the cause of our tragedy. He does not even know about it. He's down with the fever at present and they haven't told him. When he's better we may hear something; but I doubt even that."

"Tell me about it."

Sweetwater complied; and such is the unconsciousness with which we often encounter the pivotal circumstances upon which our future or the future of our most cherished undertaking hangs, he omitted from his story, the sole discovery which was of any real importance in the unravelling of the mystery in which they were so deeply concerned. He said nothing of his walk in the woods or of what he saw there.

"A meagre haul," he remarked at the close. "But that's as it should be, if you and I are right in our impressions and the clew to this mystery lies here in the character and daring of Orlando Brotherson. That's why I'm not down in the mouth. Which goes to show what a grip my prejudices have on me."

"As prejudiced as a bulldog."

"Exactly. By the way, what news of the gentleman I've just mentioned? Is he as serene in my absence as when under my eye?"

"More so; he looks like a man on the verge of triumph. But I fear the triumph he anticipates has nothing to do with our affairs. All his time and thought is taken up with his invention."

"You discourage me, sir. And now to see Mr. Challoner. Small comfort can I carry him."

CHAPTER XXVII.
THE IMAGE OF DREAD.

In the comfortable little sitting-room of the Scott cottage Doris stood, looking eagerly from the window which gave upon the road. Behind her, on the other side of the room, could be seen through a partly opened door, a neatly spread bed, with a hand lying quietly on the pitched coverlid. It was a strong looking hand which, even when quiescent, conveyed the idea of purpose and vitality. As Doris said, the fingers never curled up languidly, but always with the hint of a clench. Several weeks had passed since the departure of Sweetwater and the invalid was fast gaining strength. To-morrow, he would be up.

Was Doris thinking of him? Undoubtedly, for her eyes often flashed his way; but her main attention was fixed upon the road, though no one was in sight at the moment. Some one had passed for whose return she looked; some one whom, if she had been asked to describe, she would have called a tall, fine-looking man of middle age, of a cultivated appearance seldom seen in this small manufacturing town; seldom seen, possibly, in any town. He had glanced up at the window as he went by, in a manner too marked to excite her curiosity. Would he look up again when he came back? She was waiting there to see. Why, she did not know. She was not used to indulging in petty suppositions of this kind; her life was too busy, her anxieties too keen. The great dread looming ever before her—the dread of that hour when she must speak—left her very little heart for anything dissociated with this coming event. For a girl of seventeen she was unusually thoughtful. Life had been hard in this little cottage since her mother died, or rather she had felt its responsibilities keenly.

Life itself could not be hard where Oswald Brotherson lived; neither to man, nor woman. The cheer of some natures possesses a divine faculty. If it can help no other way, it does so by the air of its own light. Such was the character of this man's temperament. The cottage was a happy place; only—she never fathomed the depth of that only. If in these days she essayed at times to do so, she gave full credit to the Dread which rose ever before her—rose like a ghost! She, Doris, led by inscrutable Fate, was waiting to hurt him who hurt nobody; whose mere presence was a blessing.

But her interest had been caught to-day, caught by this stranger, and when during her eager watch the small messenger from the Works came to the door with the usual daily supply of books and magazines for the patient, she stepped out on the porch to speak to him and to point out the gentleman who was now rapidly returning from his stroll up the road.

"Who is that, Johnny?" she asked. "You know everybody who comes to town. What is the name of the gentleman you see coming?"

The boy looked, searched his memory, not without some show of misgiving.

"A queer name," he admitted at last. "I never heard the likes of it here before. Shally something. Shally—Shally—"

"Challoner?"

"Yes, that's it. How could you guess? He's from New York. Nobody knows why he's here. Don't seem to have no business."

"Well, never mind. Run on, Johnny. And don't forget to come earlier to-morrow; Mr. Brotherson gets tired waiting."

"Does he? I'll come quick then; quick as I can run." And he sped off at a pace which promised well for the morrow.

Challoner! There was but one Challoner in the world for Doris Scott,—Edith's father. Was this he? It must be, or why this haunting sense of something half remembered as she caught a glimpse of his face. Edith's father! and he was approaching rapidly, on his way back to town. Would he stop this time? As the possibility struck her, she trembled and drew back, entering the house, but pausing in the hall with her ear turned to the road. She had not closed the door; something within—a hope or a dread—had prevented that. Would he take it as an invitation to come in? No, no; she was not ready for such an encounter yet. He might speak Edith's name; Oswald might hear and—with a gasp she recognised the closeness of his step; heard it lag, almost halt just where the path to the house ran into the roadside. But it passed on. He was not going to force an interview yet. She could hear him retreating further and further away. The event was not for this day, thank God! She would have one night at least in which to prepare herself.

With a sense of relief so great that she realised for one shocked moment, the full extent of her fears, she hastened back into the sitting-room, with her collection of books and pamphlets. A low voice greeted her. It came from the adjoining room.

"Doris, come here, sweet child. I want you."

How she would have bounded joyously at the summons, had not that Dread raised its bony finger in every call from that dearly loved voice. As it was, her feet moved slowly, lingering at the sound. But they carried her to his side at last, and once there, she smiled.

"See what an armful," she cried in joyous greeting, as she held out the bundle she had brought. "You will be amused all day. Only, do not tire yourself."

"I do not want the papers, Doris; not yet. There's something else which must come first. Doris, I have decided to let you write to her. I'm so much better now, she will not feel alarmed. I must—must get a word from her. I'm starving for it. I lie here and can think of nothing else. A message—one little message of six short words would set me on my feet again. So get your paper and pen, dear child, and write her one of your prettiest letters."

Had he loved her, he would have perceived the chill which shook her whole body, as he spoke. But his first thought, his penetrating thought, was not for her and he saw only the answering glance, the patient smile. She knew that she was quite safe from the divining look; otherwise, he would have known her secret long ago.

"I'm ready," said she. But she did not lay down her bundle. She was not ready for her task, poor child. She quailed before it. She quailed so much that she feared to stir lest he should see that she had no command over her movements.

COULD NOT SWEEP FLOOR

Was So Terribly Afflicted With Lame Back.

It is hard to do housework with a weak and aching back, and no woman can be strong and healthy unless the kidneys are well.

The weak, lame and aching back comes from sick kidneys and should be attended to immediately so as to avoid years of terrible suffering from kidney trouble. Mrs. Harvey W. Brownell, Northport, N.S., writes:—"I now take pleasure in writing you, stating the benefit I received by using Doan's Kidney Pills. About a year ago I was terribly afflicted with lame back, and was so bad at times I could not sweep my own floor. While looking through your B.B.B. Almanac I saw Doan's Kidney Pills were a great remedy, so thought I would try a box or two. After using five boxes I was completely cured, and I am very thankful to have found so speedy a cure."

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50 cents per box, or 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont. In ordering direct specify "Doan's."

SHARP little critics the children are and hard to please sometimes; but they are easily satisfied with Tillson's Rolled Oats.

If all the food that children eat as they grow up to men and women had the same simple, wholesome, upbuilding character as Tillson's Oats, there would be fewer cases of dyspepsia and "nerves."

While your children are still children, encourage them to eat the simple foods. Of these none has more health in it, or more tastiness than Tillson's Oats.

Have it for breakfast tomorrow morning.

Oatmeal Muffins

To one cupful of cooked Tillson's Rolled Oats add one saltspoonful of salt, one egg beaten light without separating, two cupfuls of milk, one level tablespoonful of butter and one cupful of flour to which has been added one level teaspoonful of baking powder. Mix well, beating with a Dover egg beater. If necessary, put in greased muffin pans and bake in a moderately hot oven for at least 25 to 40 minutes.

A Modern Force in Business

ADVERTISING has established a new order of things in commerce. It has become a mighty power in business progress; a complex yet comprehensible transmitter of many parts for the distribution and selling of merchandise and service.

Its function is fivefold:

To enlighten or educate—to create new wants or to satisfy old ones—to protect and foster legitimate enterprise—to establish a medium of understanding between buyer and seller as a basis for mutual profit and advantage—to prescribe an economical price and the maintenance of a fixed standard of quality.

None know better than the buying public how well these functions have been fulfilled.

Modern advertising has given us an insight into various manufacturing processes. The producer has taken us, the consumers, into his confidence and told us just how his mince meat, his flour, his clothing, etc., is made. We know why certain things should or should not be. Advertising has told us—broadened our understanding and guided our judgment.

Modern advertising has enabled us to unlock the treasure house of the world's divinest melodies through the medium of the player-piano. The motor car has lengthened the business day and brought the fragrant countryside to our door. Men shave in comfort in ten minutes where they used to take twenty. A magic bottle provides us with cold drinks with the weather at 90 degrees or gives us a warm beverage when Jack Frost dips at 40 below.

Modern advertising has elevated the standard of business ethics. It protects the manufacturer from unscrupulous competition and the consumer from base imitation. It conserves trade—extends business—creates good will. It enables the corporation, the manufacturer or private individual on trial to take his case directly to the public, and to secure the public's judgment on his policy or character based purely upon their respective merits.

Modern advertising has opened up new opportunities to the oppressed and poor of far-off lands. It has turned an unceasing tide of immigration to new countries. It has developed nations, and made the name of the New World a promise of better things among the people of the Old.

All this advertising has done and will continue to do. It is the ever-increasing influence for the advancement of mankind—the most potent, indeed, of the many forces influencing human action.

Advice regarding your advertising problems is available through any good advertising agency or the Secretary of the Canadian Press Association, Room 503, Lumsden Building, Toronto. Enquiry involves no obligation on your part—so write if interested.

PEOPLE'S PULPIT.

Sermon by CHARLES T. RUSSELL Pastor Brooklyn Tabernacle.

PASTOR RUSSELL ON THE ATLANTIC

Discourses on Arabia, the Cradle of Mankind—The Ancient Garden of Eden.

Mid-Ocean, March 24.—On the Atlantic, speeding homeward, the Foreign Missions Investigation Committee 15 in communication by wireless. It is understood that arrangements have been made for a public mass meeting in New York's largest auditorium, The Hippodrome, next Sunday afternoon, to hear the report of this Committee respecting its findings. A full report of the same will be given in these columns. Pastor Russell's discourse to-day was reminiscent of Arabia as the Cradle of our Race. His text was: "As all in Adam die, even so all in Christ shall be made alive; every man in his own order."—I. Corinthians xv. 22, 23.

Arabia is accredited with being the ancient Eden, eastward in which was the specially prepared Garden wherein our first parents had their trial—not for a reward of heaven or a punishment of eternal torment, but for a reward of everlasting life under perfect earthly conditio or for a penalty of death. Here man, created very good, in the image of his Creator, sinned and became subject to the penalty of sin—"The soul that sinneth, it shall die." Here also is Mount Ararat, on which the ark rested after the flood, and from which came forth the family of Noah to people the earth afresh. Thus was Arabia twice the Cradle of mankind.

Here is the fertile Mesopotamia, which Father Abraham left at the Divine invitation, to sojourn in Palestine to the north, under promise to become the heir of Divine favor, the father of the faithful, whose now glorified Seed, the great Messiah, has already redeemed the world and is yet to take the Throne of earth and, during the thousand years, conquer sin and death and lift up from degradation and the grave Adam and his race.

This is the same Arabia made famous by the tales of the Arabian Nights, and where also is the tomb of Mohammed, whose followers rival in numbers the followers of Jesus and still trust in a promise made to Abraham, and, like the Jews, wait for the glorious appearing of Messiah. Like the Israelites they are blind to the fact that, before Messiah could bless and heal and uplift the world, it was necessary that He redeem them with His own life, and select from amongst men a spiritual class to be His Bride and joint-heir in His glorious Kingdom.

And now as the day draws near that the curse shall be lifted from the world, when "the wilderness shall blossom as the rose" and "the solitary place shall be glad," we behold this land of the most ancient civilization awaking. The ruins of its ancient cities, Nineveh and Babylon, are yielding to modern research the records of thirty-five hundred years ago, while modern engineers and modern capital are at work upon vast irrigation schemes costing millions of money, which they tell us will make that land fruitful and fertile as the Garden of the Lord. Are we not thus witnesses of the beginning of the long-promised "times of restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all the holy Prophets since the world began?"—Acts iii. 19-21.

When could we more appropriately consider the Divine provision for our race than when considering this land, the Cradle of our Race, where the fall took place, where the ruin began which has filled the earth with sin, selfishness, sorrow and dying? Ah, surely we greatly erred when we supposed that a greater penalty for sin was needed or intended by our Maker than the penalty we are experiencing. What more could man lose than our race as a whole has lost? Created in relationship with God as a son and heir of the appropriate blessings of the Almighty Father, Adam and his race lost that precious relationship—lost Divine favor, Divine communion, Divine care, and were plunged into death condemnation as strangers, aliens, convicts, tarrying in life merely to fulfil the verdict, "Dying, thou shalt die."

How sternly Divine Justice held to that verdict! How relentlessly, now zealously the forces of nature were allowed to play havoc with man in earthquakes, drouths, famines, pestilence and hereditary diseases! For more than two thousand years the great Heavenly Parent showed mankind only His Justice and naught of His Love. And then the first declaration of the Gospel—the first mention that Divine favor would yet rescue mankind from the reign of sin and death was made, not publicly, not to all of the race, but merely to one man—the friend of God—Abraham. To him it was disclosed as a secret that the great Creator, although permitting Justice to hold full sway in a relentless exhibition of Divine wrath against the sinner, had a loving purpose in His heart which would yet find expression and include all the human family in the blessing it would bring. How astonished we are to learn of such "A wideness in God's mercy,

Like the wideness of the sea!"

But God gave Abraham words only. "Wonderful words of life"—that in him and his posterity eventually all the families of the earth shall be blessed. But there was not a sign of change so far as the Divine dealings were concerned. Sin and death were still allowed to reign, and their reign was continued century after century. Since Abraham's day. Doubtless it was because God foreknew that approximately four thousand years would intervene before the blessing of the world that He added His Oath in corroboration of His promise. Saint Paul tells us that He so did in order that by these two immutable, unchangeable things—the Word of God and the Oath of God—we, who by faith are become the spiritual Seed of Abraham, might have strong consolation—we "who have fled for refuge to lay hold upon the hope set before us" in that Gospel Message which God gave to Abraham.

Centuries passed. Abraham and Isaac and Jacob, to whom that promise was successively made, all died; and Jacob on his death bed handed down the gracious inheritance of the wonderful promise to his twelve sons, who there became the nation of Israel. The foundation of Israel's hopes as a nation is that promise made to Abraham, in which they still trust. The spectacle of a faith triumphing for four thousand years is a glorious one, and it will shortly have its reward.

In due time, at Mount Sinai God entered into a Covenant with the children of Israel, by which He agreed to bless them and to fulfil in them the Abrahamic promise that they, as Abraham's seed, should bless all the nations of the earth. The only condition connected with the promise was that they were to show their fitness to be the Divine channel of blessing to the world and their obedience to the Divine Law which was delivered to them on two tables of stone. Full of joy and faith the Israelites obligated themselves thus.

Ah! much they knew not. They did not realize their own weakness and imperfection through the fall and their inability to fulfil the Divine requirements, the spirit of the Law of their Covenant. They soon found that while the Law said, "He that doeth these things shall live," they were not able to do those things; and therefore they were all dying like other men. Had God deceived them and entrapped them? No. God's proposition was simple enough. He was merely teaching them a great lesson—that sin as a disease had taken hold upon humanity and that, however willing they might be, all were weak and perverse in the flesh and unable to fulfil their good intentions.

As a consolation God assured Israel that He would send the Deliverer, One still greater than Moses who had delivered them from the Egyptian boudage. This greater Deliverer would deliver them from the greater bondage of sin and death, so that they would be able to obey the Divine Law and be used of God in blessing and instructing other nations. This Greater than Moses they were assured would inaugurate a New Law Covenant, based upon better sacrifices than the blood of bulls and goats, and He was known to them as Messiah, the Messenger of the New Covenant. In Him, therefore, they came to hope, for Him they waited; in the prospect of His coming they delighted.

But although the Law Covenant made nothing perfect—although it did not accomplish the thing Israel had hoped, it did accomplish much. It served to lift that one nation, religiously, high above all the other nations of their day, so that when the time came for God to send His Son into the world to be man's Redeemer—to die, the Just for the unjust, for man's reconciliation, as the Atonement for his sin—at that time there were a few thousand saintly Jews who waited for the consolation, the comfort, the blessing which God had promised them through Messiah—release from the bondage of sin and death.

Thus the Law was a pedagogue, a servant, to lead the Israelites to the Great Teacher; and at Pentecost and subsequently several thousand of them thus led entered the School of Christ—to be His disciples, to walk in His steps, to suffer with Him and later on, in due time, to reign with Him.

Moreover, during the sixteen centuries between Moses and Jesus a saintly class was manifested, all of whose names are written in the book of God's remembrance. It is not theirs to be the Bride of Messiah; it is not theirs to be counted in as members of the Body of Christ, which is the Church, for these members will follow the Head, none of them precede Him.

Those Ancient Worthies were not begotten of the Holy Spirit to a new nature to be new creatures in Christ, but "they had this testimony that they pleased God." They have the Scriptural testimony, therefore, that they shall be accounted worthy of "a better resurrection" than the remainder of mankind, although their resurrection will not be with the Bride of Christ—will not be the Chief Resurrection, to spirit nature, spirit bodies, etc. Those Ancient Worthies will come forth from the tomb after the completion of the Church, after her establishment in glory. They will come forth perfect men, of human nature, the image and likeness of God in the flesh, as was Adam. Great will be their degree of honor as they shall be used of Messiah as "princes in all the earth," for the blessing of Israel and all of every nation, people, kindred and tongue.

But Abraham was to have a still higher Seed, numerically less, for it is written, "Thy Seed shall be as the stars of heaven, and as the sands of the seashore." That superior Abrahamic Seed, "as the stars of heaven," a spiritual Seed, must be developed and glorified first, before the blessing can come to his earthly seed.

Saint Paul, explaining the situation, says that the Law Covenant was added to fill up the time between Abraham and the proper time for the spiritual Seed, The Christ. It "was added because of transgression"—because sin had abounded in the world and so degraded humanity that it was necessary to lift up as a standard of righteousness the Law of the Ten Commandments, to take the place of the Divine Law which was originally written in Adam's character. When he was created in the image and likeness of God Adam needed no "tables of Law to teach him right from wrong, even as God needs none.

Saint Paul explains further, saying, "Israel hath not obtained that which he seeketh for, but the election hath obtained it, and the rest were blinded" (Romans xi. 7.) Israel desired to be the Bride of Messiah—to have the very choicest blessings which God had to give. And Israel got that so far as its people were prepared therefor. The "elect" obtained it—a remnant of Israel, numerically small as compared to the whole, were found upon test to be "Israelites indeed in whom was no guile"; and these became the nucleus of Messiah's Bride class.

That every Israelite indeed might be found the Gospel Message at first was exclusively theirs, and the first Gentile convert, Cornelius, was not admitted to Divine favor in this respect until three and a half years after the cross. Yea, still later, when the Apostles preached the Gospel to every creature, to people of every country and nationality, as well as the Jew to whom it was originally confined, they still gave the Jew the preference up to the year A. D. 70, when the Jewish polity perished. St. Paul declared this publicly to the Jews, saying, "It was necessary that the Gospel be preached first to you, but seeing ye count yourselves unworthy of the grace of God, lo, we turn unto the Gentiles, for thus it is written in the Prophets."

We see, then, that the nucleus of the elect Church which should become the Bride of Christ at His second coming was Jewish, and that God's favor to the Gentiles was His permitting of them to come in and fill up the foreordained number of the elect Church, though only after all worthy Jews had been called and accepted. And now, as Jesus foretold, the Gospel or good news of His coming Kingdom is being preached in all the world "for a witness," to gather from every nation, people, kindred and tongue the saintly ones to be sharers with the Jewish nucleus in the great honor of becoming Messiah's Bride and joint-heir. We are to clearly distinguish between the witnessing of these matters amongst all nations, for the gathering out of an "elect" few, and the blessing of all nations under the Kingdom which will come later on. A failure to see this has caused confusion in many minds.

We must never lose sight of the kernel of this Gospel Message. The ultimate blessings of the Messianic Kingdom, through the Seed of Abraham, will be to all the families of the earth, but, previously, the Divine work is the calling of the Seed of Abraham, which is to do that work of blessing. The promise was not made to all the families of the earth but to Abraham and his Seed. Hence the heirs of the promise are not all the families of the earth, but the Seed of Abraham.

To the saints of Galatia, who had been Gentiles but had accepted Jesus and were trusting to become joint-heirs with God's dear Son in His Messianic Kingdom as members of His Bride Elect, Saint Paul writes, "If ye be Christ's, then are ye Abraham's Seed, and heirs according to the promise." (Galatians iii. 29. How strange that we should have lost sight of this great inheritance! With our Lord, as Abraham's Seed, we shall inherit the earth; as it is written, "I will give Thee the heathen for Thine inheritance, and the uttermost parts of the earth for Thy possession."

No wonder the Apostles frequently reminded the brethren of this great inheritance which God has in reservation for the faithful. No wonder one of them writes, "All things are yours, for ye are Christ's; and Christ is God's!" Adam and his entire race are to be turned over to Christ Jesus the Redeemer—purchased by His precious blood. Then we, as His Bride Consort, are to share with Him that great inheritance, and to colabor with Him in bringing order out of present confusion. Satan is to be bound; all the forces of darkness are to be overthrown and restrained. The light of the knowledge of God, as a glorious Sun of Righteousness, is to arise; and its healing beams are to flood the earth, carrying with them life, peace, joy, rest—to the Jew first, but eventually to every nation, people, kindred and tongue.

"Dr. Miles' Nervine Raised Me From the Grave"—Mrs. Taylor

This is a strong statement to make, but it is exactly what Mrs. Thomas Taylor, of Bloom, Texas, said in representing her opinion of this remedy.

"Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine raised me from the grave and I have much confidence in it. I can never say enough for your great medicine. If anyone had offered me $500.00 for the second bottle of Nervine that I used I would have said 'no indeed.'"

Why Grass Grows Hollow.

The stems of grass and oats are usually hollow, and the knots of nodes which occur at intervals and which have a peculiar degree of firmness, derived from the interlacing of fibers, give them a firmness and strength which they would otherwise lack. If the material of wheat straw were in a solid form it would make but a thin wiry stem, which would snap with great ease, but in the hollow form, with the intervening knots, the necessary support is afforded.

The Horsefly.

The horsefly is the most cruel and bloodthirsty of the entire fly family. He is armed with a most formidable weapon, which consists of four lancets so sharp and strong that they will penetrate leather. He makes his appearance in June. The female is armed with six lancets, with which she bleeds both cattle and horses and even human beings.

King Owns the Land.

In England the only absolute owner of the land is the King, since an estate is a recognised freehold interest in land.

A Folding Machine.

Over 11,000 circulars per hour can be folded in any conceivable form by a new patent folding machine.

Drops and Minims.

Drops vary in size according to the conditions under which they are produced. Some are large and some are small, some long and some short. The drop of the druggist is called a minim, of which 480 go to make a fluid ounce and 76,800 to make a gallon. An actual experiment in filling a one ounce measure will probably show that 400 drops make a fluid ounce. The average drop is 20 per cent larger than the minim.

Too Big a Pill.

The man in bed had never been sick before. The doctor, wishing to ascertain his temperature, pointed the thermometer at him and commanded, "Open your mouth, Jim."

"Wait a minute doc," objected the patient. "I don't b'lieve I can swaller that."—Judge.

Ill habits gather by unseen degrees, as brooks make rivers, rivers run to seas.—Dryden.

Ten thousand cubic feet of gas can be produced from one ton of coal.

She Lives the Longer.

According to insurance figures, when the wife dies first the husband will survive nine years, but when the husband is first to go the wife survives eleven years.

Hams and Bacon.

The English claim that the reason why their Wiltshire hams and bacon are better than ours is that we feed hogs on corn, whereas they feed them principally on skimmilk and barley meal. The German Westphalian ham ingives its peculiar piquant taste by the use of juniper berries in smoking the meat.

INDIGESTION GAS-WATERY RISINGS

Do you belch up gas?
Does your head feel light and dizzy?
Is your tongue coated?
Do you hawk and spit?
Have you distress after eating, and gnawing sensation in the stomach?
Is there a constant bad taste in the mouth, and a rush of blood to the head?

Do Not Despair

Nerviline is the best stomach tonic known to science—it cures every case promptly. By sending warmth and comfort to the tired organs that need assistance, Nerviline corrects fermentation and gas-belching, drives out dyspeptic pains, clears away bile and bilious feeling. The appetite grows enormous—you digest and assimilate all you eat—this means you gain reserve vigor and cast off depression.

NERVILINE will "set" you up—will make you well. Every doctor who has seen its formula is surprised how many ingredients of wonderful power it contains. Good for young and old, and safe to use at all times. Large 25c bottles, all dealers.

The Quest of Gentle Hazard

Being the Adventures in Love and Chivalry of Lord Richard Jocelyn.

By H. M. Egbert

Nelly of the Sluice-Gate

(Copyright, 1911, by W. G. Chapman.)

"Talbot," said Lord Richard Jocelyn to his servant as he put away his solitaire board, "do you know I have come to the conclusion that I have made an ass of myself?"

"Yes, sir," Talbot answered respectfully. "When, sir?"

"All the time I've been in New York," Lord Jocelyn answered. "Here I've been wasting my opportunities, falling into love and falling out again, and, in general, living the life of a loafer and an idler. Talbot, I'm sick of myself. I want to go somewhere where I can forget myself for awhile and see new people."

"Which I would recommend, sir, that you try the Hadirondacks," said Talbot. "They was recommended by a friend of mine."

"I don't want medicine, Talbot."

"Begging your pardon, sir, that hain't what you might call medicine hexactly, sir; they're a place up north where the rich folks goes for 'unting."

"The very thing I need," Lord Jocelyn answered. "Find out where they are and buy me a ticket, Talbot."

"Per'aps you might like to look in the hatlas, sir," said his servant. "Which there is one in some of those railway folders I bought, sir, when you was going to Craig's Peak."

"Go and get it, Talbot," said his master.

The servant disappeared and presently came back bringing a number of folders, and after searching among them for some minutes, he found and opened an imposing map of New York state. Lord Jocelyn took it and placed it upon his reading table, scrutinizing it carefully.

"I had no idea that New York state was such a big place, Talbot," he said. "It must be as large as Middlesex."

"Yes, sir; hindeed it must."

"Now, here's a beautiful little lake—Moose lake. There ought to be some fishing there. I like the shape of this lake, Talbot. I'll take a ticket to it."

That was how Jocelyn went to Moose Lake alone. After a night in a sleeping car he awoke one morning to find his car detached upon the siding of a tiny station in the heart of a primitive wilderness. He gathered his baggage together and descended to the platform, where he looked around in vain for any trace of a conveyance.

"You're for the sluice gate, mister?" asked the station agent, coming out of his house and regarding Jocelyn curiously.

"Now you mention it, I believe I am," said Jocelyn. "What sort of accommodation do they furnish there?"

The station agent grinned. "I guess Bill Farland can fix you for a few days," he answered. "But if you ain't written him you'll be apt to find only trappers' fare. That girl of his can cook, though."

"He has a good servant, eh?" asked Jocelyn.

"Servant?" repeated the station agent, laughing and slapping his leg. "Not much of it. Nelly's his daughter, and a fine girl. They'll do the right thing by you, mister, and you'll find Joe Porter the best guide in Oneida county."

"Who's Joe Porter?"

"Joe's his hand. It takes two men to manage that sluice now they're drawing off the Moose lake water to store behind the dam down the valley. Take that road, mister, for six miles straight as you can hike, and you'll see the sluice right before you."

Jocelyn looked down at his baggage. "I reckon I can send them on by nightfall," said the agent. "My cart's out this morning taking stone to the dam. It'll be back by noon and I'll send your grips right over."

The journey was a pleasant one and Jocelyn, breathing in the fresh air, ringed with the odors of fir and balsam, felt like one transformed. As he strode on, whistling from sheer happiness at the transition from his stifling apartment on Madison avenue, he mentally resolved that, whatever fortune might have in store for him, never again would he prove susceptible to feminine wiles. Here in these profound solitudes he would attune himself to a new mood. Life should be more than philandering for him thenceforward.

The sun was still low in the eastern sky when he reached the sluice gate. Bill Farland's cabin stood perched upon a small knoll almost overhanging the lake, which now roared through the opened gate and plunged down into the valley beneath.

The guardian of the gates came forward, seeing a stranger, and when Jocelyn explained the purpose of his visit, greeted him warmly.

"Come up for the fishing?" he asked, grasping his hand. "Sure, I guess we can fix you up all right. I'd guide you myself, but I've been feeling kind of out of sorts the last few days—guess it's a touch of fever. But Joe knows where the trout lays, and he's the best guide in these parts. Come inside, mister."

In this way Jocelyn's holiday began. As a guide Joe Porter proved to be all that had been predicted. A stalwart countryman, quiet, uncommunicative, he showed Jocelyn many a pool and stream where monster fish lay lurking, and each day, as Jocelyn strode at his side or followed him along the forest trails, he felt the blood coursing more swiftly through his veins and a newer zest for life.

And in the evenings many a yarn would be spun round the camp fire while the water, rushing through the sluice gates, kept up an undercurrent of monotonous sound. Then Jocelyn would tell of his adventures by land and sea; stories of tiger hunts in India, of service in Egypt, of all the crowded incidents of his three years' career as a lieutenant in the Guards. To Nelly Farland he seemed amazing; even his stories of New York and London left her with staring eyes and quivering breath, for she had never been twenty miles from this forest settlement in which she was born, and those things had never been revealed to her save as stories in books. And here was one who had actually traveled in other lands and brought back his impressions at first hand! Jocelyn gradually addressed himself more and more to her; he fell into the role of mentor; at last, interested in her, he began to plan a future for her, spoke of the possibilities of her obtaining an education. But their talks always ended in a strange silence which disconcerted him, and they would sit gazing at the water as it rushed through the sluice gates underneath. And one evening when they were sitting thus alone, after the silence had lasted for a longer time than usual, Jocelyn suddenly perceived that the girl was crying.

"Why, Nelly," he said, half joking, half reprovingly, "what is the matter?"

She turned away and buried her face in her hands, weeping more bitterly. Overcome with sympathy—no more, he would have sworn—Jocelyn placed one arm around her in kindly fashion.

"Now, Nelly, tell me all about it," he said. "Why are you always unhappy after I have been talking to you? Is it my fault?"

She raised her head and looked at him tragically, nodding her head slowly. Jocelyn was overcome with consternation.

"What have I done?" he asked.

"I don't know how to tell you," she answered, drying her eyes. "But things seem so different now than before you came. I didn't know them—"

"Didn't know what, Nelly?"

"All these things that you have been telling me," she burst out. "I didn't understand how ordinary we are, I guess; I thought all folks was like us, more or less, except the rich ones, millionaires and such like, that come to the summer hotels round about and run round in their automobiles. And you've told me I'm common and uneducated and—"

"My dear Nelly, I didn't say that," said Jocelyn in expostulation. "When I spoke of an education I meant a higher one."

"That's just it," sobbed the girl, her grief breaking out anew. "I'm low. And father's low, too, and Joe Porter."

Jocelyn, almost terrified by the wildness of her grief, gathered her into his arms and tried to console her. She laid her head upon his shoulder and sobbed unrestrainedly. At last he released her and she ran back into the cottage, leaving him, in great perplexity, standing upon the lock and watching the roaring torrent beneath him.

His thoughts were in a turmoil. Love for the girl had never entered his heart, he knew; what he was acutely conscious of was a sincere pity and much self-blame. He had little anticipated such a result as this from his talks with her. At last, breaking off the train of his cogitations in disgust, he went to bed, registering a mental vow to be more circumspect in future.

On the following morning Bill Farland's fever, which had prostrated him for an entire week, took a turn for the worse, and it was decided to summon a doctor from the nearest town. One of the lumbermen who occasionally came into the camp volunteered to send a telegram from the depot. Meanwhile, in accordance with their arrangements, Jocelyn and Porter set out upon a two days' journey to a famous trout stream in the district, where it was hoped that many monster fish would be secured. The men started late and camped that night beside the pool. Porter had seemed to be more uncommunicative than ever that day, but Jocelyn was not prepared for the denouement of the morrow.

Porter awakened him at dawn and led the way along the trail by the lake's margin to where a boat lay in the underbrush. He dragged it to the margin of the water, motioned to Jocelyn to enter, rowed him out to the middle of the lake, and then, as Jocelyn unwound his line, stopping the oars, found tongue.

"I seed you t'other night with Miss Nelly, Mr. Jocelyn," said Joe.

"Indeed?" replied Jocelyn, casting diligently.

"I seed you with that girl, Mr. Jocelyn," the guide repeated. "I seed your arms around her. And, begging your pardon if it's a liberty I'm taking, sir, there's a question I would like to ask you."

"Go ahead," said Jocelyn, catching his fly in a bunch of weeds and reeling in his line.

"Do you mean honest by her, Mr. Jocelyn?" asked Porter, his eyes fixed steadily on Jocelyn's face.

"Meaning—?"

"I ask you whether it is your purpose to marry her, sir. You may have known that some words have been said between me and her upon that subject. It was our intention to get married next fall. I'm not a gentleman as you are, Mr. Jocelyn, and I guess my ways is as rough as my clothes, and if the child thinks more of you than she does of me I don't have no hard feelings toward her. But it don't seem somehow natural to me, sir, that a rich city man such as yourself would want to marry a girl of poor mountain folks like hers. And so I ask you again, sir, whether you intend to marry her."

"Nothing has been said or suggested about our marrying, Porter," Jocelyn said calmly, but no longer making any pretense of casting. "Miss Nelly was distressed and I was trying to soothe her."

Porter nodded his head slowly.

"I'm country bred, Mr. Jocelyn," he said, "and I don't know city folks' ways. But what I say is this—" and he brought down his fist into his palm with a resounding thump—"when a gentleman puts his arms round a girl and says no word about marrying her, why, he don't mean no good by her."

"Well, what are you going to do about it, Porter?" asked Jocelyn.

"This is what I'm a-going to do, sir," answered the guide. "You're going to leave by tonight's train."

"I'll be damned if I do," said Jocelyn.

"And I'll be damned, in this world and the next, if you don't," said the guide. "For you'll never speak to that girl again, if it means murder. You think you're a fine hero with your tales of the battles you've seen and you're just a common lump of mud."

Jocelyn wound up his line and disjointed his rod.

"Since you seem in an unpleasant mood, Porter," he said, "you may take me home."

"I'll take you to the shore," the guide rejoined, "and I'll put you on the road to the depot and bring your things in time for you to catch the train."

Jocelyn returned no answer and the guide, bending to his oars, pulled the boat to the bank and grounded her. Jocelyn stepped out and the men stood facing each other.

"Well," Porter asked, "what is it to be?"

But before Jocelyn could answer a figure emerged through the underbrush and hailed them, stopping just within shouting call. It was the station agent.

"Keep back," he shouted. "You got to go back to the sluice gates, both of you, and stay there till fresh orders come."

"What do you mean?" cried Jocelyn. "Whose orders?"

"Board of health's," shouted the agent. "Bill Farland's sick with the smallpox and you're all quarantined. The doc seen him yesterday night and posted quarantine notices. Keep back, keep back; I ain't going to risk my life. Go back to the gates. It's a tiger in prison if you break quarantine."

He disappeared upon the run. For awhile the two men stared at each other in silence. At last, beckoning to Jocelyn to follow him, Joe Porter took up his pack and preceded him along the trail homeward.

They reached their destination at nightfall and found a horse and buggy beside the sluice and a doctor there, chafing at the delay.

"You've heard the orders," he said. "You'll both have to stay here till quarantine's removed. It's a mild case and there won't be any danger of his dying. I'll be back in a week to see what progress has been made. Now bare your arms; I'm going to vaccinate you both."

Before leaving he explained that Nelly had received full instructions how to take care of her father. The disease must run its course and required no special treatment; anyhow, it would be impossible to give any unless a trained nurse were sent from Utica, and in that rough cabin she would be but little more efficacious than Nelly herself. After a few minor instructions, and having told them that the quarantine would probably remain in force for at least one month, the doctor jumped into his buggy and drove rapidly toward the depot.

As the two men stood somewhat sheepishly outside the cabin, Nelly emerged. The girl appeared transformed; the crisis seemed to have produced in her a store of resolution and resource.

"I'm going to take charge, Joe," she said. "You better start a fire. Mr. Jocelyn, you'll help us, won't you?"

But into Jocelyn's head the germ of an idea had come. He had wronged both Joe and the girl; if unconsciously so; now it was his duty to remedy the wrong so far as lay in his power. And just as Nelly had been attracted to him in his stories of heroic deeds, so now he could change her admiration into contempt by displaying quite opposite qualities.

"I'd like to help," he stammered, "but I don't go inside that cottage, Miss Nelly."

"Why?" she asked, looking at him in surprise.

"I'm—I'm afraid of smallpox," he muttered. "Isn't it very catching?"

"He Ain't Goin to Die, is He?" Asked Porter.

He saw Joe Porter looking at him in wonder.

"You won't help my father?" asked the girl in astonishment. "You're not afraid, Mr. Jocelyn?"

"I'm not going to risk my life," said Jocelyn sheepishly. "I'm a visitor here and I pay. If I were in Joe's place it might be different."

The girl turned on her heel without a word, leaving him standing there. Joe set about making a fire; then he prepared the meal, while Jocelyn sat beside the sluice gates and watched the torrent roaring beneath him. During the supper nobody spoke a word. But afterward, when Joe had gone inside the hut to speak with the sick man, Nelly turned to Jocelyn suddenly.

"You—wasn't you joking?" she faltered, turning upon him a look full of anxiety. Her blue eyes were distressed and tearful.

"Not by a jugful," Jocelyn answered, drawing back from the fire. "Keep back, Miss Nelly. You might have caught some of the infection."

"O, I ain't a-going to catch you, Mr. Jocelyn," she answered with intense scorn. "Don't be afraid of me. You shall be looked after. Mr. Paying Guest, just as though father wasn't sick and likely to die—don't let that trouble you." And she swept back into the cottage.

No man likes to assume the coward, and Jocelyn was sorely tempted during the days that ensued to go back upon his purpose and display his proper qualities. Then, too, with this new strength that had come to the girl during her time of trouble, she seemed to have acquired fresh charm and dignity. Her very looks of scorn increased the young man's admiration; her courage and cleverness impressed his mind. Jocelyn knew these symptoms from of old time; he was falling in love with her.

So the more temptation came the more assiduously he played his part. He shrank from her and from Porter as though he feared the contamination of the disease. He slouched, a lonely figure, about the neighborhood, unspeaking, unspoken to. Porter himself seemed to share to the full the girl's resentment, though once or twice Jocelyn, catching his eyes unexpectedly, seemed to detect a puzzled look in them, as though his secret were not wholly unsuspected. One thing he could do, however, and that was to supply the camp with fish. He fished diligently, bringing in good catches each evening which he would fling down at the threshold of the cottage, keeping as far away as possible. And at night, taking his blankets, he would remove as far as he could from the danger zone to rest under the stars.

On the sixth day the doctor came again. The patient had progressed admirably; much of his time he had spent in the cabin. He seemed on the highroad to recovery, but none was prepared for the physician's encouraging words.

"He ain't goin' to die, is he?" asked Porter, while the girl hovered near in breathless anxiety.

"Die?" cried the doctor. "Why, he's nearly well. He'll be well in a week. You can let him go about his regular business now; it's as mild a case as I have ever known."

"And when will you remove the quarantine?" asked Jocelyn anxiously. "I want to get home."

"Come here," said the physician, beckoning to him mysteriously. "Where do you live?"

"New York," said Jocelyn.

"If I let you into a secret you won't give me away?"

"I promise you."

"It won't do for a doctor to admit he's mistaken, and I've got to keep the quarantine up a while longer on that account. But if you don't mind walking twenty miles down the line, so as to take a train at the next station, you can go now. My diagnosis was wrong. It's only chickenpox. Mind, not a word."

"I promise you," said Jocelyn heartily. "By the way, what will your bill be?"

"O, about fifty dollars," answered the doctor.

"How's he going to pay?"

"Bill Farland? O, he'll work that off during the fall, I guess, lumbering."

"Send in the bill to me," said Jocelyn, and gave the doctor his card.

"So you're going to leave us?" asked Joe Porter that evening, as Jocelyn, once more attired in the garments of city life, gathered a few indispensable belongings into his carry-all. "Doc said you could go?"

"He said if I walked to the next station he thought there wouldn't be much danger," Jocelyn answered.

"And these things of yours?"

"Keep them—give them to Mr. Farland when he gets well. I won't need them."

Joe Porter strode up very close to him.

"Mr. Jocelyn, you think you're wise," he said, "but I guess I seen through your game this time."

"What game?" asked Jocelyn indignantly.

"You wanted to square me with Miss Nelly. At first I thought you was afraid and so I watched you. I watched you when you didn't think I did and I saw how you'd march right up to the door at nights when you thought us abed and then march back along the dam, as though you wasn't afeard of nothing. And then today when the doctor come you wasn't afraid to stand at my side and listen to him. And them blankets of yourn, Mister—why, you must ha' known that Bill had been sleeping in them all last week.

"I said some things to you I'm sorry for," continued Porter, holding out his hand. "But if you'll say you've no hard feelings I'll feel easier like. I know a man when I sees one, Mr. Jocelyn, and you're white clean through."

Jocelyn grasped his hand warmly.

"Good luck, old man," he said. "I've left the field to you. And let me know when the wedding comes off, because I want to send you a letter of congratulation."

And it came, two months later, in the form of the finest trout rod that Lord Jocelyn could procure in New York City, together with a gold bracelet for the bride.

JOHN W. GATES AND THE CAB

Little Gambling Episode in Which "Watch-Me" Was Able to Say "You Lose" Three Times.

A Gates anecdote that never got so far as it deserved, if it was true, was about his riding down town from a New York hotel in a cab with a stock market friend.

"I'll match you," said John Watch-me, "to see whether you or I buy this horse and cab from the driver, if it's his."

It was cabby's, so they matched and John Watch-me had the satisfaction of saying, "You lose." The bargain struck, John Watch-me had another proposition to offer the new owner.

"Now I'll match you," he said, "to see whether you keep the outfit or whether you sell it back to cabby at his own price." And once more John Watch-me said, "You lose."

Here it dawned upon Gates' companion that in the last match John Watch-me had stood no chance to lose, whichever way it went, and he made remarks.

"All right," said John Watch-me, "I'll match you to see whether you or I stand the difference between the buying and the selling price." For what he had just sold cabby would only give a buying price that was just $100 less. This was the stake in the last match, and for the third time John Watch-me was able to say, "You lose."

Violin Was a "Find."

Gaylord Yost, violinist, has a valuable violin which he acquired under interesting circumstances. His story of the "find" as told by himself follows:

"One day in Berlin, as I came out of one of the music stores I was stopped by a couple of gypsies. They had at least a half dozen violins caught up loosely by the necks. Some were stringless, cracked and dirty. They asked me if I wanted to buy a violin cheap and I replied that I was always looking for good violins. Meanwhile I had scanned the violins and I observed one with very artistic lines and workmanship, good varnish, but in bad repair. I asked him how much they wanted for that one and they replied 120 marks. Of course I could not try the violin in the street so I gave them my card and told them to call in the afternoon. As soon as I placed the bow on the strings I realized what it was. I finally got the violin for 70 marks. I guess it was cheap. Would I sell it? Well, hardly."

No More Pudding.

Margaret, a little girl of four, was visiting her grandparents. There were a number of aunts who were somewhat careful of her looks as well as morals. When ready to go home Margaret said: "When I get home I'm not going to wash my feet, I'm not going to say my prayers, and I am not going to put pudding on my face."

HARD TO PAY THE TAXES

French Deputy Runs Afoul of Red Tape When He Tries to Get on Tax Roll.

Jean Javal, who was elected deputy of the Seine division of the Yonne department in France in 1910, bought a house in Seine just after the election.

Discovering a few days ago that he had never paid any taxes on the property he looked up the list and found that his name had never been placed there.

As no self-respecting socialist-radical republican deputy would care to avoid such an obligation, and not forgetting the weapon non-payment of taxes would give to his opponents in a future election, M. Javal wrote to the authorities asking to be inscribed on the list.

The letter was returned with the notification that his request could not be considered unless it was sent in on stamped paper, with a 60 centime (10-cent) stamp.

Not a Cheap Building.

It has been estimated that to rebuild the pyramid of Cheops under modern conditions an expenditure of $100,000,000 would be necessary and the labor of 40,000 men for two years required.

It has been calculated that the work really required the services of 100,000 men for thirty years.

The pyramid occupies a space of twelve and three-quarters acres, is 746 feet high and contains about 143,315,000 cubic yards of stone and granite.

The material alone represents an item of $36,000,000, while the labor would increase this amount to $72,000,000. To this must be added $3,000,000 for tools, transportation, and similar items.

The pyramid is built on a solid rock 150 feet deep, and to build a foundation of this character would add to the cost to the extent of making the total of $100,000,000.—Scientific American.

Wisdom From the Bench.

In London the other day Judge Willis of the London county court died and many of his acts and sayings are being recalled by the English press. Here are a few of his wise remarks: "One of the happiest times of a woman's life is while she is looking after children who are down with the measles." "Give up the Latin, sir," he sternly corrected a witness who referred to his mater, "and call her mother. There is no sweeter word in the language, nor one so consecrated by time." "Happy is the nation," he once exclaimed, "whose people marry young." Though he did not borrow money himself, the judge once said: "Don't be afraid of your debts; write them down, carry them with you, look at them occasionally and smile on them."

A Professional Paradox.

The study of science is not necessarily all gray; it may have its rosy patches. It is said that a learned professor of Heidelberg forbade his students the repetition of a certain experiment.

"But," they protested, "it has always been successful."

"Nevertheless," he said, "its position among experiments is absolutely untenable from an intellectual point of view."

The boys stared.

"The thing may answer very well in practice," said the professor, "but it is not sound in theory."—Youth's Companion.

Affection by Proxy.

"I find that my husband has been having the office boy call me up every day and murmur terms of endearment. That's a nice way to fool his wife. He's been going to the ball game."

"How is it that you didn't catch on to the voice?"

"Well, I'm busy at bridge every day, and I've been having the cook answer the telephone."

THE EVENING CHIT-CHAT

By Ruth Cameron

IF all the wise and clever sayings, all the [illegible]ful solutions of vexed problems, all the admirable literary productions and brilliant plans and ideas which come to us in that beautiful borderland time between walking and sleeping, could only be remembered and utilized in all their pristine brilliancy the next morning, what a wonderful world of clever people this would be!

There is a certain question which I have never solved entirely to my satisfaction—perhaps you will be glad to know that questions really do exist which I do not feel competent to decide — and that is, whether all these thoughts really are so tremendously brilliant, and seem foolish the next morning only because we cannot fully recall them, or whether they really are foolish and seem so brilliant only because they come to us when we are half asleep and not capable of judging clearly.

Personally, I am inclined to the latter rather pessimistic hypothesis, but I know many people who hold the former. One very persistent optimist, for instnce, who was a writer by profession and was in the habit of thinking of the most wonderful plots and the wittiest conversations for his characters just as he dropped off to sleep, none of which he could remember the next morning, always used to argue with me that the ideas really were wonderful, and if he could only have a stenographer handy to take them down, he could surely have every magazine in the country eager for his stories.

Incidentally, this person has since married a stenographer, so I suppose we may expect some wonderful productions from his pen in the near future.

[illegible]

Coleridge, as you will remember, brought that beautiful fragment Kubla-Khan, back from dreamland with him. Who knows but that dreams and their twin sisters, the borderland inspirations, may not be a wonderful undeveloped source of power and efficiency which the psychologist shall some day teach us to utilize? Isn't this an opportunity for the efficiency engineer to join forces with the psychologist and find some way by which we can crystallize these brilliant ideas, so that they will stand the strain of morning light without disappearing?

Or, are they like those beautiful little dew-spangled cobwebs that the summer night lays on the grass—in the days of long ago, I used to pretend that these were jewel spangled scarfs which the fairies wore in the intervals of the dance, and sometimes left behind in their haste when they fled at down—are these borderland inspirations, I say, as incapable of retaining their form and beauty under the sunlight as the fairies' scarfs?

You see I am back again to my original question. It is a maze from which I cannot seem to escape unless some wiser friend can give me the clue that will lead—unlike poor Rosamond's—to the light of day.

"Now what on earth does all this mean?" I can hear some practical person exclaiming. "There must have been something the matter with Ruth when she wrote that."

Cheer up, my friend, it may not please you, but I know there will be some foolish dreamer like myself, who will know what I'm trying to say. You see, I was just trying to put some of those borderland thoughts on paper. And to-morrow, I promise you, I shall be as practical as you please.

MURDER OF PARISH SEXTON

A Vicar Under Arrest on the Charge Believed to be Innocent.

The mystery of a village church lies behind the arrest of the Abbé Laroue, the respected vicar of Igornay, on the Loire, in connection with the murder of the parish sexton as the latter was going to ring the angelus. Th exexton, an old man named Dessertenne, was found by children the following morning with his head battered in at the foot of a savings amounting to about $100 which he always carried about with him, were gone. A soldier named Leroux on being arrested some weeks after is alleged to have made a statement, following on which the Abbé Laroue and a young man named Crillot, who had formerly been in the Abbé's service, have been arrested. The villagers firmly believe in the innocence of their vicar, who is generally beloved. The Abbé is immensely popular with the farmers and the peasants, it is stated, refused to lend the police a conveyance of any kind to take him to prison at Autun.

Had Boils On Neck and Arms.

Had Them Lanced But, Got No Relief Until He Used

Burdock Blood Bitters.

Boils in themselves are not a dangerous trouble, but still, at the same time are very painful. They are caused entirely by bad blood, and for you to get rid of them it is absolutely necessary to put the blood into good condition. For this purpose there is no remedy that can compare with Burdock Blood Bitters. This preparation has been on the market for about 35 years, and has a reputation unequalled by any other for the making of pure, rich, red blood. Mr. H. J. Batten, Stratford, Ont., writes:—"I have been troubled for several weeks with boils on my neck and arms. I had them lanced by the doctor, but as soon as one went others came. I tried all kinds of so called remedies, but could get no relief till I was advised to try Burdock Blood Bitters. I am pleased to say I am now quite free from those most painful things, and feel much better in every respect.

"My boy, of nine years, had a rash come over his back and legs, so we gave him a few doses and now he is all right again."

Burdock Blood Bitters is manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

WILLIAM K. VANDERBILT. The racing man had a peculiar experience in a London restaurant because he had shaved off his moustache.

He had turned into the cloak room to lay aside his overcoat and hat when a waiter seeing him, clean shaved and otherwise well groomed, took him to be the chief butler and said: "I say, old boy, can you tell me where the plates are to be found?" Mr. Vanderbilt replied that he was sorry he could not inform the waiter because., said he, "although I dine here often I have never been in the kitchen." In France one of the greatest grievances of waiters is to be forced to be clean-shaved.

No Sunday Refreshments.

At a meeting of Sanquhar Town Council it was agreed to introduce new regulations relating to the closing of ice-cream and refreshment shops. The hours for opening and closing of these premises were fixed as follows:—Open at seven a.m., and close not later than ten p.m. on week-days, and remain closed all day on Sundays.

Quarryman and Composer.

Mr. William Hughes ("Alo Mynod") Blaenau Festiniog, a Welsh musician, is dead in his seventieth year. He was one of those talented Welshmen who preferred following his daily craft as a quarryman rather than depend on his native genius. He was a born musician, and his natural gifts flowed throughout his numerous compositions, which have been popular as test pieces in the eisteddfodau and other public gatherings.

SPEECH OF SCHOOL BOYS

Bishop Says English Boys Often Preferred to Canadiens on Account of More Pleasant Accent

"It is regrettable that Canadian children should lack culture and be unable to speak pleasing English, a condition which leads many employers to prefer English boys to Canadian boys in their offices. This might largely be overcome if Canadians acquired a softer and more musical intonation in their vowels," declared Bishop Farthing in the course of his address of welcome to the Protestant teachers at a Montreal convention.

He urged on the teachers the necessity of inculcating high ideals of culture in the children under their charge, and said, "teach them to speak English, to breathe through their noses, and speak through their mouths, as God intended them to do, instead of reversing the order, for I do not consider it desirable, even in the Eastern Townships, for speaking through the nose to be encouraged."

Bishop Farthing acknowledged that he was probably treading on dangerous ice in giving utterance to such expressions, but stated that he was nevertheless firmly convinced of the correctness of his deductions.

HOLBROOK'S WORCESTERSHIRE SAUCE

PLAN TO RAISE SPANISH GALLEON

Renewed Hopes That one of the Great Ships of the Armada May be Brought to the Surface

Preparations are being made to work again upon the sunken Spanish galleon at Tobermory. The hope is even indulged that the vessel may be raised and brought to London. This is the fourth season that the present treasure-trove syndicate has brought modern salvage skill and appliances to bear on these operations.

Many of the descendants of old families connected with the Court of Queen Elizabeth, or belonging to the days of the Armada, are shareholders in the salvage adventure now being determinedly carried on in that rather stormy bay in the northern part of the Island of Mull in the Scottish Western Highlands. Among the names on the syndicate register of members are those of several of the Argyl family and of the Clan MacLean. There is also a direct descendant of the Mr. Smollett to whom centuries ago had been entrusted the duty of preventing the galleon from getting sail from Tobermory. This task, doubtless a pleasing one, he accomplished with the aid of some of the MacLean's men.

Bright hopes are held of the success of this salvage venture. The latest suction pumping plant is being called into aid. Apparently dynamite is not the most satisfactory agent for clearing the mud and accumulations of years away from the sunken ship; but a spiral steel cutter at the lower end of the suction pipe slices up the material and the great indrawing power of the steam pumps brings the mud, sand, slys, small stones, and shells in a constant stream to a large sleve-like apparatus on the deck of the lighter, where everything is examined before being cast away. Already various objects of value—coins, plate, arms, etc., have been recovered.

An ambitious scheme is projected. The aim is to raise the galleon bodily, repair it, and tow it to London. It is said that that is quite practicable. The ship was one of the stoutest of the Spanish Armada, built of oak, clamped with tons of copper bolts. Embedded in the mud at Tobermory Bay, the warship would be protected from harm, and oak is a wood that endures. In any case, the treasure on board—chests full of gold and silver coinage of Spain—will be, it is hoped, brought to the surface, along with brass cannon and other equipment.

MONARCHS OF NATURE

Crows, Rats, Deer and Beaver Have Their Recognized Leaders

Human beings are not the only ones who elect sovereigns to reign over them. Most wild creatures who live in flocks, packs, herds, etc., realise the great law that there must be a Head of the community; and the rulers they elect are often descended from one another, after the fashion of a royal family.

Every big gathering of crows has its monarch-elect, who is, as a rule, the largest, strongest, and worst-tempered old bully in the rookery. At the "coronation" of this recognised head, the other crows gather round and hail him as sovereign with a loud and continuous chorus of caws, which frequently lasts for hours.

Deer are seldom without some strong male who is acknowledged among them to be the head of the district. Rats generally choose an old, grizzled warrior to lead them, and proclaim him before the whole congregation of rats in almost human manner. Part of the ceremony consists in the proposed sovereign stalking into a clear space reserved for him, and sniffing the air in a defiant manner, as though challenging any rash rat who wishes to come out and fight him. The rat king it is who leads his "people" when he thinks it necessary to desert a sinking ship or other undesirable abode.

Beavers choose their kings not for fighting prowess, but for skill in engineering dams and building beaver houses. Once elected, the king beaver reigns till he dies, when a new monarch is chosen by the beaver parliament, and acknowledged by the whole community.

ROYAL HOROSCOPES

"Old Moore" Thinks King George's Outlook Better Than Kaiser's.

That the people of Paris are superstitious is scarcely surprising, all Latin races are, more or less, but few people imagine that the cold, matter of fact people of business-like London are inclined to listen to the men and women who claim to possess the power of lifting the mysterious veil of the future. There is an arym of prophets and soothsayers in London; you see their signs in every street in West End, you read their advertisements in every London daily paper, and the fact that several of them have been revealed as mere swindlers in London police courts and that the magistrates of London are hot upon their trail has made no impression on the host of believers in the occult. London has no Madame de Trebes but stern business men by the score every day consult "Old Moore," whose almanac is sold at every street corner. "Old Moore" is pale and picturesque and intellectual looking, with hair that is still dark save for a few stray wisps of silver in it. His title to the distinction "Old" rests presumably on the belief that is entertained by occult coteries that he has lived on the earth seven times, before, and that in previous existences he has been a king amongst wizards. There is a certain far-away tone in his musical voice and a mysterious depth in his twinkling eyes that lend color to this theory. When asked what he thought of Mme. de Trebes' predictions he looked up to the stars and down at me and said in the main he agreed with them. "Mme. de Trebes," he said, "was once consulted by the Kaiser, and she startled him by saying then, as now, that the year 1912 would be the great climateric for the Hohenzollerns. 'Divinity, of course, doth hedge a king': but certainly 1912 wil be an extremely critical year for the Kaiser, and 1913 will be worse."

"How do you arrive at these gloomy conclusions?"

"The horoscope of the Kaiser indicates a large inheritance." It does not say that he will retain it. On the contrary, the prediction has been often made by astrologers that there is great probability of a division of the German Empire during his lifetime with the consequent loss to him of a great portion of it."

Strange conjuctions and aspects of the stars were alluded to, which are to lead, in "Old Moore's" belief, to a repartitioning of Europe in 1913, and to the loss of Great Britain's supreme power in India—as written in the sacred books of the Hindu astrologers—in 1929.

VICTIMS OF GAS.

Aged Toronto Woman and Her Daughter Are Asphyxiated.

Toronto, March 25.—Mother and daughter, Mrs Amelia Leaden and Lillian Leaden, were asphyxiated by gas in their bedroom at 117 Borden street, on Sunday morning. Alarmed because they failed to come downstairs to breakfast, about 11 o'clock, the other members of the household entered the room, which was filled with gas fumes, and found the two women dead in bed.

Dr. J. A. Tuck of Ulster and Bathurst streets was summoned, but he found that life in both cases had been extinct for several hours. Chief Coroner, Dr. A. L. Johnson was notified and instructed Coroner Dr. W. A. Graham to investigate. He decided that an investigation was unnecessary, as death was purely accidental.

A gas heater, with the jet thrown wide open, allowing the fumes to escape, was the cause of the tragedy.

Albert J. Leaden, a son, returned from work at the Majestic Theatre, where he is employed as an electrician, at midnight. At that time Mrs. Leaden was just going to bed. She went downstairs to give her son supper, and a short time later returned to her room, where her daughter Lillian had retired a couple of hours before. It is thought that she turned the jet of the heater off, as the room was warm, and then, by mistake, turned it on, and then retired. Mrs. Leaden was 71 years of age, and her daughter Lillian about 35 years.

Lillian Leaden had been employed in the office of the Gutta Percha Rubber Co. for some time. Mrs. Leaden was the wife of Michael J. Leaden, collector for the Bell Ewart Ice Co. Two sons and two daughters, Mrs. Goodfellow and Mrs. Rolph, wife of the senior partner of the firm of Rolph & Clark, also survive.

TELEGRAPHIC BRIEFS.

The Marquess of Hertford died after undergoing an operation.

Four of the five men elected to the Owen Sound Town Council on Saturday are opposed to local option.

The Countess of Warwick, who arrived in America two weeks ago to lecture, cancelled her engagements and sailed Saturday for home.

Rev. Jas. Hannon, D.D., formerly president of the Guelph conference, died at St. Mary's last evening, at the home of his son-in-law, Rev. F. E. Mallott.

The Government has decided to put a night lettergram service into effect over the Government-owned telegraph lines in the Dominion, starting on April 1.

A Spanish force had a severe engagement with Riffian tribesmen Saturday. The Spaniards lost a colonel, three lieutenants and twenty-nine men killed.

Andre Kopassis Effendi, prince-governor of the Island of Samos, was assassinated yesterday by a Greek, who fired several shots at him. The assassin was arrested.

The C.P.R. have just been notified that they have been assessed $130,400 by the State of Maine for damages caused by their locomotives setting fire to forests in that state.

A Maine Central passenger train struck a cart containing Holt Cousins of Ellsworth and his eight-year-old son, yesterday, killing the boy instantly and fatally injuring the man.

A mob broke into the City Hall at Fort Smith, Ark., Saturday night, seized an unidentified negro who had previously shot and probably fatally wounded Deputy Constable Andrew Carr.

The eighth Triennial Congress of the Chambers of Commerce of the British Empire, has been fixed for June 11, when 400 chambers throughout the empire are expected to send delegates.

Mrs. Katherine McArthur Logie, widow of the late John Logie, and one of the oldest and best known residents of Glengarry County, died Saturday at the family home near Green Valley, aged 86.

Four masked men heavily armed, forced their way into the Saratoga Club, New York, bound, gagged and blindfolded the watchman, broke open a safe and escaped with $4,200 in jewelry and $300 in cash.

Alex. Green, sentenced to Kingston Penitentiary for five years, and recently released, claims to have the confessions of other convicts, and other evidence, to prove him innocent of the charge of robbing the C.P.R. station at Woodstock.

Will Bourassa Run For Commons?

Montreal, March 25.—Henri Bourassa has thrown up the sponge and will not seek re-election to the Provincial Legislature.

Le Devoir announces that Mr. Bourassa will leave for Europe in the second week of April for the purpose of recreation and study having planned the trip for some months past. The Nationalist organ also says that Mr. Bourassa will be absent for about ten weeks, so this settles the question of Mr. Bourassa's participation in the provincial campaign, as the election for the local Legislature will take place the last of May.

It is also announced that Mr. Guimont, the Conservative Federal candidate in St. Hyacinthe, will be the party standard bearer in place of Mr. Bourassa.

It is believed, however, that Armand Lavergne, M.P.P., will contest his seat again for the Provincial Legislature. Hon. Charles Devlin will seek election in the new County of Labelle rather than in Nicolet, and Hon. Jean Prevost will oppose the Minister, besides running in his own County of Terrebonne.

Disastrous Typhoon In Australia.

Perth, Western Australia, March 28.—A disastrous typhoon has occurred on the northwest coast of Western Australia. It continued from Wednesday until Friday and extended far inland. Many vessels were washed to pieces on the rocks, numerous buildings have been wrecked, and, it is believed, a large number of lives lost. The total extent of the damage is not known, as telegraphic communication is badly interrupted.

Actor Ended Life on Liner.

New York, March 25.—Charles Sterling, an English actor, who was coming to America to fill an engagement, killed himself on the Cunard liner Campania, which arrived in port yesterday morning. Sterling shot himself on Saturday morning and was buried at sea the same evening.

Kaiser at Venice.

Venice, March 25.—Emperor William of Germany, accompanied by Princess Victoria Louise and Prince and Princess August William, arrived here yesterday and was received at the station by the mayor, the prefect and other authorities, the German ambassador and many members of the German colony. A great crowd that gathered at the station gave the Emperor an ovation and the applause and cheering continued all along the route to the Hohensollern. Italian "vivas" intermingled with the "hochs" of the Germans.

The Emperor, who came here from Vienna, where he spent Saturday with the Emperor Francis Joseph at Schonbrunn Castle, will meet King Victor Emmanuel, who is now on his way to Venice. Shortly after his arrival, the Emperor, the prince and princesses went sightseeing in a gondola and paid several visits. The whole town was illuminated last evening and put on a truly gala appearance.

Did Not Help Him.

Montreal, March 25.—One of the most curious pleas ever heard in a local law court was made Saturday by J. H. Paquin, who was sued by an insurance company. Paquin admitted signing for some shares of stock, but declared that at the time when this occurred he was a candidate for alderman. The agent of the company had called just before election and had solicited him to buy shares, declaring that this would help him in being elected. However, he was very badly beaten at the polls, and in consequence he did not think he should be called upon to pay up. The judge saw otherwise, however.

Big Textile Strike Over.

Boston, March 25.—The great Lawrence strike, which brought in its train increased wages for 275,000 textile workers in New England, was declared off at all the mills in Lawrence yesterday, having accomplished its purpose in the opinion of the leaders. That the strike had done this, and more, is acknowledged by several leaders not affiliated with the Industrial Workers of the World.

Thrown From Horse, Boy Died.

Bothwell, March 25.—Ross Lidster, the fourteen-year-old son of John Lidster, of the Township of Zeone, while out horseback riding Saturday evening with his youngest brother, was thrown from his horse and died in a few minutes from the fall. It is supposed the horse stumbled, as the boy was used to horseback riding.

Father of Midget Drop Dead.

Stratford, March 25.—One day over 70 years, Christopher Dennington, suddenly seized with heart failure while uptown on Saturday afternoon with his two sons, William and Samuel, dropped dead. Samuel is now 40 years of age, and is claimed to be the smallest Canadian-born living in the Dominion being only 3 feet 9 inches tall.

Died From Injuries In Explosion.

Kingston, March 25.—A Russian named Valeymeinkoff, who was badly injured in the construction camp of the Canadian Northern Railway, Sydenham, Saturday, died at the General Hospital yesterday. His arm was so badly hurt that it had to be amputated, and he could not stand the shock. His companion is still in a critical condition. While blasting they were struck with boulders.

This makes the third fatality in the C.N.R. construction camps in this district within a few months. An inquest has been ordered.

MARKET REPORTS.

Liverpool Wheat Futures Close Lower, Chicago Higher—Live Stock —Latest Quotations.

CHICAGO, March 25.—Tightness became so pronounced to-day in the May wheat option here that shorts in other futures joined a stampede to cover. News of export sales had a strengthening effect. A SQUABBLE WITH THE EXECUTIONERS

Some Interesting Correspondence Results From the Investigation Show That Patronage is Freely Exerted

CAUSE OF TROUBLE

OTTAWA, MARCH 24.—The Borden Government is now engaged in a merry squabble with a number of its own specially appointed "executioners" of Liberal officeholders. At least three resignations, The Globe understands, have already been handed in, and others are said to be pending. Moreover, some of the correspondence in connection therewith is of a somewhat startling and significant character. It is said to do much towards illuminating the character of the "investigations" held and the part played in the proceedings by Conservative and Nationalist candidates and local patronage committees.

The "Spoils" Again.

It is an amusing commentary that the trouble with the commissioners is likewise caused by the spoils. The Government announced in the House that these investigators were to be paid $15 per day and expenses each, and the Auditor-General is understood to have governed himself accordingly. As a result when Mr. Emile Gelly of Levis sent in a bill close to $2,500 for the investigation and decapitation of Superintendent Dube of the Intercolonial Railway, upon whose division, it will be remembered, some enthusiastic engineer tooted a locomotive whistle when Mr. Armand Lavergne was holding an open-air election meeting in the interests of the Bourassa-Borden combination last September, the account was refused as extortionate. Thereupon Mr. Gelly protested, and when he secured little satisfaction promptly tendered his resignation. Other cases of a similar character followed, several of the disputes being most acrimonious in character, and resulting, the Globe learns, in at least two additional resignations, those of Messrs. Napoleon Garceau, of Drummondville and L. O. Beaubien or Quebec.

Peculiar Correspondence.

The protest of the investigating commissioners seems, however, to be widespread and is said to embrace correspondence of a most peculiar nature. In some cases the commissioners have intimated that they were interfered with by local Conservative patronage influences, and apparently no expectation was evidenced that their duty was other than that of official executioners. In others, it is stated, the successors to the Liberal officials were practically notified of their appointments before the "investigation" was commenced.

Threats from Quebec.

Another interesting feature of the resignations or threatened resignations in Quebec is that the commissioners have intimated that if their accounts are not honoured in full they will take the ground to the public that their withdrawal from the Government service is based upon protest against the Government handling of the naval and school questions and the alleged duplicity of Hon. Mr. Pelletier, the Postmaster-General, to his pre-election undertakings on both matters. As a result the Minister in question will probably lock horns with the Auditor-General's department in an effort to get a settlement with his "axe men" and thereby seek to escape the political consequences of his volte face to save his portfolio. The situation, however, is unusually tense, and is giving the Government considerable worry. It is what these commissioners are apparently prepared to disclose, if they are not placated, which is causing the Ministerial uneasiness.

NO ADVANCES FOR ENGINEERS

BOARD DECIDES ON SITE FOR EAST CITY SCHOOL

Twelve Room Building Will be Erected on the Armour Property Although Deputation of Citizens Object

SPECIAL MEETING HELD

The Board of Education met in special session on Saturday evening, to pass the resolution re purchase of six acres of property on the Armour estate, at the corner of Hunter and Concession streets, on which to erect a new, twelve-roomed school, for the East Ward. The Board's special Building Committee had offered $400 an acre for this property, but on writing Mr. Armour, recently, agreed to the increased price of $500 per acre, or $3,000 for the six acres. The Board agreed to this, on certain conditions, and will submit the terms of their agreement to members of the estate for ratification at the earliest opportunity. The action of the special Building Comittee was endorsed in the following resolution:

Moved by Dr. Morrison, seconded by T. H. Adams:

That after further consideration of the matter, of the offer of $480.00 per acre made to the Armour Estate for that part of Block V., East of Concession St., on Registered Plan No. 1A, for the City of Peterborough, situate at the North East Corner of Concession and Hunter streets, and having a frontage of 510 feet on Concession street and 510 feet on Hunter street, that the Board increase the amount to $3,300.00, for the said parcel, without prejudice, providing a proper title is delivered forthwith, and that the Treasurer be authorized to issue cheque therefore, when a Certificate of title is furnished by the Board's Solicitors."—Carried unanimously.

At this juncture Mr. Thompson, Secretary of the Board, announced that a deputation from East City awaited the sanction of the Board for the privilege of explaining their reasons for opposing the purchase of the Armour property as a location for a school site.

It was moved by Mr. Crane, and seconded by Dr. Morrison, that the deputation from East City be allowed to present their case before the Board.

Accordingly, the door leading into the sanctum was opened and the deputation filed into the room, headed by Ald. Morgan. The latter acted as spokesman, and opened what proved, later, to be a prolific field for discussion, by enumerating his reasons for opposing the proposed site. These, in part, were to the effect that the location would be difficult of access, and it was also too exposed a position to render it suitable for the purpose intended. He only knew of three people who favoured the Armour property for a school site, and ventured to say that were a petition circulated, 90 per cent. of the ratepayers would place themselves on record as being in favour of building on the site of the present school. Available land could be secured at a nominal price and ample room was assured.

Mr. Hill of the Board of Education explained that the Ontario Government was sending out notifications to the various School Boards throughout Ontario to the effect that they particularly favoured commodious grounds for school sites and that the grants paid to the different school bodies were, to a certain extent, based upon this important factor.

Exposed position, and the distance many of the scholars would have to traverse in reaching it, formed the basis of the arguments advanced by Mr. Samuel Taylor, who also represented the deputation. He suggested the utilizing of the Town Hall for a temporary school building, while the new one was in course of construction. He would not commit himself to an estimate of the probable percentage of ratepayers opposed to the Armour property as a school site, as he had met numbers of people who favoured the proposed site, and many more who were opposed to it.

Mr. Jas. McDonald, another member of the deputation, voiced his disapproval of the new site. "I have yet to find one ratepayer who favours it" he declared.

Work of the Committee.

Dr. Morrison, chairman of the Building Committee, gave a brief resume of the means employed by that body in connection with the selection of a suitable school site. Full information was first obtained regarding the feasibility of rebuilding upon the present site, with the result that it

FALLS DEAD AT HIS WORK

Sudden Passing Away of Mr. John Carscallen in the Peter Hamilton Foundry on Saturday Last—Well known Resident gone

INQUEST UNNECESSARY

A tragic occurrence took place in the factory of the Peter Hamilton Company, on Saturday, when John Edward Carscallen fell dead at the work.

At 4.30 Mr. Carscallen was seized with what is understood to be a heart attack. Dr. McPherson was instantly summoned, but death occurred before his arrival. The remains were taken to Messrs Comstock's undertaking establishment and yesterday removed to the ite residence of the deceased, 512 Parnell street.

Coroner Dr. Greer was notified, but considered an inquest unnecessary.

The deceased was sixty-four years of age and came to Peterborough some time ago from Newburg. He was a valued member of St. James' Methodist Church and was held in high esteem by his fellow-employees. He is survived by a sorrowing wife and two children.

The funeral arrangements have not yet been completed.

SHATTERED NERVES

Of Brooklyn Girl Were Soon Rebuilt by Vinol.

Did you know that nervous conditions due to overwork, mental strain and worry, or rundown condition of the system, can be cured?

"No one can realize what it means to have shattered nerves unless they have been through the trial," says Frances Grabau of Brooklyn. "For the last two years my nervous system seemed to be completely broken down and caused me a great deal of suffering. Vinol has made me well again. I have found it the greatest nerve and body builder on the market and there is nothing equal to it. I recommend Vinol to all nervous women and men."

This delicious cod liver and iron preparation without oil (Vinol) is so helpful in nervous conditions because it enriches the blood and builds up the whole body, thus nourishing and strengthening the nerves. We guarantee Vinol to give you satisfaction, refunding the money if it does not. Daddy of Good Shows

Do not fail to hear Mrs. Foster in her violin, Canary Song selections, accompanied by Mr. F. Lounder. Special invitation to all lovers of good music. The manager cannot recommend Monday and Tuesday's bill too highly. The pictures being featured at the Red Mill are out of the ordinary:

1. Cardinal Farley's Home-coming is well worth seeing, giving you a vivid view of the crowds that awaited this specacular function.
2. Chinese Smugglers. Will please both old and young. Come and see the clever work of detectives.
3. White Cloud's Secret, an intensely interesting story of the hills.
4. The Mountain Tragedy, a drama of moral interest.
5. Hubby Minds the Baby, a delicious comedy.

The novelty singing at the Red Mill is worth the admission alone.

The orchestra now being featured at this popular place of amusement, is one of the best that money can secure, and is deserving of capacity houses.

In reply to queries and letters received at the Red Mill, the orchestra will change music with the programme Monday, Wednesday and Friday, and will feature all the latest hits.

The admission to this high-class picture palace at all times will be 5c. to all, 5c.

Our Motto—A good show, a clean show, for the lowest possible price of admission.

DUKE ABRUZZI HAS RESIGNED

ROME, ITALY, MARCH 25.— Rear Admiral Duke Abruzzi, cousin of the king, has offered his resignation because of the criticisms on his naval efficiency in not sinking the Turkish fleet in the Agean sea. It is understood that his resignation will not be accepted.

MEETING IS CALLED OFF

Representative of Trainmen Is Ill

MONTREAL, QUE., MARCH 25. — Robt. Kelly of Durant, Mich., who was negotiating with the Grand Trunk for the settlement of differences following the announcement of the cut in wages, has been taken suddenly ill and the meeting, which was billed for this afternoon, has been called off. Kelly represents the conductors and trainmen.

OPINIONS OF EAST CITY RESIDENTS ON SCHOOL SITE

Consider Proposed Location too Near the Canal and too Difficult of Approach by Children Attending Junior Classes

QUEEN HELENA OF ITALY.

WOULD PREFER OLD SITE

The site on Armour's Hill at the corner of Concession St. and Hunter St. selected by the Board of Education for a new public school in the East Ward does not receive the support of many of the prominent ratepayers in that ward. The Examiner interviewed a number of the residents of that section this morning, and not one expressed a favourable opinion of it. Some of them have no children attending school, but, as ratepayers, they felt that the new site was not in the interests of the residents of the ward.

"The people over here have given this matter no consideration," said one ratepayer, a business man. "They haven't stopped to think just what this move will mean, not only to their children, but to property owners in general. If the school is moved to the hill, I will not send my children there. I will move over town near a school which is more easily reached. Children attending the public schools to-day are all young. By the time they reach eleven or twelve years they are ready for the Collegiate Institute. And children are going to school now at a younger age than ever, due to the provision made by kindergarten classes. I think that the aims of these classes will be defeated if little tots are compelled to climb that hill when they are first starting out to school. Again, if new residents intending to settle over here found that the school was located on that hill, I think it would be a factor that would turn them to some other section of the city. There is no doubt that the proposed site is high and airy and in some respects is desirable, but on the other hand they are overbalanced by conditions that render the site undesirable. I think the people should give the matter careful thought before they allow the Board to decide that this shall be the site for the public school."

NOT ONE IN FAVOUR.

Mr. W. J. Mein, 427 Mark St., stated that he had not yet heard one resident of the East Ward express a favourable word regarding the proposed site, and many have said that they would prefer to retain the present location.

MR. SCOTT NOT IN FAVOUR.

Mr. W. Scott, of W. Scott and Co. —"The proposed site is a nice place in many respects, but it is very much exposed, and is difficult of access, and would be particularly so in winter. It would be surely expensive to heat, and I believe they would have to erect some shelter for the children to play in during the cold weather. Just over the hill is the canal, and if I had small children going to school I would consider the proximity to the canal rather dangerous. This proposed site is up on one side of the ward and never will be central. They may begin to build up east of the canal, but I do not think it will be for some time yet. There are good sidewalks to the present school. My interest is now centred upon what the rest of the ratepayers wish and what seems to be in the general interests of the whole community."

Mr. John Kerr, grocer, is not enthusiastic about the Armour Hill site. He regards it as a little out of the way, and thinks is would be cold for children, especially those of tender years. He would prefer the retention of the present location, if the Board of Education could see their way to building there.

Mr. Arch. Weir, of Weir and O'Brien remarked that the new location would be fine and healthy ones the children got up there, but it was this consideration that should not be overlooked He also considered that the move was somewhat extravagant. A smaller sum of money would provide the necessary room to enable the enlarging of the present premises for a bigger school.

A number of other prominent residents of the East Ward were interviewed. Some said they had no opinions to express and others were not sure whether they had or not. Ald. Morgan's views are expressed in his statements to the Board of Education at the special meeting held on Saturday night.

Public Meeting.

A public meeting in the East City Town Hall has been called for Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock when all the ratepayers who are interested are requested to be present, in order that the opinion of the ward on the matter may be secured. All the women interested are also asked to be present.

FINE BARN IS BURNED

Smith Farmer Sustains a Heavy Loss Through a Blaze at Noon To-day—Loss Will be $4000

SMALL INSURANCE

About 12 o'clock to-day a fire started in the barn of Mr. George Allen, Concession 6, Smith. The barn was totally destroyed, with a number of implements and a quantity of seed grain.

The live stock was all saved. The building was a splendid structure, valued at about $2,500. The loss in implements and seed grain is estimated at about $1,500. Mr. Allen's loss is partially covered by insurance. He does not know how the fire originated.

The Articles Lost.

The loss sustained in the fire includes seven calves, fifty hens, two buggies and all the implements that were stored in the barn. In addition there was the usual supplies of grain and feed, and a load of chop that had just been drawn into the barn on Saturday. The fire originated in the grainary, but as there has been no fire there, the real cause is a mystery.

ATTENDED GRAND LODGE MEETING

Mr. J. J. Turner, Sr., Past Deputy District Grand Master, and Present Master of the local lodge, No. 135, of the Canadian Order of United Workmen, attended the Grand Lodge meeting in Toronto on Wednesday and Thursday of last week, as representative of the local lodge.

Mr. Turner reports that the meeting was in every way a success and that it showed that the order is in first class financial condition. The United Workmen have at present $1,000,000 worth of government bonds to their credit.

The election of officers resulted in the reinstating of all the officials with the exception of Bro. McEwen, who was elected Grand Master in the place of the retiring officer, Mr. J. J. Craig.

One purpose of the meeting was to consider the advisability of raising the age of which a young man should become eligible to enter the order, and another to readjust the amount of dues paid by the members of the order.

In neither case was any definite action taken, but an expert actuary was engaged to look into the latter matter and report at a special meeting, which will probably be called by the Grand Master in the course of a month or two.

MAY TAKE DESPERATE MEASURES

Orders Have Been Issued to British Regiments to be Ready at a Moments Notice to Proceed to any Point in England

SITUATION DESPERATE

Special Wire to The Examiner.

LONDON, ENG., March 25th. — That Asquith and his ministers have decided on drastic measures should the conference of striking miners, mine owners and the government to-day prove abortive, is evidenced by the fact that the ninety-third Highlanders and other regiments have been ordered to be ready to proceed to any point in England or Wales at a moment's notice. The price of coal here to-day is fourteen dollars per Canadian ton, and the other necessaries of life are likewise high. The situation is getting desperate. The crisis is that the government will make no modification of its refusal to make the minimum wage bill include specific minima all over the Kingdom, fearing that such provision would be too socialistic. His Majesty sent another message to the government this morning offering any assistance toward a settlement. It has been estimated that the strike is costing the United Kingdom fifty million dollars every day it lasts.

LONDON, MARCH 25.—The discussion of the minimum wage bill for miners is again postponed this afternoon. It will not be continued until to-morrow, as negotiations are still proceeding between the mine owners under guidance of Premier and members of the cabinet.

FALLS DEAD IN CHURCH

Examiner Special:

LONDON, ONT., MARCH 25—Mrs. Matthew Dickson fell dead in the Turin Church just as the pastor was about to commence his sermon. She leaves four small children.

MILLIONS OF FOLKS USE ONLY CASCARETS

They Never Have Headache, Biliousness, Sluggish Liver or Bowels, or a Sick, Sour Stomach.

No odds how bad your liver, stomach or bowels; how much your head aches; how miserable and uncomfortable you are from constipation, indigestion, biliousness and sluggish intestines—you always get the desired results with Cascarets and quickly too.

Don't let your stomach, liver and bowels make you miserable another moment; put an end to the headache, biliousness, dizziness, nervousness, sick, sour, gassy stomach, backache and all other distress; cleanse your inside organs of all the poison and effete matter which is producing the misery.

Take a Cascaret now; don't wait until bedtime. In all the world there is no remedy like this. A 10-cent box means health, happiness and a clear head for months. No more days of gloom and distress if you will take a Cascaret now and then. All druggists sell Cascarets. Don't forget the children—their little insides need a good, gentle cleansing too.

FELL INTO CHUTE

Ridgetown Boy is Probably Fatally Injured

Special to The Examiner.

LONDON, ONT., March 25th. — Allen Jeffries, aged 8 years, of Ridgetown, was probably fatally injured while playing about a mill; he slipped into an opening leading to the chute which fed the big corn sheller. Before the machinery could be stopped the boy's legs had been drawn into the rollers, and were terribly bruised. He also suffered serious internal injuries, probably fatal.

ACTION JUSTIFIED.

The reported action of the Borden government, in proposing to withhold Grand Trunk legislation, unless the railway carries out its promise to reinstate its employees who lost positions as the result of the strike, may seem a little high handed, but may by some be justified on the theory that desperate diseases demand desperate remedies. The British government's legislation aiming to settle the coal strike may be regarded as perhaps going a little too far; but the momentous gravity of the national interests involved, seems to justify extraordinary action. With the suffering, not speaking of financial loss from two millions thrown out of employment of the strike, radical remedies to end the strike seem to be justified.

CAN STAND ALONE.

The late Hon. Edward Blake left an estate of nearly $300,000. There is some surprise that his will does not provide for a bequest to the funds for the Home Rule propaganda for Ireland. He has done his share for the cause; he lent, for many years, his name, to the cause, and a good name like Edward Blake's is better than riches. Besides, the Irish Home Rule cause has got beyond the stage where money contributions are so much needed. A wholesome sentiment in its favour has been so strongly developed that it can go forward to the nearby goal of success on its own merits. The Irish Home Rule cause can now stand alone.

KEEP OUR WATERS CLEAN.

The Examiner received this morning the bulletin of the Public Health committee of the Commission on Conservation, dealing with "the prevention of the pollution of Canadian surface waters." Fortunately, this matter does not at present greatly concern Peterborough, for our water supply is comparatively above suspicion as regards surface pollution of its sources. But as unceasing vigilance is the price of purity, it is of interest to us to consider the importance of preventing deleterious pollution of our water sources. This aspect gains point for the chapter on "Typhoid Fever and Stream Pollution" in the report of the committee. It is shown that there is a direct relation between the two—direct cause and effect. The two countries that represent the highest typhoid rates are Canada and the United States, which are both dependent upon water courses and waterways from their water supply. In six Canadian cities, which get their water supply from streams and water courses, subject to varying degrees of sewage pollution, the typhoid mortality rate runs from 76 to 24 per hundred thousand, the average being 46.26. In seven United States cities bordering upon the great lakes, and emptying their sewage directly or indirectly into their water supply source, the average typhoid fever mortality rate is 57.5, whereas in the city of Chicago, also on one of the great lakes, which diverts its sewage from the lake, from which its water is obtained, the typhoid mortality rate was only 15.3, about four times less than the average of the cities using water polluted with sewage. Specific examples of the terrible effects of using water contaminated with sewage are given. In 1908, Fort William's sewage accidentally gained direct access to the water supply service. The result was ninety-six deaths in one year from typhoid in a population of fewer than 10,000, or a typhoid mortality rate of 946.9 per hundred thousand. In Sarnia, under similar conditions, ninety-three cases of typhoid in a population of 10,000 developed, representing a typhoid mortality rate of 930 per 100,000. We know, from the public press reports, that sewage pollution of water supply in Ottawa and Toronto resulted in a very appreciable epidemic of typhoid, which moderated and disappeared once the conditions of contamination ceased. All this leads to the conclusion that a strict copyright of Peterborough's water supply must be maintained. We are comparatively free now, but the increasing population of the Northern lakes constitutes a growing peril, unless strict measures to prevent pollution of the water supply, are applied. This suggests the cooperation of the Board of Water Commissioners, the Board of Health, the Health Association, the City Council and the public generally. It is only by the united action of our citizens who are summer dwellers at the lakes, and other summer residents, and the authorities, that conditions can be established and maintained that will ensure the continuance of the excellent quality of city water that at present obtains.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Brantford's ratepayers are invited to be thankful that its tax-rate is to be kept down to 24 mills on the dollar.

It seems to be a debatable question whether Roosevelt has serious designs on the presidency of the United States. Is he seeking the nomination or notoriety?

It may be incredible, but it seems to be a fact, nevertheless, that the cause of Home Rule is gaining ground even after the withdrawal of the advocacy of the member for West Peterborough.

POWER COSTS MONEY.

(Toronto Star)

Evidence of the folly of opposing the election of Mr. Graham in South Renfrew is accumulating. Mr. Summerhayes says that $100,000 was spent in the attempt to buy the riding for the Government. Mr. Graham shows that in order to injure him with the electors, forty-six million dollars were falsely added to the cost of the National Transcontinental, and the cost of construction exaggerated. It is a terrible thing to waste $100,000 on corruption, tell a whopper and not even obtain the reward of iniquity.

HAPPY IRELAND.

(Montreal Witness.)

Ireland seems at present to be in a happier condition than England. Her public men are not mobbed by suffragettes, and she has no coal strike. Then any tourists who visited her shores last summer spoke of manifest social improvement and the apparent general prosperity of her people. Many Irish people to-day believe that they are hailing the "sun-burst" of an era of self-government, a sunburst which on many pervious occasions suffered moisture or storm eclipse. There are many opinions as to the wisdom of such an expectation. Mr. T. P. O'Connor, in a letter Mr. Donohue, of this city, draws an attractive picture when he imagines talented Irish parliamentarians now in a state of permanent opposition, as future ministers of the King. Then there are others who see that Ireland is now bound more closely to the other partners of the union by ties of mutual interest than at any pervious period of her history, and they cannot understand why talented Irishmen of whatever political complexion cannot make common cause for a united kingdom.

TARIFFS AND PROSPERITY.

(Toronto Star.)

The Telegram presents its readers with the discovery that there was no Fielding tariff — that there was no change made in 1897, except the British preference, which was a mere detail.

Between 1896 and 1911 the trade of Canada was increased from $239,000,000 to more than $700,000,000. In the last four years of the old tariff there were deficits aggregating six million dollars. In the fifteen years of the new tariff there were surpluses aggregating nearly two hundred millions. Before 1897 the country was in a state of depression bordering upon stagnation. From 1897 to the present time the country has been prosperous and progressive.

It is true that both tariffs were protective; but one was badly framed and the other intelligently framed by men who understood their business.

It is true also that the prosperity of the country was due to other causes besides the tariff. In the main, it was due to the development of the West; and this, again, was due to an intelligent immigration policy.

But, as the Telegram believes that Canada lives, moves, and has its being through the agency of tariffs, it cannot consistently deny the good results of the Fielding tariff of 1897. If a tariff is to be tested by the prosperity and growth of the country, then the N. P., the tariff preceding that of Mr. Fielding's, was a lamentable failule. We believe that other causes than tariffs operated. But that belief cannot be shared by so blind and bigoted a worshipper of tariffs as the Telegram.

INVADING PROVINCIAL AFFAIRS.

(London Advertiser.)

The Federal Government's road-building bill is a sinister invasion of Provincial rights. No one will object to the appropration of Federal money for road improvements, but highways are municipal property under Provincial jurisdiction, and money spent on a trunk system should be controlled by the Provincial authorities.

The Ottawa Opposition has proposed that the several Provincial Governments be given control of the Federal expenditure within their respective limits, but the Federal authorities wish to keep the spending of the money in their own hands for political purposes. The law by which Federal subsidies to the provinces are not expended directly by the Federal Government, but intrusted to the Provincial Governments, should govern this new undertaking, but it has been violated at the behest of the patronage-mongering wing of the party in power, although it follows an essential principle of the constitution. A purely local work has been made a national one by act of parliament, in order to put into the deft and practised hands of the Minister of Railways a fund to be spent for the advantage of his party. Even the Senate's mild and reasonable amendment asking that the money be distributed among the provinces in proportion to their population has been refused by the Government. Not only can pressure be brought upon municipalities and counties, but whole provinces can be discriminated against if their politics are not of the proper complexion.

UP TO MR. BURNHAM

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—A short time ago I offered to donate $20.00 to the Children's Aid Society of Peterborough if Mr. Burnham would write a letter over his own signature, asserting that he did not write or supply the article referred to, and which appeared in the Times. Silence on his part in this matter is equivalent to admission that he was the author of the alleged despatch. Now, I will advance my offer from $20.00 and make the bonus $30.00. If Mr. Burnham is innocent of writing or inspiring the article referred to, here is a good chance of adding $30.00 to the funds of the Childrens' Aid Society, of which he claims to be the "Daddy," and in which he professes to have so much interest.

Now, it appears to me that Mr. Burnham is endeavouring in this, as in other matters, to hide his light under a bushel. He advocates voting by ballot in Parliament, instead of the manly way of standing out in the open and voting so that all men may know where a member stands. It would, no doubt, save Mr. Burnham a good deal of explanation to his Peterborough constituents if he could vote by ballot. I know if I were elected on the grounds that Mr. Burnham was and voted as he has been doing I should want to vote by ballot, too, or surrender the right to vote at all.

Yours truly,
Elector.

Conservative Economists Rush For The Perquisits

OTTAWA, MARCH 24.—That day may be counted as lost which does not see the Conservative party doing in office what it condemned in Opposition. One of its latest acts of inconsistency has reference to gifts to members of Parliament and Senators.

There is a tradition around the corridors of the House of Commons that when Mr. C. A. Magrath, the former Conservative member for Lethbridge, first came to Parliament his idea of the dignity of that august body received a rude shock when he found that pocket-knives, valises and trunks were among the perquisites of the members and Senators. It is reported that Mr. Magrath refused to take his share of these seductive presents, and that he made a vigorous protest to his leader, Mr. R. L. Borden, against a continuance of the practice. Whether the story be true or not, the fact is that Mr. Borden spoke to Sir Wilfrid Laurier about the matter, and Sir Wilfrid had a resolution passed by the Board of Internal Economy prohibiting all gifts of trunks, valises, etc., for the future. It may be explained that the Board of Internal Economy is composed of four Cabinet Ministers and the Speaker of the House of Commons.

The present members of parliament, who were aware of the step taken at the request of Mr. Borden in 1909, were not a little surprised when they received the following note a few days ago:

Ottawa, March 19, 1912.

"Dear Sirs,—Samples of trunks and valises will be in Room 52, House of Commons, Wednesday and Thursday. Please call and select.

"J. A. Currie."

A visit to Room 52 revealed an animated scene. Trunks, valises, and other leather goods were scattered about, and a group of former Conservative economists were busily engaged examining the samples and making selections from the best to be had. As the resolution passed by the Board of Internal Economy under the Laurier Government has not been rescinded, the expenditure of public moneys amounting to many thousands of dollars in the offhand manner disclosed by Major Currie's notice may be questioned by Mr. Lancaster and other Government supporters representing rural constituencies. Supplementary estimates of 25 million dollars, and the little stationery trunk graft explain the principles of economy upon which the Conservative government is carrying on public affairs.

Who Is Responsible For School Matters Muddle?

Brantford Expositor.

The Guelph Herald, while approving in large measure the views expressed by the Expositor relative to the prevalence of truancy in this province, is disposed to place much of the responsibility for the existing state of affairs upon the parents rather than upon the government.

The parents, no doubt, are blamable for keeping their children home for trivial reasons, but they are not blamable for certain sections which are to be found in the act respecting truancy and compulsory school attendance which the Whitney government put through during the session of 1909. This is one of them:

Where in the opinion of a justice of the peace, or of the principal of the school attended by any child, the services of such child are required for husbandry or in urgent and necessary household duties, or for the necessary maintenance of such child or of some person dependent upon him, such justice or principal may, by certificate setting forth the reasons therefor, relieve such child from attending school for any period not exceeding six weeks during each public school term.

Just imagine any justice of the peace having power to excuse a child from school attendance! There are a couple of hundred of these gentlemen in Brant county alone, and it would always be possible to get some one of their number to oblige himself or a friend by writing out such a certificate. Besides, many of these J. P.'s are not strong on schooling.

The principal of a school is more likely to have the welfare of the child at heart, but can any person imagine the principal of a rural school refusing to accommodate a trustee or leading ratepayer by refusing to provide the desired certificate!

To do the present government justice the section above-quoted was copied from the old act, but it is so absurd that it should have promptly got the cleaver.

Here are two other sections which are still more objectionable, and which appeared for the first time in the act of 1900:

The police commissioners, and when there are no police commissioners, the municipal council of every city, town and village, shall appoint, control and pay one or more truant officers for the enforcement of this act.

The council of a township may annually appoint one or more truant officers, etc.

If the council neglects to appoint a truancy officer before the first of February in any years, the board of a school section may appoint a truant officer for the section.

It is no secret that there are many towns and villages which have not complied with the demand that they shall appoint truant officers, while the township councils, upon whom the appointment of such officers is not obligatory, have as a rule made no effort to secure compulsory school attendance. School boards, ditto. The result of such happy-go-lucky methods is shown in the reports of lax school attendance, more particularly in the rural districts, and for this deplorable exhibit the government, whose attention has been repeatedly drawn to the consequences of its continued neglect, must be held chiefly responsible.

Belated Cackle Of The Parliamentary Goose

"H. F. G." of the Toronto Star, in his "Gallery Clock," deals with parliamentary entities and doings in a piquant manner. The face of the clock is illuminated and the figures stand out boldly. We don't know our great public men properly till their peculiarities of genius are brought out on the face of the "Gallery Clock." In order that our readers may learn to become more appreciative of their representative at Ottawa, the following reference to his brilliant share in the debate on the War Office estimates is submitted:

"The battle raged fiercest around Colonel the Honourable Sam's twelve automobiles for D. O. C.'s. Colonel Sam promises to get twenty-four of them next year. This is a rapid age, and automobiles are the only way to keep abreast of it. As Ham Burnham, peace prophet, rose water philosopher and friend of old age, pointed out in his own lucid manner, if ancient Rome had had automobiles in her army she would not have fallen, and we would have been two thousand years ahead of what we are now, instead of being two thousand years behind. Only heaven and Ham Burnham know what Ham Burnham means, so you will have to figure it out for yourself. The point is that Ham Burnham is with Colonel the Honourable Sam in regarding automobiles as a first line of defence."

It may be noted that history tells us that the cackling of geese once saved Rome; and history repeats itself; only the cackling of the goose comes about three thousand years too late.

Men Who Want To Succeed

Read carefully and Resolve to be a man and own your Home

The big Factories in south end will employ you and pay you fair wages for 10 hours work per day. Then buy one or more of my Lots at $4 or $5 per front foot, pay $5 depost and I will add a bonus of $5 giving receipt for $10 then $5 monthly. Plant garden and attend to it before and after work. Your lots will increase in value, your garden will supply many wants thereby saving many dollars and the three sources of income will certainly crown your efforts with success. A House, Poultry House, Fruit large and small, and other improvements will follow. Call and I will show you how easy it is to succeed if you are a sober and industrious man. My advice is act now, you cannot afford to delay one day.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

Peterboro's Team Is Almost Completed

Templin Has Twelve Men Signed

Manager is not Losing Any Time and has Picked up a Solid of Fast Players—Says Four will be Sold or Drafted for Faster Company

THREE PITCHERS SIGNED

Catchers—Irvin Trout last year with Reading Tri-State League Club.

Frank Brode, last year with the Shenandoah (Pa.) club.

Pitchers — Edward Bartlett, champion Kodak Park club, Rochester, N. Y.; Harry Scull, Scranton, Pa.; William Schaffer.

First base—Lew Rothenburg, Boyertown, Pa.; R. Connolly, Newburgh, N.Y., of St. Mary's College team.

Second base—Artie H. Templin, (manager), last year with Berlin, Canadian League champions.

Short-stop—Chas. Tilly, formerly of the Winston-Salem team of the Carolina League.

Third base—Earl Hartman, Reading, Pa.

Outfield—Jim. Swarts, last year with Jacksville, in the Georgia League. Jas. Beard, formerly with Maddox & Lawrence Clubs, in the New England League.

Above the roster of the Peterborough Canadian League team to date. Manager Artie Templin has evidently been working hard since he left Peterborough and the team he has corralled, outlined here, looks like a formidable aggregation. Writing to Secretary Davidson, he says that his team will be all signed up and ready for business by the first week in April, and he adds, "you can bet your last dollar that I will sell or have drafted four of the men I am picking." With a couple of more pitchers and another outfielder, the club will practically be complete, and the team, on paper, appears like a peppery and promising aggregation of youngsters.

Here is some dope on some of the men signed:

Chas. Tully, shortstop, age 22, height, 6 ft. 1-2 in., weight 175. Played semi-professional ball with Shoemakersville, one of the fastest and best teams in Eastern Pennsylvania, and was with the Winston-Salem club in the Carolina League when he was replaced by a brother of Manager Clancy of that club. He throws right-handed, and is a left-handed batter. Manager Templin looks for him to go up higher.

Irvin Trout, catcher, age 19 years, height 5 ft. 9 in., weight 165 lbs., is a right-handed batter and thrower. He formerly played on the same team as Tully, but last year joined the Coaply team and at the end of the season was picked up by the Reading Tri-State pennant winners as a possibility for this season, but Manager Templin beat them to him, and landed the backstop for Peterborough. He is a comer and is bound to get into faster company.

Earl Hartman, thirdbaseman, was a High School boy the year before last, and came under the eye of Connie Mack of the World's champions, who pronounced him and Catcher Snell of the same team, as the two best youngsters he had seen in a long time. Hartman is a wonderfully fast fielder at third base. He is utterly fearless, and is not spike-shy when a slider comes in feet first. Hartman is 19 years of age, 5 ft. 11 in. tall, and weighs 160 pounds. Like Tully and Trout he does not smoke, drink or chew. He is a right-handed hitter, and thrower.

Outfielder William Swartz is 5 ft. 9 in. tall, is twenty-three years of age and is very fast. He has been playing professional ball for several years with Frankfort, in the Blue Grass League, in 1910, and with Jonesville in the Georgia League in 1911. Swartz is a right-handed thrower and batter a great fielder, and has a wonderful arm. He is a long-distance hitter and was hitting over .300, and leading the League in home runs last season until his club disbanded in mid-season. He is always in the game from start to finish.

Outfielder Jas. Beard, of Reading, Pa., is about twenty-seven years of age. He has seen service in the New England League with Nashua in 1906 and Lawrence and Lowell in 1907, and in the Blue Grass and Cardina Leagues. He is a right-handed thrower and batter, and will be used in the outfield, although he is an all-round player who can take his turn in the box if necessary. He has a fine whip and is a good hitter.

Pitcher Harry Scull is 21 years of age, is a left-hander, and last year was a great sensation in Scranton, Pa., on account of his brilliant work on the slab, beating every team he came across. Scull is a fine hitter for a pitcher and could be used in the outfield.

ST. GEORGE'S CHORAL SOCIETY

The members of St. George's Choral Society will meet to-morrow (Tuesday) evening in All Saints' Parish Hall, and on Wednesday evening in St. Andrew's Hall. The men's choir will meet at 7.30 o'clock on each evening. Every member of the Society is urgently requested to turn out. There are openings for a number of sopranos and altos. Any desiring to join are invited to attend these practices.

ARTIE EDMUNDS, the Toronto Boxer, Who Meets Tony Hudson, of Detroit at the Grand Opera House To-morrow (Tuesday) Evening.

ARTIE EDMUNDS HERE FOR THE HUDSON BOUT

Toronto "Pocket Hercules" is Jubilant Over the Chance to Meet Hudson Who Disappointed Him Once by Failing to Turn up at Porcupine----Edmunds is in Fine Shape for To-morrow Night's Big Contest

Artie Edmunds, the famous Toronto boxer, wrestler and physical culture exponent, who boxes Tony Hudson, of Detroit, ten rounds at the Grand Opera House to-morrow night, is in town to-day, fit and ready for his bout. To the Examiner the Pocket Hercules expressed himself as being delighted with the chance to meet Hudson, whose scalp he has been after ever since the Detroit mat artist failed to meet him when they were matched to clash at Porcupine. The weight problem is not bothering Edmunds in the least, as he is down to 121 pounds. He is tickled with the opportunity of tackling Hudson, and states that he turned down a much better financial proposition just to have a crack at the Detroit boy—all of which goes to show that the Edmunds-Hudson bout to-morrow night will be one of the best ever seen here.

Edmunds has been in 150 boxing contests and 100 wrestling matches, and has only lost three decisions. He has never been beaten in the feather-weight class. Here is what the Toronto News has to say of him:

"Art Edmunds' claim to the Featherweight Boxing Championship of Canada cannot be disputed. He has defeated all the claimants to the title—including Harry Westerbee, of Toronto, until he had been stopped by Edmunds in four rounds, had an unbroken career of victories. Hudson, of Windsor, after agreeing to box Art Edmunds at 122 lbs ring side, ran out on the proposition, practically acknowledging the local boxer's supremacy. In addition to the above title, Edmunds holds the Feather-weight Wrestling Championship of the World. He has met and defeated all comers on the mat—representatives of every country. Few athletes, no matter what weight, can boast of a record half as good as the Pocket Hercules. Though most men would be gratified to rest content with the above laurels, Edmunds does not do so. He prides himself more on his physical culture act than on any of his other accomplishments. As an exponent of the Physical Culture Preservation Cult, Edmunds stands alone. He knows more about the art of muscle building and health promotion than the majority of doctors, and his lecture and performance is well worth attending."

Hudson has some records himself, and expects to beat Edmunds here.

The Toronto boy made an announcement this morning that will be of interest, that is, that he purposes to give his famous physical culture act here to-morrow night. Edmunds did this work here some years ago, and wants to show how much he has improved.

The Westerby-Ryan semi-final wind-up battle will be alone worth the price of admission. Westerby is well known as a classy lightweight, and Ryan has, among other things, a draw with Champion Billy Allin to his credit. They will go twelve rounds here to-morrow. There will be two six-round preliminaries as well. It looks like a great evening's sport.

Y.M.C.A. BASKETBALL TEAM DEFEATED THE T.C.S. FIVE

The Y. M. C. A. basketball team defeated the Senior Trinity College School team of Port Hope, in a lively and well-played exhibition on the local floor on Saturday night, by 39 points to 24, leading at half-time by 19 to 9. The visitors quickly accustomed themselves to the floor, and it was an even battle for the first ten minutes, the teams alternating in taking the lead. Neither were shooting accurately at this stage, the homesters being especially off colour in their marksmanship, with the exception of Hanwell, who scored the first seven points. Then the "Y" five began to locate the baskets, and soon set up a comfortable lead, which they held until the finish. Both teams showed good combination, although the checking was close and hard throughout. Hill and Hanwell did most of the scoring for the "Y," the former doing some great scoring after he got started, although, at first, he could not find the basket. Hanwell contributed some pretty baskets.

For Port Hope, Bartlett, at centre, and Bradfield and Grylls, the two forwards, were responsible for most of the baskets. Bradfield, especially, showing good form in this department of the game.

The teams were:

T.C.S.—Backs, Dennistoun, Greer; centre, Bartlett; forwards, Bradfield, Grylls.

Y.M.C.A.—Backs, Hanwell, Wallis; centre, Throop; forwards, Hill, Hall.

LINDSAY CURLERS HERE TO-NIGHT

Four rinks of the Lindsay Curling Club will visit the city this evening, and will engage with the local curlers in a friendly match. The ice is in good condition, and some stirring games should result. It is probable that the following skips will be selected to uphold the honour of the local club, Messrs. Long, Moore, Connal and Waddell.

One year ago to-day, the Curling Club closed its doors for the season, which is in marked contrast to the prevailing conditions. The ice has seldom been better throughout the season and the curlers are looking forward to a big night's curling this evening. Mr. Angus McIntosh recalls an instance occurring several years ago when the rink remained open until the 18th of April. It is hardly expected that this record will be disturbed this year, but with the continuation of sharp, frosty nights, the season is likely to remain open for an indefinite period.

The Vice-President won the competition which was played off at the Charlotte street rink on Friday and Saturday evening between the President and Vice-President. The winners had a lead of seven shots to their credit at the conclusion of the game.

INTERNATIONAL GAME A DRAW

HAMPDEN PARK, GLASGOW, March 23.—The International football match played here this afternoon in brilliant weather resulted in a draw, the final score being 1 to 1, the same as at half-time.

An hour before the start of the game over one hundred thousand people had gained admittance to the enclosure. As the time were on the crowd became so dense that the ambulance men had a busy time rescuing fainting men from under the feet of the crowd. As the time approached for the teams to line up the crowd went entirely out of bounds, invading the field of play, and taking up their stand around the touchlines. Reinforcements of police hurried to the scene eventually restored comparative order, as the teams entered the field amid deafening applause.

Last year's game at Liverpool ended in a draw, and when the teams representing the respective countries lined up to-day, they having both beaten Wales and Ireland, started level in their attempt to decide the championship. The result was, however, again a draw, and thus they become joint holders of the honour. Scotland's team, as usual, contained many Anglo-Scots, that is, Scotchmen who are playing for English clubs. England's team had nearly all played against the other countries.

MEETING TO FORM AUTOMOBILE ASSOCIATION

A meeting of the automobile owners of the city will be held in the Bank of Montreal Chambers on Friday evening next at 8 o'clock, to consider and effect the organization of an Association. The object of the Association will be, obviously, to protect the interests of its members as well as the interests of the public. There are now about sixty auto cars owned in the city and before the season is over the number will probably be increased to a hundred. It is understood that the Association will aim at protecting the public from the effects of reckless drivers in both city and country. Drivers of this class who break the law will be prosecuted, and other efforts will be made to improve the relations between the owners of autos and the general public.

BASKETBALL

The Hustlers and Eko Club have decided to play their game in the City Basketball League on Thursday, instead of on Tuesday, as previously announced. The Ekos have not lost a game so far this season, and they just managed to beat the Brownies by one point, and the Brownies in turn just defeated the Hustlers by one point, so that the teams of the League were never more evenly matched than they are at present. The interest in basketball is on the increase in Peterborough, judging from the attendance at the games so far this season.

The Intermediate Leaders Corps will meet to-night at 7.15 sharp for floor work; every member should be present.

The Junior Leaders will meet on Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the gymnasium ready for work.

The Wrestling Club will meet to-night at eight o'clock, under the direction of Mr. H. B. Cowan. The new mat is now in position and everything is in good shape for the "Grapplers."

ORGANIZED TEAM

The boys of the King Edward school held a meeting on Friday evening to organize a baseball team. The following officers were elected:

Hon. Pres.—Mr. W. H. Hill.
Hon. Vice-Pres.—Col. Miller.
President—Mr. Kelly, B.A.
Sec.-Treas.—Mr. F. E. Kerr.
Manager—P. Taylor.
Mascot—E. Lee.
Ex.-Com. — C. Manley, N. Rost, Hugh Puffer.
Representative to Public School League—Mr. F. E. Kerr.

Financial. — To-day's market will probably witness bullish operations, with irregularity. Reactions should become more frequent as the list ascends and broadens. Daily operators should purchase on recessions half of what they intend to buy, and then average in case of a set-back, which may come soon on technical considerations. The optimistic attitude of the market forces has not changed, but they are not averse to shake outs.

Favourable prospects indicate a growing optimism. Banking interests will continue to encourage conservative speculation. Large rail and car orders may be given soon. The supreme court does not meet again until April 1st, hence no reading decision is expected Monday. The Government crop report on grains, early in April should be good. Money trust investigations, coal conditions and international politics contain elements of disturbance. Reviewing outside response to bullish manipulation is favourable. Taft continues to gain over Roosevelt, according to latest advices.

Union Pacific still shows an upward trend, but may react substantially any time. The same may be said of Steel, Nor. Pac. SP, NYC, Atch, Smelter, and ACP. We would buy them on reactions and average. Rds and LV hang on strike developments. Amn Tel is well taken. Low priced rails, like Erie, and Sou Ry should be taken on recessions.

ON THE SAFE SIDE

E. J. Ridgeway, the magazine publisher, had an engagement to lunch with representative Townsend, of New Jersey, but early the next morning telephoned Townsend, and urged that the lunch be switched so that Ridgeway might be the host. Instead of lunching at the House restaurant, therefore, Townsend agreed to the amended plan and they lunched at the Willard, and the lunch was plainly the result of a long conference between the host and the head waiter. At the conclusion of the lunch, when black coffee and cigars were served, Townsend said;

Now, frankly, Erman, why did you switch this lunch?"

After a thoughtful pause, the publisher replied:

"Well, Ned, yesterday I lunched with a Senator, who is known to have an enormous income, and he gave me mush and milk. This morning I considered the situation in this wise: If a Senator with a large income would give me nothing but mush and milk, what sort of a lunch was I likely to have with a Representative who has only a small income?"—Washington correspondence New York World.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

CARE OF THE TEETH

Fruit stains may be removed from the teeth by rubbing them with salt, or brushing them with a tooth brush that has been dipped in salt. The mouth should be well rinsed after this treatment.

One often finds himself without a toothbrush when passing the day or the night unexpectedly away from home. In such a case rinse the mouth with soda water and afterwards with clear water. Borax water is also an excellent substitute, and one or other of these simple remedies is almost certain to be at hand.

For daily use one of the most pleasant and beneficial washes is a weakened solution of cologne water. A tablespoonful of a favourite odor to half a pint of water is the correct proportion, and this mixture should be bottled and kept with the tooth brush, where it is always handy, so that one cannot possibly forget it.

When the mouth or gums feel sore from oversensitive nerves rinse them with a mixture of two ounces of kino and a dram of borax. Always remember that brushing the teeth is but the first half of the cleansing operation, and that food particles that lodge in the crevices of the teeth are not removed by the brush as quickly as by the use of a good wash.

HARICOT BEANS

Soak a pint of haricot beans in cold water overnight. Drain well, put them into a saucepan with a good quart of cold water and a heaping teaspoonful of salt. Bring to boil and then simmer gently for about two hours. Drain, reserving about a teacupful of the water in which the haricots were boiled. Add a piece of butter about the size of a large walnut, a teaspoonful of chopped parsley, salt, pepper and enough of the water in which they were boiled to make them sufficiently moist. Heat thoroughly and serve as hot as possible.

FISH SOUP

This recipe for fish soup ranks among the most favourable soups in German families. Heat three ounces of dripping in a saucepan and stir in two ounces of flour. Add gradually a quart of milk and a quart of boiling water, letting it all boil well together. Put in a whole carp, plaice or other white fish, two cloves, some mace, a bay leaf salt, pepper, and allow to simmer gently for three-quarters of an hour. Pass through a colander, and return to pan to boil up. The fish may be served in the soup if preferred.

Colds

Don't trifle with a cold; no one can tell what the end may be. Pneumonia, catarrh, chronic bronchitis and consumption invariably result from neglected colds. Nothing can be compared with as a quick cure for colds and grip, and by its use the more serious diseases may be avoided.

"NA-DRU-CO DYSPEPSIA TABLETS Proved of Great Value to Me"

There is only one explanation for the numbers of enthusiastic letters that we receive praising Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets, and that is that these tablets certainly do cure any kind of stomach trouble.

Here is a typical letter from Miss Eliza Armsworthy, Canso, N.S.:

"It is with pleasure I write to inform you that your Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets have proved of great value to me. I tried remedy after remedy but without any lasting good. Having heard of your tablets curing such cases as mine I decided to give them a fair trial. They proved satisfactory in my case."

The remarkable success of Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets is such a success as can only come to an honest remedy, compounded according to an exceptionally good formula, from pure ingredients, by expert chemists. If you are troubled with your stomach just ask your Druggist about Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets, compounded by the National Drug and Chemical Co. of Canada, Limited, and sold throughout the Dominion at 50c. a box. 142

A Recent Importation from Germany

THE NEW COATS

Containing Opera Coats, Automobile Coats and Dust Coats in a Splendid Showing

WE have just received from Germany an importation of Opera Coats, Automobile Coats and Dust Coats that throws into total eclipse any previous assortment ever exhibited in or near Peterborough.

The styles of these Coats are both practical and becoming. They are the very newest models upon which Fashion has smiled, and which speak the last word in Spring and Summer Coat styles.

They are made with the painstaking care and exactness that distinguishes the German product. As a result they possess the aristocratic appearance that only a skilled and careful tailor can impart to a garment.

We invite your inspection of these handsome new Coats and direct your attention to the very moderate prices that prevail.

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

INSPECTOR HUGHES OF TORONTO ADDRESSES THE SCHOOL BOARD

He Favours Six Acres of Ground for a Twelve Room School ---He Discusses the "Penny Bank" Scheme Which is a Favourite Theme of the Inspector's

Play-grounds and Penny Banks formed the basis of Mr. Jas. L. Hughes', General Inspector of Toronto's city schools, remarks in the course of an address which he delivered to a special session of the School Board on Saturday. Dealing with the question of play-grounds, the speaker asserted that the three desirable elements of humanity were power, skill, and character.

"No one agrees, these days, that knowledge is power, he contended, and power, the first great element, can be better developed in the playground than in any other way. Play is the boy's work, and Toronto schools have the finest playgrounds in the country. In the Queen City, where land is exceptionally dear, both the people and their Board of Education recognize the necessity for ample play-ground, and whole blocks have actually been bought and buildings torn down to practically apply this principle. In Toronto, Mr. Hughes offered, the school grounds are available to city clubs when not needed by the school organizations. Then any society or club can use the buildings at night, and while no assembly halls are provided in the schools there are kindergarten rooms capable in some instances of seating 800 people. The schools are public property and the public are permitted their use on all convenient occasions. Then each of Toronto's seventy schools has a piano furnished by the people—not by the Board: also reflectoscope lanterns with which to give educative illustrated entertainments. These donations are the result of the enthusiastic cooperation of such organizations known as parents' societies organized in connection with each school. Then the Board has organized night schools in connection with the public schools, eleven of which are foreigners.

Favours Commodious Grounds.

Returning to the question of playgrounds, Mr. Hughes offered that a twelve-room school such as the Board proposed to build, should stand on six acres of ground, at as high an elevation as practicable — providing the grounds are level. He also favoured the use of a portion of the ground for the purpose of gardening, by the children. The higher elevation on which the school stands the better, and price should be no obstacle in the way of securing ample grounds.

The speaker then reverted to his pet hobby, that of "penny banks" for schools. He explained the system as applied to the Toronto schools, and intimated that it would work here equally as well. The penny bank is in operation in Toronto schools, and those of several other cities and towns under a Dominion charter. No man can make a dollar out of it; and any deficit in operative expenses is made good in Toronto by bankers, who heartily cooperate in the scheme. The Government allows the penny bank four per cent. on funds invested with it, and the bank pays depositors three per cent. interest, retaining one per cent. for running expenses. Deposits are received in class rooms of Toronto schools each Monday morning by the several teachers, to whom they are presented in pass books and the system is so simple that no loss of time in lessons is experienced. The counting, denominating of coins and bills, book-keeping, etc., is all done by a couple of boys and girls, and so perfect is the check system that no confusion arises. The amount deposited is handed into the nearest local bank in the ordinary way, and a cheque received therefor. In a city like Peterborough one chartered bank would be characterised as the "Schools Penny Bank."

Continuing, Mr. Hughes explained that $210,000 are to-day invested in the Penny Bank, of which $120,000 belongs to Toronto school children, who deposit each month on an average of $2,400 to $2,700. Of course, during the winter months there are more withdrawals than deposits. No depositor is allowed to have more than $300 in the bank at any one time. This scheme, urged Mr. Hughes, is a great aid in developing character; a child is made self-respecting and trained up to the proper value of money instead of applying it to the gratifying of sensual taste. Mr. Hughes invited the Board to send a deputation to Toronto some Monday (including some person or persons prejudiced against the scheme, when he would hold over the banking hour in some of the schools that the deputation might see the simplicity of the scheme's operation.

Inspector Hughes concluded his remarks by calling the attention of the Board to the many salient features which had marked the development of the scheme. It was an important element in developing the character of school children. The total weekly amount earned by Toronto scholars averages $4,500—$180,000 a year. The highest amount earned weekly by one boy is $9, but of course, he is an exception.

HEAVY FINE FOR RECKLESS DRIVING

When Arrested was in an Intoxicated Condition—Completes Payment of one Fine and is Assessed Another

Reckless driving on the main thoroughfare, while under the influence of liquor, cost Harry Peters the sum of $8.85 in the police court this morning. He pleaded not guilty to the charge, whereupon P. C. Kidd went into the witness box and testified to the disorderly conduct of the defendant on Saturday evening while in charge of a horse and cutter belonging to Pulkinghorn's livery. The officer warned Peters to go home as he was incapable of properly conducting himself while in an intoxicated condition. He later arrested the defendant.

Chief of Police Thompson gave evidence to the effect that Peters was in a drunken condition when placed in the cells.

This statement Peters denied and also refused to believe that his conduct on Saturday evening was of such a nature as to be a menace to public safety.

"Do you want to go into the box?" inquired the Magistrate.

"No, I guess it's no use," replied the defendant.

Five dollars and costs, amounting in all to $8.85, was imposed.

Blacklister Fined.

With a pending fine safely disposed of, James Walsh appeared in court this morning and was assessed to the extent of another ten spot. The charge was similar to that of the last offence, namely, that of being under the influence of liquor while on the blacklist.

He pleaded guilty to the charge and attributed his downfall to the generosity of a shantyman from the north shore. He was given ten days in which to pay his fine, with the promise of a heavier one, should he again appear in court.

Educational Addresses At George St. Methodist Church

Mr. J. L. Hughes Inspector of Public Schools Toronto Gave two Inspiring Messages Yesterday

EDUCATIONAL SUNDAY

Educational Sunday at George St. Methodist Church yesterday, was marked by two splendid and inspiring addresses from School Inspector Jas. L. Hughes of Toronto, who occupied the pulpit in the morning and evening. Large congregations were present at both services and the donations and subscriptions for the educational funds of the church were correspondingly big. It was indeed a helpful message that Mr. Hughes left with his hearers in the morning—that of the necessity of service, of the need of doing something for God and for humanity. He emphasized the privilege, and not the duty, of being in partnership with God—the greatest partnership that could possibly exist. God was the silent partner. He gave the power and the will to do the work He revealed, but He expected the individual to accomplish the work.

Mr. Hughes remarked that in his early days he had known two types of Christians; first, the emotional kind, who were particularly prominent at public services and at the Love Feast, who used to rub themselves in the region of their heart, and exclaim how happy they felt. It was merely feeling with them, but feeling was not enough—there must be service as well. "Be ye doers of the Word, and not hearers only."

It was almost wicked to call mere goodness of feeling Christianity. And then there were the intellectual Christians, the theologians, who used to spend a great deal of their time in discussing problems, especially the problems that were to come after this life, notably how God was to punish the sinners, and who seemed to take a certain kind of delight in discussing how some of the people of this world were to be punished when they were dead. Emotional Christianity and intellectual Christianity were not enough when they stopped at emotion or intellect. There must be service as well. The new ideal of salvation was not saving one's soul from sin, but rather saving for service. Some men might as well have been grasshoppers so far as doing anything for God or humanity was concerned. It was by service, by doing something for one's fellow-man who needed it, that one's own soul was saved.

The great revelations that had come to the speaker were that he had a power to do something for God, better than any other man, if he could only find what that thing was, and that because he had that power he was responsible to his fellow men for doing that thing. By doing something for others one gained more power, more tendency, more responsibility, a greater faith in one's self, and a newer vision.

In conclusion, Inspector Hughes dealt with the need of education with the necessity of training men so that they should be able to teach others. He pointed out the necessity of supporting those centres of education conducted by the church, where men were being prepared to carry on the work of the Church. It was a mistake to suppose as some of the old-time church members used to that God blessed ignorance.

Prior to the address the pastor, Rev. Isaac Couch briefly touched upon the educational work of the Methodist Church, and made a plea for increased givings from the George St. congregation. He referred to the different colleges carried on by the church in the West, at Calgary, Regina, Winnipeg, and other centres to Victoria College, in Toronto, which was now the largest theological seminary in the Dominion ,and to the work being done by the Methodist Ladies' College, at Whitby, Sackville and St. Thomas. He showed the necessity of proper training for the ministry, especially in view of the number of immigrants coming into Canada, seventy-five per cent. of which would have to be evangelized. Proper educational methods were necessary if Canada was to be made the most God-fearing nation beneath the shining stars.

51 Candidates For Confirmation at St. Luke's

Bishop Sweeny of Toronto Performed the Ceremony and Delivered Practical Sermon

A LARGE CONGREGATION

In his address to the candidates for confirmation at St. Luke's church on Sunday night, the Right Rev. Bishop Sweeny of Toronto, spoke on the words found in St. Paul's epistle to the Thessalonians, "The word of God concerning you." He pointed out that the word meant God's wish, or design, or plans concerning mankind! "It is the most important thing in all our records for time and eternity. He has a wish or a plan for everyone in whom He has breathed the breath of mortal life. God reveals His plan concerning our physical nature in the great and splendid book of Nature that we find in the world around us."

But, in the written word of God is found His will concerning us. It is revealed in the Bible, and by the living word of God. Himself. He tells us what the Father's will is concerning us as revealed in the Son. First, it is His will that we should be His children in time and eternity. We were dedicated to Him in baptism, and made the children of God. Therefore, it is His will that we should be His children in time and eternity.

It is also His will that we grow in grace and in the knowledge of our Lord and Saviour. This is in marked contrast with our physical being. There comes a time when physical growth stops, but we can go on growing in spiritual stature. We are challenged and exhorted to grow up in this direction remembering the great spiritual stature of Christ.

It is likewise God's will that we should be co-workers with him. Bishop Sweeny emphasized the dignity of this privilege and stated that whether one were bishop, pastor, or layman, it was only a question of degree. There is a place for everyone in the Master's vineyard. There is the work of building up a spiritual kingdom in our own hearts and souls and of reaching out to those around us, touching all people ,even those yet unborn.

And, lastly, it is His will to enjoy that place in eternity that was designed for us. "But unless the human will surrenders itself to God's will ,unless it is in harmony with God's will, the purpose of God concerning you will come to naught. That is the sad part of it. Confirmation is to help you; to emphasize God's will concerning you. It is to render you worthy of the vocation to which you have been called. It is the will of God that you continue to be his children."

His Lordship congratulated the pastor, Rev. F. J. Sawers, and the congregation upon the advancement they were making together in God's work, and expressed the hope that their mutual relations would continue to be in perfect harmony.

The class for Confirmation numbered fifty-one, many of whom were adults. Of these, twenty-seven were women and girls. An unusually large congregation witnessed the ceremony, the seating capacity of the church being considerably overtaxed.

"SINGING JIM."

A genuine treat is promised in the S. A. Temple this (Monday) evening, when a splendid service of song, entitled "Singing Jim" will be given by the Peterborough Songsters' Brigade. Preceding this song service, the Boys' Band will render several musical selections. A voluntary collection will be taken, and the public generally are cordially invited. Doors open at 7.30; service 8 p.m.

INTERMENT TO-DAY

The funeral of the late Mrs. James Elmey, who passed away so suddenly on Saturday last, took place at the Little Lake Cemetery, this morning, at 10 o'clock. The Rev. B. Grobb of All Saints', officiated.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Elmey were highly respected throughout their community, from which many friends assembled at the funeral.

Deep sympathy was expressed for the husband in his sad bereavement.

CAUSE FOR ALARM

Loss of Appetite or Distress After Eating a Symptom That Should Not Be Disregarded.

Appetite is just a natural desire for food. Loss of appetite or stomach distress after eating indicate indigestion or dyspepsia. Over-eating is a habit very dangerous to a person's good general health.

It is not what you eat but what you digest and assimilate that does you good. Some of the strongest, heaviest, and healthiest persons are moderate eaters.

There is nothing that will cause more trouble than a disordered stomach, and many people daily contract serious maladies simply through disregard or abuse of the stomach.

We urge all in Peterborough who suffer from any stomach derangement, indigestion, or dyspepsia, whether acute or chronic, to try Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets with the distinct understanding that we will refund their money without question or formality if, after reasonable use of this medicine, they are not perfectly satisfied with the results. We recommend them to our customers every day, and have yet to hear of any one who has not been benefitted by them. We honestly believe them to be without equal. They give very prompt relief, aiding to neutralize the gastric juices, strengthen the digestive organs, to regulate the bowels, and thus to promote perfect nutrition, and eradicate all unhealthy symptoms.

We urge you to try a 25c. box of Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets, which gives 15 days' treatment. At the end of that time, your money will be returned to you if you are not satisfied. Of course, in chronic cases length of treatment varies. For such cases, we have two larger sizes, which sell for 50c. and $1.00. Remember, you can obtain Rexall Remedies in this community only at our store.—The Rexall Store, McDermid and Jury.

Confirmation At St. John's

His Lordship Bishop Sweeny Preached an Inspiring Address Yesterday Morning

The Bishop of Toronto, the Right Reverend J. F. Sweeny, D.D., confirmed a number of candidates at the morning service of St. John's church yesterday.

This is the first time His Lordship has performed the ceremony in St. John's church. He is an eloquent and forceful orator and at the commencement o fhis address he expresses deep sympathy wit hthe congregation in the loss of Dr. Boucher, who had been so important a member of the congregation, and who had filled so admirably so many official post sof usefulness. The Bishop personally knew Dr. Boucher and felt a high admiration for his sterling qualities. He expressed deep sympathy with the friends and relatives.

Commencing his sermon, he said in part:

I am conscious of two thoughts this morning. First, that we are now getting far into this solemn Lenten season; therefore it will be proper for me to say something about the very solemn season of Lent. Then I am aware of a second thought. I must not forget a few words to those who are to be confirmed. Therefore, I have chosen a double text, which, together is "Consider Him who left us an example that we should follow in His steps.

Now at the Lenten season, who is it that says to every one of us, follow me — Jesus Christ. Who is it that left us such an example as only one can—Jesus Christ. During this season we hear one voice and only one —we see one tragedy and only one—the tragedy of the crucifixion. And we learn lessons from that only one, for the balance of this solemn season.

For the congregation , and those about to be confirmed should look to the central figure in our midst —Jesus Christ—and consider Him who left us to follow in His steps, who left an example of patience and endurance under extreme provocation, thus fulfilling the predictioh of Isaiah, who said: "He was led as a lamb to the slaughter." Read what St. Peter says: "He was reviled and reviled not again."

Consider Him as an example of humility. Picture Him under the olive tree in the Garden of Gethsemane. What greater humility can be imagined than when Jesus threw Himself right to the ground. Consider Him as a model of prayer. It was the influence of His prayers that made His disciples once say: "Lord, teach us to pray." Oh, ye sons and daughters of the Lord God Almighty, consider Him. Consider him and give up the balance of this solemn season to heart searching self-examination and prayer, that you may imitate those qualities which Jesus Christ called upon us to imitate.

I have nothing else to say to you who are about to be confirmed, other than look to Him, who is the central figure in our midst. Consider Him as an example and follow in His steps. In Baptism you were made members of Jesus Christ, of His body, His flesh and of His bones. That means that He is the head; that means that you are the body. As the head is holy, so the members of the body must be holy.

Consider Him also as an example of love. That is the greatest thing in the world, because God is love. Jesus Christ is your pattern of love and the strange thing about it is that you love Him who first loved you with that super-abundant love touched upon by the apostle when he says: "He loved me and gave Himself for me."

Always go about doing good. In and out, up and down, here and there amongst the people. His very presence will transform your community and your society if you do things that please him. By going about and doing good he became obedient unto death to acquiesce in the divine will of God. "Father, not my will, but Thine be done."

20 CARS OF COAL

Arrived on Saturday For One Firm Alone

The arrival of twenty cars of coal on Saturday to the Peterborough Fuel and Cartage Co., is one indication of a temporary relief to the shortage that has been felt for sometime. Coal coming now via Black Rock is relieving the situation after being held up for about forty days. Had it not been for the little dribbles of supplies that came through via Niagara this part of the country would have been face to face with a condition of actual want of coal. The reports from the United States have for some time intimated the possibility of a tug strike beginning with April 1st, but local coal men are not looking forward to any such event.

SECURED CONTRACT

Messrs. Alexander and Miller, the well known electrical men, have secured the contract for reconstructing the lighting system in the local armouries. The latest and most approved style of flaming arc lamp, manufactured by the local C.G.E., is being installed and should result in a wonderful improvement in the distribution of light.

Y. W. C. A. NOTES

Rev. Jas. Rollins will speak on the Tractarian Movement at the Y. W. C. A. Literary Club's meeting to-morrow, Tuesday evening. All friends are invited to be present.

"SPEW" ON THE EFFICACY OF PRAYER

Editor Examiner:

I have read in your issue of Wednesday night a very interesting letter from the pen of Mr. Dela Fosse on the subject of an utterance of one of the labour men at the Toronto Trades and labour Council as to the advisability of opening their meetings with devotional exercises. Now, as to his utterance, I am of the same opinion as your correspondent. He may have been sincere in his remarks, and as far as I am concerned I am not going to defend him, neither am I going to condemn him. His remarks may have been according to his conscience; but the point I am trying to get at is this, that the surprise is that such a remark should have been made after so many years of the teaching of Christianity as to the efficacy of prayer.

Now every effect must have a cause, and would it not be worth while to look for the cause that drives men to make such assertions? For my part I am prone to believe it is the prevalence of Churchianity trying to usurp the place of Christianity. In our churches of to-day, it is the want of that brotherly love as the true spirit of Christian Socialism, that is one of the causes of the empty seats in our places of worship to-day.

It is all very well to preach the gospel of meekness and obedience, but to-day when in the struggle for existence on a mere living wage in many instances, the labouring man wants the pillars or supporters of the churches to show more of the teachings of Christianity than they do at present by their work. They may have faith, they may profess to believe in the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of humanity, but faith without works, we are told, is dead.

It is all very well to say that in the church the rich and poor meet together on a level, but when the poor man knows that there are those who are grinding him down in his daily wage to make large dividends for himself and the shareholders in the concerns that he is interested in, you cannot wonder that he thinks there is a screw loose in the machinery somewhere. It is not agnosticism or the higher critics that are driving the working men from the church; it is the like of those I have alluded to.

It has been well and truly said by Bishop Gore of Oxford, that if the church is to hold the common people, she has to get right down among them to study the social systems that exist around them. Men like him and the late Rev. Hugh Price Hughes, and many others have studied out the question and in many instances the fruits of their labours are being seen. And depend upon it, when the question of what will make the best kind of a sermon to be preached, whether sensational or otherwise, to draw a crowd and make the church a paying institution, is done away with, and the true doctrine of Christianity is preached, it will be then, as it was in the days when its founder went about preaching, that it is recorded that the common people heard him gladly.

When we see the great gulf that exists between the classes and the masses, no wonder that the agnostic has hurled the question: What has Christianity done for the common people to-day. I answer that thrust by saying, it is the want of it that is keeping us all where we are to-day.

When the time comes that the pulpit sends forth in no uncertain sound the true teaching of the fatherhood of God and the true brotherhood of humanity, and the world has learned to know it, then will come the time when no such assertions as were uttered in Toronto, will be heard, and all can pray, "Our Father which art in heaven."

Yours truly,

SPERO.

EARL HICKS' WEATHER PREDICTIONS

Following are Irl Hicks' storm and weather forecasts for April:

A reactionary storm period falls centrally on the 3rd and 4th, but it is more than probable that storms of thunder and rain will develop a day or two earlier, or on the 1st, with moon at full and on the celestial equator. | The Venus equinox, also Earth's equinox, bear upon this period, making very active storms possible and probable. Keep your eye on your barometer at this and all storm periods in this month. Change to much cooler, with snow to northward, may be expected behind and after the storms. A seismic period, centernig on the 1st, covers three to four days before and after that date.

A regular storm period covers the 6th to the 11th. Change to much warmer, with falling barometer and threatening clouds, will appear westward on the 6th and 7th, and during the 8th, 9th and 10th, these conditions will grow into active storms of rain, wind and thunder, as they pass eastward over central and eastern parts of the country. Your barometer, thermometer and hygrometer will at the time tell you what is coming, if you will watch them. Hail, rain and thunder, with marked drop in temperature, and sleet and snow possible far northward, are among the probabilities at this period—all followed by high barometer, cold nights and frost northward.

A reactionary storm period, central on the 13th, 14th, and 15th, is at the centre of the Mercury period, under the increasing strain of the Venus period, with moon on the celestial equator on the 13th. As this period comes on, the barometer will almost surely fall to threatening conditions, the temperature will rise very high, and severe storms of wind, rain, hail and thunder will pass eastwardly across the country, on and touching the 14th and 15th. The western tangent of these storms will change to sleet and snow in northern sections, with rising barometer, followed by clearing and much cooler weather.

A regular storm period runs from the 18th to the 23rd, having its centre on the 20th. The Venus period is central on the 23rd, and the Moon is at greatest north declination and perigee on the 21st and 22nd. This astronomic condition calls for steady win currents from the south, low barometer, very high temperature, ending in electrical storms, heavy rain, and destructive hail storms in wide sections. Tornadoes will visit various parts, especially in southern regions, during this period. Too much importance cannot be attached to the barometer at this and all similar periods. Abnormally low readings of the barometer will indicate positive tornadic danger, with temperature falling to frost line in the clear nights following. Snow and sleet squalls will most likely visit many sections northward during this period. A marked seismic period is central on the 17th, involving the 15th to 21st.

A reactionary storm period is central on the 25th and 26th. This being at the centre of the Venus period, threatening and stormy weather, continued from the preceding period, will most likely lead up into the 25th and 26th, and thence forward into the closing days of the month, causing a long spell of stormy and unsettled weather. There will be a marked increase in the severity of storms on and touching the 26th and 28th, with possibly brief change to much warmer, with low barometer and storms of rain, with heavy hail, will be most natural on and about that date. Watch your brometer and the gathering clouds at this period! A seismic period involves the 28th, 29th and 30th.

NOTHING LIKE IT FOR COLDS

Mrs. Holland Ferguson, Sheffield, N.B. writes: "Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine has cured my children and myself of severe colds. We are never without it in the house. There is nothing like it for colds and throat troubles, and it is so soothing and pleasant to take, my children would drink a whole bottle if they were permitted."

CITE FOR EAST CITY SCHOOL DECIDED

was found to purchase the additional land which would be required, over $6,000.00 would be required above what the Armour property could be purchased for. This would give a school site for a building of about six rooms, which would be totally inadequate for the needs of that portion of the city. The Committee decided that they would build for the future, and plans were formulated for the erection of a twelve-roomed school. Eight of these rooms would be required for the present needs of the East Ward, and the other four would be held in reserve. "East City is bound to grow," asserted the Chairman. It cannot grow south, or to the East; it inevitably follows that it must grow north, and, with this idea in view the present proposed site was selected. The centre of the East Ward is destined to be at, or near the corner of Hunter street. The Board has also learned from the past the folly of building schools upon small sites. The speaker instanced the Queen Alexandra school as an example. Here the girls play on the street, and the boys, to the rear of the building. "It is a detriment to good discipline," asserted Dr. Morrison, "to have these conditions prevail." He then proceeded to give a geographical description of the Armour site, adding: "Were we to put t twelve-roomed school calucuated to accommodate between four and five hundred pupils, upon two and a half acres of land, we would be doing the very thing that we are condemning our grandfathers for doing."

Mr. Eastwood of the Board, suggested that the deputation be given another hearing at a special meeting, which would be called in the course of two weeks, or as an alternative, the circulating of a petition. He favoured the former as being more voluntary, and would be productive of more favourable opinion.

Mr. Eastwood also favoured Mr. Fair's suggestion, that a meeting be held in East City, where the ratepayers and the Board could meet together and thresh the matter out.

Ald. Morgan, of the deputation, favoured the building of a school that would meet the present needs of the Ward, and later, if the growth of East City warranted, build a school to the north.

Mr. Hill—"It is cheaper to run a large school, in which the work is centralized than maintaining two small ones."

Mr. Crane approved of the suggestion that the ratepayers of East City be given a hearing at a meeting to be held in East City.

Mr. Adams—"As a representative of the East Ward, I would say that it is too bad that these men should come here, six months after the work of selecting a site had been taken up. I, for one, was in favour of the old site until the plans were submitted to the approval of the Board, and I think that when the people see the school built and in use they will be satisfied."

"That's your way of thinking," observed Ald. Morgan.

Motion was Lost.

To bring the matter to an end, Mr. Eastwood there moved, seconded by Mr. B. Ackerman, that a public meeting of East City ratepayers be called for Tuesday or Wednesday of this week, to discuss the question of a site for the new school.

Dr. Morrison moved in amendment, seconded by Mr. W. H. Hill, that the Board convene in committee of the whole right now, and definitely settle the matter.

The vote on the amendment proved a tie, when Chairman Crane voted with the ayes, and the resolution carried.

The original motion was of course lost.

The Board then met in committee of the whole, and, after a brief discussion, resumed in special session and carried the resolution that they agree to the payment of $3,300 for the six acres of the Armour Estate, at the head of Hunter street east.

There were present at the meeting Chairman John Crane and Trustees B. F. Ackerman, V. Eastwood, Dr. Morrison, L. M. Hayes, R. Fair and W. H. Hill.

Women In Society

Lifeless Hair Doesn't Match a Graceful Form and Handsome Face

VIOLIN ARTIST HERE TO-NIGHT.

Lovers of Music Should Avail Themselves of This Rare Treat.

One of the head liner attractions at the "Red Mill" Theatre for the first two nights of this week will be Mrs. Foster, a violin artist, who made her first debut to the public at Massey Hall, Toronto, a short time ago. This is her first appearance in Peterborough in the role which she will introduce to the patrons of the Red Mill to-night. One of Mrs. Foster's masterpieces is entitled "The Canary," and must be heard to be appreciated.

PERSONAL AND SOCIAL

Mrs. Shortly will not receive to-morrow, Tuesday, March 26th.

Mrs. Maxwell Henry of Millbrook, is the guest of Mrs. Harry Smith, 92 Aylmer street.

Mrs. J. C. Shook is leaving for Toronto this week, and will not receive again this season.

Dr. and Mrs. P. G. Goldsmith and Mrs. A. L. Davis, Toronto, were in the city over Sunday, the guests of Mrs. E. J. Pearce, Walton street.

The many friends of Mr. David Crowley will regret to learn that he is seriously ill at the home of his brother-in-law, Mr. John Lynch, Boundary Road.

The friends of Mr. George Jobbitt will be pleased to learn that he has recovered from his indisposition and resumed his duties on the Lakefield train to-day.

Mr. Norman Rae spent the week-end in Toronto, with his brother, Mr. Harry Rae, who leaves to-morrow for Edmonton, after spending a few weeks at his home here.

Mr. J. L. Hughes, who preached at the educational services in the George St. Methodist Church on Sunday, was the guest of Rev. Mr. Couch during his stay in Peterborough.

Mr. Herbert King, formerly of Peterborough, is in the city on a visit to his mother, Mrs. Elizabeth King, Downie street. It is now over seventeen years since Mr. King left Peterborough for Chicago, and his many friends here will be pleased to see him. Mr. King is connected with the large Brokerage Firm of Marshall, Brown and Company, Chicago, and is one of the Peterborough young men who is succeeding in the West. Mr. King is tenor soloist in one of the largest churches in Chicago, and during the winter season does concert work extensively in most of the large Western cities, as well as some of the eastern and southern cities. Mr. King has recently sung in Kansas City, St. Louis and Detroit, in one week.

In Dread Of Croup

The inexperienced mother is always in dread of croup. There is seldom any warning until the child awakens at midnight with the hard, metallic cough and gasps frantically for breath.

There is no time to send for a doctor, no time to go to the drug store, even; relief must be obtained at once. If you are not so fortunate as to have Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine in the house, cause the child to vomit with a spoonful of warm lard or by tickling the throat with the finegr.

Then get Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine so as to prevent the more serious attack which usually comes the second night. This treatment is wonderfully effective for croup, bronchitis and colds in the throat or chest. Mothers who make a practice of always keeping it in the house find that they can depend on it in case of emergency.

$50 FIRE THIS AFTERNOON

A spark from the chimney set fire at noon to-day to the roof of the dwelling house at 295 Murray street occupied by Mr. Joseph Viloise, and owned by Mr. John Gibbs.

The Fire Department received a telephone call at 1.30 and on arrival at the scene of the conflagration it was found advisable to tear away some of the plaster inside, as already a hole had been burned in the roof. The efforts of the men, however, curtailed the spreading of the fire and the damage to the extent of only $50 resulted

Lenten Addresses in Buffalo

Rev. Canon Davidson Tells His Congregation of His Visit

Rev. Canon Davidson has returned from Buffalo, where during last week he was one of the speakers at a series of noon-day Lenten meetings. At St. John's, last evening, Canon Davidson referred briefly to his visit to Buffalo and told his congregation of the success of the mission. The noon-day meetings had been largely attended by business men and women and the fellowship of the church had rendered his reception of the warmest and most cordial character. On Thursday night he was the guest of honour at a large meeting of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew, and he had received a great many courtesies during his visit.

A DEAD BABY FOUND ON TRACK

Special to The Examiner.

BARRIE, ONT., March 25th. — Somebody dropped a box containing a new born baby out of a Canadian Pacific train near here, apparently with the object of having the train run over it, but it fell between the rails. The child died of exposure and was only found this morning.

SUSTAINED BAD SHAKING UP

Mr. Robert Solomon of the fifth concession of North Monaghan, sustained a bad shaking this afternoon, the result of a fright taken by his team of horses.

He was driving slowly out of the lane at the side of the Church of Christ Scientist when one of the hind sleighs struck the wall. This caused the horses, one of which was a colt, to take fright. Mr. Solomon was thrown from the vehicle and crushed against the wall, while the horses rushed across the street.

The injured person was taken into the fire hall, and tended by some of the men, while others caught the horses.

Mr. Solomon was badly shaken, and sustained cuts about the face, but a snow bank was instrumental in preventing injury of a serious nature.

SALVIA is a beautiful, pleasant, non-sticky Hair Tonic.

Also sold at Payne's drug store.

A TRIBUTE TO DR. BOUCHER

At St. John's Church, last evening, the rector, Rev. Canon Davidson, referred to the loss the congregation of St. John's had sustained in the death of Dr. Boucher. Canon Davidson referred to Dr. Boucher as a faithful attendant at, and worker for, the church, and as one of the most loyal friends and assistants of the clergy. While they were always glad to see the occasional visitors at church, it was from the faithful attendant, such as Dr. Boucher, that they received their chief support.

IMMIGRANTS ARRIVE SATURDAY.

The Last of the Party Were Placed This Afternoon.

Fifteen immigrants found temporary shelter in the city yesterday. They formed the residue of a party which sailed on the 'Royal Edward' two weeks ago and their arrival has been anticipated for several days. The regular 4.28 C.P.R. train from Montreal conveyed them here on Saturday afternoon, and before the shades of night had enveloped the city, the majority of the new arrivals were on their way to their new homes. Those who remained in town over Sunday received their final instructions from Mr. Howson, Immigration Agent, and were formally taken over by their prospective employers to-day.

A small party is expected towards the end of the week. They sailed from Liverpool on the 20th, and should reach Halifax sometime to-morrow evening or Wednesday.

RAILWAY NOTES

A Winnipeg paper estimates that as soon as spring opens 15,000 men will be required by the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway with an additional 10,000 for the Hudson Bay Line. Here is an steader to earn enough money on construction work to stock up for the opportunity for the enterprising homewinter.

According to the latest reports it seems probable that Port Nelson will be selected as the terminus of the Hudson Bay Railway. A map showing the conditions of navigation prepared by the hydrographic survey which visited the locality last summer shows that with the removal of a few shoals a perfectly accessible harbour from one to four miles wide and from 20 to 60 feet deep can be made.

The appearance of Watrous, the thriving young Saskatchewan town is to be greatly enhanced this spring by the laying out of parks on either side of the Grand Trunk depot.

The first boat to dock at the new Grand Trunk Pacific wharves in Vancouver is the Canadian-Mexican liner "Beckenham," which arrived via Victoria from Santa Cruz.

Lost Control Of His Temper

Once there was a man whose liver was not working right. When dressing in the morning he had trouble with his collar. Then he lost the collar button. Then he said something.

By the time he got to breakfast he was so irritated that he had no appetite and quarrelled with his wife. He went to the office with a headache and when he had some important business to transact he bungled it.

When you find yourself easily irritated and lose control of yourself and your temper, look to the condition of the liver, and take one of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills at bedtime.

The dark-brown taste will not bother you in the mornings, the tongue will clear up, digestion will improve and you will not have the tired, worn-out feelings which accompany a sluggish condition of the liver.

NO AGREEMENT REACHED IN ENGLISH COAL STRIKE

Premier Asquith Again Fails to Settle the Strike and Situation is Now Acute---Three Million Men Are Still Out of Work.

London, March 26.—The 35th day of the national coal strike ends with nearly 3,000,000 workers idle, many thousands dependent upon charity to keep them from starvation, every manufacturing industry in the land undergoing a throttling, and a settlement apparently as remote as ever.

The sanguine expectations at the beginning of the day that the joint conference of coal owners and miners dramatically summoned by the Premier, would reach an agreement that would end the struggle were replaced by the gloomiest forebodings, when it was learned that no joint conference had been held. For two and a half hours the Prime Minister and his colleagues labored with the committee representing the coal owners, and for four hours and a half with the miners' executive, but they failed so completely to secure concessions from either which would afford a basis for agreement between them, that it was found inadvisable to bring the disputants together again.

As in previous crises in the situation, the Government resorts to mystifying secrecy, the only information vouchsafed in the official statement issued last evening being: "The conference adjourned until to-morrow."

Much significance is attached to the speech of Viscount Haldane, the War Secretary, at the dinner of the Fishmongers, when, having said that it was the duty of the state to preserve law and order, he added: "We have no right, we have no power to make 850,000 miners go to work—it is for them to choose. On the other hand if there are those among them who desire to work, it is our duty to secure to them the liberty to do so."

Back to Scottish Mines.

Glasgow, March 26.—A general breakway of the miners from the strike movement seems probable in Scotland, where 1,000 men resumed work in the pits of Bellshill, Lanarkshire, yesterday morning.

In other pits also there was a considerable resumption of work.

Motor-Car Bandits.

Paris, March 26.—The automobile bandits, who in February terrorized many districts of France by carrying out an extraordinary series of crimes, are believed to be still at large. They, yesterday, perpetrated a bold murder on the public highway between Villeneuve-St. Georges and Paris.

A gang of four bandits, who occupied an automobile ordered the chauffeur of a private motor car to stop. When the chauffeur refused, the highwayman shot him dead with their revolvers and wounded the occupant. After throwing the corpse of the chauffeur into the ditch by the roadside, the bandits entered the automobile, and next turned up at Chantilly, the racing centre, at 10.30. They entered the local branch of a Lig Paris bank, where they shot the cashier and another employe dead and dangerously wounded a third man with two revolver shots in the back.

U. S. Has Fastest Dreadnought.

Rockland, Me., March 26.—The fastest Dreadnought in the American navy, and probably in the world, in the title claimed for the Government built battleship Florida, which made 22.54 knots on her standardization trial over the Rockland course yesterday. The British Dreadnought Vanguard, with a record of 22.50, has been considered previously the fastest battleship of the world, and the Florida's sister ship, the Utah, built at a private yard, made a record of 21.637 on her fastest trial run.

TALK NO. 4

The Eye Like a Camera

The eye is constructed so wonderfully and ingeniously that the handicraft of man has not as yet been able to construct as delicate an instrument. It is like a camera—the lens to focus, the lid as a shutter, the iris or colour as the diaphragm, and the thick coatings of the eye-ball as the dark room, the nerve as the sensitive plate, and strange as it may seem, the image is bottom side up exactly as the image in the camera. Now so delicate and sensitive an instrument as the eye should have good care. Let us explain more fully to you how to care for the eyes.

Government Race Track Bill Gets Third Reading in Spite of Dr. Pugsley's Amendment

YESTERDAY IN HOUSE

Ottawa, March 26.—Hon. C. J. Doherty's race track bill was given its third reading at yesterday's session of the House of Commons and passed, after an amendment by Hon. Wm Pugsley to make its provisions retroactive from March 1, 1912, had been declared lost on division.

The bill provides that, hereafter, applications for charters for racing associations shall be dealt with by the House of Commons as private bill charters instead of being granted by letters patent, under the Companies Act by the Secretary of State.

When the issue was raised some time ago by the introduction of a bill by the Minister of Justice to that effect, it was opposed by Hon. William Pugsley, and other members of the Opposition on the ground that it legalised two charters which were granted on March 18, by the present Government under the Companies Act, which charters, it was claimed, had been "refused" by the former Secretary of State. When the bill was called in the House for the third reading, Hon. Dr. Pugsley moved again his amendment to the effect that the new law should come into force on March 1 instead of March 20. The two charters in question were granted on March 18.

In support of his amendment Dr. Pugsley stated that he had been informed that by a decision of the high court of justice of Ontario no writ of mandamus could issue to compel the local authority to incorporate a racing association. These two charters, which had been granted on the 18th of March, under the Companies' Act, had been applied for two years ago, but were really so broad in their character that the Secretary of State considered that they ought not to have been granted. The bill, by the terms of its date of coming into force, legalized these charters and prevented provincial authorization of racing associations subsequent to the arbitrary date set forth in the federal bill.

The Minister of Justice, in reply, stated that neither of these applications had been refused by the former Secretary of State, Hon. Chas. Murphy, and quite correctly so in view of the decision of the courts. Indeed the deposits of the associations had been retained by the Government, proving that there had been no refusal of the applications.

"Hon. members who were so indignant yesterday," continued the Minister of Justice, "had it in their power to do what we are doing to-day. They were not then so concerned about public morality. Why did they not absolutely refuse these applications for racing associations, instead of keeping the deposits of the applicants and shirking their responsibility as a Government by seeing to it that the law was made clear in this respect."

"Their virtuous indignation to-day is magnificent, but it will deceive no one conversant with the facts. It was kept to be poured out in vials of wrath upon this succeeding administration, which attempted to right a wrong, that they allowed to remain in abeyance. The late Government did not refuse to grant these two racing charters because, under decision of the courts they could not refuse."

"But why the delay of five months in coming to the decision?" said Dr. Pugsley.

"Until the hon. gentleman explains his Government's delay of two years in dealing with the matter, I submit that it does not lie in his mouth to ask why we did not move in the four or five months during which we have been in power," said Hon. Mr. Doherty. "We gave this matter our consideration in due course, but we had many other matters to attend to."

In the Senate last night, Senator Costigan moved an amendment to the Government's Manitoba boundary bill. Senator Costigan favored conciliation, but declared it should not be one-sided. The compromise he favored was an exchange of money and territory to Manitoba in return for a guarantee by Manitoba of the school rites of the Keewatin minority.

The amendment was lost, 39 to 13.

"Shoe Trust" Inquiry Here.

Montreal, March 26.—T. Chase Casgrain, K.C., leaves for Toronto to-day to represent the United Shoe Machinery Co. of Canada, which is a subsidiary of that of Boston, in the continuation of the investigation into the business of the company, which will go on under the Combines Investigation Act.

The commission has decided to hold sessions at Toronto to see if the same conditions as prevail in Montreal and Quebec prevail throughout Ontario. The first sitting will be held on Wednesday next and the sittings will continue for three or four days. Toronto manufacturers, Hamilton and Brantford and other shoemen will give evidence.

Prince of Wales to Visit Paris.

London, March 26.—The Daily Telegraph's Paris correspondent states that the Prince of Wales is likely to spend sometime in Paris this year as a guest of a French noble family.

It adds that the family is one with whom the late King Edward had long been on very friendly terms, and with whom the King is also well acquainted.

Holiday For Sir William.

Ottawa, March 26.—In the House yesterday morning Mr. Verville was told that Sir William Meredith has applied for a year's leave of absence. The request is under consideration.

Grand Trunk Bill Stands.

Ottawa, March 26.—The Grand Trunk bill came up again yesterday. Maj. Currie asked that it stand till Wednesday. He added: "The Grand Trunk solicitor instructed me that Mr. Kelley, master of transportation, was to be here this morning. He has not turned up. I will not proceed till he does come and see the Minister of Labor."

The same attitude was taken by Maj. Currie with regard to the Grand Trunk bill to ratify the agreement between it and the Ontario Government for the use of the Temiskaming & Northern Ontario Railway from North Bay to the Transcontinental at Cochrane, for which Ontario will be paid $300,000 a year.

A Peace Offering.

Paris, March 26.—The plans of France to give practical expression of her friendship for the United States are completed. The new steamship France, which on April 20 will start to New York, will convey an official delegation of Frenchmen, bearing Auguste Rodin's bronze bust of "La France." This will be presented to the United States, to be placed at the base of the monument which will be dedicated next June to Samuel de Champlain.

WOMEN'S SUFFRAGE DISCUSSED IN LEGISLATURE YESTERDAY

Non-Partizan Discussion Arises Out of Mr. McDonald's Measure to Grant Partial Suffrage to Women---Whitney Says There is Demand for Women's Suffrage.

Toronto, March 26.—Party allegiance was laid aside for an hour or so in the Legislature yesterday afternoon when the bill to extend the political franchise to married woman and spinsters with property qualifications was under discussion. At the present time these two classes of women can vote in municipal elections, and W. McDonald, Liberal member for Centre Bruce, introduced the bill to amend the Ontario Election Act merely to extend the provincial franchise to them also.

Mr. McDonald deplored the fact that male foreigners with only one year's residence in the country can vote and yet women, no matter how much property they own, cannot exercise the provincial franchise.

"I have nothing to say in favor of manhood suffrage," said Mr. McDonald. "I'm not blaming the Government, for I know it was first introduced by Sir Oliver Mowat. But I don't care from whom it originated. It has been a source of corruption ever since, and in seaport towns especially many men not long resident in the country can be bought at election time for a mere song."

"It is to offset this transient vote that we propose to extend the vote to married women and spinsters with property qualifications," he added.

"Hear, hear," said Capt. Machin, the Conservative member for Kenora. "I endorse the bill heartily, for it is just extending the provincial vote to the same women who can now vote in municipal elections."

On this subject N. W. Rowell threw aside for the moment his official position as leader of the Opposition and spoke as a plain, ordinary member.

"I support this bill, as member for North Oxford," he said. "Unmarried women and spinsters can now vote on municipal affairs, which include a wide range of subjects over which this House has jurisdiction. The granting of the political franchise as this bill provides for, would be elevating and give added intelligence to the electorate."

Sir James Whitney was not silent either. "One question I am not disposed to quarrel about is whether women is or is not the equal of man," said Sir James, "but I maintain that if we are ever going to get around this question—if its going to be settled at all, it will be by opening the flood gates and letting all the sisters in. (Laughter.)

"But isn't this little bite of a cherry just the entering wedge of the whole subject? And the question of woman suffrage all through the last campaign. And some of the deputations of women who came here to the Parliament Buildings said openly that the reason they wanted the franchise was because they were agreed that government by men had failed. Sir James added that Mr. McDonald, no doubt had introduced his bill as the result of persuasion by little groups of women who agitate these matters in practically every constituency in the province.

Provincial Secretary Hanna said that a suffrage bill had never been presented to the House in this form before. The people had not discussed it, neither had the press. It wasn't even mentioned at the last election. Therefore he moved an amendment to Mr. McDonald's bill, giving it a six months' hoist.

Allen Studholme said he would support the bill. It didn't convey as much as he wished, for he wanted to see women side by side with men. However, it was a step in the right direction.

Sam Clarke, West Northumberland, had practically the same view of the matter as Sir James Whitney.

A "hybrid" was the way A. H. Musgrove, North Huron, regarded the bill introduced by Mr. McDonald. Mr. Musgrove didn't think that women without property qualifications should be denied the franchise, if women with property qualifications got it.

The bill was lost on division.

Dr. McQueen, North Wentworth, urged the second reading of his bill to prevent the spread of pulmonary and other forms of tuberculosis.

Provincial Secretary Hanna also complimented Dr. McQueen for his able and interesting address. "I endorse every word the hon. gentleman says," added Mr. Hanna, "but I am glad to say that the recommendations he makes are already embodied in the new Public Health Act, which is about to come up for its third reading."

The bill was withdrawn.

The vote on the eight-hour bill will be taken to-day. The Liberals and Mr. Studholme oppose postponement.

Hospital Experts to Meet.

Toronto, March 26.—The sixth annual conference of the Canadian Hospital Association, to be held in Toronto on April 4, 5, 6, promises to be of unusual interest. Hospital experts from New York, Detroit, Montreal and this city will read papers. Dr. H. A. Boyce of Kingston presides. A big attendance is looked for.

Held Up A. O. F. Bill.

Ottawa, March 26.—The banking and commerce committee yesterday held up the bill respecting the Ancient Order of Foresters, pending more definite information from headquarters.

The original act authorised the order to do business in real estate to a limit of $50,000. Hon. W. T. White pointed out yesterday that the bill removed these limitations, and the whole surplus might be put in real estate.

Chairman Ames said the order wanted to erect a building of its own, instead of renting offices. The Minister replied that it costs a great deal to keep up such buildings, and the enterprise might be dangerous.

Sir Max's Sensational Charge.

London, March 26.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—In the House of Commons yesterday Sir Max Aitken accused the Government of having two years ago abstracted £500,000 from the Treasury for political purposes.

He also contended that consolidated funds, £43,000, was deliberately thrown away by the Treasurer's refusal to adopt modern methods.

Secretary Masterman, for the Government, retorted that he had no intention of chewing the end of old political controversies.

British National Telephone.

London, March 26.—A stupendous lawsuit involving many millions of pounds was mentioned in the courts yesterday. The case arises through the Government's purchase of the National Telephone undertaking. The question involved concerns the price of the plant and the telephone company's case alone is expected to last nearly a month. Many witnesses are coming from abroad. It has been decided to begin the case on June 10.

WOMEN, AVOID OPERATIONS

Many Unsuccessful — And Worse Suffering Often Follows. Mrs. Rock's Case A Warning.

The following letter from Mrs. Orville Rock will show how unwise it is for women to submit to the dangers of a surgical operation when often it may be avoided by using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. She was four weeks in the hospital and came home suffering worse than before.

Here is her own statement.

Paw Paw, Mich.—"Two years ago I suffered very severely with a displacement. I could not be on my feet for a long time. My physician treated me for several months without much relief and at last sent me to Ann Arbor for an operation. I was there four weeks and came home suffering worse than before. My mother advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I did. Today I am well and strong and do all my own housework. I owe my health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and advise my friends who are afflicted with any female complaint to try it."—Mrs. ORVILLE ROCK, R. R. No. 5, Paw Paw, Michigan.

If you are ill do not drag along until an operation is necessary, but at once take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for women's ills, and has restored the health of thousands of suffering women. Why don't you try it?

"INITIALS ONLY"

BY ANNA KATHARINE GREENE

The man who watched without seeing wondered that she stood so still and spoke so briefly. He thought he understood her hesitation, and a look of great earnestness replaced his former one of grave decision.

"I know that in doing this I am going beyond my sacred compact with Miss Challoner," he said. "I never thought of illness,—at least, of illness on my part. I never dreamt that I, always so well, always so full of life, could know such feebleness as this, feebleness which is all of the body, Doris, leaving the mind free to dream and long. Talk of her, child. Tell me all over again just how she looked and spoke that day you saw her in New York."

"Would it not be better for me to write my letter first? Papa will be coming soon and Truda can never cook your bird as you like it."

Surprised now by something not quite natural in her manner, he caught at her hand and held her as she was moving away.

"You are tired," said he. "I've wearied you with my commission and complaints. Forgive me, dear child, and—"

"You are mistaken," she interrupted softly. "I am not tired; I only wished to do the important thing first. Shall I get my desk? Do you really wish me to write?"

"Yes," said he, softly dropping her hand. "I wish to write. It will ensure me good sleep, and sleep will make me strong. A few words, Doris; just a few words."

She nodded; turning quickly away to hide her tears. His smile had gone to her very soul. It was always a beautiful one, his chief personal attraction, but at this moment it seemed to concentrate within it the unspoken fervors and the boundless expectations of a great love, and she who was the aim and cause of all this sweetness lay in unresponsive silence in a distant tomb.

But Doris' own smile was not lacking in encouragement and beauty when she came back a few minutes later and sat down by his side to write. His melted before it, leaving his eyes very earnest as he watched her bending figure and the hard-worked little hand at its unaccustomed task.

"I must give her daily exercises," he decided within himself. "That look of pain shows how difficult this work is for her. It must be made easy at any cost to my time. Such beauty calls for accomplishment. I must not neglect so plain a duty."

Meantime, she was struggling to find words in face of that great Dread. She had written Dear Miss Challoner and was staring in horror at the soulless words. Only her sense of duty upheld her. Gladly would she have torn the sheet in two and rushed away. How could she add sentences to this hollow phrase, the mere employment of which seemed a sacrilege. Dear Miss Challoner. Oh, she was dear, but—

Unconsciously the young head dropped, and the pen slid from her hand.

"I cannot," she murmured. "I cannot think what to say."

"Shall I help you?" came softly from the bed. "I'll try and not forget that it is Doris writing."

"If you will be so good," she answered, with renewed courage. "I can put the words together if you can only find them for me."

"Write then. 'Dear Miss Challoner.'"

"I have already written that."

"Why do you shudder?"

"I'm cold. I've been cold all day. But never mind that, Mr. Brotherson. Tell me how to begin my letter."

"This way. 'I've not been able to answer your kind letter, because I have had to play nurse for some three or four weeks to a very fretful and exacting patient.' Have you written that?"

"No," said Doris, bending over her white cheeks. "I do not like to," she protested at last, with an attempt at naivete which seemed real enough to him.

"Well, leave out the fretful if you must, but keep in the exacting. I have been exacting, you know."

Silence, broken only by the scratching of the stubborn, ill-directed pen.

"It's down," she whispered. She said, afterward, that it was like writing with a ghost looking over one's shoulder.

"Then add, Mr. Brotherson has had a slight attack of fever, but he is getting well fast, and will soon—' Do I run on too quickly?"

"No, no, I can follow."

"But not without losing breath; eh, Doris?"

As he laughed, she smiled. There was a heroism in that smile, Oswald Brotherson, of which you knew nothing.

"You might speak a little more slowly," she admitted.

Quietly he repeated the last phrase. "'But he is getting well fast and will soon be ready to take up the management of the Works which was given him just before he was taken ill.' That will show her that I am working up," he brightly remarked as Doris carefully penned the last word. "Of myself you need say nothing more, unless—" he paused and his face took on a wistful look which Doris dared not meet; "unless—but no, no, she must think it has been only a passing indisposition. If she knew I had been really ill, she would suffer, and perhaps act imprudently or suffer and not dare to act at all, which might be sadder for her still. Leave it where it is and begin yourself. Write a good deal about yourself, so that she will see that you are not worried and that all is well with us here. Cannot you do that without assistance? Surely you can tell her about that last piece of embroidery you showed me. She will be glad to hear—why Doris!"

"Oh, Mr. Brotherson," the poor child burst out, "you must let me cry! I'm so glad to see you better and interested in all sorts of things. These are not tears of grief. I—I—but I'm forgetting what the doctor told me. You are growing excited and I was to see that you were calm always calm. I will write the rest in the other room, while you look at the magazines."

"But bring your letter back for me to seal. I want to see it in its envelope. Oh, Doris, you are a good little girl!"

She shook her head, and hastened to hide herself from him in the other room, and it was a long time before she came back with the letter folded and in its envelope. When she did her face was composed and her manner natural. She had quite made up her mind what her duty was and how she was going to perform it.

"Here is the letter," said she, laying it in his outstretched hand. Then she turned her back. She knew with a woman's unerring instinct why he wished to handle it before it went. She felt that kiss he folded away in it, in every fibre of her aroused and sympathetic heart, but the hardest part of the ordeal was over and her eyes beamed softly when she turned again to take it from his hand and affix the stamp.

"You will mail it yourself?" he asked. "I should like to have you put it into the box with your own hand."

"I will put it in to-night, after supper," she promised him.

His smile of contentment assured her that this trial of her courage and self control was not without one blessed result. He would rest for several days in the pleasure of what he had done or thought he had done. She need not cringe before that image of Dread for two, three days at least. Meanwhile, he would grow strong in body, and she, perhaps, in spirit. Only one precaution she must take. No hint of Mr. Challoner's presence in town must reach him. He must be guarded from a knowledge of that fact as certainly as from the more serious one which lay behind it.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

I HOPE NEVER TO SEE THAT MAN.

That this would be a difficult thing to do, Doris was soon to realise. Mr. Challoner continued to pass the house twice a day and the time finally came when he ventured up the walk.

Doris was in the window and saw him coming. She slipped softly out and intercepted him before he had stepped upon the porch. She had caught up her hat as she passed through the hall, and was fitting it to her head as he looked up and saw her.

"Miss Scott?" he asked.

"Yes, Mr. Challoner."

"You know me?" he went on, one foot on the step and one still on the walk.

Before replying she closed the door behind her. Then as she noted his surprise she carefully explained:

"Mr. Brotherson, our boarder, is just recovering from typhoid. He is still weak and acutely susceptible to the least noise. I was afraid that our voices might disturb him. Do you mind walking a little way up the road? That is, if your visit was intended for me."

Her flush, the beauty which must have struck even him, but more than all else her youth, seemed to reconcile him to this unconventional request. Bowing, he took his foot from the step, saying, as she joined him.

"Yes, you are the one I wanted to see; that is, to-day. Later, I hope to have the privilege of a conversation with Mr. Brotherson."

She gave him one quick look, trembling so that he offered her his arm with a fatherly air.

"I see that you understand my errand here," he proceeded, with a fatherly air.

"I see that you understand my errand here," he proceeded, with a grave smile, meant as she knew for her encouragement. "I am glad, because we can go at once to the point. Miss Scott," he continued, in a voice from which he no longer strove to keep back the evidences of deep feeling, "I have the strongest interest in your patient that one man can have in another, where there is no personal acquaintanceship. You who have every reason to understand my reason for this, will accept the statement, I hope, as frankly as it is made."

She nodded. Her eyes were full of tears, but she did not hesitate to raise them. She had the greatest desire to see the face of the man who could speak like this to-day, and yet of whose pride and sense of superiority his daughter had stood in such awe, that she had laid a seal upon the impulses of her heart, and imposed such tasks and weary waiting upon her lover. Doris forgot, in meeting his softened glance and tender, almost wistful, expression, the changes which can be made by a great grief, and only wondered why her sweet benefactress had not taken him into her confidence and thus, possibly, averted the doom which Doris felt had in some way grown out of this secrecy.

"Why should she have feared the disapproval of this man?" she inwardly queried, as she cast him a confiding look which pleased him greatly, as his tone now showed.

"When I lost my daughter, I lost everything," he declared, as they walked slowly up the road. "Nothing excites my interest, save that which once excited hers. I am told that the deepest interest of her life lay here. I am also told that it was an interest quite worthy of her. I expect to find it so. I hope with all my heart to find it so, and that is why I have come to this town and expect to linger till Mr. Brotherson has recovered sufficiently to see me. I hope that this will be agreeable to him. I hope that I am not presuming too much in cherishing these expectations."

Doris turned her candid eyes upon him.

"I cannot tell; I do not know," said she. "Nobody knows, not even the doctor, what effect the news we so dread to give him will have upon Mr. Brotherson. You will have to wait—we shall have to wait the results of that revelation. It cannot be kept from him much longer. When I return, I shall shrink from his first look, in the fear of seeing it betray this dreadful knowledge. Yet I have a faithful woman there to keep every one out of his room."

"You have had much to carry for one so young," was Mr. Challoner's sympathetic remark. "You must let me help you when that awful moment comes. I am at the hotel and shall stay there till Mr. Brotherson is pronounced quite well. I have no other duty now in life but to sustain him through his trouble and then, with what aid he can give, search out and find the cause of my daughter's death which I will never admit without the fullest proof, to have been one of suicide."

Doris trembled.

"It was not suicide," she declared vehemently. "I have always felt sure that it was not; but to-day I know."

Her hand fell clenched on her breast and her eyes gleamed strangely. Mr. Challoner was himself greatly startled. What had happened —what could have happened since yesterday that she should emphasize that now?

"I've not told any one," she went on, as he stopped short in the road, in his anxiety to understand her. "But I will tell you. Only, not here, not with all these people driving past; most of whom know me. Come to the house later—this evening, after Mr. Brotherson's room is closed for the night. I have a little sitting-room on the other side of the hall where we can talk without being heard. Would you object to doing that? Am I asking too much of you?"

"No, not at all," he assured her. "Expect me at eight. Will that be too early?"

"No, no. Oh, how those people stare! Let us hasten back or they may connect your name with what we want kept secret."

He smiled at her fears, but gave in to her humor; he would see her soon again and possibly learn something which would amply repay him, both for his trouble and his patience.

But when evening came and she turned to fate him in that little sitting-room where he had quietly followed her, he was conscious of a change in her manner which forbade these high hopes. The gleam was gone from her eyes; the tremulous eagerness from her mobile mouth. She had been thinking in the hours which had passed, and had lost the confidence of that one impetuous moment. Her greeting betrayed embarrassment and she hesitated painfully before she spoke.

"I don't know what you will think of me," she ventured at last, motioning to a chair but not sitting herself. "You have had time to think over what I said and probably expect something real,—something you could tell people. But it isn't like that. It's a feeling—a belief. I'm so sure—"

She gave a glance at the door before stepping up nearer. He had not taken the chair she proffered.

"Sure that I have seen the face of the man who murdered her. It was in a dream," she whisperingly completed, her great eyes misty with awe.

"A dream, Miss Scott?" He tried to hide his disappointment.

"Yes; I know that it would sound foolish to you; it sounds foolish to me. But listen, sir. Listen to what I have to tell and then you can judge. I was very much agitated yesterday. I had to write a letter at Mr. Brotherson's dictation—a letter to her. You can understand my horror and the effort I made to hide my emotion. I was quite unnerved. I could not sleep till morning, and then—and then—I saw—I hope I can describe it."

Grasping at a nearby chair, she leaned on it for support, closing her eyes to all but that inner vision. A breathless moment followed, then she murmured in strained monotonous tones:

"I see it again—just as I saw it in the early morning—but even more plainly, if that is possible. A hall—(I should call it a hall, though I don't remember seeing any place like it before), with a little staircase at the side, up which there comes a man who stops just at the top and looks intently my way. There is a fierceness in his face—a look which means no good to anybody—and as his hand goes to his overcoat pocket, drawing out something which I cannot describe, but which he handles as if it were a pistol, I feel a horrible fear, and—and—" The child was staggering, and the hand which was free had sought her heart where it lay clenched, the knuckles showing white in the dim light.

Mr. Challoner watched her with dilated eyes, the spell under which she spoke falling in some degree upon him. Had she finished? Was this all? No; she is speaking again, but very low, almost in a whisper.

Suffered With Nerve Trouble For Two Years.

IT WAS IMPOSSIBLE FOR HIM TO SLEEP.

Diseases of the nervous system are very common. All the organs of the body may be sound while the nervous system alone may be diseased, therefore it is necessary for anyone suffering from any nervous trouble to procure a remedy which will at once quieten the nerves and build up the system.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills will do this for you, providing you give them a fair trial.

Mr. Chas. W. Wood, Montreal, Que., writes:—"For two years I had suffered with nerve trouble, and it was impossible for me to sleep. It did not matter what time I went to bed, in the morning I was even worse than the night before. I consulted a doctor, and he gave me a tonic to take a half hour before going to bed. It was all right for a time, but the old trouble returned with greater force than before. One of the boys, who works with me, gave me half a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. I took them and I got such satisfaction that I got another box, and before I finished it I could enjoy sleep from 10 p.m. until 6 a.m., and now feel good."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50 cents per box, or 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

NON RUSTABLE D & A CORSET

510

The D & A price has been the First Step of many Fashionable Women towards Corset Style and Comfort.

FROM the latest Paris designs, adapted to Canadian figures, D. & A. Corsets are produced from the best materials in one of the finest factories in the world. Made in large quantities and sold at small profits, D & A Corsets save their purchasers from $1.00 to $3.00 over imported corsets of even values. This saving has induced many to try them and the style, comfort, and good wear has then won us permanent customers.

The D & A Corset No. 510 illustrated herewith, is designed for the woman with a small or medium figure and requiring little bust support. This model has medium bust, extended hips and long back. It is made with English coutil, trimmed with wide lace, ribbon and bow, has duplex steel bones, stopped top and bottom with silk, six hole suspenders, draw string and skirt. An imported corset covering the above description would cost $3.00. The D & A model 510 is sold at all good stores for $2.00. Other D & A models, from $1.00 to $3.00, every one guaranteed.

Taking the rush out of the rush order

THE rush order is more or less of a demoralizer. It upsets the regular routine, disarranges the schedule and requires the temporary shifting around of employes from one job to another which means lost energy and lost time. At the risk of offending buyers equally as important and desirable, other orders must perforce be held up to make way for the urgent demands of the rush order customer. To successfully cope with conditions like these requires the use of an elevator.

THE Otis Fensom Elevator saves money in the factory or warehouse by reducing the amount of unproductive labor required to handle the raw material or finished product. It makes access to stock room and finishing department more convenient. It does away with laborious, hazardous and time-consuming transfer of goods via the stairway, and thereby saves the efforts of your employes and increases their efficiency. Because of the greater facilities which the elevator affords, rush orders are despatched with the same expedition and promptness as regular orders and the busy season no longer finds it necessary to shorthand other departments or hire extra help to facilitate the work of the shipping department.

SHOULD your business be of such a nature as not to require a power elevator, we make a hand power elevator equipped with our improved steel roller bearings, and constructed in a thoroughly substantial manner. It runs with the least possible friction, and can be operated by anyone. The brake is a new design of a very powerful cam, which will stop and hold the car with its heaviest load at any point. Send for your copy of our illustrated book "Freight Elevators and Their Uses." It shows in a very simple and plain way just how a freight elevator may be applied to the practical everyday needs of your business.

Women 3000 Years Behind, Says Edison

Would Limit Suffrage to the Property Holders for Both Sexes, However

NEWARK, N. J., March 26.—"It will be 3,000 years—at the shortest 2,500—before women are he intellectual equals of men! Such an assumption is ridiculous now."

It was Thomas A. Edison, speaking in the library of his beautiful home in Llewellyn Park. He had consented to spare a few minutes from his busy life.

"Haven't women any brains?" he was asked by a woman interviewer.

"There's some there; a little, not much. But women haven't any cross fibres. That's our fault! We've held you down. But now you are beginning to evolute.

"But I believe in women having the vote if they have property. If they haven't, no! And it ought to be the same with men."

"Mona Lisa is a Daub."

A switch in the interview.

"Just now hte world is better to live upon than it ever was, and it's getting better all the while. I was in Europe when that daub was stolen—"

"You refer——"

"To the 'Mon Lis'—the outcry wis ridiculous. Why is it valuable? Simply because it's so old. 'Mona Lisa' is a daub.

"Because," he went on grimly, "no one shaky human hand, even if it be a Leonardo's, can hope to reproduce nature. If you want beauty and fidelity in portrayal you have to go to a more complex organism—the camera."

Mr. Edison again switched to another topic:

"Did you ever hear how the reincarnators have explained me?" he asked with a twinkling eye. "They say I must have been that Friar Bacon of mediaeval times who made a brass head that could alk a little, but somehow he never got it to go, so I had to come on earth again to make good with the phonograph. All bosh! Think of the waste of these re-existences that we do not remember; how therefore, could they profit us? It's against all nature, all order, all low."

"Then you wouldn't consider the physics' theory that we're just on the threshold of discovering the secret of after-life, as the circulation of the blood and other physical phenomena have been made clear?"

"No! Those dealt with matter; their so-called immortality can have no law, because it does not deal with matter. Peter Grimm can't returp any more than destroyed Martinique.

"Mental deterioration is showing itself among us in other ways than 'shrinkis.' No one wants to work nowadays. If a man gave himself up to a normal day's wark, why—"

"Which is?"

6 a.m. Until Midnight."

"From 6 a.m. to midnight. Then he wouldn't have any time to let his brain cells deteriorate. That's the only way to get what you want—work. Everything on earth depends upon will. I never had an idea in my life. I've got no imagination. I never dream. My so-called inventions already existed in the chvironment—I took them out. I've created nothing. Nobody does. There's no such thing as an idea being brain-born; everything comes from the outside. The industrious one coaxes it from the environment; the drone lets it lie there while he goes off to the baseball fame. The 'genius' hangs around his laboratory day and night. If anything happens he's there to catch it; if he wasn't it might happen just the same, only it would never be his.

"Between midnight and 6 I read and sleep. We don't need more than three or four hours' sleep. The customary seven or eight is a habit handed down from primitive man. Having no artificial light, he stopped when the sun set. Having nothing else to do, he slept."

Mr. Edison picked up an edition de luxe of Poe's "Raven" from the table where he was sitting.

"Greatest Poetry Doesn't Rhyme."

"I like him—he was unique. But the greatest poetry doesn't rhyme," he said with a simplicity that made one think of Lincoln's Gettysburg.

"The most sublime poem to my mind is 'Les Miserables'; it doesn't tinkle jingles in your ear, but it has the harmony of humanity's heartbeat. And next to Victor Hugo I love 'Evangeline'; that's so beautiful," he said with enthusiasm. "But first of all, Jean Valjean.

"But do you know who I would put on an equal footing beside the poets and novelists? Gutenberg, the man who with one stroke of his saw invented movable type. But for him a book to-day would cost $5,000, and it would take a month to engrave one of our newspapers. I suppose the daily paper does some good, doesn't it?" he inquired quizzically.

Death No More Than Sleep.

Our little life is rounded with a sleep. Shakespeare was right and we get a foretaste of it every night we have sound, unconscious rest. That's all death is. Why fear? We won't know we're dead.

"But that doesn't mean I don't believe in a Supreme Intelligence, for I do. As for having another world to even up in, why that happens right here. Nemesis catches up with us on earth. And you garner here and, not in heaven or elsewhere your harvest of happiness or misery. You can't 'beat it' and be happy. You can't be crooked and feel the joy of being straight. I don't care whether our misery is cloaked with money and success or shivers naked on open disgrace, beneath the skin it's the same misery. Happiness is only for the honest—that's a law that runs through matter as undeflectable as gravitation, but it isn't spiritual. It's physiological...

The Quickest, Simplest Cough Cure

Easily and Cheaply Made at Home. Saves You $3.

This recipe makes 16 ounces of cough syrup—enough to last a family a long time. You couldn't buy as much or as good cough syrup for $3.50.

Simple as it is, it gives almost instant relief and usually stops the most obstinate cough in 24 hours. This is partly due to the fact that it is slightly laxative, stimulates the appetite and has an excellent tonic effect. It is pleasant to take—children like it. An excellent remedy, too, for whooping cough, croup, sore lungs, asthma, throat troubles, etc.

Mix two cups of granulated sugar with one cup of warm water and stir for two minutes. Put 2½ ounces of Pinex (fifty cents' worth) in a 16-ounce bottle, and add the Sugar Syrup. It keeps perfectly. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.

Pinex is one of the oldest and best-known remedial agents for the throat membranes. Pinex is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, and is rich in guaiacol and all the other natural healing elements. Other preparations will not work in this formula.

The prompt results from this recipe have endeared it to thousands of housewives in the United States and Canada, which explains why the plan has been imitated often, but never successfully.

A guaranty of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this recipe. Your druggist has Pinex, or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

THE GIRL WHO TRIES TO GET EVEN

Are you one of the girls who believe in getting even? If you are, you have started life on the wrong track for happiness and popularity.

There is a happy mean between a football made to be kicked and a boomerang which kicks back. A girl is not expected to meekly swallow offensiveness; neither is she to run around hunting offence and return it full measure.

If only for the sweetening effect on her disposition a girl should not let herself acquire the habit of getting even. Those "coals of fire" may be overdone, but are not half so apt to be as "an eye for an eye" life motto. The first may earn you the name of an easy mark, but that is better than a host of friends.

It is amusing to watch the girl who gets back at you. She thinks she does it on the sly, but her methods are not hard to spot.

This is the girl who, if another girl happens to leave her out of a party, does not rest until she, too, can give a similar affair and omit the offender.

The girl who gets even with you arranges her tables at cards by the way she is arranged. The hostess who has placed her with those not considered in her class is promptly put with the undesirables at that girl's next card party.

Woe betide you if you hit the pride of one of these. Your offence may have been trifling, but the punishment is saved until it can most embarrass. Does the offender feel rebuked? No; she dislikes that girl intensely thenceforth.

You may be unwittingly or unwillingly have been favoured by a man the girl thinks her especial property. Does she take it out on the man? No, indeed, she straightway plots to cut you out with every man who is attentive. If luck is against her, she plays a detractor by slighting remarks or insinuos to every one who will listen. And no one suffers from the detraction so much as the girl herself.

The girl who gets even with you has a favourite expression, "I'll show them!" She thinks it is self-respect, when it is only petty spite. There are few slights so heinous one cannot afford to let them go unavenged. If you want to "show them" do it by showing yourself too dignified to resent bad manners in others.

It does not pay to get even, if only because it sours the girl herself. Nothing is so rank a growth as the avenging habit; it is a horrid weed of manners that soon chokes good breeding and kindly feeling.

The girl who is always on the alert for snubs is rarely disappointed. Her suspicious attitude is as unpleasant as her attempts at punishment, and when she finds herself let alone. There are too many agreeable girls to bother with a resentful one.

RENOUNCES KING TO DIVORCE AND WED

NEW YORK, March 26.—Mrs. Blanche Claxton of Montreal was married by Alderman Lieberman to H. E. Borradaile, a London banker, at City Hall. Mrs. Claxton had renounced the sovereignty of Britain, and had become an American citizen in order to obtain a divorce and marry her English suitor.

Mrs. Claxton arrived the day before from Reno, where she had obtained a divorce. Mr. Borradaile got in on the Lusitania a few days before.

The bride was enthusiastic in her approval of the reciprocity divorce. (She did not characterize it by that name, however.)

It is the first case on record in which a Canadian was willing to give up her country in order to obtain a Reno decree.

Mrs. Claxton, who is now Mrs. Borradaile, explained that in Canada there is practically no such things as a divorce, an dthat while she had obtained a separation from her Canadian husband, A. G. B. Claxton, a wealthy King's Councillor of Montreal, on March 2, 1911, she would never have been able to marry again under her country's laws.

"It takes an Act of Parliament to secure a Canadian divorce," said the pretty young woman at the St. Regis. "And not only that, but it takes evidence that shows that the misconduct has taken place under the same roof which shelters the wife or husband, as the case may be. My divorce was granted for non-support, however, and I had no claim to a divorce according to Canadian laws."

Mrs. Borradaile was formerly Miss Blanche Simpson of Montreal, and was wealthy in her own right. She came into more wealth through her marriage to Claxton. Mr. Borradaile, whom she married yesterday, represents large Mexican mining interests with banking offices in St. James Sreet, London.

WISE SAVINGS.

It is no honour for an eagle to vanquish a dove.

A wise man changes his mind, but a fool never.

To make castles in the air of value put foundations under them.

Lying for the truth is bad and scolding for it is not much better.

Charity at home is the salt which makes everything sweet at home.

When a tongue has once learned the knack of lying it is hard to reclaim it.

If we had no faults we should take little pleasure in noticing the faults of others.

If we must know the right in order to do it, we must do it in order to know it.

Knowledge may be gained by reading, but wheat must be separated from the chaff by thinking.

MYSOGYNISTIC REFLECTIONS.

There is as much difference between courtship and matrimony as there is between a lace valentine and the gas bill.

The queenly woman is not always the greatest ruler.

Asking a girl to marry you by mail is much like kissing her through a lace veil.

Neglected Colds Lead to Consumption

Unless a complete cure is effected the inflammation passes rapidly to the throat's bronchial tubes and then to the lungs.

You can't make new lungs any more than you can make new fingers or a new nose—hence consumption is practically incurable.

But Catarrh can be cured, except in its final and always fatal stage.

Catarrh sufferers, meaning those with colds, sore throat, bronchial trouble, etc., can all be cured right at home by inhaling "Catarrhozone."

In using Catarrhozone you don't take medicine into the stomach—you just breathe a healing piney vapor direct to the lungs and air passages.

Catarrhozone Guaranteed to Cure

The purest balsams and the greatest antiseptics are thus sent to every spot where catarrhal trouble exists—germs are killed, foul secretions are destroyed, nature is given a chance and cure comes quickly.

Colds and throat troubles can't last if the pure healing vapor of Catarrhozone is breathed—sneezing and coughing cease at once, because irritation is removed.

Use Catarrhozone to prevent—use it to cure your winter ills—it's pleasant, safe, and guaranteed in every case. 25c., 50c., and $1.00 sizes. Sold by all dealers. By mail from the Catarrhozone Company, Kingston, Ont.

TALES OF THE POSTAL POLICE

No. 3.

Chief Inspector Warren W. Dickson Says That Last Year Members of the "Suckers' List" Lost $77,000,000 and There Is a Growing Tendency Among Women to Invest in Get-Rich-Quick Concerns—Tricks of the Envious Rival Who Turns Informer

New York, Saturday. (Copyright, 1912, by the New York Herald Co. All rights reserved.)

SEVENTY-SEVEN million dollars was the toll the unwary, or "easy marks," of this country doled out to get-rich-quick enterprises within the last twelve month. And this enormous sum represents only that paid over by those concerns which were apprehended. Hundreds of others are still flourishing, and according to Chief Inspector Sharpe, of the Postoffice, they will continue to do so as long as a certain class of investors exists to make their little capital earn more than the legal rate of interest.

Appalling as these figures are, they pale into insignificance when compared to those which the sharpers stood to realize had not the long arm of Uncle Sam reached out and nipped their schemes in the bud. It was the illegal and improper use of the United States mails which brought the promoters to account with the Post Office inspectors.

The federal government has no more astute or braver lot of men in its employ than the Post Office inspectors. There is only a handful of them, and they are spread over a wide range of territory. But their activity is marvellous, and when one pauses to consider that they are frequently called on to run down the most despicable type of criminals that infest this country it is more surprising that their hazardous undertakings do not more often end fatally. The Post Office inspectors and the yeggmen are sworn enemies. The latter make it a practice to ply their trade by blowing the safes of rural post offices and remote railroad stations, and they never surrender without giving battle. And more often than not it is a battle to the death.

The most important office in this country is here in New York. There are half a dozen inspectors stationed here, all under the supervision of Chief Inspector Warren W. Dickson. Mr. Dickson has been in the service many years, and his experiences cover a wide range, although his activities since coming to New York have been concentrated on striving to cover the many get-rich-quick schemes which infest our financial district. Prior to coming here he was in Philadelphia, where his most notable work was in connection with breaking up the notorious Storey Cotton Company.

New Yorkers Easy.

"It is a source of never ceasing wonder to me," Mr. Dickson said, "just how easy the average New York men and women are. Any old scheme, from buying a gold brick to a salted mine, catches them, and, strange to say, they never profit by their bitter experiences. The same people fall for the same old games time and again.

"Right here in New York fake promoters reap an annual harvest of upward of $50,000,000. There were more than a thousand of such enterprises here when we started our crusade and upward of seventy-five have been put out of business. Of course, as soon as we step in and start an investigation that puts a quietus on their activities for the time being, for by seizing their mail we get in touch with their dupes, and this soon frightens other would-be investors off."

Here Mr. Dickson was asked how he and his men got their first clews to the existence of these crooked concerns.

"That's not the easiest part of it by any means," he replied. "Of course, we keep a close watch on the advertising columns of the newspapers throughout the country. At a glance we can tell whether the advertiser is on the level or not, and this we soon ascertain from the character of the mail reaching him. Of course, we keep a close watch on all outgoing mail. As soon as a newly established concern begins to receive a suspiciously bulky mail we quietly investigate it. If needs be, we scan its mail, too. In that way we get our leads, and the rest speedily follows.

"Oftentimes employes of such concerns, realizing that all is not as it appears on the surface, tip us off, and we get busy. Very often we have to move slowly and warily, for it would never do to make a blunder or a false arrest."

"Do you find your work here as hazardous or as exciting as it was when you were stationed in the rural districts?" Mr. Dickson was asked.

"In many ways not," he replied after a pause. "You see, we have an entirely different type of grafters to deal with in big cities, and especially here in New York. Many a time my life has been in jeopardy in trailing a gang of yeggmen where the amount of their thefts did not exceed ten dollars. But it matters not to Uncle Sam. The crook who robs the mails or post office safes of a one cent stamp is pursued just as relentlessly as those who get thousands. While stationed in Pennsylvania I had many set-tos with yeggs. They invariably shoot when cornered, and they always shoot to kill. In dealing with a yegg it is necessary to get the drop on him or else he'll drop you.

"I have camped on the trail of yeggmen for weeks at a time. The trail would often lead into the coal regions of Pennsylvania, where the foreign element predominated, and it would be next to impossible to get the slightest assistance in tracking the mail looters and safe blowers. Sometimes a gang of yeggs would start in on a certain branch of a railroad and make a complete clean-up of every post office along its line. Our men would get on the job, but somehow the yeggs would manage to keep just ahead of us. But when we did come up with them we knew we had our work cut out for us. A life means no more to them than a weed in their path. So when we approached our quarry it was with drawn guns and the full intention of cutting loose at the first man who made the slightest suspicious move.

"I remember on one occasion when three of us kept up a running fight with a party of yeggs. Upward of a hundred shots were exchanged before we made them throw up their hands. Most of them were shot to pieces as it was, but that is nothing strange, for the average crook of this kind would rather die than give in.

Classified "Sucker Directory."

"But the work on hand just now," Mr. Dickson continued, "has to do with the many Wallingfords operating hereabouts. The flood of letters that come to us daily reveal the pathetic tales of how the old and decrepit are victimized by the wildcat promoter. The majority of these letters are scrawled in childish, straggling hands, a note of hopelessness and despair dominating them which makes the heart of the reader ache. These are the men and women whose names adorn the 'sucker lists,' which form the most valuable asset the promoter of nefarious schemes possesses. Without these lists they could do no business. They guard them with their very lives. Thousands upon thousands of names and addresses figure on these lists.

"Some day I hope the persons whose names appear on the 'sucker lists' will awake to a realization of how they are regarded by the men who took their money. Down in Pine street, in the very heart of the money district, there is a well appointed and conservative suite of offices. There is nothing about the establishment to arouse the slightest suspicion. Yet I know that reposing in a vault in that office is a 'Sucker Directory' containing nearly half a million names, and the list grows daily. We have nothing on that concern yet, although it is being carefully watched.

"The list is classified as follows:—'Easiest,' 'Very easy,' 'Easy,' 'Fair prospect' and 'Good if properly handled.' The name of a Brooklyn man heads the 'Easiest' list, for he has invested in upward of thirty wildcat mining schemes and lost big money in every one of them. Yet there isn't the slightest doubt in my mind that he will fall for the very next faker who comes along and asks him to invest.

"It is not the men or women who possess thousands who fall for these games. As a rule it is the very poor, the aged or the crippled who have either saved or inherited a few dollars or else received a hundred or two dollars following some serious injury sustained. So obsessed are they with the idea that they will make a fortune that they beg and implore the postal authorities not to expose or break up the swindlers when we find they are running a crooked game. They really delude themselves into the belief that the promoter has superhuman powers of making money and but for the interference of postal authorities would ultimately have made good.

"Take such cases as Burr Brothers and the El Progreso Banana Company, which were raided and put out of business by our men. Millions of easy money flowed into the coffers of these grafters until our men ran them down and put them out of business. A poor woman wrote us that one get-rich-quick promoter had been her 'best business friend.' Another wrote that he, a cripple, had received $1,000 for the loss of his arm, all of which was swallowed up by this same man.

"Did you ever stop to consider that nearly all these get-rich-quick concerns of to-day have a preacher or former preacher mixed up with them?" Dickson asked. "It's a fact, and the names heading sucker lists all over the country are preachers, too. In proportion to their numbers preachers and priests beat every other class of citizen for easiness. They fall for any and every old threadbare game that comes along, and yet rarely do they allow it to become known that they were among the victims. Their confidence in their brothers, especially those of the cloth, is unlimited, and that no doubt accounts for the presence of the preacher in the employ of the promoters, as well as the hundreds of parsons who were victimized. Stock of the Progreso Banana Company was held to the extent of $2,000,000 by clergymen alone. All were the victims of the Rev. Claude M. Severance, who wrote most appealing letters to his brother clergymen and succeeded in separating them from their hard earned savings. The keynote of his appeal was that Frank Watrous, the president of the concern, never used tobacco or stimulants in any form. That was the tie that bound, and the poor, deluded clergy fell all over themselves to give Mr. Severance their money.

"But Burr Brothers were unique in their methods, inasmuch as their principal victims were sailors, from whom they extracted thousands of dollars. I know several sailors whose terms of enlistment had extended over many years, during the course of which they had saved several thousand dollars. This they turned over readily to Burr Brothers, with the result, of course, that they never recovered a penny of it."

WARREN W. DICKSON

We can go as far as we like, so long as we get the goods on the parties we are trailing. But Heaven help us if we make a mistake!"

"What do you consider your most important case since coming to New York," the reporter asked?

"I guess the raid on Jared Flagg's outfit was as important as any," he said. "The raid on the Scheftels outfit, in Broad street, was another coup of which Inspector Dickson is immensely proud. Graham Rice, the head and brains of this crowd of mining stock promoters, once a notorious race track tipster and former convict, is now on trial for his connection with the Scheftels concern. Dickson believes that this raid will put a quietus on the wildcat mining promoters, for a time at least. But he added that one can never tell concerning such matters, since "new suckers are born every day, and the rarer the deal the more easily they fall for it."

"When one promoter finds another making money hand over fist," continued Mr. Dickson, "he immediately becomes envious and sets about to grab for himself some of the ill gotten gains of the other fellow. He employs underground tactics in getting hold of his rival's sucker list, and then tries to buy his bookkeeper or stenographer. This done he gets in touch with the Chief Post Office Inspector and places in his keeping evidence that must necessarily result in driving his confrère out of business. We know it is all actuated by a spirit of envy or revenge and straightaway get busy in increasing our vigilance over the informer. In this way we not infrequently make a double killing, the evidence supplied us by our informant acting as a boomerang upon him."

"What do you do with these sucker lists when you get them?"

"We send a circular to as many of those who enrolled on the list as possible. We point out the danger of investing with concerns which promise abnormal profits or dealing with concerns they have not thoroughly investigated. Some are grateful, but others resent our interference and tell us so."

Mr. Dickson said that he was pleased to learn by the report just made public that Chief Post Office Inspector Sharpe had recommended that the Department of Justice hereafter look after the get-rich-quick cases. It would relieve the inspectors of a tremendous amount of work, he said, and enable them to devote their energies to another class of criminals who are a constant source of worry and menace to the postal authorities.

The Differnt Schemes.

"You see," Mr. Dickson continued, "a big portion of the time of the inspectors is lost in investigating cases in which the persons are clearly misrepresenting facts pertaining to their business and using the mails to procure large sums of money as a result of these misrepresentations. In the majority of cases these promoters, backed by astute legal advisers, have reached only the borderland between legitimate undertakings and criminal schemes. Take the wide variety of cases investigated and prosecuted by this office within the last year and you will readily understand what we are up against. Here are some of them:—

"Promoting and sale of worthless mining or other stocks; inducing betting on fake horse races and athletic contests; fake land schemes; commission merchant swindles; selling worthless goods through misrepresentations; obtaining commissions on fraudulent orders; work at home schemes; failure to furnish goods schemes; fake correspondence schools; sale of cheap books and divining rods for locating minerals; 'phoney' guarantees of stock and bonds; forged bills of lading in cotton deals; brokerage swindles; obtaining money by impersonating others; selling State rights and establishing fictitious agencies; selling unfair gambling devices; 'no fund' check schemes; matrimonial schemes; selling cancelled postage stamps and Mexican money; turf tipster schemes; defrauding employers by means of forged leases and keeping the money received from cash customers; defrauding insurance companies for alleged injuries; obtaining expense money on promise to sell stock; requesting fees for fake positions; selling the rights to a patent many times over in the same State; securing advance payments on goods not delivered; obtaining payment from relatives of deceased persons for goods supposed to have been ordered before death; obtaining money from alleged heirs to estates; obtaining money to assist in securing fake inheritance; sales of fake recipes; green goods swindles; obtaining subscriptions for charitable institutions; fake employment bureaus; selling interest in non-existing moving picture theatres; selling diplomas and requiring little or no study prior to granting them; offering to instruct persons in the science of mind concentration; fake trance mediums and forged checks and blackmail schemes."

"There is a growing tendency on the part of women to seek investments returning big dividends," Inspector Dickson went on to say, "and these women more often than not are cleverly duped. I don't know whether it is the spread of suffragism or just what is responsible for their tendency to make their own investments without consulting their husbands or brothers or others in a position to know about such things. Take the recently widowed woman, left with a few thousand dollars in insurance, for instance. Here she finds herself face to face with a future wherein little or nothing is in store for her unless she can turn to advantage, and quickly, her little all. In every community there is a band of sharpers who are on the constant lookout for such easy victims, and by promising the widow that they can treble and even quadruple her fortune in less time than it takes to tell it they get her little mite and that, of course, is the last of it.

"The lists of bequests published in the daily papers are eagerly scanned by sharpers, who seek the reports of fraternal insurance companies containing lists of deceased members, with the amount of their policies, and other documents. Then they check up the names of heirs and other beneficiaries and train their batteries on them.

"Then the letters commence to pour in on the Post Office inspectors. This for instance—Neither my sister nor myself will ever put another cent in Gold Mountain or Whitemuts schemes. We are two old women, one is five and eighty years old approximately, and we work hard for what we have. All our savings are invested in this company—about $2,500. We find it impossible to make ends meet and our bills are falling due. These we can't pay, for the dividends which were faithfully promised to us are not forthcoming. I would have written to you before, but I have been ill and confined in a hospital. My sister is suffering from cataracts on her eyes and in consequence could not write. Can you get our money back for us?

"Can we get their money back for them? What chance have we to do that when we are dealing with a cold blooded grafter who would take money of that kind?

There is one type of promoter which the Post Office authorities are particularly anxious to warn the easy marks against. He is the chap who induces victims to buy stock in overcapitalized concerns. This is an unpleasant and dangerous task for the inspector to engage in, for it generally results in completely wrecking an enterprise which shows real profits and bonafide land values. Many of the concerns the inspectors are now investigating could show surprisingly good profits but for the fact of their overcapitalization. Some of these promoters start out with the best intentions, really intending to deal fairly with their investors. This type, however, suffer from overconfidence in their own ability, or else they are too sanguine of results. There are others who start business for the sole purpose of fleecing the purchasers of their stock. All of them, without exception, squeeze every particle of substance out of the company, leaving only the bare pulp for the stockholder. Companies that should be capitalized for a million dollars are more often capitalized at ten times this sum, and invariably a crash follows.

Before making hasteful preparations for a trip out of town in order personally to investigate a postal fraud case Mr. Dickson remarked that there are many men in the postal service whose experiences are even more thrilling and adventurous than those of the Secret Service men.

"It is the field men, especially those stationed in the mountainous regions, who get the perilous assignments," said Dickson, "and many of them can narrate tales which would make the exploits of Sherlock Holmes look tame by comparison. Seek these men, and if you can induce them to talk will be well worth your while."

"Three of Us Kept Up a Running Fire with a Party of Yeggs."

Inspector Dickson was asked if his department, like the Secret Service and police, employed stool pigeons.

"Once in a while," he replied, "we find some one willing to squeal. Sometimes it is a clerk or a stenographer, actuated by conscientious scruples, or else smarting under some injustice. Such information comes direct, and we find it valuable. More often, though, our men have to ingratiate themselves into the good graces of some employe of the firm under investigation, and when they are sure they are right they resort to the easiest means of procuring the evidence needed. Sometimes a raid follows, in which doors are battered down, desks pried open and papers of an incriminating nature procured. Once confident that fraudulent tactics are being pursued by the promoter, Uncle Sam invests us with ample authority.

WATER COOLING.

WHEN a native woman in one of the broiling hot little villages of interior Nicaragua wants to cool some water she sets about it in a way little calculated to cool herself. The average native woman looks frail and listless, but there is no suspicion of listlessness about her process of water cooling. She fills a half gallon earthenware jar about two-thirds full. The jar is made of baked clay and, not being glazed is porous, so that it soon becomes moist on the outside.

By means of two leathern straps, firmly attached to the neck of the jar, the woman causes the same to rotate swiftly in the air. The mouth is wide open, but centrifugal action keeps the water from flying out. The endurance exhibited by the women in this sort of calisthenics is marvellous.

When the operater deems the water to be sufficiently cooled she stops the movement by a dexterous twist of her wrist and hands the jar to the man who has been waiting to quench his thirst.

Usually he takes a mouthful, gulps it down and growls "moocha calora," which is a native patois for "wretchedly hot," and she patiently resumes her task of describing pinwheels. It is said that by this process tepid water can be reduced to the temperature of a very cool mountain spring.

The Mouth and Character.

AN examination of the mouth, according to Dr. William Rogers, suffices to indicate a person's past, present and future character.

Thin, compressed lips, with the line of the mouth straight and the lips themselves scarcely visible, are the index of sang froid and a practical mind, loving order, accuracy and cleanliness. If the corners of the mouth are turned upward this suggests pretentiousness, vanity and mischievous frivolity.

A mouth always gaping is a sign of stupidity. An Isabelle's mouth is said to be twice as long as an eye. But, on the other hand, says Dr. William Rogers, one must regard as a sanctuary a calm mouth, reposefully closed without tension, and with the lips well proportioned.

The character may be judged from the lips. The upper lip denotes the tastes, inclinations and likings. Pride and anger curve it. Sensitiveness makes it thin. Kindliness rounds it. By dissipation it is withered and weakened.

Still citing the same authority, the character in general is closely analogous to the cast of the lips. It is firm, weak or pliant, just as they are. Large and well proportioned lips are a sign of kindness and frankness. When fleshy they denote a tendency to sensuality and idleness. Sparse lips show an inclination to avarice. A slightly protruding upper lip is said to be a sign of affectionate kindness. The protrusion of the under lip seems to correspond to good nature. A lower lip creased in the middle indicates a happy-go-lucky and mischievous spirit. In a proud woman the lips are unequal, the lower lip contracting at every instant.

As regards the teeth, when they are white, clean and in good alignment, advancing as much as the mouth is opened without in any way protruding and without appearing entirely uncovered, they always indicate an amiable kindness, loyalty and amiability. Whenever a considerable portion of the upper gum is perceived in an open mouth one may expect in general a cold, self-contained temperament.

Jean Jacques Rousseau said that no woman with fine teeth is ugly. Contrary to the opinion of the ancients, small, short teeth in an adult are said to be the attribute of a very penetrating mind. Small and pointed inward, they denote ill-nature in a woman. When long, they are considered a sure sign of weakness and timidity.

Of the chin it is said that when dimpled it indicates kindness; when small, timidity; when flat, coldness and blandness. An angular chin denotes skill, prudence and firmness. Pointed, it signifies a subtle and sensitive mind. When long, broad and heavy, it denotes commonness, pride and violence.

But, after all, one must not be too affirmative, and it is well to bear an ear to the old saying which tells us not to judge people by their noses.

Carnegie Makes Trouble For Girl

Declared Virginia Lee the Prettiest Girl in Pittsburg—Now Swamped with Proposals

PITTSBURG, March 26.—Virginia Lee, the little 20-year-old, blue-eyed, brown-haired stenographer, is to-day the most popular girl in Pittsburg, if not in the whole country. Since Andrew Carnegie declared her to be "the prettiest girl in the world," Virginia has been swamped with [illegible] proposals from wealthy and humble men, old and young.

Then ,too, came a score of telegraphic offers from artists and even theatrical managers, all of whom made her flattering propositions. One artist, a New Yorker, whose name Miss Lee refused to reveal, offered her $5,000 to pose for him, remarking that "if Andrew Carnegie says you are beautiful, you must be all of that, for Mr. Carnegie knows a beautiful woman when he sees her."

It was with difficulty that "Bonnie Virginia" avoided the crowds of inquisitive eople that gathered about the entrance of the Oliver building at the noon hour.

Last evening when she left the building to go home, she was again greeted by an army of photographers, some of whom had travelled here from other cities to get her photograph.

"No, no, mpatically no; I will not consider any of the propositions made to me by wife-hunters or those theatrical managers. No, not even that New York artist. I am not so beautiful as all that," she declared with a show of anger in her big blue eyes.

"I intend to continue to earn my own living," she said.

NO MORE DISTRESS FROM THE STOMACH

No Dyspepsia, Gas, Heartburn or Indigestion Five Minutes Later

Every family here ought to keep some Diapepsin in the house, as any one of you may have an attack of Indigestion or Stomach trouble at any time, day or night.

This harmless preparation will digest anything you eat and overcome a distressed, out-of-order stomach five minutes afterwards.

If your meals don't tempt you, or what little you do eat seems to fill you or lays like a lump of lead in your stomach, or if you have heartburn, that is a sign of Indigestion.

Ask your Pharmacist for a 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin, and take a little just as soon as you can. There will be no sour eructations, no belching of undigested food mixed with acid, no stomach gas or heartburn, fullness or heavy feeling in the stomach, Nausea, Debilitating Headaches, Dizziness or intestinal griping. This will all go and, besides, there will be no sour food left over in the stomach to poison your breath with nauseous odors.

Pape's Diapepsin is a certain cure for out-of-order stomachs, because it prevents fermentation and takes hold of your food and digests it just the same as if your stomach wasn't there.

Relief in five minutes from all stomach misery is at your drug store, waiting for you.

These large 50-cent cases of Pape's Diapepsin contain more than sufficient to cure any case of Dyspepsia Indigestion or any other Stomach trouble.

MELODRAMA UP-TO-DATE.

The scene:
Modest hamlet, shady dell,
Blacksmith shop and village well;
Rustic background, buckwheat crop
Painted on a canvas drop.

The characters:
City villain, dark and mean;
Pretty Jane, the village queen;
Honest Jack, whom she prefers,
And some mossbacked villagers.

The plot:
Pretty Jane is lured away
By an artifice one day.
Spurns the villain; naught avails;
Villain binds her to the rails.

The climax:
Jack has saved her! Out of berath,
Drags her from the jaws of death;
Villain gets a husky biff,
Tumbles down the cardboard cliff.

The finale:
To the village they go back,
Pretty Jane and honest Jack;
"Bless ye, children," says the pop,
Let the big green curtain drop.

Coal Looks Cheap At $25 A Ton After A Visit Through The Mines

Going Down a Mine a Privilege Rarely Accorded to Strangers Digging Black Diamonds With Feverish Haste—How Miners Are Kept Dry and Free From Gas.

SCRANTON, PA., March 26.—It is about the most difficult thing amaginable these days for a stranger in the anthracite field to get permission to enter a coal mine—no matter who he is or what his reason for seeking privilege. Some of the larger operators have an absolute rule that under no circumstances is any but an actual miner or worker or official to get into the mine, and this regulation is now exceptionally stringent.

Through the courtesy of John R. Bryden, general manager of the Scranton Coal Company and the Price Pan-Coast Company, I was allowed yesterday o visit the great Pine Brook mine, which has its runs and roads under practically all of the city of Scranton.

It was particularly good luck for me, because I wanted to see a mine which the miners themselves will tell you is well managed.

And let me say that, after several hours in the "best equipped and safest" mine this side of Wilkes-Barre, I am free to say that I think anthracite coal ought to sell for about $25 a ton. But if I were able to get such an extraordinary price for the black diamonds to be dug out of this or any other mine as much as I could by my own personal efforts, I would decline the offer with thanks.

Coal Rushed to Surface.

The mine was in full blast. Cars of coal at the rate of two a minute, each car holding about 5,000 pounds were being shot up from the foot of the mine, hundreds of feet down, to the top of the breaker, about 20 feet from the surface of the yard.. To-day "shot" up advisedly. They flash by so fast that one gets a mere wink at the load as it goes skyward. Then down again comes the coal through the crashing, grinding machinery, sorted and cleaned of slate into railway cars ready for market.

Foreman Morgan provided us with miners' lamps. They have a special metal attachment over the peak of the cap, to which they affix the lamps. In lieu of this equipment, we carried our lamps on sticks about 15 inches long.

A miner's lamp is a queer little affair. In general appearance it is a can about three inches high and an inch an da half in diameter, from whih sticks a half-inch spout. Twisted in this spout is a wick of cotton thread reaching down ino he can—which is filled wih miner's oil. The flame is very enacious and burns brightly, with little smoke.

Just before entering the shaft, Superintendent Young showed us the two sets of engines which work the hoists. A bright, alert young man was in charge of each engine, starting the ponderous machinery as he got the signals. He watched the progress of the car by means of a dial, which showed him exactly where it was in the shaft—very much as one watches the indicator showing the position of an elevator in a modern skyscraper.

We were dropped to the foot of the shaft, more than 30 feet, far more rapidly than it would be thought safe to operate a city elevator. But I was told that the Pine Brook never has an accident in its shafts. The first thing pointed out near the bottom of the shaft was the hospital room, where oots and first-aid equipment are kept in case of an accident—as provided by law.

The Mules Underground.

During the night these fire bosses personally inspect every chamber where coal is being taken out, for signs of gas, and make a careful note of dangerous places. When the miners report in the morning for their shift they have to show for a moment at the hospital, give their numbers, and receive the fire bosses' "O.K." If gas has been found during the night, that particular miner is kept out of that working until danger is removed.

The next thing visited was the great underground stable where about 100 mules are kept. The animals are stabled in a double row of stalls, face to face. The partitions and mangers are of concrete, but the floors are of wood. The whole stable is whitewashed and brilliantly lighted by electricity. The place is dry and clean. There is no need of wasting sympathy for the life-preserving mule prisoners in this mine.

Superintendent Young then showed me a map of the workings. It looked very much like a city map, with its main roads and cross roads, the chambers showing about the same as the city blocks on a municipal map. Apparently there weer hundreds of these chambers, with innumerable "streets" and "avenues" separating them. In fact, they extend under a very large part of the city of Scranton, and hundreds of feet directly above them are great department stores. ten-story hotels, and lofty buildings filled with heavy merchandise.

Enough coal has been left in this mine in pillars to make cave-ins on the surface practically impossible.

In a Motor Car.

We walked an interminable distance about half of the time with necks twisted as we ducked the dipping, dripping roof and kept clear of the trolley wires; then we came to a junction, where Superintendent Young went to a telephone and ordered a motor car. For we finished our trip on a real motor car, away down there in the mine.

While we awaited its arrival we inspected the vast system of pumps which are going always, and which keep the mine so dry that in stretches of several blocks we literally kicked up dust as we walked.

We took seats on the front, our heads clearing the roof by little more than inches.

"We are now passing under the Hotel Jermyn," announced Superintendent Young. He had to shout over the noise of the flying motor.

"We are passing under the post office and right near the Board of Trade building," was the next announcement.

At last we stopped. Then we got off the main road and started up a branch. We were stopped by a man running toward us, his lamp dancing on his head.

"Step in here," said Superintendent Young quietly. "He's going to set off a shot."

We had hardly stepped around a corner when the deep boom of the detonation sounded.

A few minutes later we were in the chamber where the miner had just exploded the shot. With his labourer he was throwing the coal back from the breast of the vein to make room to bore his next hole. The chamber was filled with stifling powder smoke. It was almost impossible to see the miner and labourer, although but four feet away. The yseemed to pay no attention to the smoke, but kept right on working.

After the air currents had cleared the chamber partially, I got my first idea of what it means to min eanthracite. The chamber roof suddenly dipped until it was less than three and a half feet from the floor. But it was solid, living rock.

Goes Good Ways.

A little of this sort of inspection goes a long way with one making a first visit to the mine, and with visions of a possible "squeeze," and realizing as I never did before what it means to be caught like a rat in a trap like that, hundreds of feet under ground, I was very glad to get out of there.

"And now you've seen one of the best mines in the anthracite region," said Michael Healy, the board member of District No. 1, United Mine Workers. "If you'll just saturate the Pine Brook with water and fill hese low passages with foul gas and powder smoke—which doesn't always get out like it does in the Pine Brook—and picture a miner boring holes in a hree-foot vein of coal with his feet in six inches of water, you've got an idea of some of the mines down in this section.

"If they were all as good as the Pine Brook there'd be no kick. But if you got your fill in the best one of the lot round here, what do you think of these poor devils who have to take pot luck in the worst of them?"

And Mr. Healy's question, it seems to me, on the eve of a possible strike, is opportune. Not only what do I think of "the poor devils and their pot luck," but what does the public think?

Unsightly Skin Diseases

Disfiguring skin diseases always seem to appear on the face and hands, so that they cause a feeling of shame, as well as pain and suffering.

Internal treatments have never proven very satisfactory in the treatment of eczema and similar skin troubles, but when Dr. Chase's Ointment is applied you can see for yourself and feel for yourself the benefits which are being obtained.

It soothes the inflamed, irritated skin so that itching ceases, and by its extraordinary healing power causes a new, smooth skin to form where the sores have been.

In every home there are many uses for Dr. Chase's Ointment, as for pimples and blackheads, barber's itch, chafing, eryaipelas, chilblains and wherever there is itching skin or a sore or ulcer that refuses to heal. This ointment is pure, clean and pleasant to use and may be applied to the most delicate skin.

GENERAL BOTHA

A Personal Sketch of the Premier of the Transvaal.

General Louis Botha, one of the Colonial Premiers now in this country, was one of the most skilful and aggressive of the Boer commanders in the South African War. He it was who planned the defences of the Tugela, and foiled for so long the late Sir Redvers Buller's efforts to effect the relief of Ladysmith. On the death of General Joubert he became commander-in-chief of the Boer forces, and in the long struggle his military exploits were brilliant and skilful. General Botha's genial humour, his tranquil, well-balanced mind, his sane outlook, and shrewd common-sense have served him and his country well in the past. It goes without saying that they will do so in the future.

There is no South African of either race whose name commands such wide respect. In all the whirlwinds of passion after the war, as well as in the tempestuous scenes that occurred at Pretoria before the final outbreak of hostilities, it at least was never breathed on. His sincerity as a Liberal opponent of President Kruger's fatal policy of exclusion was never in doubt. His chivalry, his humanity, his courage, and his skill were gladly recognised by all the British generals who faced him in the field.

His honour and his loyalty to his pledged word have always been equally above reproach. General Botha is not at all loquacious, and his voice was seldom heard in the old Volksraad. To crown his other perfections he speaks English perfectly.

When he was in England in 1907, General Botha was initiated into the mysteries of golf and promised to lay out a course in South Africa. He did this, and now plays a respectable game. During the voyage to England for the Coronation, he set an example to the ship, retiring early and up early in the morning. He was out son after six and walked briskly round the promenade deck for an hour and a half.

Occasionally he took part in the deck games, and the passengers elected him chairman of the Sports Committee. In this capacity he helped to arrange a two-days' programme. The events included tugs-of-war, potato race, egg and spoon races, flat race, and chalking the pig's eye.

BROUGHT FORTY MILLIONS

This is the Estimated Total of Money in Possession of Immigrants.

The Canadian Pacific carried one hundred and fifty thousand settlers into Canada from the United Kingdom in 1911. This merely shows the number of persons who actually paid transportation, whereas if the children who were carried free is taken into consideration, another twenty per cent. can be added, which would swell the total to one hundred and seventy-five thousand. The month of May carried off the record for the largest colonization traffic this year when thirty thousand persons paid for transportation, the figures show that settlers arrived at St. Lawrence ports during these months at the rate of a thousand a day.

Fully seventy per cent. of these new comers, have gone straight through to Western Canada. The majority of these immigrants brought in money with them, making an average of $300 apiece, which would show that they brought in altogether forty million dollars.

WOMAN'S RESPONSIBILITY FOR MANNERS.

In Christian society, where the women are tolerably free, it is they who are] argely responsbile for the condition of manners. In he absence of he severe physical restraints imposed on women in Moslem society and in much heathen society, tenderness and protection are due from men to women, and for a considerable proportion of their lives a measure of privacy or "touch-me-not" reserve iss their right.

Every gentleman recognizes these natural rights of women, and every man who is not absolutely brutal recognizes the woman's claim on him because of her relative delicacy of body.

On these chivalrous sentiments toward women the manners of civilized men are in large part formed; so that men are liable to lose all standards in manners whenever any considerable proportion of the women who come within their field of observation show themselves unworthy of these sentiments in men by becoming themselves coarse, combative, rude, and lacking in modesty, or by ceasing to condemn in their male companions insolence, violence, selfishness, and the ungenerous use of strength or power. —Buffalo News.

SUET PUDDING

One cupful of molasses, one cupful of milk, one cupful of chopped suet, one cupful of raisins, one teaspoonful each of soda, salt, clove, cinnamon and nutmeg, three cupfuls of flour.

Beat the soda into the molasses, add milk, salt and spices. Cover the raisins and suet with some of the flour, stir all together. Stem three hours in a tin pail set in a kettle of boiling water. Serve hot with cold sauce, made of one cupful of sugar and one third cupful of butter creamed together. Grate a little nutmeg on the top.

BOSTON BAKED BEANS

Pick over and wash three cupfuls of small white beans. Cover with cold water and soak over night. In the morning put them on the stove, just to scald, not to boil, in the same water. Pour off the water and put into an eastern bean pot. Add seven teaspoonfuls of sugar, one teaspoonful of salt, one half pound of salt pork, fat and lean mixed. Cover with water and bake about ten hours. As the water boils away, add more.

DYSPEPSIA

The symptoms of this form of indigestion are known by sour eructations to half of our population, and by distress to the other half. Burried eating and imperfect mastication and insufficient of our food are its principal causes. It affects not only the stomach, but the liver and bowels. Take Radway's Pills to tone and invigorate these organs. Avoid tea or tonics. Live on simple, nourishing food. By observing these rules any type of dyspepsia may be permanently cured. Dyspepsia pills cost dissolve shortly thereafter, and a cold result disagrees.

Dominion Supplementary Estimates Will Total Many Millions.

Ottawa, March 26.—When the supplementary estimates are brought down to-day by Hon. W. T. White, Finance Minister, it will be found that the Government is preparing to spend liberal sums on an elaborate and comprehensive policy for the improvement of Canada's harbors and waterways, all with the idea of developing inter-provincial trade and improving and cheapening the outlets for western wheat and produce to the Atlantic seaboard.

One of the largest amounts in the supplementary estimate will, it is understood, be to complete the improvements to the Montreal harbor, which will make it one of the finest, if not the finest harbor on the continent. There will also, it is understood, be an item of slightly over a million and a half for the deepening of the St. Lawrence channel from Montreal to the sea to 35 feet and for improvements.

It is understood that a generous amount has been placed in the estimates to start the work of constructing a new Welland canal. The ultimate cost will be in the neighborhood of $45,000,000.

There will also, it is stated, be an item in the estimates of a quarter of a million dollars for the improvements of Goderich harbor, which is now the third largest grain shipping harbor on the great lakes.

CITY BLOCK SWEPT.

Fire Does a Million Dollars Damage in Toronto.

Toronto, March 26.—Close to a million dollars' damage was caused by a fire which broke out at three o'clock yesterday afternoon in the rear section of the King street car barns and spread to eight buildings to the south of it. The flames took out the centre third of the block bounded by King street, St. Lawrence street, Eastern avenue, and the Don Esplanade.

The Street Car Co.'s loss was the total destruction of their south or storage barn, where cars not in general use were kept. The nearest estimate of the cars destroyed is 70 motors and 150 open and other trailers. All of these were completely destroyed. The total damage to the company is placed at $750,000. The loss to the eleven other firms affected brings the total to $914,200. With the exception of the Street Car Co. nearly every loser is full insured.

The fire was discovered by one of the workmen at the barns. It is said by some that the cause of the fire was the explosion of chemicals in a paint shop used by workmen, who were painting some of the open trailers in the old barn where the fire occurred. Others believe that the fire following that in the vacated warehouse of the Atlantic Soap and Oils Co., which occurred in the morning, and was believed to be of incendiary origin, was due to the same cause.

6 Must Have Certificates.

Chicago, March 26.—Dean Sumner of the Cathedral of St. Peter and St. Paul, Sunday delivered a sermon upon the "sacrament of marriage" during which he made the following announcement:

"After consultation with the Right Rev. C. P. Anderson, Bishop of Chicago, and with his approval, Dean Sumner and his co-workers of the Cathedral of St. Peter and St. Paul have agreed upon an advanced policy with regard to the administration of marriage in the cathedral

"Beginning with Easter no persons will be married at the cathedral unless they present a certificate of health from a reputable physician to the effect that they are normal, physically and mentally and have neither an incurable or communicable disease.

"This step is taken only after months of study of the situation and deliberation as to its advisability. It is believed that this stand will meet with the immediate sympathy of the clergy in the church at large, all of whom have long felt the undesirability of being party to the marriage of persons who, because of their physical condition, should never be allowed to enter into the marriage state."

Left at Queenstown.

London, March 26.—Judge Martin, of the British Columbia Supreme Court, who intended travelling on the Mauretania from Queenstown, was prevented owing to the inability of the vessel through storm to call. He is said to have protested strongly, and several passengers have announced their intention of proceeding to Liverpool to lay a prompt protest with the Cunard Company.

SLAIN ON DOOR STEP.

Young Jewess Is Murdered In Toronto by Unknown Man.

Toronto, March 26.—Rebecca Cooper, 32 years of age, an Austrian Jewess, rooming at 60 Chestnut street, was shot and instantly killed by a man whose identity is as yet unknown, at eight o'clock last night. The Cooper woman came to Toronto ten days ago from Montreal, and went to live at the Chestnut street address with Mrs. Sarah Cohen. Last night she went out to a nearby store and had just returned with a small parcel of eggs, when she went out again to the door and was heard there talking to a man. The man proposed that they go out and spend the evening. She refused his invitation, her answer showing considerable resentment. The man was heard to say that if she would not go with him he would shoot her. She persisted in her refusal, and, a moment later a shot was heard.

Patrol Sergt. Lution and Policeman McLeod were in Elm street station when they heard a scream and saw people running. Hurrying to the doorway of the Chestnut street house, they found Mrs. Cohen with the dying girl supported in her arms. Dr. Johnston of Elm street was called, but the girl was dead before he arrived.

While the police were in the house, Albert Berger, 34 years old, an Austrian Jew, crowded into the room where the body lay. He declared that he was the girl's brother, and that they had come to Toronto together from Montreal. He said he was a jeweler. He was taken to the Agnes street station upon a charge of vagrancy, and when searched a revolver was found upon him. It was empty, and showed no signs of having been discharged recently. It was a very small weapon. Later he was taken to the detective office and subjected to a diligent questioning, after which he was taken back to the Agnes street station and held in custody.

From some boys about the house it was learned that the man, after firing his weapon point blank in the woman's face, ran north and turned into a lane which runs west to Centre avenue. No further clues have yet been found, although a number of detectives are at work.

The girl was shot through the mouth, the bullet coming out at the back of the head. The body was removed to the morgue, and the chief coroner was notified and will hold an inquest to-day.

Later the man who had given his name as Berger admitted to the police that his name was Cohen, and that the dead woman was not his sister, but that they had been living together.

Mrs. Cohen, keeper of the house, was also held on a vagrancy charge.

Turkish Cemeteries.

Upon the graves of the dead in the Turkish cemeteries little vessels of water are placed for the benefit of the birds, and some of the marble tombs have basins chiseled out for the same purpose, the superstition being that birds carry messages about the living to the dead and, like everybody else in Turkey, are suspected of being spiteful unless something is done to carry their favor.

The Vandals.

Rome was entered by the Vandals July 15, 455, and pillaged for fourteen days. The empress and many captives were taken away.

Bay Trees.

The bay tree used to be called the tree of Apollo and was supposed to be an antidote against lightning. Tiberius and other Roman emperors wore wreaths of bay leaves as amulets, especially in thunderstorms. Withering of a bay tree was an omen of death.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, March 26.—Cables on Manitoba spring wheat came stronger at an advance of 1½d per quarter. The demand was good for both nearby and May-June shipment, and, as the prices bid were in many cases in line, much business could have been done if ocean room was obtainable, consequently only a few loads were worked for July-August. The market for corn was stronger at an advance of 1c, but the demand is very limited. A fair trade was done in oats for local and outside account. Demand for flour continues good and business is fairly active. Millfeed situation is unchanged. Butter strong under fair demand and small supplies. Dressed hogs steady at an advance of 25c, with a good demand. Eggs active and steady.

Corn—Americans, No. 2 yellow, 69½c.

Oats—Canadian western, No. 2, 46½c to 46c; do., No. 3, 45c to 45½c; extra No. 1 feed, 45c to 45½c; No. 1 feed white, 45c to 45½c; No. 2 feed white, 45c to 45½c; No. 3 feed white, 44c to 44½c; No. 4 feed white, 43c to 43½c.

Barley—Malting, $1.07 to $1.10.

Buckwheat—No. 2, 75c to 76c.

Flour—Manitoba spring wheat patents firsts, $5.70; seconds, $5.20; strong bakers', $5; winter patents, choice, $5.10 to $5.15; straight rollers, $4.65 to $4.75; do., bags, $2.25 to $2.35.

Hay—No. 2 per ton, car lots, $14.00 to $15.

Cheese—Finest westerns, 15½c to 15¾c; finest easterns, 14½c to 15c.

Butter—Choicest creamery, 26½c to 26¾c; seconds, 25½c to 26c.

Eggs—Fresh, 24c; selected, 25c to 27c.

Potatoes—Per bag, car lots, $1.15 to $1.20.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Union Stock Yards.

TORONTO, March 25.—Receipts of live stock at the Union Stock Yards were 124 carloads, comprising 2400 cattle, 454 hogs, 31 sheep, 60 calves and 54 horses.

Experters.

Geo. B. Campbell bought for Morris & Co. 350 Liverpool steers, 1250 to 1350 lbs. each, at a range of $6.75 to $7.10 in prices, or an average of $6.94.

Butchers.

Easter quality butchers' cattle sold at from $7.35 to $7.55, but only two brought the latter figure; in fact, only four cattle were reported as selling over $7. Best quality steers, 1150 to 1250 lbs. each, $6.75 to $7; prime butchers, 1000 to 1100 lbs. each, at $6.60 to $6.75; good, $6 to $6.25; medium $5.60 to $5.85; common, $5 to $5.50; inferior, $4.50 to $4.90; cows, $3.75 to $5.60; canners, $3.75 to $3.75; bulls, $4 to $5.50.

Milkers and Springers.

Milkers and springers were quoted at $60 to $80 each.

Veal Calves.

About 60 veal calves were sold at $4 to $8.50.

Sheep and Lambs.

Sheep, ewes, sold at $4.50 to $5.50, and two or three handy weight ewes at $6; rams, $4 to $4.50; yearling lambs at $7 to $8 per cwt.; one spring lamb sold for $9.50.

Hogs.

There were 240 hogs on sale, which sold at $7.90 for selects, fed and watered, and $7.65.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, March 25.—At the Montreal Stock Yards west end market the receipts of live stock for the week ending March 23 were 1150 cattle, 75 sheep and lambs, 1170 hogs and 1450 calves. The offerings on the market this morning amounted to 700 cattle, 50 sheep and lambs, 500 hogs and 1200 calves.

The gathering of buyers on the market was large, and, as they were all pretty well cleaned out of beef, the demand was good and a fairly active trade was done. On account of the short run and the limited supply of good steers, some of the packers were obliged to go to Toronto at the latter end of last week and buy several carloads, for which they paid from $6.15 to $6.50 per 100 pounds, f.o.b. In consequence, the demand from them to-day was limited, owing to the high prices demanded for the quality of the stock offered.

Several full loads of steers, weighing from 1050 to 1200 pounds, changed hands at $7 per 100 pounds, and four odd picked lots of fine steers quality sold as high as $7.15, while top quality cows and bulls brought $6, but if choice steers, weighing 1250 to 1300 pounds, had been obtainable, $7.25 to $7.35 could have been made for them.

The undertone to the market for hogs continues very strong and prices have scored another advance of 25c to 30c per 100 pounds since last Wednesday, making a net rise since this day week of 40c to 75c, and the prospects are that they will be still higher in the future, as reports throout the country are, no doubt, given when these high figures fail to bring them out. The offerings on sale this morning were small, for which the demand was good, and an active trade was done, with sales of selected lots at $8.60 to $8.75 per 100 pounds, weighed off cars. The tone of the market for lambs was strong, and prices showed a further advance of 25c per 100 pounds.

Butchers' cattle, choice, $7.65 to $7.85; do., medium, $6.90 to $7.50; do., common, $6 to $6; do., choice cows, $6.50 to $7; do., medium, $6 to $6; do., bulls, $5 to $6 inferior, choice, about 1200 to 1300 lbs., each, and medium, each, 900 to 1000; springers, $60 to $80.

Sheep, ewes, $5 to $5.50; bucks and culls, $4.50 to $4.75; lambs, $8.25 to $8.60.

Hogs, f.o.b., $8.60 to $8.75.

Calves, $5.50 to $6.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

EAST BUFFALO, March 25.—Cattle—Receipts, 250; fairly active and steady; prime steers, $7.75 to $8; shipping, $6.50 to $7.50; butchers, $6.50 to $7.25; heifers, $6.50 to $7.25; cows, $5.50 to $6; bulls, $5 to $6; stockers and feeders, $5.75 to $6.25; fresh cows and springers, steady; $35 to $80.

Hogs—Receipts, 2,000; active and steady; heavy and mixed, $7.80 to $7.85; yorkers, $7.75 to $7.80; pigs, $7.75 to $7.80; roughs, $6.75 to $6.90; stags, $5 to $5.50; dairies, $7.65 to $7.75.

Isn't This Heartrending?

Boston, March 26.—To see a thousand cases of champagne go drifting by in a gale and to be unable to save any of it, was the experience of the officers and crew of the steamer Francisco, from Hull, England.

The champagne was in iron-strapped cases, and appeared to be part of the cargo of some steamer which had recently foundered.

From the very crest of a wave, one sailor picked off a bottle, which had broken loose from one of the cases.

Body of Infant Found.

Barrie, March 26.—The body of an infant was found beside the C.P.R. near the village of Midhurst. The frozen corpse was in a small box about 16 by 16 inches, and had apparently been pitched from the window of a passing train. There was nothing in the box by which identification could be made. A coroner's jury is investigating.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup.

Mrs. James Warren, Edmonton, Alta., writes:—"Just a few words in favor of your Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. A short time ago I contracted a bad cold, and tried several remedies, but had no good results. I asked my druggist to give me some good cough medicine he could recommend, so he told me to try Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and I can safely say I have never tried anything like it. The first dose gave me relief, and I was completely cured of my cough before I had finished one bottle. It is the best cough remedy I have ever tried, and I can recommend it to everyone."

Obstinate coughs and colds yield to the grateful, soothing action of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup.

It is a remedy without an equal for coughs, colds, bronchitis, and all affection of the throat or lungs.

IMMIGRATION SCHEME LAUNCHED AT BOARD OF TRADE MEETNG

Scheme Will Assist Heads of Families Who Are Already Located Here to Bring Out Their Wives and Families — Other Matters Discussed.

$200 ALREADY ADVANCED

DIGEST OF BOARD OF TRADE MEETING.

The Board decided to take immediate action as regards the proposition to send a number of delegates to represent the Peterborough Board of Trade on the proposed trip to the Old Country. The number of delegates which can be sent from each Board is limited to five, and the trip is expected to materialize about May 15th.

Messrs. Turner and Wainwright were appointed as a committee to report on the matter of assisting the Royal Victorian Order of Nurses, financially or otherwise. A letter was read from Miss Evelyn Pelly, Lady-in-Waiting to Her Royal Highness the Duchess of Connaught, inviting the Board to take the matter up with a view to assisting in the work of the Order.

Mr. J. J. Turner broached the question of holding a discussion on the merits and demerits of the present ward system of electing Municipal legislators.—Matter will come before the Board at a future date.

In addition to the above the action of the Board as regards the proposal to form a branch of the Imperial [illegible] Association in this city was endorsed in the following resolution—moved by Mr. J. J. Turner, Jr., seconded by Mr. H. C. Pennefather:

That an Imperial Home Reunion Association of Peterborough be instituted and a committee formed to make a canvass with a view to obtaining guarantors to the fund—Carried unanimously.

The above resolution was introduced at the meeting of the Board of Trade, which was held in the Council chamber last evening. Mr. Vincent Eastwood, President of the Board, wielded the gavel and at 8.15 called to order the meeting, at which nine members of the Board were present .The minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary, Mr. Quartermaine, and after being duly confirmed, the work of eliminating the many items which graced the slate was commenced.

Taking up the immigration question Mr. J. John very ably presented his case, dealing with the feasibility of assisting wage earners who are already located here, to bring their wives and families out. The subject of his address in part was as follows:

I believe Peterborough can be very materially benefitted by assisting that which is substantial in our midst, that is, the wage-earners in permanent employment and of good character, to bring their wives and families here and set up their homes, who at present are unable to do so for lack of the money for their transportation.

The business interests of the city would be benefitted in this way, that the money spent in keeping up the home in England would be spent here. My attention was first drawn to this matter by an incident which happened last year. One Saturday morning last September I met an old country man who had just arrived here, near the C.P.R. station. He asked me to direct him to an address at the south end of the city. Being an old country man myself, I have some idea of what it means to be alone amongst strangers, and I escorted him to the place he wanted to go to. On the way I engaged in conversation with him and learned he had a wife and six children in England. Some three months later I enquired for this man, and what did I find? That he had gone back to England, and the reason was because the transportation problem was too much for him. This man I looked upon as a prospective customer, as every other business man might have done, and here he was a good type of citizen, earning good wages, lost to Peterborough, for the sake of one hundred dollars. At the present time, there are ,as stated in Messrs. J. J. Turner &Sons' letter, 42 men in a like position. A few days after I read an account of an address given at the Board of Trade meeting in Toronto outlining a scheme worked by the Imperial Reunion Association of Winnipeg, to help such cases, and which had been found very successful. I will deal briefly with the origin, the working of this organization and the results.

1. The Imperial Home Reunion Association had its inception in the City of Winnipeg in the fall of 1910 at a

Market Tolls Only Worth $700 A Year

Tenders Were to be Received Today—Market Men Say Value Has Decreased

ONLY $400 FOR CLERK

At the market to-day there was a discussion as to what price should be paid for the market tolls this year. To-day the tenders are being received at the city clerk's office, and a number of the habitues of the market were trying to estimate the value of the tolls to them during the coming year. The market clerk said that $700 paid to the city would leave the clerk for that year but a living salary. He figured after paying that sum there would be left about $350 to $400 for the year's work in looking after the market, collecting tolls, etc. It is claimed that the number of hogs and cattle coming over the market is not as large as formerly and there is therefore a decrease in the toll on that account. It was remarked that a return of $350 or $400 was a rather poor showing for the year's work.

HE COULD NOT WALK OR SLEEP

BUT DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS CURED HIM.

Quebec Postmaster's Remarkable Recovery is the Talk of the Whole Country Side.

RUMPLEVILLE, Megantic Co., Que., March 26.—(Special)—The remarkable cure of Mr. Archille Vachon, the well-known merchant and postmaster here, is the talk of the whole country side. Mr. Vachon was confined to his bed with kidney disease. One box of Dodd's Kidney Pills cured him. But let him tell his story in his own words:

"I was troubled with kidney disease" Mr. Vachon says. "I got so bad I could not walk, while my sleep was broken, and I could not rest. It was then I sent for Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"From the second day after starting to take them I rested better, and before I had finished the box I was in excellent health.

"You can publish this statement, for I want my friends to know what a grand remedy Dodd's Kidney Pills are."

Dodd's Kidney Pills always cure sick kidneys. They have never been known to fail. Cured kidneys make pure blood, and pure blood will cure nine-tenths of the ills to which the flesh is heir. If you haven't used Dodd's Kidney Pills yourself ask your neighbours.

2 Brothers Together 40 Years Here

The Story of Charles and Edward Stirton and the Trunk They Brought From Scotland

THEY DID NOT MARRY

There is not much romance in the life story of Chas. and Edward Stirton, who, during the past forty years, have resided at Bonefort, but there are many little details in their experience that is bound to be of interest.

Forty years ago, almost to the month, they came to Canada from Scotland, both young men, nearing their twentieth year. The big roomy trunk in which they had stowed away their necessities for future use in this country never left them, and on Friday last they took it with them —once more refilled with some of their belongings—for a trip to Vancouver after disposing of their farm. It is their intention, according to the report of a friend, to close their lives in Vancouver, where their sister resides.

HIRED WITH FARMERS.

These young Scotchmen on first coming to this country hired out with farmers for several years, and carefully guarded their money until they had sufficient to make a beginning for themselves. It was not [illegible] until they owned their 100-acre farm near Bonefort, about eleven miles from this city, regarded by farmers as one of the best farms in the township of South Monaghan.

For practically forty years they have gathered the harvest from these acres, and to-day they have about reached their destination, the sunny city of Vancouver, where they will rest after a long toil.

Neither of the brothers, Charles nor Edward, married. They occupied the same house, and to what extent their lives crossed into the realm of romance their friend could not say.

$86 AN ACRE.

They sold their farm for $86 an acre, according to the report, and this, together with their earnings year after year, is believed to have left them well provided with this world's pecuniary goods. They intend to reside with their sister, a Mrs. Hicks, in Vancouver. The Stirton brothers are now advancing to their sixtieth year, and have decided that the time has come for them to rest. Their many friends in South Monaghan wish them the fulfilment of their hopes.

FELL DEAD IN HIS CHAIR

Mr. John Kelly, of McGill Street, Expires Suddenly Whilst at Breakfast This Morning

HAD NOT COMPLAINED

Still another sudden death, the third recorded in the city within the space of the past four days, occurred this morning, when Mr. John Kelly, of McGill St., expired suddenly from what is understood to be heart failure.

The unfortunate gentleman was sitting at his breakfast apparently in the best of health, when suddenly he fell from his chair. Dr. McGraw was instantly summoned, but on his arrival life was found to be quite extinct. It is not yet decided whether an inquest will be necessary.

The late Mr. Kelly,who was 46 years of age, was employed as a chef by the Cresswell Lumber Company, and only returned from the camp a week ago. He had never complained of illness.

The deceased originated from Campbellford, but for a great many years has made his home in Peterborough, where he was widely known and generally respected. He is survived by a sorrowing wife and seven children, five boys and two girls, namely, Michael, of Sudbury; Harry, of Portage LaL Prairie; Arthur, Christie and Alphonsus at home; Mrs. John Keating, of Rochester, and Annie, of Toronto.

The funeral will take place on Thursday morning. At 9 o'clock the cortege will leave the late residence of the deceased, McGill St., and proceed to the Sacred Heart Church, and from thence to the St. Peter's Cemetery for interment.

EDMUNDS WILL GIVE HIS PHYSICAL CULTURE ACT

As an added feature of interest in connection with to-night's boxing bouts at the Grand Opera House, Artie Edmunds, who is known as America's greatest featherweight muscular and physical culture athlete, will give a demonstration showing his wonderful physical and muscular development and exposing a number of the strong man and physical artistes' stunts. Physical culture is a hobby with Edmunds; he would rather give an exhibition of this kind and talk muscular development than he would eat. The theory that physical culture artists are necessarily muscle-bound and useless in such sports as wrestling and boxing where quickness is required, is knocked into a cocked hat by Edmunds, who is as famous as a boxer and wrestler as he is through his physical culture demonstration. Herere is what the Toronto Star Weekly has to say:

Art Edmunds, who has been quietly working up around Toronto University Gym., getting into shape for going on the road with his physical culture act, received a big boost the other day when he was called into the private office of Dr. Barton, the physical director of Varsity, and given a thorough examination both by Dr. Barton and "Prof." Williams, the Varsity instructor who has handled more men than any other man in the country.

"A wonderful little athlete," said Dr. Barton. "I examined him to satisfy my own personal curiosity. He certainly is a giant in small compas."

"Edmunds 'little of 'The Pocket Hercules' suits him to a nicety," said Prof. Williams. "I examined him thoroughly from crown to sole and found him of unusual symmetrical build. From his wonderful strength I expected to find him abnormally developed somewhere, but he is not. He has a tremendous chest expansion and great control of his muscles. From his long athletic career as a rugby player, boxer and wrestler, I expected to find some weakness developed from over-exertion, but I could not find the slightest trace of any breakdown. He is a great example of physical fitness, good for many years yet in the ring and on the mat."

Premier Confesses To Failure

And Blames the Disputants for the Trouble

GALLERIES CROWDED

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, ENG., MARCH 26.—In a short speech, delivered in the Commons this evening, Premier Asquith confessed to the Government's absolute failure to terminate the coal strike and placed the blame on the disputants, whom he said, because of not agreeing on a matter of small proportions, would have a serious account to render to the United Kingdom.

LONDON, ENG., MARCH 26.—Crowded galleries awaited Premier Asquith's report of progress in the strike negotiations in the Commons this afternoon. Asquith simply announced the Government's intention to push the bill without amendment through all stages, to-day. He added "It is not beyond the range of possibility that arrangements may yet be come to by both parties outside of this bill."

However, some sections of the coal owners have seemingly come to the conclusion that no settlement can be made and have seemingly come to the conclusion that no settlement can be made and have ceased attending conferences.

OTTAWA, MARCH 26.—Throughout the whole of his evidence, given this morning, before the Senate Committee on economic conditions, E. J. Fream, secretary of the United Farmers of Alberta, an organization with 15,000 members, declared that wider markets were the paramount necessity of the Canadian West. He asserted that some of the most important branches of agriculture in the Province were falling behind simply because the farmers were not sure that they would get a market for the things they raised. He insisted that the United States was the logical market for the Canadian West.

AISLES WERE OVERCROWDED

The moving picture interests of the city were well represented at this morning's session of the police court. A squad of seven men, composed of proprietors, managers and employees of the Royal, Red Mill and Princess theatres respectively, filed into the court room when the clock struck ten. The presence in court was the outcome of a Saturday night visit to each of the three theatres by Chief of Police Thompson, and the charges registered against them was that of allowing the passage ways of the theatres to be filled with people, contrary to the regulations governing the statutes under which these amusement places are operated.

The case of Mr. Gus Ponkydias, proprietor of the Royal theatre, was first taken up .No defence was offered.

Chief Thompson testified to the effect that on Saturday evening of the 23rd inst., about 8.40 p.m., he visited the Royal theatre and found that the passage way leading into the door of the theatre was filled with people. He then went to the second door and found that a similar condition prevailed. The passage way at the back of the theatre was also filled, and the ticket collectors were standing on the outside. A number of people were standing in the south aisle. The centre and north aisles were clear, with the exception of the people who stood at the back. He estimated that over one hundred people were standing in the theatre at the time.

Mr. Myles Henry, manager of the Royal theatre, was next called. He refuted the statement that the passage way on the south side was an aisle. It was merely a passage way leading from the cellar to the rear of the theatre. He endeavoured to explain this by means of a rough pen sketch of the theatre plan. No other witnesses were called ,and the next case, that of Mr. E. J. King, proprietor of the 'Princess' theatre, who was charged with a similar offence, was dealt with.

"The Princess."

Mr. G. N. Gordon appeared for the defendants and pleaded not guilty on his client's behalf.

The evidence submitted by the Chief went to show that the approaches of the theatre, and also the ten-foot space at the rear was filled with people. He estimated the number of people standing to be about forty or fifty. The centre aisle was free and the seating capacity of the theatre was overtaxed.

P. C. Kidd gave evidence to the effect that on the evening in question he had visited the Princess theatre a few minutes prior to the Chief. He had found the passage ways at the rear of the theatre packed with people, who were standing. The centre aisle was clear and the seats were full as far as he could see.

Cross examined by Mr. Gordon, witness would not say as to whether the show was about to terminate at the time of his visit. This, the counsel for the defence intimated, would be responsible for overcrowding.

In summing up the case for the defence Mr. Gordon stated that it was the custom in this city, and in other cities, for people to stand on the passage ways prior to the conclusion of a performance, with a view to securing a seat at the commencement of the next performance.

A little discussion arose between the Magistrate and Mr. Gordon as to what would be the probable result of a panic in one of these places with the entrance crowded as they were on Saturday night.

The "Red Mill."

Mr. Ozias De LaPlante, counsel for Mr Herbert Clayton, proprietor of the Red Mill, pleaded not guilty to the charge of allowing the passage ways of the Red Mill theatre to be obstructed. The alleged offence having been committed on Saturday evening.

Chief Thompson gave evidence to the effect that on approaching the theatre he had observed a large crowd standing in the lobby. In order to gain admittance he had to crowd some of the people back, and on reaching the door he found it closed. The Chief knocked on the door and was admitted by a man who was presumably a ticket collector. On crowding his way inside he found the passageways at the rear of the building to be badly congested. The people standing extended five or six feet into the aisles. The conditions in this theatre were worse than the other two, he declared.

Mr. Clayton, proprietor of the Red Mill, stated that he remembered letting the Chief into the theatre on Saturday evening.

"What was the condition of the theatre at that time?" questioned Mr. LaPlante.

"Aisles perfectly clear and three men looking after them," replied the witness.

"Who were the ushers?"

Mixed Marriages Were 1509 In Ont.

Birth and Marriage Rate in Province Show Slight Increases For 1910

TUBERCULOSIS LESS

TORONTO, MARCH 26—According to the report of the Registrar-General showing vital statistics in Ontario for 1910, which was issued yesterday, the number of deaths in that year from tuberculosis was the smallest in thirty years. The number in 1910 was 2,201. The ratio of deaths from tuberculosis to population is also the smallest in thirty years. The decrease is most marked since 1906, which Dr. J. W. S. McCullough, who prepared the report, attributes to the active movement for the prevention of the disease.

Population Increases.

During 1910 there were 68,871 births, 24,036 marriages, and 33,539 deaths. The ration per thousand of births shows an increase of .6 over 1909, of marriages an increase of .7, and of deaths a decrease of .6 below the previous year.

Referring to the great increase in the number of marriages in the city of Windsor, Dr. McCullough says: "Windsor continues to be the Gretna Green of Ontario, the number of marriages in 1910 exceeding that of 1909 by 375. The cause of the abnormal increase is due to the influx of Americans from all over the United States for the purpose of having their marriage celebrated under Ontario laws. In our opinion all licenses to marry should be advertised in a local newspaper. This would have the effect of checking clandestine marriages."

Mixed Marriages.

Of mixed marriages between Roman Catholics and members of other faiths there were 1,509. A table shows that 178 Roman Catholic men married Anglican women, 128 married Presbyterians, 127 married Methodists, 68 married Baptists, 10 married Congregationalists; 35 married Lutherans. There were 289 Roman Catholic women who married Anglican men, 194 married Presbyterians, 206 married Methodists, 68 married Baptists, 11 married Congregationalists, and 79 married Lutherans.

HARRY FRASER MISSING.

Information as to His Whereabouts Will be Gladly Received by His Father.

Information is sought regarding the whereabouts of George Fraser, about 20 years of age, and a son of Mr. Harry Fraser of Bridgenorth. He left home about twelve years ago, and has not been heard of for about three years or more. When last heard of he was in the State of Michigan. His father is anxious to hear from him and any information as to his whereabouts will be gladly received.

CAUSE AND EFFECT.

There is one explanation of a good deal of the poverty that exists, and that is the improvident expenditure of wages by persons whose income is pretty thoroughly demanded by the daily needs of living. If there is any surplus, instead of being put by for a "rainy day," or a period of enforced idleness, it is too generally expended upon frivolous pleasures—when not spent upon strong drink. People of moderate means require their pleasures as well as people of large means; yet it will be found in practical experience that the people who cannot financially afford to take pleasure to excess devote more time and money to these things than many people of means, who are often, by the way, people of means, simply because of the practice of habits of thrift. The national failing is neglect of thrift—the expenditure of the last penny in ways that are not absolutely necessary to comfortable existence. If we could persuade our people—our wage earners of all kinds—to make systematic savings, as is done almost universally in France, we would have less of poverty and less of destitute old age. If our children were taught, through the medium of schools savings banks, to form habits of thrift, that would last them through life, we should, in time, have a people that would be capable of, and willing to, spend their income wisely, instead of wasting it as is too generally done. We read of the great prevalence of poverty in England, and other countries of the United Kingdom. Is not this a typically possible explanation? The other day, in spite of the destitution caused by the coal strike, there were 130,000 persons on the field to see the final football match between Scotland and England. The children might be crying for bread, but a shilling was scraped together some way to see the game. This is only one of the numerous forms that improvidence takes and so long as such things are done we shall have more poverty and suffering than we would have if people took their so-called pleasures modestly and gauged them according to their means.

PETTY QUIBBLING.

The following appears in the Kingston Standard—a staunch Conservative journal:

"Sir James Whitney says that "legally there are no bi-lingual schools"; and in that statement Mr. Whitney is telling the exact legal truth. There is no provision in the statutes of Ontario establishing such schools; but, unfortunately, though the law does not recognize them, they actually exist. Theoretically they are non-existent; practically they are very much alive.

This emphasizes the fact that in this matter Sir James has been guilty of petty quibbling and hair-splitting that would be reprehensible in a pettifogging lawyer, not to speak of a responsible statesman. During the recent provincial elections Sir James was reported as saying ,without qualification, that "there is no such thing as bilingual schools." In the Legislature he qualifies this statement by the term "legally." The Premier's treatment of this matter is not by any means disingenuous, and in spite of the apparent, if not intended, attempt to mislead the public, bilingual schools, to use the languge of the Standard, "are very much alive." And Sir James is responsible, and doubly responsible, for their existence, in the state of ineffectiveness in which the report of his own investigator, Dr. Merchant, shows them to be. These schools have been neglected, like a step-mothered child, and the public money expended upon them has been largely wasted because of this neglect. Inadequate inspection has permitted the development of conditions that make the schools ineffective. They have been permitted to be conducted by improperly qualified teachers, and as a necessary result they have not been up to the mark. In this regard they are not singular, for the same conditions of deficient supply of qualified teachers applies to hundreds of public schools. Sir James might as well say that there is no such thing as public schools—"legally speaking". They are not conducted according to the law, which requires the services of duly qualified teachers. A man that boasts that he is "bold enough to be honest," should be bold enough to face the situation manfully in the matter of bilingual schools, which under the administration of his government are by means serving the purpose for which they are ostensibly maintained. We cannot have good schools of any kind without good teachers; and the administration that pursues a policy that lessens the supply of qualified teachers, though it spends a king's ransom on schools, is guilty, or at least, responsible for the resulting injury to educational interests.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Probably Premier Whitney's excuse is that "legally" there is no such thing as his Elk Lake telegram.

The Orillia Packet says that already "there are four vacant senatorships in Nova Scotia and that at this rate the Senate will not long remain overwhelmingly Liberal." That depends upon the political complexion of the political derelicts that have drifted out into unknown seas. Most of the older and riper senators were appointed under Conservative auspices, and were one might venture to say, Conserevative.

Hon. Mr. Pelletier, Nationalist Postmaster-General, made a brave attempt to invade provincial rights in Ontario by Gallicising the names of post offices in this Province, by converting English-speaking names, so to speak, into their French equivalents. Popular indignation made him restore one changed name to the original, ad now he has had to "come down" again. "Stony Point" P. O., Essex county, was changed by order, to "Point aux Roches." Another order has been issued to restore the name "Stony Point."

CHURCH UNION DOUBTFUL.

(Ottawa Journal)

The official Presbyterian vote so far is little better than two to one for church union. Seven Presbyteries have completed the voting, giving 17,-814 to 7,573 for the bare project of organic union, while for the proposed basis the vote stands 12,260 to 5,671. Counting many other churches whose entire Presbyteries have not yet completed voting, the same proportion holds. 26,908 to 12,977, making 2.3 to 1.

These results include nearly half the Presbyterian churches in Canada and may be taken as representative as how the voting will go throughout. One thing seems clear. The proportion in favour is not nearly so great as it would need to be to warrant a change so radical. Prominent leaders of all the negotiating churches have expressed themselves as opposed to the amalgamation unless it were endorsed by at least four-fifths of the membership of each denomination.

In the case of the Methodist and the Congregational bodies, this desired proportion seems likely to be met. Four hundred Methodist Quarterly Boards have voted, rolling up 6,115 to 884, or practically seven to one for union. The Congregational vote was comparatively small, of course, but the proportion was even higher.

For the present, then, the union of the three denominations looks to be unlikely. The Methodists and Congregationalists are overwhelmingly in favour of the new church, but whether the powerful Methodist body would consent to lose its identity for the sake of gaining so small an accretion as the Congregationalists may well be doubted.

CANADA AND DEFENCE.

Ottawa Journal (Conservative)

There cannot be any doubt that the overwhelming majority of the Canadian people are in favour of some system of naval defence. For why should Canada alone among the large political communities of the world be free from possible attack? All are agreed on this. But a perusal of the press of the country will quickly show that with regard to what system of sea defence we should adopt, there is a confusion of opinion. By some it is urged that we should contribute at once a large money payment. By others it is suggested that we should have dreadnoughts built, and then present them to Great Britain, subject to our recall. Others urge, and we believe that this view is held by the majority of Canadians that we should build our own ships. To this it is answered that we do not know how to build ships, and that any attempt at their construction in Canada would lead to waste and corruption. But surely this is a confession of national weakness if we are compelled to admit that our efforts in this direction must forever be cursed and paralysed by incompetence and corruption. One thing at least seems perfectly clear. The Government of Canada alone must take the responsibility for its naval policy. The British admiralty can be consulted and its wise counsel, born in long experience, used in the framing of measures for the carrying out of Canadian obligations, but our own Government must do its own work in giving practical form to the aspirations of the Canadian people towards a share in the defence of their country. For to us it must seem that the primary object of the existence of a Canadian navy, of any kind, is the defence of the Canadian coast. And of one thing we can be almost certain. Sooner or later, warships will be built right here in Canada. Sooner or later a beginning will have to be made.

In the meantime the country will await with interest the result of Mr. Hasen's conference with the admiralty. Should he return, as we have good reason to expect he will, with a sane proposal, he will unquestionably receive the united support of the people. This is not a question of party politics. In the House both Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Mr. Lemieux frankly declared that they would heartily support any sanely imperial policy that would be arrived at. Mr. Borden will, of course, have to educate a large section of Quebec to the level of his conception of the responsibilities and the duty of Canada to contribute towards the security and solidity of the empire. And yet it can be said that perhaps after all, there is not so wide a gap between Mr. Borden's view and the views of the more moderate section of the Quebec Nationalists. A religious minority, jealous of their rights, often unjustly attacked, misunderstood, and often misled by partisan demagogue, a section of the French in this country have come to look upon a step towards naval defence as an inroad upon their constitutional rights and privileges. This feeling, however, is gradually disappearing, and it is not too much to expect that soon we shall see an immense change in the attitude of the Nationalists towards a sane policy of naval defence.

Note.—The question of Canada's participation in imperial defence was settled, and well settled, by the Navy Bill of Sir Wilfrid Laurier. It provided by a becoming sense of our independence and faith in our own resources, for the building of Canadian ships in Canadian shipyards, of Canadian material and by Canadian workmen. This action of Canada was approved of by the British Admiralty, and would have been satisfactory to all concerned. But Mr. Borden, for the sake apparently of opposition, and at the behest of the National element of his political supporters, saw fit to set back the hands of the clock, by cancelling the naval programme and throwing Canada, so far as naval matters go, upon her beams end. We now shall have the whole weary way to travel over again and all the advantage gained has been some promotion of party ends and a distinct humiliation of Canada which will be regarded by the Mother Country, and the other dominions, as weak, vacillating and unmindful of duty towards her imperial, as well as domestic, responsibilities.

IMMIGRATION SCHEME LAUNCHED AT BOARD OF TRADE MEETING

dinner given by the Manitoba Club to Mr. Norman Griffiths, M.P., for Wednesbury in the old country. He remarked that he had often helped British working men to come to Canada, and that in so doing he had never lost a dollar, but that it was a great hardship for the family to be separated whilst the husband was earning sufficient money for their transportation, at the same time labouring under the handicap of keeping two homes together, his wife and family in England, and himself in Canada. Sitting next to Mr. Griffiths was Mr. W. I. Bulman, a large employer of labour in Winnipeg and so impressed was he that a plan to solve the problem could be worked out that he telephoned a few of his friends the next day and a practical business organisation was effected. A solicitor was called in and a draft form for a guaranteed fund of $20,000 was provided. It read as follows:

"Each of the undersigned subscribers without regard to the number, or to any representations that may have been made or many hereafter be made as to the number of names of parties to become subscribers to this agreement of document or otherwise howsoever hereby agrees with any chartered bank to pay the said bank upon demand, the sum of $250 each, on account of any or all loans that may from time to time be made by the said bank to pay any loss of rtustee in advancing transportation to families of British workmen."

In less than two days Mr. Bulman had 50 of Winnipeg's most prominent business men identified with the movement as guarantors to the fund. Thirty others fell in line and the fund of $20,000 was completed. The guarantors then met and proceeded to elect a chairman (Mr. W. I. Bulman) and a trustee. The trustee is Industrial Commissioner, and also an advisory board of six. The method of assistance adopted is very simple. The applicant fills out the printed form:

A form is also sent to each applicant's employer.

As soon as there are a sufficient number of applications on the file, the Secretary of the Industrial Bureau calls a meeting of the Advisory Board. These meetings are held at eight o'clock so that the applicants may lose no time from work. The advisory board interviews separately each man desiring assistance, and these interviews have been found very helpful in deciding cases which were doubtful, because it is not easy to give the exact information on all points required. In all the applications which have been considered only one has been found at variance with the facts. A man stated that his weekly wage was $15.00, whilst his employer stated that he received $12.00. This applicant was rejected.

Now I will show the results of the first year's working: 189 applications were approved and 709 people were added to the population of Winnipeg. The cost of their transportation was $53,963.76. Of this amount $6613.45 was deposited by the applicants in advance for transportation being issued. The balance was borrowed as required, from the Eastern Townships bank at 6 p.c. interest. The arrears of repayment by reason of delayed instalments amount to $317.00, most of which was safe.

During 1911 Home Reunion Associations were formed in Toronto, Fort William, Regina, Saskatoon, Brandon, Medicine Hat, Lethbridge, Calgary, Red Deer, Edmonton, Yorkton, Vancouver, Nelson, St. John, N.B., and two weeks ago, one in Hamilton, and an effort is to be made to start one in London in the near future.

As a result of Winnipeg's showing for its first year, the Toronto Board of Trade invited Mr. Bulman of Winnipeg to address and outline the scheme which had been adopted there. As a result of this visit 200 guarantors to a working fund of $50,000, was formed and each guarantor subscribed $250.00. Three trustees were appointed, consisting of Mayor Geary, R. S. Gourley and W. K. George. At a meeting of guarantors a permanent committee of 15 was appointed to manage all the affairs of the Association. It comprises the following and this list will show you that the best men in Toronto think it a scheme worth while. Frank Arnoldi, K.C., Mayor Geary, W. K. George, R. S. Gourley Hedley Shaw, G. T. Somers, Benj. Westwood, S. Mosley Wickett, F. Wise, Noel Marshall, J. A. Tory, and Kenneth J. Duncan. Five constitute a quorum and each applicant has to have three endorsers.

As stated in Messrs. J. J. Turner & Sons' letter a guaranteed fund of $5,000 would be ample to start this movement in Peterborough, 50 guarantors of one hundred dollars each, or 20 if it was considered better, at $250 each.

Some few evenings ago I was outlining this scheme to two of our prominent citizens, one of them in a large manufacturing business ,the other a prominent public official. One of them said, 'I don't mind going good for one hundred dollars in a scheme like that, it will help my tenant round the corner.' "Thank you," I said, "and it will help me, too." The following night in conversation with the other he said, "We were talking about that scheme you spoke of, and you're right, we're going through life only once and we should help these fellows if we can."

I believe there are in Peterborough many others like my friend who would like to help their tenant round the corner. I believe our bankers, our professional men, and our manufacturers would like to help to make our merchants and trades more prosperous, and stop the money going to the old country, which could, under this scheme, be spent here. I believe there are some like my friend who would like to give a helping hand to the struggling earner in our midst, and in conclusion I have much pleasure in commending to your earnest consideration this movement which will make new comers better citizens, better Canadians and more loyal to Canada their adopted country, and lastly more loyal to the City of Peterborough, that has given them assistance.

Mr. H. C. Pennefather said that he was prepared to assist in the work by acting as guarantor to the extent of $100. Mr. John followed suit, and before the meeting had fairly got under way, the scheme which has already been introduced in many of the western cities, was launched and boasted of a financial backing of $200 to its credit.

Mr. Pretty made a few remarks relative to the project which he strongly favoured. He practically endorsed the views as expressed by the previous speaker in their entirety.

A resolution was then formulated by Mr. J. J. Turner, Jr., and submitted to the meeting, who passed their approval upon it unanimously. It was furthe rmoved that Messrs. John, Eastwood, Gillespie, Neill, J. J. Turner, Jr., and his Worship the Mayor, be appointed as a committee to conduct a canvas among the business men and householders of the city for the purpose of securing guarantors to financially back the project.

Communications Received.

A telegram was read from Mr. F. G. Morley, secretary-treasurer of the Associated Boards of Trade with reference to the proposed trip of a party of Board of Trade delegates to the old country. The Board was requested to forward the names of duly authorized delegates whom the Board might propose to send. Immediate action will be taken by the Board as regards the matter.

A letter was read from the Veterinary Inspector General's office of the Dominion Live Stock Commission Department requesting the names of local dealers interested in the egg industry.

An interesting communication was received from the Government House Ottawa, in which the writer, Miss Evelyn Pelly, lady-in-waiting to Her Royal Highness, the Duchess of Connaught, solicits assistance from the Board, for the furtherance of the good work which is being promulgated by the Royal Victoria Order of Nurses.

Mr. F. Dobbin suggested that the matter be turned over to the Health Association. He was backed up in this by Mr. Wainwright.

Messrs. Turner and Wainwright were appointed as a committee to report upon the matter at a future date.

Mr. Turner introduced the question of dealing with the present ward system of electing municipal legislators. He was of the opinion that it would be an interesting theme for discussion. He also referred to the spectacle which he witnessed at the last municipal election in which some of the men were prevailed upon to stand for election in order that the wards might receive their equal representation.

Mayor Bradburn was of the opinion that the Council might deal with the quest ion to advantage and if necessary it might be referred to the people.

Mr. G. W. Greene declared the vote system of voting to be a big mistake.

On motion of Mr. F. Dobbin, the meeting adjourned.

Those present were: Chairman, Mr. V. Eastwood; members of the Board, Messrs. G. A. Gillespie, J. J. Turner, F. Dobbin, G. C. Wainwright, G. W. Greene, R. Turner, H. C. Pennefather, Mr. Pretty and J. John.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

MANAGER TEMPLIN DIGS UP A STAR TWIRLER

Edward Bartlett, a Rochester Semi-Pro. Who Struck Out 59 Men in His Last Three Games Last Season Has Been Grabbed for Peterborough---Manager After Other Slab Artists.

Manager Templin writes that his big task now is to get pitchers. He can grab off lots of box artists, but what he is looking for is a squad of twirlers who will stand the pace right from the start and keep the team in the running until he has had a chance to develop his infield and outfield properly. He has several deals on for pitchers. One of these men he was after, John Dunn, a big left-hander, had already signed up with Dave Cross's Haverhill Club in the New England League, but he has hopes of landing him yet before the Canadian League season opens. Templin also expects to get Pitcher Mullival of Allentown, Pa., a youngster who is under the wing of James McGeehan, scout for the Cleveland American League team. The Naps scout was induced by Manager Templin to turn over this boy, and if Old Felix can come to terms with the Allentown phenom, he will wear a Peterborough uniform this season.

In Edward Bartlett, the Rochester youngster, whom Templin has signed, it looks as if the wily Peterborough manager has grabbed a star flinger. Bartlett, who is barely twenty years of age, pitched for the Kodak Park team of Rochester, last year winners of a semi-pro. Rochester League and had a wonderful record for the season, winding up in a blaze of glory by striking out fifty-nine men in his last three games. The Rochester papers speak in high terms of the great pitching of this twirler who is 5 ft. 10 in. tall and weighs 160 pounds. He is a right-hander and should easily make good in this League.

Templin is now busy building up a pennant winning combination for the coming season.

He will take with him Catcher Irvin Trout, the Reading boy, who caught a few games last season for the Reading Tri-State champions.

Charles (Babe) Tully, the short-stopper, who has seen service in the Blue Grass and Carolina Leagues, is to be on the club roster.

Willie Schwartz, outfielder, who played great ball in the city league and was later with several leagues of the country, will be one of the Canadians.

Jimmie Beard, the hard-hitting outfielder, who can also pitch some ball, is to play in the outer garden. Beard's ability is well known in a number of league circuits.

Another of the Templin recruits will be Earle Hartman, the Eastern League basketball player, who played great ball for Reading High and various fast amateur aggregations. This will be Hartman's first season out and Templin believes that he will make good at the hot corner.

Harry Scull, a local hurler, who has a big variety tucked away, is also to be tried out for the team.

Manager Templin is angling around for a first baseman and other players. The party will leave here on April 25. The Canadian season, on account of the climate, does not open until about the second week in May.

Last season Templin batted over .300 in the league and played a great game around the second station. He has picked up some of Reading's best players and will cause disappointment to several other towns, which were after some of the men.

GREAT PROGRAMME OF BOUTS FOR TO-NIGHT

Two Big Contests and Two Lively Preliminaries With a Physical Culture Demonstration by Artie Edmunds Make Up a Grand Bill.

Artie Edmunds of Toronto vs. Tony Hudson of Detroit, 10 rounds, at 124 pounds.

Harry Westerby of Toronto vs. Kid Ryan of Rochester, N.Y., 12 rounds at 125 pounds.

Ted. Sparks, Hamilton vs. Bert Petty, 6 rounds.

Geo. Lilly, Peterborough, vs. R. Montgomery, Peterborough, 6 rounds

Artie Edmunds, the Pocket Hercules, in physical culture exhibition.

This is the big programme that is offered to Peterborough fight fans tonight at the Grand Opera House and a glance over the bill will go that one of the best evening's sport of its kind ever seen here will be the result. Great interest is naturally being taken in the Edmunds-Hudson go, which is the main bout. Edmunds is well known here, and has always been popular while Hudson has a reputation as a clever, aggressive boxer. Ten rounds between the pair should be alone worth the price of admission. Both are in good shape and able to go the route.

Ryan and Westerby should give the crowd a grand exhibition in their twelve round engagement. Both have a long list of wins to their credit and it will be a real battle from start to finish.

Petty, the Toronto 105 pounder, who clashes with Sparks of Hamilton, in one of the preliminaries, is the ex-Canadian amateur champion in his class and is a very pretty boxer.

In addition to the events announced, there will be a special four round bout, something in the nature of a surprise party.

Mr. Eugene Hurtubise, Peterborough's well known wrestler, will referee all the bouts. The seats have been selling fast.

FIRST BASE AND CATCHER PROBLEM IS SOLVED

Leir Rothenberger, the first baseman whom Manager Templin has signed up for Peterborough, played on the Boyerton, Pa., independent professional team last year and Connie Mack, of the Athletics, who secured two players from the Boyerton team, has had his eye on him several times. Rothenberger needs a little more seasoning before he is ready for the Big Show, but should easily make good in the Canadian League. He is 5 ft. 9 in. in height and weighs 180 pounds. Rothenberger is twenty-three years of age and is a good batter, hitting left-handed.

Manager Templin has also come to terms with a college player, R. A. Connolly of Newburgh, N.Y., who is a first baseman and an outfielder.

Catcher Frank Brode whose signed contract has been sent along, is a first-class experienced catcher 22 years of age, 5 ft. 8 1-2 inches tall and is stockily built, weighing 165 pounds. He has a fine arm and is a hard hitter. Brode has been catching for the Tamaqua and Shenandoah clubs, the latter club defeating the winners of the Susquehanna League in a post season series.

Templin is also waiting on the contract of Catcher Jas. Hagerty of Roxbury, Mass., whom he says is a good back stopper and a fine hitter. With Trout, Brode and Haggerty to don the big mit, the catcher problem seems to have been solved.

The infield is complete with Rothenberger at first, Templin at second, Tully at short and Hartman on third, provided of course these men make good. Templin has several other infielders on the string to provide against emergencies.

TEMPLIN HAS PICKED UP SOME OF READING STARS

Here is what the Reading, Pa., Telegram has to say of some of Peterborough's Canadian League team:

Way up in Canada this summer several Reading ball players, professionals and crack amateurs, will be pulling to win a pennant for the Peterborough team, which will be under the leadership of Curt Templin, the star second baseman.

Templin was up in the Canadian League last season with the Berlin team and won the pennant for that town. He was drafted by Peterborough last fall and is now busy building up a pennant winning combination for the coming season.

He will take with him Catcher Irvin Trout, the Reading boy, who caught a few games last season for the Reading Tri-State champions.

Charles (Babe) Tully, the short-stopper, who has seen service in the Blue Grass and Carolina Leagues, is to be on the club roster.

Willie Schwartz, outfielder, who played great ball in the city league and was later with several leagues of the country, will be one of the Canadians.

Jimmie Beard, the hard-hitting outfielder, who can also pitch some ball, is to play in the outer garden. Beard's ability is well known in a number of league circuits.

Another of the Templin recruits will be Earle Hartman, the Eastern League basketball player, who played great ball for Reading High and various fast amateur aggregations. This will be Hartman's first season out and Templin believes that he will make good at the hot corner.

Harry Scull, a local hurler, who has a big variety tucked away, is also to be tried out for the team.

Manager Templin is angling around for a first baseman and other players. The party will leave here on April 25. The Canadian season, on account of the climate, does not open until about the second week in May.

Last season Templin batted over .300 in the league and played a great game around the second station. He has picked up some of Reading's best players and will cause disappointment to several other towns, which were after some of the men.

CHILDREN INJURED

Ordinary Cathartics and Pills and Harsh Physic Cause Distressing Complaints.

You cannot be over-careful in the selection of medicine for children. Only the very gentlest bowel medicine should ever be given, except in emergency cases. Ordinary pills, cathartics and purgatives are apt to do more harm than good. They may cause griping, nausea and other distressing after-effects that are frequently health-destroying.

We personally recommend and guarantee Rexall Orderlies as the safest and most dependable remedy, which we know, for constipation and associate bowel disorders. We have such absolute faith in the virtues of this remedy that we sell it on our guarantee of money back in every instance where it fails to give entire satisfaction, and we urge all in need of such medicine to try it at our risk.

Rexall Orderlies are eaten just like candy, are particularly prompt and agreeable in action, may be taken at any time, day or night; do not cause diarrhoea, nausea, griping, excessive looseness, or other undesirable effects. They have a very mild but positive action upon the organs with which they come in contact, apparently acting as a regulative tonic upon the relaxed muscular coat of the bowel, thus overcoming weakness, and aiding to restore the bowels to more vigorous and healthy activity.

Rexall Orderlies commonly completely relieve constipation, except of course when of a surgical character. They also tend to overcome the necessity of constantly taking laxatives to keep the bowels in normal condition. Three sizes of packages, 10 cents, 25 cents and 50 cents. Remember, you can obtain Rexall Remedies in Peterborough only at our store—The Rexall Store—McDermid and Jury.

DEFEATED LINDSAY BY TWO SHOTS

In a friendly game in which four rinks from Lindsay figured, the locals grabbed the money by a straight win of two shots. Not a very big margin to write home about, it must be admitted, but when you come to take the measure of such redoubtable skips as J. D. Flanelle, of the Winnipeg Curling Bonspiel fame, and a pen of his team mates who accompanied him to the Electric City last night, it begins to sound a little better than it looks. The ice in good condition, and was decidedly in favour of the visitors, who seldom have the privilege of playing upon such good ice in their own home town. At least that is what they say. Good curling featured the play on both sides, and from start to finish the contest waxed hot, and the fans got their money's worth.

The summary of the games is as follows:

Peterborough.		Lindsay.
W. N. Lang, Skip	18	L. V. O'Connor, Skip	8
H. M. Waddell, Skip	14	M. Sisson, Skip	12
D. Davidson, Skip	8	F. Carew, Skip	24
A. Moore, Skip	19	J. D. Flanelle, Skip	13
Total for Peterborough	59 shots.
Total for Lindsay	57 shots.

Majority for Peterborough 2 shots.

More Nicknames For Ball Club

It looks as if the management of the Peterborough Canadian League Club will have their work cut out for them to select a nick-name for the team, so numerous have been the cognomens sent into the Examiner.

"Live Wires" was one of the names received to-day. The contributor thought this name would be appropriate as Peterborough is known throughout the country as the Electric city.

Here are some of the others:—

Nickname Editor, Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I would suggest the name of Generals as a suitable name for the Peterborough ball team on account of the big General Electric concern we have here, and besides, I think on the field of battle a little army composed of all generals would bring the laurels to Peterborough. L. P.

Nickname Editor:

Dear Sir,— I would suggest as a nickname for the Peterborough baseball team, "Peterborough Sparks," because they will attract the crowd like the sparks of a fire in our city.

S. M.

The management certainly hope they will.

Nickname Editor—

Dear Sir,—In reading your evening paper I read that you are asking the fans to select a name for the ball team. I now propose the name "Royal Canadians" as it is a Canadian League. R. P. A.

Nickname Editor,—Being a baseball enthusiast, I have noted with interest that Peterborough is to be represented in the League and note that the club is in search of a representative name. I would suggest the name "Hydraulickers" or "Lift-Lockers," as our hydraulic lift-lock has done more to advertise Peterborough throughout America and Europe than any manufacturing industry could possibly have done. "MUT."

Nickname Editor—

"I would suggest "Athletics" as a nickname for the ball clubs, as Peterborough had a lacrosse team by that name." C. H.

Here is the funniest one yet.

Nickname Editor—

"See you want a nickname for your ball team. I would call them the name "Hog Shoers" as it would suit the name very well. T. K.

NEWS FROM THE LEAGUE CIRCUIT

OTTAWA, MARCH 26.—The Ottawa Canadian League Club will train big league style, according to the programme now mapped out by the management. Arrangements have been virtually completed to give the candidates a two weeks' spell at Chatham, where the men are due to report April 29th.

An emissary of the Ottawa Club was in Chatham last week and states that Mayor William Anderson of that town is rather pleased with the idea of the Ottawa Club coming there and will ask the Council to open up Tecumseh Park two weeks earlier than heretofore so that the team can work out on that lot. In th event of rainy days the big armouries will be placed at the disposal of Manager Cook and his team. Proprietor George Merritt, of Hotel Sanita, which faces Tecumseh Park and has one of the best sulphur bath equipments on the continent, has been asked to make reservation for eighteen men. While most of the players for the Ottawa team who come from the south will be in near mid-season condition, the extra training and fine Canadian climate should put them in such fettle they will start off the season like a house afire.

"After Draper, Hannifan and those fellows get wallowing around in sulphur baths,' says Shaughnessy, "there will be no telling what they will do. There is nothing that puts a man in the blush of condition like a course bath after a sweating on the field."

Sexton For Ottawa.

Ottawa Free Press: Danville sent terms this morning for the sale of Pitcher Sexton, one of the best right-handers in the south, but the figure is somewhat big league and not to the liking of the local club. Sexton was the bone of contention between the Danville and Atlanta club of the Southern League, and it is only recently he had been declared the property of the Virginia club. Shaughnessy says he is a high-class pitcher, but not worth the price Danville asks for him.

Jack Casey, who was official scorer of the city league last year, met Shaughnessy yesterday and was discussing the likelihood of any of the city leaguers catching on with the team. Jack things Dutch Jordan would be a man who might make good in Canadian League company. Peterson, the O.A.A. outfielder and pitcher, belives Eddie Maddocks would be the most likely of any of the local recruits to make good. Shaughnessy says he has never seen any city league ball, but has heard the local boys are all comers. He intimated he would instruct Louis Cook to give any one of them who wanted a chance a thorough trial.

The London Advertiser says: With Silcox, Zabell, Merritt, Hynes, Farquhar and a couple of recruit pitchers who will be given try-outs, it is likely that the London team will have the strongest twirling staff in the league. Silcox, Hynes and Zabell are all seasoned pitchers, while Merritt and Farquhar are exceedingly promising.

Rich and Green, two of last season's twirlers, have been given their unconditional release. A contract was sent to Rich in January, with the salary figure about $25 less than what he got last year. He promptly wrote back and said that it was preposterous to expect a ball player with his experience to work at such a figure, and he would not even consider attaching his signature to such a document.

"Happy" received another letter a few days later from the London management, and he was horrified to find that he had been unconditionally released, with the added comment that the London management would not have him at any price. This called forth another letter, in which he stated that he might have been a little hasty, and, after a little consideration, had decided to accept the terms offered him. But there was nothing doing, and Rich will play for some other team this summer.

Green was released without being given a chance to sign. He was not particular whether he played with London this summer or not, and, as he wrote, saying that he had a chance to play with a team near his home town, the local management gave him his release.

OTTAWA, MARCH 25. — Frank Shaughnessy added another ball player to his string this morning. The new player's name is Hopewell and he comes from Chicago. He is a left-handed first baseman and comes recommended by no less a person that Manager Frank Chance of the Chicago Cubs. Hopewell played against the Cuban Giants and has also played in the Michigan league. He batted .316 last season.

S. Collingwood, who is to be given a try-out, will report at Fort Wayne and will work out with the Fort Wayne team, of which Shaughnessy is manager. If Shag thinks he is good enough he will be sent north. There are half a dozen other men who will be given their try-out with the Fort Wayne club, and will then be turned over to the Ottawas if they show the necessary class.

The cry that the Ottawas were going to import a big league team has evidently died out. We will see that every team keeps within the salary limit," said President Fitzgerald. "Neither Ottawa nor any other team in the league will be allowed to overstep the mark." As the limit is now $1,200 a month, without the manager, the locals will find it an easy matter to run their team in style.

The diamond out at Lansdowne park will be skinned as soon as the snow is off the ground. The diamond will run directly away from the stands, although the grounds are hardly broad enough to allow for long hits to the outfield. They will give all on the grand stand a good view of the game. The Canadian League schedule is expected any day, the league secretary having written the local management that it would be along some time next week.

NEW SYSTEM

A new system of collecting tickets and fares is now being successfully operated on the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, which is not only businesslike, but convenient for the passengers. The train conductor has now nothing at all to do with the handling of tickets or cash. His business, as in the case of a ship's captain, I purely to manage his train and all the officials who operate it. His authority is absolute. The tickets and fares are all collected by an official corresponding to the purser of the Mercantile Marine, who is known as the "train agent," and whose duty is to look after the fares. The Editor of the "Vankleek Hill Review" has this to say of the G. T. P. train agent: "He is an official that was new to me, and I was particularly interested in him. I was more particularly interested in him because of his extreme politeness to, and consideration for, his passengers.

In the West to-day, the "train agent steps up to you and makes a pleasant remark upon the weather, or bids you "the time of day," and concludes with "Your ticket, please." He waits patiently till he gets it and then, invariably says "thank you." If you are going far on the train he will tell you about the hour you will get to your journey's end. If your trip is about he will tell you two, three, or four stations, as the case may be, and hand you a hat check.

I watched the first "train agent" I travelled with, and he treated every passenger in the car in the same courteous manner. It was pleasing to see it, and I tell you it pleased the travellers a mighty sight better than the old-time poke in the ribs.

Later I travelled on a local train between Watrous and Winnipeg and I determined to watch if all "train agents" on the G. T. P. were as polite as the first one I saw. I was not doomed to disappointment. He was even more courteous and considerate of every passenger.

WOULD HAVE NO CHANCE IN ELECTION CAMPAIGN IF SHE FAILED WITH ROLLING PIN

"Sylvia" Contributes Some Interesting Thoughts on the Women's Suffrage Movement—Women's Place is in the Home.

(No. III.)

Lord Cromer said regarding the woman suffrage movement: "The same thing is happening that has often happened before, in regard to other questions. So long as they remain mere cries, without any apparent prospect of realization, a vast number of people who are at heart opposed to them, take little or no notice, and appear indifferent. This large latent opposition is overlooked, and the noise of a few eager advocates is taken for far more than it is worth in the absence of any articulate hostility. But when the cause, whatever it may be, advances far enough to bring the possibility of realization within reach, the latent opposition begins to wake up and show itself. We believe that this is happening now, in regard to female suffrage, and that many women who have hitherto stood aloof are being roused into active opposition. What is wanted is straightforward common sense, the recognition of facts, and calm sobriety of judgment. These are masculine, rather than feminine, virtues."

The leaders of the Toronto Suffragettes lay great claim to intellectual superiority. They refer to themselves as highly educated, highly trained, thoughtful women. Apparently, the claim is founded upon the college course, or degree, taken by the writer in each case, for the matter written affords no evidence in support of such a claim. Some of these in professions hitherto occupied only by men, now clamour for the franchise, and wish to sit in Parliament. Just as these women think a college course necessarily confers knowledge, judgment and sense, do they think votes and legislation competent to remedy all manner of evil, public and private.

What benefit do American and Canadian women confer upon humanity by reading papers at their meetings on such subjects as "Independence of Legislative, Executive and Judicial Departments of the Government," "Centralization of Power v. State Rights," "The Golden Age of Greek Art," "Reform and Social Service," etc., while they neglect the important things which come within the scope of woman's knowledge, and natural talents. Would the time not be more profitably spent in discussing how to prevent defects in our children; how to abolish our real or imaginary aches and pains, either by legislation or natural exercise, or how not to outdo the savages in the ridiculous fashion of clothes, or in the distortion of the human figure.

Some of the changes for the betterment of humanity promised by these suffragettes when they get the vote, are: That the state shall not only educate our children, physically, mentally and morally, but also take charge of their cleanliness and health. Special rooms and nurses being provided in our schools for this purpose. Women will sit in Parliament and abolish evil by legislation. Each professional or business man will marry a woman of the same calling as himself, and so maintain harmony and foster congenial tastes. (What about the monotony of the last mentioned?)

As few women will be required to fill public offices, what will become of idle women relieved of even the name of home responsibility? Extravagance and folly have about reached the limit now. Women are to wear boots made of the breasts of humming birds, or trimmed with plumes. They have a different set of furs for each costume.

They also tell us that when women are allowed to sit in Parliament they will do the nation's house-keeping. The housekeeping they are supposed to do now is not done, but "bought." If they follow this plan with the nation's housekeeping who will pay the taxes? And where will the money come from?

One intellectual suffragette thus drew the picture of a tenement dwelling woman: "All trace of that softness and feminine delicacy, and the reflective deep-souled mother love of the Madonna obliterated in this poor hard-used mortal."

Was the deep-souled mother love of the Madonna any more reflected in the face of the English suffragette who was carried, tree and all, to the police station?

These are the women who clamoured for higher education and admittance to the University, which they secured. Prof. Hurley, in discussing the question, was quite willing to let them have what they asked for, but prophesied that in the end the disappointment would be to the women themselves; but he gave us no hint of the trouble they could give us all on account of that disappointment.

Ella Wheeler Wilcox tells us that "Woman has come out from her old, limited sphere, as wife and mother, who merely kept the home in order, and the larder filled with pickles and preserves, and the buttons sewed on masculine garments." Was not her occupation then more useful, honest, and sane, than it has been since she 'come out?" Her husband would also be more likely to get three square meals per day.

Considerable prominence has been given to domestic squabbles, through the woman's column of one of our leading daily papers, but any woman who cannot come out victorious in a small fracas where she has recourse to the broom-stick and rolling-pin, will stand but little chance when it comes to running an election campaign.

LUNCHES FOR FIREMEN WERE QUESTIONED BY COMMITTEE

Fire, Water and Light Committee to Buy Rubber Coats, Boots, Hose and Hose Tester for Department—Not Many New Lamps This Year.

SOME OF THE DISCUSSION

A meeting of the Fire, Water and Light Committee was held last night with Ald. Johnston in the chair and Mayor Bradburn, Ald. Morgan, Anderson and Brown and Chief Howard present.

The first question brought up was the purchasing of certain supplies for the fire department.

Moved by Ald. Morgan, seconded by Ald. Brown, that the Chairman be authorized to purchase a hose tester at price quoted, $185.00, the same to be secured through a local agent, if possible.—Carried.

The purchase of rubber coats and boots opened up a question as to what kind should be bought. Ald. Johnston had $78 set aside in his estimates for the purchase of 12 rubber coats. He had a letter from J. J. Turner and Sons, submitting prices.

Ald. Morgan advocated the purchase of short coats and long rubber boots.

When asked his opinion Chief Howard said he favoured the short boots and long coats.

Ald. Morgan—"I am not going to tell the Chief he doesn't know what he is talking about; but I think the long coats interfere with the men when they are climbing ladders and going in and out of windows.

Ald. Anderson—How long are they?

Ald. Morgan—"They are just long enough to let the water run off the coats, into the men's boots.

Chief Howard — "If you want to cripple the brigade, if you don't want us to get out as quickly as we do, why give us the long boots.

Mayor Bradburn—"Now, no one wants to cripple the brigade, so there is no use of talking about that. We want to consider what is best for the department."

Ald. Morgan—"Getting out quickly was always your strong point, eh?"

The respective advantages of the long and short coats were further discussed and the matter was smoothly disposed of. Eight pairs of rubber boots are also required, and, on motion of Ald. Morgan, seconded by Ald. Anderson, it was decided to recommend to the Council the purchase of these articles and the committee will decide upon the style of coats later and where they are to be bought Lunches for Firemen.

An account from Mr. Jacobi was presented, the total being $7.60 for lunches for the firemen. On one occasion the "eats" cost $5.00, and on another $2.60. They were obtained in December last, under the regime of Ald. Morgan as chairman of the committee. One was initialed by the Chief and the other was not, and the question was why not.

In answer to the question as to how these lunches were arranged, Ald. Morgan said the Chief arranged it himself.

"When the Chief wishes to give the men a meal or those he wants, he sends them over."

Mayor Bradburn—"Is it necessary that the men should require these meals. I am not going to find fault with buying a sandwich and a cup of coffee for the men after a night fire, or when one occurs at meal time.

Chief Howard explained that he thought the men should be given a little refreshment after fighting a night fire and had sent them down in detachments. He was not sure as to where the particular fires in these cases had been, but the memoranda would show it.

Ald. Morgan—"I didn't believe in passing this account because I could not find enough facts to show that there were meals enough for the men to make up this bill. I went down and asked the men and a few said they had had them.

Chief Howard.—"None of the men have been refused meals. In fact they have been sent out for them.

Ald. Johnston—"If the men have been out and received a wetting, especially when it is cold, it is right that they should have a little refreshment, but I would have the men who supply the meals mark the date on the bill and the number of meals supplied.

Ald. Morgan—"And the names of those who get them."

Mayor Bradburn—"I don't think we need that. The bill was then ordered to be paid.

Purchasing of Hose.

Ald. Johnston stated that new hose had to be purchased for the Department. Chief How[illegible]d asked for 1,000 feet, but the [illegible]n intimated that he wanted to keep expenses down, and considered that 800 feet would be sufficient and if the other 200 feet were needed they could be secured at any time. There are 3,000 feet at the fire hall and the Underwriters call for 5,000 feet.

Ald. Morgan—"When we get the hose tester we might find that some of the other hose at the hall is fit for service.

Several firms had submitted prices, but as there were others who apparently did not know that the city intended to buy hose now, it was decided to write to them and invite them to tender also.

Moved by Ald. Anderson, seconded by Ald. Morgan, that the Committee recommend the purchase of 800 feet of hose.—Carried.

This will likely be presented at the next meeting of the Council, and when the tenders are all received the committee can make the purchase of whatever brands they then decide upon.

Petition for a Lamp.

A petition signed by W. G. Fraserburn, W. G. Overend and 13 other ratepayers, was received, asking for a light at the corner of Lock street and Gladstone avenue. Ald. Johnston suggested that the lamp on Ware street, at Lock street, be moved out further on to Lock street. This was carried on motion of Mayor Bradburn, the work to be done under the supervision of the Chairman.

Ald. Johnston stated that his estimates provided for only 12 incandescent and three arc lamps this year. He considered that it was advisable to do but little in the matter of lighting until the question of power, that the Council is now dealing with, is determined. The present contract of the Peterborough Light and Power Company he said, had not much longer to run, and in the meantime he did not consider it advisable to do much in the matter of lighting.

The meeting then adjourned.

GREAT SNAKES!

North End Resident Observes a Number of These Reptiles Basking on a Snow Bank.

Snake stories are hardly in season just now, but here is one too good to be relegated to the waste paper basket. To see snakes basking peacefully on a snowbank is an uncommon, not to say unique, sight. Yet such was the spectacle that met the astonished gaze of a north end resident yesterday afternoon in the vicinity of the Auburn Woollen Mills. Yes, we know what sinister deductions the sceptical auditor would naturally draw from the recital of such an incredible incident, but the explanation vindicates the narrator's veracity.

A number of men have been engaged in erecting telephone poles, and while digging a hole yesterday came upon no less than 62 snakes hibernating, and the distribution of these on the sourrounding snowdrifts is the somewhat prosaic explanation of our informant's unusual experience.

SIGNS OF KIDNEY TROUBLE

HEAVY FINES METED OUT

"Mr. Eyres, Mr. Leahy and Mr. Donaldson."

"Were there any vacant seats?"

"Yes, about twenty-five seats."

He explained the reason for holding the door closed by saying that the door in question was an exit door. Another policeman had visited the theatre a few minutes after the Chief left, and in reply to a query by Mr. Clayton, he said that everything was all right.

The Chief questioned the witness as to the north half of the south door being bolted on the night in question, and elicited the information that the door was not bolted, but that it was arranged to open outward.

Charles Leahy, one of the ushers at the Red Mill, was next examined.

"What are your duties?" interrogated counsel for defence.

"To seat people as they come in," replied the witness.

George Eyres, a singer at the Red Mill, related the incidents concerning the presence of the Chief of Police in the theatre on Saturday night. He said that shortly after the Chief's arrival he had occasion to go the front where he was billed to sing a song. He had no difficulty in making his way down the aisle. There were about twenty-five vacant seats near the front when he got there.

William Donaldson corroborated the statements made by the former witnesses. He was paid to sing, but when specially requested to do so by the proprietor, he would usher occasionally. He did not recollect seeing the Chief in the theatre on Saturday evening.

This closed the case.

Mr. G. N. Gordon asked that the case be dismissed on the grounds that his client, who was new in the business, was unaware of the rules.

"It will teach him to read his license," observed the Magistrate.

"Surely the ends of justice would be met if these cases were dismissed," said Mr. Gordon. "The men concerned would know that another breach of the regulations would result in a heavy fine being imposed."

"I wish my judgment could put every one out of business," declared the Magistrate.

"I don't agree with you," retorted counsel for the defence. "These shows do a great deal of good."

His Worship then imposed a fine of $50 without costs in each case. The money collected will revert to the Ontario government.

A YEAR AGO AND NOW.

First Boats were Out and Also Watering Carts.

On April 2nd, 1911, the first motor boat was put in the water and opened the navigation season by a run on the river. A year ago, also the watering carts were out on the city's streets, laying the season's early dust. There is not much prospect at present of breaking similar records this year.

A LUMBERMAN'S OPINION

"I was troubled with palpitation of the heart and sleeplessness," writes Mr. Wm. Pritchard, Lumber Inspector, Lumsden Mills, Ont., "and used Dr. Chase's Nerve Food with very great benefit, as my whole system was strengthened and built up." Dr. Chase's Nerve Food forms new, rich blood and restores the feeble wasted nerve cells.

There are a few good seats left—"Bunty Pulls the Strings" To-morrow Wednesday Evening. Don't miss this show.

WHICH IS CORRECT?

Dear Sir,—I should like a little information upon a point of grammar. Would you or some of our educational experts tell me which is correct—"It looks as though"—or "It looks as if"—it would rain. I notice that some good writers such as Ruskin, with his beautiful English, uses the expression "as though." Which is right, or are both right?

DRUGGIST E. L. PAYNE CHEMIST

DR. LANGFELDT TO VISIT EUROPE

The numerous friends of Rev. Dr. Langfeldt, incumbent of the parish of Innisfil, Simcoe county, will be pleased to learn that his work is being practically appreciated. During the past year the genial Doctor ha been working hard, and his health has come to be not of the best. His parishioners and friends, seeing that he would be better of a rest, have provided the means that permit him to take a trip to England, Germany and Switzerland. Dr. Langfeldt, accompanied by his son Otto, will sail from St. John, N.B., by steamship Virginian, of the Allan line, on April 12th, for Liverpool. He and his son will spend a week or two in England. They will visit Switzerland and Germany, returning by way of England some time in June.

Rev. Dr. Langfeldt's friends in Peterborough congratulate him upon having earned the favour of his parishioners and friends, as represented by so prospectively delightful a journey, and hope that he will spend a happy sojourn abroad and return improved in health and strengthened for his work.

SAGE TEA WILL DARKEN THE HAIR

Restore Faded and Gray Hair to Natural Colour — Dandruff Quickly Removed.

There is nothing new about the idea of using Sage for restoring the colour of the hair. Our grandmothers kept their hair dark, glossy and abundant by the use of a simple "Sage Tea." Whenever their hair fell out or took on a dull, faded or streaked appearance, they made a brew of Sage leaves, and applied it to their hair with wonderfully beneficial effect.

Nowadays we don't have to resort to the old-time tiresome method of gathering the herbs and making the tea. This is done by skillful chemists, better than we could do it ourselves; and all we have to do is to call for the ready-made product. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy, containing Sage in the proper strength, with the addition of Sulphur, another old-time scalp remedy.

This preparation gives youthful colour and beauty to the hair, and is one of the best remedies you can use for dandruff, dry, feverish, itching, scalp, and falling hair. Get a fifty-cent bottle from your druggist to-day and you will be surprised at the quick results. All druggists sell it, under guarantee that the money will be refunded if the remedy is not exactly as represented. Special agent, Warne Drug Co.

A Tale Of Two Cities

Here is a tale of two cities gleaned from the news of the day. Woodstock has decided to do away with its publicity commissioner for some reason or other, akin to parsimony, doubtless, and Brantford has decided to appoint such an official. It is expected that Brantford will make an annual appropriation of $5,000 for the work. In Woodstock a proposal to donate $500 to the Board of Trade for industrial purposes raised a squabble in the Council, which defeated the resolution. Brantford hopes to induce the settlement of English market gardeners in its vicinity. St. Thomas and Elgin County will have to wake up if they expect to land some of the better class of English immigrants within their confines.—St. Thomas Times.

There were nine members of Peterborough's Board of Trade at last night's meeting.

INFORMATION WANTED

Concerning the Statements Which are Contained in the Following Letter to the Chief of Police.

Chief Thompson is in receipt of a letter which is self explanatory. As yet he has been unable to obtain information that would throw some light on the matter:

Chief of Police Thompson,—I beg to inform you that I am in receipt of a cable message from the Old Country, stating that one, George Lawrence, has applied to the High Commissioner for Canada, in London, for assistance. He is stranded in London and asks to be sent back to Canada, stating that he belongs to this country, and was born in Peterborough, Ontario, on February 18th, 1880. Would be glad if you would make some inquiries and let me know immediately by wire whether these statements are true.

1870 Flood Is Recalled

Forty-two years ago this spring, Peterborough and the surrounding district had the greatest flood in its history. Old residents will well remember the high water of 1870. During the winter the usual amount of snow fell, and it remained on the ground until very late. About March 15th, another heavy fall occurred, but it was not a circumstance to that which came on March 26, 27, 28. There are different accounts given as to the amount that fell on those three days, but it was certainly over two feet, and some old residents who are not given generally to exaggeration, claim it was about three feet.

The storm began on a Saturday. When Sunday came the storm was at its worst. Church going was out of the question. It is said that the congregation of one of the largest churches then, as it is to-day, was represented by the pastor and three faithful members. And in those days the duty of church going was not shelved with the trivial excuses that suffice at present..

The heavy fall of snow in March, on top of the winter's usual covering, remained on the ground until well on in April, but when it did go it went with a rush, accompanied by warm showers.

Usually the "back lakes" of the Trent system act as giant reservoirs, and allow the spring freshets to pass harmlessly down to Rice Lake, and thence on to blue Ontario. On this occasion, however, they were inadequate to the task imposed on them. When the usual high water mark was reached, and the level continued to rise three and four inches a day, alarm began to take the place of the curious interest hitherto taken in the river.

The water rose steadily for two weeks, and soon began to go over its banks in many places. Inside the corporation, it flowed to quite a depth over the road in front of the old Rogers' grist mill, at the east end of Hunter street bridge. The Little Lake rose to the foot of the hill on which the Ashburnham school now stands. All George street south of Dalhousie street, was under water, in some places four feet. The river cut across towards where the street railway wharf is now, and the cemetery point was an island for the time being. Below the city the river expanded in some places for miles. At Hales' Bridge it is said the rise that spring was 14 feet above its usual level.

It was while directing operations for the protection of his dam (on the site of the present Cereal dam) that Mr. Samuel Dickson, the well known lumberman, came to his untimely death. He had the misfortune to have one of his legs fractured, and obtained other injuries from which he was 10 feet above its usual level.

The high gravel banks on the north side of the river, just east of the Cereal dam, were washed away to their present condition during the flood of that year. Previous to that time hey sloped gently to the water's edge; now they are almost perpendicular.

NO WORDS WASTED.

A Swift Transformation Briefly Described.

About food, the following brief but emphatic letter from a Georgia woman goes straight to the point and is convincing.

"My frequent attacks of indigestion and palpitation of the heart culminated in a sudden and desperate illness, from which I arose enfeebled in mind and body. The doctor advised me to live on cereals, but none of them agreed with me until I tried Grape Nuts food and Postum.

"The more I used of them the more I felt convinced that they were just what I needed, and in a short time the ymade a different woman of me. My stomach and heart troubles disappeared as if by magic, and my mind was restored and is as clear as it ever was.

"I gained flesh and strength so rapidly that my friends were astonished. Postum and Grape-Nuts have benefitted me so greatly that I am glad to bear this testimony." Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont.

"There's a reason," and it is explained in the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true and full of human interest.

INCREASED NUMBER

The number of railway tickets sold to those going west on the C.P.R., shows a considerbly larger number for March than for the same month last year. Mr. W. McIlroy the local agent for the C.P.R. states that April is generally the heavy western traffic month, but that already this year there has been a marked movement to the west. It is expected that next month there will be a corresponding increase over April of last year. The number going west from the country is much larger than those from the city, and on one day during the month two farmers purchased eleven tickets for their two families and they went west together. And this is not a rare occurrence.

NO INTERFERENCE WANTED BY MINERS

Examiner Special:

CLEVELAND, OHIO, March 26. — The United Mine Workers of America would resent any government interference or intervention in the situation that confronts operators and miners and threatens the coal supply of the United States and Canada. "We do not want any interference from the government," John P. White, the president of the mine workers said. "There is no point of difference between the operators and the miners that cannot be settled with fair argument." President John Walker of the Illinois mine workers, expressed a similar view and it is said that most of the leaders of the organization are of that opinion.

THE MAINE'S DEAD

Rev. Father Chadwick Took Part in Funeral Services

The Peterborough friends of the Rev. Father J. P. Chadwick, chaplain of the ill-fated battleship Maine, may be interested to learn of his participation in the funeral services of 64 of the vessel's dead, at Washington recently. A report says: The speakers who faced the crowd in the plaza behind the navy buildings were only three: President Taft, Father Chadwick, Chaplain of the Maine when the explosion occurred on Feb. 15th, 1898, and Chaplain Bayard, of the U.S.N. Government business in Washington was practically suspended by executive order and a vast crowd attended the ceremony.

VERDICT FOR PACKERS

Examiner Special:

CHICAGO, ILL., MARCH 26.—After seventeen hours deliberation the Jury, in the cases against ten Chicago packers, charged with combine, conspiracy and violation of the Sherman Anti-Trust Law, returned a verdict of not guilty in each case this afternoon, before Justice Carpenter. This means that the Government has lost it's ten-year fight against the meat trust. When the verdict was delivered to-day the spectators crowded around the ten acquitted millionaires and gave them hearty congratulations.

83 MEN ARE ENTOMBED

Special to The Examiner:

WELCH, W. VA., MARCH 26.—Following an explosion of gas in the mines of the United States Coal Co., near here, this morning, it is said that 83 men are entombed in the mine, and it is feared, are dead from asphyxiation. Four escaped to the open. Relief parties have been rushed from all parts of the State.

NEW TOURIST CARS

The first of five new tourist cars supplied for approval of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, by the Canada Car and Foundry Co., was on exhibition at the Bonaventure Station this morning and declared by experts to be not only one of the finest of its type ever turned out, but to be in many respects the equal of a standard Pullman car. Spotless in its fresh coating of cool green paint, the car is as attractive in appearance from the outside as it is from within, where the finish throughout is of mahogany. At the rear is a smoking room and lavatory equipped with nickelene wash stands, then comes the kitchen with Kerr's "Regal" range, burning coal. The main body of the car has a seating and sleeping capacity of 56 persons. In front is a linen cupboard and the ladies lavatory, whic his also very handsomely equipped. The upholstery is of "Pegamoid," or imitation leather throughout, and the floor covering of linoleum with a narrow strip of aisle carpet. The light is supplied by the Pintsch gas system and electricity, and the heat by the gold Duplex oil heater. The length of the car over end sills is 74 feet. Altogether it can be said with perfect truth that the new-comer to Canada, no matter what his means, is transported in greater comfort, so far as the Grand Trunk Pacific is concerned than were the wealthiest travellers not so many years back, and certainly in a manner that bears favourable comparison with Railway Systems in other parts of the world.

AVOID DECEPTION

Use Newbro's Herpicide Instead.

Wearing artificial hair is a harmless deceit of which many ladies are guilty. These women are all objects for sympathy rather than criticism.

Early neglect in the care of the scalp has caused the loss of so much hair that their personal appearance is sadly marred. To correct this defect they resort to artificial hair.

Most ladies would resent any imputation of personal carelessness and neglect. And yet very many women permit their natural hair to become so dull, brittle and lustreless that it looks no better than the artificial.

All this is as unfortunate as it is unnecessary. Hair that is unsightly or thin may usually be attributed to malevolent activity of the dandruff germ. This vicious germ burrows down into the hair follicle, shortly destroying its life. The hair becomes dead, loose and finally drops out.

There is a remedy sold by all druggists, the intelligent use of which will kill the dandruff germ. It also cleanses the scalp of all accumulations and makes the hair shine with the luster of life and beauty.

That remedy is Newbro's Herpicide—the original Dandruff Germ Destroyer. This preparation in one dollar size bottles is sold and guaranteed everywhere.

Applications may be obtained at the best barber shops and hair dressing parlours.

The Herpicide Co., Dept. R., Detroit, Mich., will send a nice sample and booklet to any address upon receipt of 10c in postage or silver.—McDermid and Jury, and Payne's drug store, special agents.

OPPOSITE CUSTOM HOUSE

"ABOLISH THE BAR" IS THE POLICY OF THE LIBERAL PARTY

Mr. N. W. Rowell Makes Partial Disclosure of His Policy ---Gives Notice of Resolution Which Proposes Immediate Abolition of the Bar-room.

Toronto, March 27.—N. W. Rowell, leader of the Opposition, has adopted the slogan "Abolish the bar" as the policy of the Liberal party on the temperance question.

Yesterday afternoon at two o'clock the Opposition members met in caucus to review and give the finishing touches to the policy that had been decided on by the leader.

As soon as the House got started with the afternoon session the following amendment was handed out:

N. W. Rowell will on Thursday next move:

"That in the opinion of this House the public interests demand: (1) The immediate abolition of the bar; (2) such other restrictions upon the residue of the liquor traffic as experience may show to be necessary to limit its operations, and effective to remedy its evils; (3) the strict enforcement of the law by officials in sympathy with law enforcement, and the elimination of political influence from the administration of the law; (4) regulation and inspection of all houses of public entertainment so as to ensure reasonable accommodation for the traveling public."

Reports that the leaders of the Women's Christian Temperance Union were disappointed with the announcement reached the Parliament Buildings later in the afternoon, and Mr. Rowell was told about them.

"Well, all I have to say," he remarked, "is that if the temperance people don't agree with this policy they are going back on the very policy they themselves have been championing for years."

"The bar is the big thing," commented Sam Clarke, Liberal member for West Northumberland, when it was suggested to him that the effect of the bar being abolished might not improve matters much if licenses are still granted.

Hon. W. J. Hanna seemed much satisfied when he read Mr. Rowell's announcement.

"The policy that cuts out the bar and leaves hotel licenses, shop licenses, club licenses etc., is a joke."

When Sir James Whitney was spoken to in regard to Mr. Rowell's temperance policy, his comment was: "I am lost in wonderment."

BILL GOES THROUGH

Local Papers Will Lay Out Rural Delivery Routes

CHANCE FOR APPOINTMENTS

Ottawa, March 27.—Parliament passed yesterday Hon. L. P. Pelletier's bill providing for the establishment of a system of rural mail delivery and voted to enlarge the annual subsidy to Prince Edward Island by $180,000. The bills extending the boundaries of Ontario and Quebec were given their second reading and put through committee.

The discussion in the rural mail delivery scheme revolved largely around the clause permitting the Postmaster-General to engage local experts to lay out the routes, Opposition speakers claiming that this should be done by the regular postoffice inspectors.

Hon. Mr. Pelletier insisted that the bill was in the nature of an experiment and a permanent organization could be perfected after a year's trial. He intimated that it was his intention to have registered mail delivered by rural mail carriers, but said that it would be impossible to make the money order and postal note service a traveling one.

The Postmaster-General explained that the intention of the Government was to place the service as a separate branch in charge of a superintendent, selected from the present departmental staff, who would have under him employes in the inside service, with the postoffice inspectors and their staffs in the outside service.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier urged that the postoffice inspectors should be given the work of mapping out rural delivery routes. They and their staffs could be assisted in this by the persons petitioning for the establishment of the routes.

F. B. Carvell (Carleton, N.B.) claimed that an attempt was being made to provide offices to reward political friends of the Government.

Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux declared that the only way to give satisfaction to the public was by placing the rural mail delivery in charge of a trained, conscientious and independent official, as a separate branch of the Postoffice Department. The number of inspectors should be increased in the various districts where demands were made for rural delivery; the inspector might be given more officials to help him map out the routes.

Hon. L. P. Pelletier said there might be a few officials added to the inside service, but he thought it best to get more help outside for the present. Next session, when they had had time to see how the experiment worked, the bill might be amended and more officials added to the inside service.

E. M. Macdonald (Pictou) warned the Finance Minister that his surplus might vanish if the Postmaster-General were allowed to appoint men in every county in Canada without regard to the Civil Service Act and without regulations.

The "little sister of confederation" came in for some discussion in committee on the bill of Hon. W. T. White to provide an additional grant of $100,000 to the Province of Prince Edward Island.

Hon. Mr. White said the island was entitled to consideration, on account of the breach of the agreement entered into at confederation, providing for continuous communication with the mainland. Every year this was interrupted for long periods, to the dislocation of the business of the province. At one time the islanders did not receive any mails for 22 days running.

Then the debt allowance of $4,200,000 had been largely used up in the construction of the P. E. I. Railway, which, under the terms of confederation, became the property of the Dominion.

All that P. E. I. had in lieu of public lands was $45,000 a year, whereas, when Alberta and Saskatchewan were created recently, they were each given $375,000 a year in lieu of lands.

The island, said Mr. White, had gone back in population and prosperity largely through the ungenerous treatment that had been meted out to them. In 1871 the population was 94,021, while in 1911 it was only 93,728. In 39 years there had been provincial deficits in 35.

The Manitoba boundaries bill has passed its final Parliamentary stage without amendment. Royal assent and proclamation are all that are now required to make it law. Yesterday the Senate turned down a half dozen proposed amendments and gave the bill a third reading.

Kingston Carpenters May Strike.

Kingston, March 27.—Boss carpenters had a meeting and decided finally that no increase in wages would be given their men on May 1. The men have been receiving $2.50 per day and asked for $3. The carpenters may strike but it is not thought likely.

RESOLUTION DEFEATED

Leader N. W. Rowell Moves That Ontario Can't Ask Right to Administer Dominion Subsidy

AMENDMENT SUSTAINED

Toronto, March 27.—By a vote of 78 Conservatives to 20 Liberals, it was clearly shown in the Legislature yesterday, that the Provincial Government was satisfied with the policy of the Dominion Government with respect to good roads. That the Federal subsidy be paid over to Ontario and expended by this province, was the gist of a resolution introduced by Mr. N. W. Rowell, which was defeated in favor of an amendment by Hon. W. H. Hearst to the effect "that the province expressed satisfaction with and approval of the policy of the Dominion Government and full confidence that the policy would be carried out in the best interests of Ontario."

There was a long discussion on the question of good roads. N. W. Rowell started the debate with a motion and speech endorsing the Government's action, but considering that its plan was not sufficiently comprehensive and adequate. The province should expend the federal subsidy on roads as it saw fit, with no interference from Ottawa. In this question there should be provincial autonomy. Allan Studholme voted with the Government.

J. G. Anderson, South Bruce, introduced an amendment, but it went under, along with the Liberal leader's. Mr. Anderson moved to have the the Government fix the expenditures on good roads, so that only one quarter of the entire outlay would fall on the counties, one quarter on the province, and the rest on the federal subsidy.

Mr. Rowell said that under the Highway Improvement Act passed in 1901, one million dollars was set aside and the money had since been expended. There were 50,000 miles of roads in the province, and 1,000 miles had been improved under the act which came into force in the Liberal regime. He expressed the importance and value of good roads, and called for a more comprehensive and adequate plan than now in existence. Despite opinions to the contrary, he was willing to give credit to the present administration for what it had done but taken course was instituted by its predecessors in office. To-day there were 40,000 miles not in good repair in the province.

"We are all regretting rural depopulation," said Mr. Rowell. "There is only one way we can make the people stay on the land, and that is by improving conditions, making the farm more attractive and remunerative, and assisting in this to a great extent would be good roads. The Government should adopt a larger policy than is proposed at the present time, thus adding to the progress and prosperity to the farms, towns and cities. The Government should especially consider the roads leading into market towns."

Hon. Mr. Hearst considered that the leader of the Opposition would come around with appreciation of the Government's services some time, but he never thought it would be so soon. During the last year of office the Ross administration spent $170,000 on roads in New Ontario, and last year the Whitney administration gave half a million. When the Dominion Government gave aid to Ontario, surely it would want to see how the money was being spent. Mr. Rowell, despite the fact, had given quite a lecture to the Dominion Government, the donors, declaring that once they granted the money they should have nothing more to do with the question. It was unnecessary to state that the money would be handled on a systematic, sound and safe basis.

Sir James Whitney replied to the statements that the money would be spent mostly in New Ontario. He said that it would be expended in an equitable manner, both in old and new Ontario. He considered Mr. Rowell's motion would do no harm, it was an endorsation of the Government's policy.

In connection with the colonisation scheme of the Government, as announced a few weeks ago, Hon. I. B. Lucas introduced a bill to authorize the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council to raise a loan not exceeding $6,200,000 on the credit of the consolidated revenue fund. It calls for the construction of works and improvements, the making of roads, the improvement and development of water powers, the advancement and settlement and colonization and assistance of settlers, the improvement of means of transportation and of communication and the encouragement of reforestation in the north and northwestern districts of the province, and such other public purposes of a like character as the Lieutenant-Governor may deem expedient.

An act respecting aid from the Dominion of Canada for highway construction was introduced by Hon. Dr. Beaume. The Minister of Public Works explained that this bill would authorize the province to enter into an agreement with the Minister of Public Works of Canada, setting forth the terms on which the subsidies granted by the Dominion Government shall be established, and the conditions under which they shall be expended.

"Lost on division" was the Speaker's announcement regarding Allan Studholme's bill providing for a universal eight-hour day.

J. T. H. Regan, South Wentworth, heartily supported Mr. Studholme's bill, but thought that in view of Hon. W. H. Hearst's lucid and emphatic statements on the subject, he thought it would be as well to endorse the Government's proposition to investigate the whole matter first.

The Premier said that a bill would be introduced with respect to the appointment of a commissioner to investigate the new territory in the north country and to spend the $5,000,000 set aside for the purpose of colonization by the Government.

NEARLY $20,000,000.

Supplementary Estimates Are Laid at the Table at Ottawa.

Ottawa, March 27.—The supplementary estimates for the fiscal year were laid on the table by Hon. W. T. White, Minister of Finance, last night, amounting to $19,610,089.80. Of this amount $13,073,568.80 is chargeable to consolidated fund, and $5,537,521.01 is chargeable to capital account.

One of the most interesting of the new items is the half million dollars for subsidies to the provinces of Canada for the encouragement of agriculture, and a million dollars as subsidies for the improvement of highways. These amounts have been carefully divided amongst the several provinces according to population.

The subsidy for agriculture is divided as follows: Ontario, $175,680.39; Quebec, $139,462.40; Nova Scotia, $34,268.45; New Brunswick, $24,660.63; Prince Edward Island, $6,660.65; British Columbia $37,834.76; Manitoba, $31,730.66; Saskatchewan, $34,286.29; Alberta, $25,624.69.

One million dollars for highways is divided as follows: Ontario, $251,466.84; Quebec, $279,284.80; Alberta, $53,139.96; British Columbia, $54,669.52; Manitoba, $45,460.10; New Brunswick, $49,319.65; Nova Scotia, $68,576.90; Prince Edward Island, $13,668.70; Saskatchewan, $69,592.58.

For the construction of the Hudson Bay Railway and for the building of terminals and elevators at the harbor, there is a vote of $1,500,000. There is also placed in the estimates a sum of $200,000 to start work on the Welland ship canal.

Improvements to the Lachine Canal make another $200,000. There is a million dollars for the improvement of the Quebec harbor and $160,000 to start the first section of the Georgian Bay Canal down the French River to North Bay.

The Government has to erect a magnificent Dominion Government building at the heart of the City of London, Eng., so a million dollar for this purpose is placed in the estimates.

The Government is evidently preparing, in view of the approaching negotiations for closer trade relations with the West Indies, for a faster mail service between the islands and the Dominion, as $150,000 for a subsidy is to be found in the estimates.

One of the interesting smaller items is $100,000 to be expended in paving out and constructing the historic Que-

Queen's Bill Amended.

Ottawa, March 27.—With the consent of the committee representing the church and the university which have been fathering the measure, the Queen's University bill was amended before the Senate committee yesterday.

The bill as passed by the Commons prescribed Christianity as a religious test for the staff. Jewish people contended that this would exclude their race, even though the institution is now declared to be nationalized.

The amendment yesterday provides that "the trustees shall satisfy themselves of the Christian character" of those appointed to the staff." In other words the test is shifted from creed to character. It is felt that a Hebrew, while adhering to his own faith, may nevertheless qualify as possessing Christian characteristics.

INVISIBLE BI-FOCAL
Why Look Older Than You Are?

Double vision glasses need not spoil one's appearance. They need not make one look older, as the invisible bi-focal by Issac Hawkins, KRYPTOK LENSES in your frame or Eyeglass mount would keep all to good appearance. KRYPTOK LENSES is a recent achievement in optical science. They are near view and far view lenses in one invisible piece of glass.

They have no obstacle smooth surface, and are entirely free from the seams, dirt-collecting lines, cement and bulky appearance characteristic of old-style bi-focal lenses.

KRYPTOK LENSES are being eagerly adopted by all who require combination glasses as when they have been using two pairs of glasses. They are good looking and in no way do they suggest advancing years.

"INITIALS ONLY"

BY ANNA KATHARINE GREENE

"There is music—a crash—but I plainly see his other hand approach the object he is holding. He takes something from the end—the object is pointed my way—I am looking into—into—what? I do not know. I cannot even see him now. The space where he stood is empty. Everything fades, and I wake with a loud cry in my ears and a sense of death here." She had lifted her hand and struck at her heart, opening her eyes as she did so. "Yet it was not I who had been shot," she added softly.

Mr. Challoner shuddered. This was like the reopening of his daughter's grave. But he had entered upon the scene with a full appreciation of the ordeal awaiting him and he did not lose his calmness, or the control of his judgment.

"Be seated, Miss Scott," he entreated, taking a chair himself. "You have described the spot and some of the circumstances of my daughter's death as accurately as if you had been there. But you have doubtless read a full account of those details in the papers; possibly seen pictures which would make the place quite real to you. The mind is a strange storehouse. We do not always know what lies hidden within it."

"That's true," she admitted. "But the man! I had never seen the man, or any picture of him, and his face was clearest of all. I should know it if I saw it anywhere. It is imprinted on my memory as plainly as yours. Oh, I hope never to see that man!"

Mr. Challoner sighed; he had really anticipated something from the interview. The disappointment was keen. A moment of expectation; the thrill which comes to us all under the shadow of the super-natural, and then—this! a young and imaginative girl's dream, convincing to herself but supplying nothing which had not already been supplied both by the facts and his own imagination! A man had stood at the staircase, and this man had raised his arm. She said that she had seen something like a pistol in his hand, but his daughter had not been shot. This he thought it well enough to point out to her.

Leaning toward her that he might get her full attention, he waited till her eyes met his, then quietly asked:

"Have you ever named this man to yourself?"

She started and dropped her eyes.

"I do not dare to," said she.

"Why?"

"Because I've read in the papers that the man who stood there had the same name as—"

"Tell me, Miss Scott."

"As Mr. Brotherson's brother."

"But you do not think it was his brother?"

"I do not know."

"You've never seen his brother?"

"Never."

"Nor his picture?"

"No, Mr. Brotherson has none."

"Aren't they friends? Does he never mention Orlando?"

"Very, very rarely. But I've no reason to think they are not on good terms. I know they correspond."

"Miss Scott?"

"Yes, Mr. Challoner?"

"You must not rely too much upon your dream."

Her eyes flashed to his and then fell again.

"Dreams are not revelations; they are the reproduction of what already lies hidden in the mind. I can prove that your dream is such."

"How?" She looked startled.

"You speak of seeing something being levelled at you which made you think of a pistol."

"Yes, I was looking directly into it."

"But my daughter was not shot. She died from a stab."

Doris' lovely face, with its tender lines and girlish curves, took on a strange look of conviction which deepened, rather than melted under his indulgent, but penetrating gaze.

"I know that you think so;—but my dream says so. I saw this object. It was pointed directly towards me—above all, I saw his face. It was the face of one whose finger is on the trigger and who means death; and I believe my dream."

Well, it was useless to reason further. Gentle in all else, she was immovable so far as this idea was concerned and, seeing this, he let the matter go by and prepared to take his leave.

She seemed to be quite ready for this. Anxiety about her patient had regained its place in her mind, and her glance sped constantly toward the door. Taking her hand in his, he said some kind words, then crossed to the door and opened it. Instantly her finger flew to her lips, and, obedient to its silent injunction, he took up his hat in silence, and was proceeding down the hall, when the bell rang, startling them both and causing him to step quickly back.

"Who is it?" she asked. "Father's in and visitors seldom come so late."

"Shall I see?"

She nodded, looking strangely troubled as the door swung open, revealing the tall, strong figure of a man facing them from the porch.

"A stranger," formed itself upon her lips, and she was moving forward, when the man suddenly stepped into the glare of the light, and she stopped, with a murmur of dismay which pierced Mr. Challoner's heart and prepared him for the words which now fell shudderingly from her lips:

"It is he! it is he! I said that I should know him wherever I saw him." Then with a quiet turn towards the intruder, "Oh, why, why, did you come here!"

CHAPTER XXIX.

DO YOU KNOW MY BROTHER.

Her hands were thrust out to repel, her features were fixed; her beauty something wonderful. Orlando Brotherson, thus met, stared for a moment at the vision before him, then slowly and with effort withdrawing his gaze, he sought the face of Mr. Challoner with the first sign of open disturbance that gentleman had ever seen in him.

"Ah," said he, "my welcome is readily understood. I see you are far from home, sir." And with an ironical bow he turned again to Doris, who had dropped her hands, but in whose cheeks the pallor still lingered in a way to check the easy flow of words with which he might have sought to carry off the situation.

"Am I in Oswald Brotherson's house?" he asked. "I was directed here. But possibly there may be some mistake."

"It is here he lives," said she; moving back automatically till she stood again by the threshold of the small room in which she had received Mr. Challoner. "Do you wish to see him to-night? If so I, fear it impossible. He has been very ill and is not allowed to receive visits from strangers."

"I am not a stranger," announced the newcomer, with a smile few could see unmoved, it offered such a contrast to his stern and dominating figure. "I thought I heard some words of recognition which would prove your knowledge of the fact."

She did not answer. Her lip had parted, but her thought or at least the expression of her thought hung suspended in the terror of this meeting for which she was not at all prepared. He seemed to note this terror, whether or not he understood its cause, and smiled again, as he added:

"Mr. Brotherson must have spoken of his brother Orlando. I am he, Miss Scott. Will you let me come in now?"

Her eyes sought those of Mr. Challoner, who quietly nodded. Immediately she stepped from before the door which her figure had guarded and, motioning him to enter, she begged Mr. Challoner, with an imploring look, to sustain her in the interview she saw before her. He had no desire for this encounter, especially as Mr. Brotherson's glance in his direction had been anything but conciliatory. He was quite convinced that nothing was to be gained by it, but he could not resist her appeal, and followed them into the little room whose limited dimensions made the tall Orlando look bigger and stronger and more lordly in his self-confidence than ever.

"I am sorry it is so late," she began, contemplating his intrusive figure with forced composure. "We have to be very quiet in the evenings so as not to disturb your brother's first sleep which is of great importance to him."

"Then I'm not to see him to-night?"

"I pray you to wait. He's—he's been a very sick man."

"Dangerously so?"

"Yes."

Orlando continued to regard her with a peculiar awakening gaze, showing, Mr. Challoner thought, more interest in her than in his brother, and when he spoke it was mechanically and as if in sole obedience to the proprieties of the occasion.

"I did not know he was ill till very lately. His last letter was a cheerful one, and I supposed that all was right till chance revealed the truth. I came on at once. I was intending to come anyway. I have business here, as you probably know, Miss Scott."

She shook her head. "I know very little about business," said she.

"My brother has not told you why he expected me?"

"He has not even told me that he expected you."

"No?" The word was highly expressive: there was surprise in it and a touch of wonder, but more than all, satisfaction. "Oswald was always close-mouthed," he declared. "It's a good fault; I'm obliged to the boy."

These last words were uttered with a lightness which imposed upon his two highly agitated hearers, causing Mr. Challoner to frown and Doris to shrink back in indignation at the man who could indulge in a sportive suggestion in presence of such fears, if not of such memories, as the situation evoked. But to one who knew the strong and self-contained man—to Sweetwater, possibly, had he been present,—there was in this very attempt—in his quiet manner and in the strange and fitful flash of his ordinarily quick eye, that which showed he was laboring—and had been laboring almost from his first entrance, under an excitement of thought and feeling which in one of his powerful organised nature must end and that soon in an outburst of mysterious passion which would carry everything before it. But he did not mean that it should happen here. He was too accustomed to self command to forget himself in this presence. He would hold these rampant dogs in leash till the hour of solitude; then — a glittering smile twisted his lips as he continued to gaze, first at the girl who had just entered his life, and then at the man he had every reason to distrust, and with that firm restraint upon himself still in full force, remarked, with a courteous inclination:

"The hour is late for further conversation. I have a room at the hotel and will return to it at once. In the morning I hope to see my brother."

He was going, Doris not knowing what to say, Mr. Challoner not desirous of detaining him, when there came the sound of a little tinkle from the other side of the hall, blanching the young girl's cheeks and causing Orlando Brotherson's brows to rise in peculiar satisfaction.

"My brother?" he asked.

"Yes," came in faltering reply. "He has heard our voices; I must go to him."

"Say that Orlando wishes him a good night," smiled her heart's enemy, with a bow of infinite grace.

She shuddered, and was hastening from the room when her glance fell on Mr. Challoner. He was pale and looked greatly disturbed. The prospect of being left alone with a man whom she had herself denounced to him as his daughter's murderer, might prove a tax to his strength to which she had no right to subject him. Pausing with an appealing air, she made him a slight gesture which he at once understood.

"I will accompany you into the hall," said he. "Then if anything is wrong, you have but to speak my name."

But Orlando Brotherson, displeased by this move, took a step which brought him between the two.

"You can hear her from here if she chooses to speak. There's a point to be settled between us before either of us leaves this house, and this opportunity is as good as another. Go to my brother, Miss Scott; we will await your return."

A flash from the proud banker's eye; but no demur, rather a gesture of consent. Doris, with a look of deep anxiety, sped away, and the two men stood face to face.

It was one of those moments which men recognise as memorable. What had the one to say or the other to hear, worthy of this preamble and the more than doubtful relation in which they stood each to each? Mr. Challoner had more time than he expected in which to wonder and gird himself for whatever suffering or shock awaited him. For, Orlando Brotherson, unlike his usual self, kept him waiting while he collected his own wits, which, strange to say, seemed to have vanished with the girl.

But the question finally came.

"Mr. Challoner, do you know my brother?"

"I have never seen him."

"Do you know him? Does he know you?"

"Not at all. We are strangers."

It was said honestly. They did not know each other. Challoner was quite correct in his statement.

But the other had his doubts. Why shouldn't he have? The coincidence of finding this mourner if not avenger of Edith Challoner, in his own direct radius again, at a spot so distant, so obscure and so disconnected with any apparent business reason, was certainly startling enough unless the tie could be found in his brother's name and close relationship to himself.

He, therefore, allowed him to press the question:

"Men sometimes correspond, who do not know each other. You know that a Brotherson lived here?"

"No; my interest was solely with your brother."

"Yes."

"And hoped to learn something about me"

"With my brother? With Oswald? What interest can you have in him apart from me? Oswald is—"

Suddenly a thought came—an unimaginable one; one with power to blanch even his hardy cheek and shake a soul unassailable by all small emotions.

"Oswald Brotherson!" he repeated; adding in unintelligible tones to himself—"O. B. The same initials! They are following up these initials. Poor Oswald." Then aloud: "It hardly becomes me, perhaps, to question your motives in this attempt at making my brother's acquaintance. I think I can guess them; but your labor will be wasted. Oswald's interests do not extend beyond this town; they hardly extend Qto me. We are strangers, almost. You will learn nothing from him on the subject which naturally engrosses you."

Mr. Challoner simply bowed. "I do not feel called upon," said he, "to explain my reasons for wishing to know your brother. I will simply satisfy you upon one point which may well arouse your curiosity. You remember that—that my daughter's last act was the writing of a letter to a little protegee of hers. Miss Scott was that protegee. In seeking her, I came upon him. Do you require me to say more on this subject? Wait till I have seen Mr. Oswald Brotherson and then perhaps I can do so."

Receiving no answer to this, Mr. Challoner turned again to the man who was the object of his deepest suspicions, to find him still in the daze of that unimaginable thought, battling with it, scoffing at it, succumbing to it and all without a word. Mr. Challoner was without clew to this struggle, but the might of it, drove him in extreme agitation from the room. Though proof was lacking, though proof might never come, nothing could ever alter from this moment on that Doris was right in her estimate of this man's guilt, however unsubstantial her reasoning might appear.

How far he might have been carried by this new conviction; whether he would have left the house without seeing Doris again or exchanging another word with the man whose very presence stifled him, he had no opportunity to show, for before he had taken another step, he encountered the hurrying figure of Doris, who was returning to her guests with an air of marked relief.

"He does not know that you are here," she whispered to Mr. Challoner, as she passed him. Then, as she again confronted Orlando who hastened to dismiss his trouble at her approach, she said quite gaily, "Mr. Brotherson heard your voice, and is glad to know that you're here. He bade me give you this key and say that you would have found things in better shape if he had been in condition to superintend the removal of the boxes to the place he had prepared for you before he became ill. I was the one to do that," she added, controlling her aversion with manifest effort. "When Mr. Brotherson came to himself he asked if I had heard about any large boxes having arrived at the station shipped to his name. I said that several notices of such had come to the house. At which he requested me to see that they were carried at once to the strange looking shed he had had put up for him in the woods. I thought that they were for him, and I saw to the thing myself. Two or three others have come since and been taken to the same place. I think you will find nothing broken or disturbed; Mr. Brotherson's wishes are usually respected."

"That is fortunate for me," was the courteous reply.

But Orlando Brotherson was not himself, not at all himself as he bowed a formal adieu and withdrew past the drawn-up sentinel-like figure of Mr. Challoner, with no motion on his part or on the part of that gentleman to lighten an exit which had something in it of doom and dread presage.

CHAPTER XXX.

CHAOS.

It is difficult to understand Mr. Challoner's feelings or even those of Doris at the moment of Mr. Brotherson's departure. But why this change in Brotherson himself? Why this sense of something new and terrible rising between him and the suddenly beclouded future? Let us follow him to his lonely hotel-room and see if we can solve the puzzle.

WAS A GREAT SUFFERER FOR FIVE YEARS FROM DYSPEPSIA.

Dyspepsia is one of the most prevalent troubles of civilized life, and thousands of people suffer untold agony after every meal, for nearly everything that enters a weak dyspeptic stomach acts as an irritant.

The long train of distressing symptoms, which render life a burden to the victim of dyspepsia, may be promptly cured by the use of Burdock Blood Bitters. Mrs. Wm. J. Boyne, Lepreau, N.B., writes:—"I thought I would write and tell you of the good Burdock Blood Bitters has done me and also tell you how thankful I am.

"For five years I had been a great sufferer from dyspepsia, and tried different doctors and proprietary medicines, but could get no relief. One day a friend told me to try Burdock Blood Bitters. I did not have much faith in it, but I thought I would give it a trial. To-day I am completely cured, and I will always recommend it."

Burdock Blood Bitters has been on the market for about thirty-five years and is manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

15 YEARS A DYSPEPTIC

Forced to Live on Stale Bread and Porridge.

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" CURED HIM

AVONDALE, N. B., October, 15th.
"I have been a great sufferer from Indigestion for fifteen years. I was forced to deny myself all such hearty foods as beans, meats, potatoes and could not drink tea or coffee. For the past two years, I lived on porridge, stale bread, etc. I had treatment from two doctors, and tried nearly every kind of medicine, but got worse.

"Finally I saw a testimonial of "Fruit-a-tives" and concluded to give them a trial. I took nearly four boxes of "Fruit-a-tives" and they have made me feel like a new man. I can eat all kinds of hearty foods without suffering, and am no longer constipated."

LEMUEL A. W. BROWN.

Many people look on "Fruit-a-tives" as a miraculous medicine. It has indeed performed what have seemed like miraculous cures in hundreds of cases of chronic Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Constipation and Biliousness.

"Fruit-a-tives" is the only medicine in the world made of fresh fruit juices and valuable tonics. 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, or trial size, 25c. At all dealers or from Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

Constipation Bad Breath Headache

When the bowels are constipated and you have stomach trouble an headache, try Dr. Hamilton's Pills they are so mild you can scarcely feel their action, yet so effective that the entire secretory apparatus is stimulated to healthy action.

DR. HAMILTON'S PILLS CURE QUICKLY

Thus writes Mrs. D. P. Fowler, from Yarmouth: "I used to feel drowsy and heavy, my color was shallow, and there was usualy a bad taste in my mouth. I had vague pains all through my limbs, and an annoying headache as well.

"After one dose of Dr. Hamilton's Pills there was a sudden change. I felt better, my appetite increased, and that exhaustion and depression gradually left me. Life seemed brighter and happier after I used Dr. Hamilton's Pills, so I strongly recommend such a good medicine."

Dr. Hamilton's Pills you certainly need; then why not get them now, and enjoy the abundant good health they are sure to bring you? Price, 25c per box, or five boxes for $1.00. At all dealers.

THE LATTER DAYS OF FLORA MACDONALD.

One of the favourite traditions of the eastern part of North Carolina is, according to a writer in "Harper's Magazine," connected with Flora Macdonald, the saviour of Bonnie Prince Charlie. It seems that after Flora had been forgiven by the House of Hanover for her help to the House of Stuart, she and her husband fell into straitened circumstances, and, encouraged by the account of the opportunities in North Carolina, sailed with a number of followers in 1775, and settled on the Cape Fear River, at what is now Fayetteville. Flora came with high hopes, and was received with the greatest deference by her countrymen. After the Revolutionary War broke out, the British struck an early blow in North Carolina, perhaps with the idea that the Macdonalds and their clan would win the day. The Highlanders rallied to the cause of the king, as they were bound to do under their oath. Flora made an especial appeal to her kinsmen and clansmen to rally to the House of Hanover. The story goes that the Royalists drilled their forces on one side of Cross Creek, and the Whigs on the other, joining for social intercourse after military manœuvres were over. Every man who could shoulder a musket and handle a claymore was drilling, and the notes of the Scottish pibroch mingled with those of the English bugle. In February, 1776, the forces clashed, and there followed for the hapless Highlanders another Culloden. Flora Macdonald's husband was taken prisoner, and confined in the gaol at Halifax. Much of her property was confiscated; other things she sold to help effect her husband's freedom, even pawning the family plate. The women tell of her hours of bitterness—how she had to live on a little sandy tract of land while her husband was in prison, and how she buried two children there. When her husband's captivity came to an end, they went back to Scotland, worse broken in purse and fortune than when they had embarked for the New World. Flora is said to have cried: "I have done muckle for both the House of Stuart and for the House of Hanover, and I have been little the gainer by either."

MOTHER.

Somebody has to mend the socks,
And starch the frocks,
And clean the crocks;
Somebody has to wash the floors,
And dust the doors;
Somebody has to boil and bake,
And make the cake,
And fry the steak;
Somebody has to buy things cheap,
And wash and sweep,
With little sleep—
That's mother!

In Fear Of Consumption

To be entirely cured of a cold which threatened to become consumption naturally makes one think well of the treatment which helped to effect the cure.

In a letter just received from Mrs. Edson Brock, Trenholm, Que., the writer says: "I wish to tell you that I have used Dr. Chase's medicines with great success. I took a very bad cold and could not get rid of the cough. I felt so bad that I really thought I was going into consumption. I got well by using Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills also did me a lot of good. You may publish this if you wish, for many people already know what great good Dr. Chase's medicines have done me."

DESCENDANTS OF CHAMPLAIN.

In the centre of the Gulf of St. Lawrence the small group of Magdalen Islands are populated by three or four thousand lineal descendants of the Acadians under Champlain and De Monts, who were driven out of New France, Nova Scotia, by the British. Since the first settlement in 1763 generations of the same families have raised scanty crops in the valleys and fed sheep and cattle on the high conical hills which constitute a prominent feature of an insular landscape. Year after year men have gone out on the waters of the Gulf in search of the cod, mackerel, and lobsters on which a livelihood depends. They are simple, primitive people, these natives of the Magdalens, labouring all the while under circumstances that are most discouraging. The archipelago contains 12 or 13 distinct islands, including several grim rocks which are not inhabited, and never will be.—Argonaut.

Lame Back Cured

Just rub the painful spot with Nerviline; not much rubbing, because Nerviline is made to penetrate. You'll not suffer long after Nerviline is applied, for it acts like lightning, swift and sure. Nerviline is good for everything a liniment ought to be good for—wherever there is pain. Apply Nerviline and the pain disappears.

No remedy so thoroughly cures ache back, stiff joints, sore muscles, lumbago, and cold in the chest as

Nerviline

The farmer, the mechanic, the man who works at hard labor, is subject to the baneful influence of dampness, fog and inclement weather. It's hard for him to escape pain. What he needs at home is a bottle of Nerviline, which gives instant ease to every kind of pain.

Nerviline is about four times as strong as the ordinary liniment. It gets right at the core of pain and cures it as no other remedy can. So strong and concentrated is Nerviline that one application is always as good as six ordinary rubbings with other liniments. Try a large 25c bottle. Sold everywhere.

SAYS WOMEN CANNOT THINK.

Nine-tenths of women are scatter-brained," says Mrs. Mary Thompson Chaplin, well known in Boston and New York society circles.

"The well-controlled mind travels as a planet does, steadily in its orbit, but the large majority of minds fly off in any or every direction," she continued.

"They bob about as a cork on the waves. Talk to most women about anything you choose. Perhaps you ask their advice about something. After the first sentence or two they change the subject. They can't think. Their minds have flown off on a tangent, as usual.

"Women need to learn how to think. They must learn to focus their thoughts. The woman who has learned this can solve every problem of her life, be it little or big, quickly and easily. Most women don't know what they want."—Chicago Examiner.

EATING LEMONS.

A good deal has been said through the papers about the healthfulness of lemons. The latest advice is how to use them so that they will do the most good, as follows: Most people know the benefit of lemonade before breakfast, but few know that it is more than doubled by taking another at night also. The way to get the better of the bilious system, without blue pills or quinine, is o take the juice of one, two or three lemons, as appetite craves, in as much ice water as makes it pleasant to drink without sugar before going to bed. In the morning, on rising, at least a half hour before breakfast ,take the juice of one lemon in a goblet of water. This will clear the system of humour and bile with efficiency, without any of the weakening effects of calomel or congress water. People should not irritate the stomach by eating lemons clear.

WORTH REMEMBERING.

The jests of the rick are never successful.
It is always easy to say a rude thing ,but never wise.
If you would know the value of money, try to borrow some.
When we see a tear in the eye, we are reminded of a warm heart.
A purse had better be empty than filled with other people's money.
People who make petty troubles a luxury are seldom satisfied without them.
Let amusement fill up the chinks of your existence, but not the great spaces thereof.
Wealth, legitimaely acquired, is valuable, and only valuable when thus acquired.
He who will not look before him will have to look behind him, and probably with some regret.
Too many believe that "the world owes every man a living," and that it requires no personal effort to make the collection.
Good nature, like a bee, collects its honey from every herb; ill-nature, like a spider, sucks poison from the sweetest flower.
As we grow in years and experience, we become more tolerant; for it is rare to see a fault that we have not ourselves committed.

CARE OF THE PIANO.

Take a pan of near hot water and a big piece of chamois. Begin by washing and drying the piano as you would a window, washing and drying it with the chamois. After you have finished take a piece of cheesecloth which has been washed and is free from line and polish the piano with it.

You can do this to any piano, even after you have used furniture polish, only you will have to persevere, and in doing so in fut a few weeks you will have washed all the polish off. Then your piano will shine like a looking-glass. It's easy and quick work.

FOR THE BUSY HOUSEWIFE.

Insects like neither salt nor alum, and a small quantity sprinkled on the carpet will keep them away.

Comparatively few people know that a small pinch of baking soda keeps milk fresh longer than sugar, and it is a better plan than boiling it.

Save your lemon rinds, dry them in the oven, and store them in an air-tight tin. A little of this added to an apple pie gives i a delicious flavouring.

When making baked or boiled custard, the milk to be used should be scalded and set aside to cool. Then make the custard in the ordinary way, and it will be perfectly smooth.

If one cup of vinegar is put with the water in which coloured tablecloths are washed, it will prevent the colour from running. Iron when still damp ,and they will look equal to new.

Art muslin curtains should never be washed in war mwater. Make a lather with hot water, and when it is nearly cold wash the curtains. If these are green, add a little vinegar; if lilac or pink, a little ammonia.

To make breadcrumbs quickly, cut the soft part from a stale loaf, put it into a clean muslin bag, tie the bag it the top and gently rub it with the hands for a few minutes. The crumbs will then be fine enough for anything.

When pork is good the rind is thin, smooth and cool to touch. Bacon should have a thin rind, the fat be firm and tinged red by the curing; the flesh should be clear red, without inter-mixture of yellow; it should firmly adhere to the bone.

Chamois leather gloves, which are now so much worn, must be washed in a warm lather. Slip them on the hands so that the fingers can be easily rubbed. Rinse in warm water, then blow out the gloves and hang in the air to dry.

To remove wall paper from a wall, put a very damp cloth against the paper, then press with a hot iron, and the paper will come off readily. This is a very quick way of removing paper, however stubborn. A little washing soda in the water will be found a further help.

Table linen and house linen can be easily darned with a sewing machine. The presser foot should be removed, and, with needle and shuttle duly threaded, the fabric can be moved backward and forward while the machine works row by row of stitching closely set. When the whole and surrounding thin fabric are covered in one direction, the article being mended should be turned half way round, so that a similar set of rows of stitching may cross the first at right angles.

To give a gloss to linen when ironed, add to a pint of starch when boiling a piece of mutton tallow the size of a pea, or, better still, a small piece of white wax. Much depends upon boiling the starch thoroughly if a glossy surface is desired; it should also be strained. Dip and wring out the article severa times, that it may be evenly and thoroughly incorporated with the starch; then dry on the line. Before ironing, dip and wring out of a weak solution of cold starch, roll up and let the pieces remain two hours before ironing them.

When oilcloth has been down for a few months and is losing its shiny surface, it can be renewed easily and made to last twice as long if treated in the following way. Melt a little ordinary glue in a pint of water, letting it stand on the top of the oven till dissolved. Wash the oilcloth thoroughly and let it dry. Then at night, when the traffic of the day ceases, go over the whole carefully with a flannel dipped in the glue water. Choose a fine day for it, and by morning the glue wil be hard and will have put a fine gloss as good as new on your floor.

Small circumstances illustrate great principles.
The world is created anew for us every morning.
He is a good workman who whistles at his work.
The sweetness of thought is in communicating it.
The great hope of society is individual character.
Many children, many cares; no children, no felicity.
Unmerited compliments are the keenest reproaches.
We know men as we know houses, by their outsides.

A WEAK, ACHING BACK CAUSED HER MUCH MISERY

Could Not Work and Had No Ambition For Anything.

Those who have never been troubled with kidney trouble do not know the suffering and misery which those afflicted undergo.

Weak, lame or aching back comes from the kidneys, and when the kidneys are out of order the whole system becomes deranged.

Doan's Kidney Pills are a specific for all kidney troubles.

Mrs. W. R. Hodge, Fielding, Sask., writes:—"A few lines highly recommending Doan's Kidney Pills. For this last year I have been troubled very much with nasty sick headaches, and a weak, aching back which caused me much misery, for I could not work and had no ambition for anything. My kidneys were very badly out of order, and kept me from sleeping at nights, I tried many kinds of pills and medicines but it seemed almost in vain. I began to give up in despair of ever being well and strong again, when a kind neighbor advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills, which I did, and am thankful for the relief I obtained from them, for now I am never in trouble with a sore back or sick headaches. I will always say Doan's Kidney Pills for mine, and can highly recommend them to any sufferers."

CO-OPERATION better than COMPETITION in BUSINESS

George W. Perkins says the enormous fortunes of the future will be held by regulated corporations—Believes in income and inheritance taxes

(Copyright, 1912, by the New York Herald Co. All rights reserved.)

WORK is not measured by the clock in the study room of George W. Perkins, on the very top floor of his residence in Park avenue, New York city.

When there is something to do it is done, whether it be midnight or high noon, and if there is any time during the waking hours of the day when there is not anything to do in the study it is while Mr. Perkins is attending to business in his offices in the Trinity Building or attending some meeting which must not be neglected.

So when Mr. Perkins found that from press of business he could not keep an appointment with a reporter for this paper at half-past eight in the evening, he said:—

"Just come back at half-past ten. Then we can have a whole evening ahead of us with no disturbances."

"Will it be possible in the future for individuals to accumulate such enormous fortunes as have been amassed in the past?" the reporter asked him when he had been shown to the plainly furnished room.

Mr. Perkins never answers a question without weighing his reply. After a few moments' deep thought he said:—

"So far as this country is concerned, the answer depends very largely on the wisdom displayed by our statesmen in the legislation enacted as regards business. One reason why I am so tremendously interested in the development of the co-operative idea in business is because I feel sure that along these lines we are more likely to find a satisfactory solution of the problems involved between capital and labor. In the progress of events—in the evolution of things—the giant interstate corporation, in my judgment, is bound to supplant all old fashioned methods of doing business.

"I rejoice that this is so, because as soon as we get the questions that are now before the people properly thrashed out, understood and voted on, it is going to mean a fairer distribution of profits in business, as between capital, labor and consumer. If this course is followed out by our people, as I am convinced it is going to be, it means a tendency toward the curtailment of large individual fortunes and the substitution of large aggregations of capital in the hands of a corporation owned by the people—the officers of such corporations occupying the position of trustees for the wealth thus accumulated, which will be handled for the best advantage of accumulated wealth, of labor and of consumer alike.

"It is my firm belief that this should be the next great step in the evolution of American business that is causing me to be so insistent for federal regulation, supervision and control of large corporations doing an interstate and international business. Accumulated wealth is an absolute necessity in the development and progress of any country, but in my judgment it can be more effectively had, and held, in groups of individuals acting under the name of a corporation than by individuals.

Opportunities for Young Men.

"You see," he continued, "there are many advantages in having corporations in which there are a large number of positions carrying with them very handsome salaries, in place of the old fashioned firm with comparatively few partners—the annual profits of each one of whom were often so large that the individual partners amassed enormous fortunes in a very few years. A position carrying a salary so large as to represent the interest on a handsome fortune can be permanently filled only by a man of real ability, so that in case a man who is occupying such a position dies it must, in turn, be filled by another man of the same order of ability, while the fortune of the partner might be and in many, many cases we know has been, passed on regardless of the heir's ability to perform. Therefore, the more positions of responsibility, trust and honor that carry large salaries the more goals we have for young men whose equipment for life consists of integrity, health, ability and energy."

"Will recent decisions in the cases of the so-called Tobacco Trust and the Standard Oil Company affect the accumulation of wealth?" Mr. Perkins was asked.

"There," he snapped, rising from his seat at a big table desk. "That is something I want to talk about. In the first place, it strikes me that this question has been answered in a most interesting article to the effect that the value of Standard Oil Company shares had increased by approximately a quarter of a billion dollars since that company's dissolution by the federal government, and that this colossal sum of money had gone to various stockholders of the subsidiary companies who were previously stockholders of the Standard Oil Company."

Mr. Perkins paced the floor. He is not nervous. His pacing gives the impression that even when he is thinking hard and deeply he is not expending enough energy to make him uncomfortable. The walking back and forth seems to act as a safety valve. Emphasizing every word, he said:—

"Dissolution does not seem to have been a solution of the trust problem. The Standard Oil Company before it was dissolved was a mighty engine of commerce, both at home and abroad. It had been investigated by the United States government for years at a great expenditure of the people's money. We as a people had found out all about that company. There was no question about its being a most efficient agency of trade, built up by men of enormous sagacity and far sighted ability as merchants. There was no question that the business was profitable, no question that it was gradually conquering the commerce of the world in its line of trade, and here it was all corralled in one enclosure where the federal government could supervise, regulate and control it, and make it conform to such practices as would be for the best interests of the people as a whole, and what did we do? We smashed it up into some thirty-odd companies, which seriously hurt, seriously injured its efficiency; second, caused two or three increases in the prices at which it is selling its products to the people; third, brought about the utter inability of the federal government to follow the ramifications of all these thirty-odd companies and their relations to one another. Has any more stupendous blunder in statesmanship, as it affects business, ever been committed in this country?"

"What about the popular cry that individuals cannot accumulate enormous personal fortunes and be honest?"

"Ridiculous nonsense," said Mr. Perkins in a manner which left no room for doubt that he meant it. "The old, old adage that honesty is the best policy is ever and always true. The merchant who is dishonest goes to the wall sooner or later. Honesty and integrity are just as sacred and just as necessary to success in business as they are in social or family life."

"Do the trusts foster individual fortunes?"

"No, quite the contrary."

"Do they tend to distribute wealth?"

"They most certainly do."

Replying to the question, "Are trusts or accumulated wealth harmful in themselves?" Mr. Perkins said:—

"I am what might possibly be termed a crank on this subject. I believe that our politicians and a large number of our magazine and newspaper writers have been all wrong in advancing the idea that the trusts should be 'busted' because they are big. You might as well talk of breaking up the United States because it is, after all, merely a holding company composed of forty-eight subsidiary companies. The American people are not afraid of things because they are big, otherwise they would have fled in terror from our country years ago when they realized its enormous area. Oh, no; that is not the point. The point is the potential power of small groups of men controlling large aggregate sums of money to exploit the people for the individual advantage of a few and to pursue improper, secretive methods. This is what the public is afraid of and this is what the public will no longer stand for. Stock watering propositions, enormous improper profits by promoters that must be recouped from the public through profits to be made in the future—these are the things in corporations that the public is gunning for and is going to get. It is methods, not size, that must be corrected.

War in Commerce.

"At present what business needs is an emancipation proclamation at once freeing it and the people from oppression and from tyranny. Why be so ardent in advocating peace at arms and so adamant in enforcing war in commerce. It would look now as though the new order of things that our government is trying to establish, in insisting on a return to old competitive methods in industrial affairs, was going to make it illegal to buy a competitor for cash, but perfectly legal to crush him for spite.

"It is as important to discard out of date mental processes as out of date machinery. We, as a commercial people, have justly prided ourselves on having the courage and intelligence to promptly consign antiquated material machinery to the junk heap. The question of the hour clearly is whether we have the courage and intelligence to do the same thing with some of our antiquated mental machinery.

"It may be true that we got on once with a strictly competitive system, but it is also true that we got on once with stage coaches! But I notice we did not undertake to correct the evils existing in our railroads by returning to the system of the stage coach as a method of transportation.

"Much has been said during the last few months about the officers of large corporations getting together at luncheon, dinners, at their clubs or at their homes and discussing their business and the prices they were charging for their various articles of trade. Would it not be well for people to do a little plain, original, commonplace thinking about this subject before condemning it as illegal, undesirable and immoral?"

Mr. Perkins stood in the corner of the room, leaning far back, resting his head against the wall.

"Let us see what it actually means and how it compares with other practices that are regarded as legal, desirable and moral," he said.

"There is not a man in middle life to-day who does not well remember how in his boyhood days a large percentage of the retail business of the country was transacted. There would be a half dozen dry goods stores in a given town.

"When a buyer went shopping he pitted one merchant against another. At one shop he would inquire the price of a certain article. Then he would go to another shop and ask for the same article. If he saw an opportunity for barter he would untruthfully quote the price asked for the same thing by the first merchant in hopes of beating down the cost of whatever he wanted to buy. This resulted in the seller putting up his prices so that he could mark them down, and the customer lying about what the other merchant could or would do.

"Gradually this all changed and the retail merchant began to mark his goods in the open, and now eight stores out of ten, whether they be dry goods, grocery or meat shops, have the prices marked in plain view. Every merchant in town knows what his fellow merchant is selling at. The customer can't do any more lying about it. He walks into a store, picks out his goods, pays the price, concludes his trade and does it on a perfectly open, frank and truthful basis of business. The retail merchant in a store marks his goods and practically invites his fellow merchants to come and see his prices.

"In other words, the retail merchants of any respectable community these days know openly exactly what they are all selling goods at, and in place of its driving men out of business and ruining them it has been the salvation of the retail merchants here, there and everywhere. It has elevated the whole moral tone of trade on retail business and has been one of the most practical and potent influences that we as a people have recently witnessed in causing people to respect and keep the Eighth Commandment.

"Now, this is a fair picture of what has been accomplished in reorganizing, uplifting and improving the conditions heretofore existing in retail trade. What is now being attempted is to accomplish something along similar lines in wholesale trade, where to-day, because of the fact that wholesalers and corporation managers generally—in other words, men doing business on a large scale—are forced to continue doing business under secretive methods, where they can't frankly tell each other what their prices are, they are being forced to continue immoral and improper practices just as the retailer used to do.

"The purchasing agent of a given railroad or a given industry wants to buy a bill of goods. He pits A against B. He thinks it is perfectly fair to invent any kind of yarn that will beat down the price of the bill of goods he wants to buy. In other words, every man knows that in the purchasing department of all large concerns the Eighth Commandment is smashed into smithereens eight times a day.

"We talk about wanting to improve our moral conditions in business, wishing to protect the people against the awful abuse in corporate life. Why, there is no abuse, there is no immoral practice that can possibly exceed for downright immorality the whole system by which merchants are forced, are compelled to do business on a secret price basis. The elimination of this in the retail business ought to be a sufficiently uplifting example to cause us not to hesitate to adopt it in our trade methods in what I call wholesale business, and this does not in any sense mean the elimination of competition.

"Where is the reputable grocery store in every town that has not got a stick in the centre of every can, bin or barrel, and on the top of that the price marked in plain figures? Has that closed up the grocery next door? No, certainly not. What it has done is to prevent the grocery next door from closing up. Have the people complained of this method of doing retail business? No, certainly not. And why? Because the frank, open method has made the merchant careful that he did not overcharge the public. In short it has been an automatic introduction of publicity in prices.

Income and Inheritance Taxes.

"That is just what we want in the case of big corporations and accumulated wealth."

A telephone call from a city in the Middle West interrupted Mr. Perkins.

"It is possible for a man to transact business in two places at once," he said as he returned to the study with a glass of buttermilk, which he sipped slowly while talking. "The mind is what transacts business, and I can sit here and talk with you, at the same time carrying on business in a city more than five hundred miles away by means of a telephone."

"Should the government limit personal fortunes or tax them?" he was asked.

"I do not believe in limiting volume in business," he replied. "I believe absolutely in limiting a man's potential power to do wrong, and then in giving the man great latitude and freedom to exercise his ingenuity, executive ability and energy to build up, build up, build up American trade.

"As to taxing fortunes, I have for years believed in an income tax, and I have latterly come to believe in the inheritance tax. I think both should be enforced in this country, and I think they should be on the basis of a scale—the larger the income, the larger the fortune, then the larger the tax to the State. I think this is fair because I believe that the larger a man's income and the larger his fortune, the more protection he asks from the State and the more enjoyment he is able to get from the benefits provided by the State in the way of public improvements."

"Will the largest fortunes of the future be made in the same way as in the past?"

"No, they will not. I think I explained that in my first statements. Of course, it all depends upon legislation, but as I said, I believe that great accumulations of wealth will be held by corporations in trust for the people. Individualism must be preserved, but rather through association in collective effort than through ruthless competition in individual effort.

"The present chaotic condition of business and of politics is purely the result of a moral awakening in this country on practical business questions; and no settlement of these questions short of an honest, square one, along strictly moral lines, will satisfy our people. They are, in a way, just as deeply stirred over these questions now as our forefathers were at the time they threw tea into Boston Harbor.

"I have just returned from a trip across the continent, and in my judgment, formed from a close observation, the country is as ripe to-day, with courage and common sense, for a proper settlement of the trust question as it was ripe in 1896 for a settlement of the silver question."

HAIL TO 1913!

BY TUDOR JENKS.

There are poets of methods devious
Who are altogether previous.
They annex the timely topics
  Which I'd like to treat myself.
Each season finds belated
The little poems I've elated,
While they skim the cream a-rising,
  Leaving me nor fame nor pelf.

So I mean to treat next New Year
Long before the beggar gets here.

Don't mind the neighbors' slumbers!
Good luck comes in odd numbers;
Ring out the stuff that cumbers—
  The years that come between.

The old year had its crosses,
Its burdens and its losses
(A very safe assertion
  Though made a year ahead),
But next year will be jolly;
To doubt it would be folly.
We'll have a lower tariff—

I speak of Nineteen Thirteen,
  Which we later welcome in.
Nineteen Twelve has proved a traitor
(We shall all be saying later),
And we hope for better luck,
  So we raise a hearty din!

A new loaf each is turning,
With new seal each is burning.
More money we'll be earning
  In dear Nineteen Thirteen!

Or higher, it is said.

But Nineteen Twelve is over,
And we are all in clover,
Despite the heavy war cloud
  Somewhere in the distant East.
So bless this mighty nation
In the new administration
Of our President ——!
  (Here rhyming doesn't matter in the least).

Fox Farming for Fur.

FOX farming is the new venture which is attracting wide attention throughout the maritime provinces of Canada and the wooded sections of Maine. In fact it is fast outgrowing the proportions of a venture and is recognized as an established industry. Those who are interested in the raising of foxes say it is more of a sport than it is hard labor, and there is a certain zest about the rearing of the wild creatures and association with them which takes the place, in the heart of the huntsman, of the excitement of the chase.

To superintend a fox farm personally one must endure considerable hardship in the way of cold and loneliness, for the fox does not flourish in populated districts where unaccustomed noises and the presence of human beings distract the timid animals. For the best fur a cold climate is necessary.

Black or silver foxes are the ones raised on the ranches or farms because of the value of the skins, and it is stated in reports of the United States Department of Agriculture that the total crop of real black fox skins of the United States and Canada is sold in London, for the most part to the nobility of Austria and Russia.

Many of the fox farms are operated by men with small capital, but of late wealthy men have established fox ranches not only as a commercial project but as a hobby. Dr. Donald T. McPhail, of New York, has a thirty acre farm at Cape Breton on which he has twenty pairs of breeding foxes. He told a reporter how the strain of black foxes was developed.

"Because they are very scarce in the wild state and are almost always the puppies of red foxes, the black foxes have always been considered freaks or mongrels," he said. "We cannot disprove this, although breeders are of a different opinion. At any rate it is certain that if we take two black foxes born of red parents and mate them the litter of four or six pups will be black, with the exception of perhaps one pup. In four or five generations there will be developed a strain of black foxes and the exception will be a red pup. It is necessary to keep the animals in captivity of course to do this, but that need not cause a deterioration in the fur, for the more nearly domesticated they become the better fur they should bear. In captivity they are better fed, better housed and more comfortable than in the wild state, all of which should make better the fur."

On Dr. McPhail's farm his manager, Claire A. Austen, has fenced off three acres for the cages in which the animals are kept. The fence is twelve feet high and built of boards placed close together so that the enclosed space is absolutely hidden from view. This is necessary to insure the animals against being disturbed. Persons looking at them and talking, or throwing anything into the enclosure, or even walking past would so upset the timid foxes that the breeding would be seriously hampered.

The cages, which are of wire mesh, are forty-eight feet long and twenty-four feet wide and are separated just far enough to keep the animals from clawing at each other through the mesh. The land is left as nearly the original state as is possible and it is best that it be covered with evergreen and birch trees. Every detail must be natural, for if the foxes are not perfectly comfortable and happy they will not breed well and the fur will suffer.

The mesh fences are ten feet high and extend two feet under the earth, so that the foxes cannot burrow a way out. They are great climbers, too, and unless the fence has a two-foot overhang they scramble up the mesh and escape.

"In each cage," says Dr. McPhail, "I have a hollow birch log, which is set horizontally on some stones about two feet above the ground to keep it dry, and because for some reason the fox prefers to jump up from the ground into it. We have to arrange quite a complicated entrance to the hollow log to satisfy the whims of these very particular animals. A fox will never enter any place unless he sees his way out again by a different route from that by which he entered. The entrance to the log therefore is in the middle and is in the form of a tunnel about five inches by seven inches in measurement. The outer end of this tunnel connects with a cross runway open at both ends, just like the log itself, only smaller, so that at every turn the fox sees an opening ahead. We might just lay the log down with both ends open, but the animals would not have near so much pleasure in their homes. They seem to enjoy entering by the roundabout way.

"The mating season is the last part of January and the first part of February and the pups are born some time in April. Then it is necessary to separate the male from the female and the young ones, for he is very jealous and will sneak into the nest and more than likely crush some of the pups to death. I do not believe, as some do, that the male maliciously kills the pups. We keep the males in separate cages until the puppies are able to run about by themselves.

"Extreme care must be taken during the mating season not to frighten the foxes in any way. If I should go to my own farm during the mating or breeding season I would not go inside the enclosure. The animals would know the presence of a stranger immediately, and it might mean thousands of dollars of loss, for the pups will some day sell for from $2,000 to $3,500."

The man who takes care of a fox farm must live right on it and be out among the animals in all kinds of weather. He usually occupies a bungalow near the enclosure where he can guard the only entrance and be handy for any trouble. If he changes an article of clothing which the animals can see, they will detect something strange, and will be frightened away into their logs and houses until they are sure that the change means no harm to them. For this reason the managers of farms usually wear a uniform of some sort.

The young foxes live on milk for the first three months, and thereafter are fed rabbits, beef, sheep and eggs. In the wild state they catch mice and sometimes rob birds' nests.

The food is not placed in troughs, but is left somewhere within the cage and thrown on the ground carelessly. The fox likes to look for it himself, and the mother wants to take it to her young in her mouth.

According to government reports there are only a few dozen genuine black fox skins obtained in North America each year in the wild state, and there is great demand for the skins in Europe.

As the black puppies usually fall a prey to the red females in the wild state, the market is almost dependable upon the animals raised in captivity. A farm of twenty pairs of grown foxes should produce from forty to sixty puppies in a year.

Foxes must not be overfed and the keep of a single animal ought to average not more than a cent and a half a day.

Charts issued by the United States Department of Agriculture show that parts of Maine, the States bordering on the Great Lakes, Massachusetts and the Rocky Mountain and Pacific States are suitable for fox raising, though the best climate is a cold one.

A PROMISING COLT

Graham Bellini Recently Purchased by R. J. Mackenzie

At a bid of $3,500, the Illinois trainer, Charley Dean, got the Bellini colt, he acting, it is said, for R. J. Mackenzie, the Winnipeg turfman, for whom Havis James trains. Graham Bellini, excepting in one respect, is one of the best-looking young trotters in the country. He has that peculiar out-out formation under the knees. Mr. Dickerman stated, however, that the colt was foaled that way, and a close examination shows that the peculiar formation is not in any way an indication of unsoundness. Robert J., 2.01½, it will be remembered, was characterized by this same conformation, only in a more pronounced degree, and no one ever had occasion to say that it was any drawback to his racing powers. From his looks Graham Bellini, appears to be a colt that will race over about any kind of a track. He is very strongly built, has, with the exception noted, a fine set of legs, and his head indicates the possession of the kind of brains that go with good manners on the race track. Of his speed there can be no question, for on the half-mile tracks of Kansas and Oklahoma last season as a two-year-old he did what few trotters of that age have done. If all goes well with him, he will be a factor in some of the futurities of 1913.

LIQUOR AT A BAZAAR

A Magistrate Said an Application for This Was not Creditable.

Upon an application for an occasional license for the sale of intoxicants at a bazaar in connection with Holy Trinity Church, Abergavenny, made to the local Bench, Alderman R. Foster, one of the magistrates said it was not creditable to any Christian Church to make such an application and he certainly would not give a silent vote of consent to the license being granted.

He thought the sale of intoxicants and the cure of souls very strange bedfellows, and he opposed the application in the hope of saving Holy Trinity Church from such an unholy alliance.

The Mayor of Abergavenny, who presided over the Bench, in granting the application, said although he was not a teetotaler he was a strong advocate of temperance, but he thought that provision should be made for those who desired to have something to take with their suppers. He knew precaution would be taken against immoderate use of the license.

MILITARY-MUSICAL FAMILIES

The honor of a dinner paid recently to Mr. Dan Godfrey, conductor of the Bournemouth Municipal Orchestra, by British musical composers, is a reminder of the Godfreys' remarkable association with the Guards' bands. From 1825 until 1880 the Coldstreamers' band was continuously controlled by a Godfrey; first by Charles, the founder of the family, and then by his son Fred; and for some years all three Foot Guards' bands were conducted by the three brothers—Fred, Charles and Dan.

The second of these then went to the Royal Horse Guards, and Dan became famous as the bandmaster of the Grenadiers, to which position he was appointed, on the recommendation of the Prince Consort, at the age of twenty-five! He was the first British bandmaster to be commissioned, and some idea of his world-wide celebrity may be gained from the fact that the King of the Sandwich Islands conferred on him a "Royal Order," whilst the Sultan of Zanzibar presented him with two massive gold bracelets.

Besides the Bournemouth conductor honored to-day, there is Mr. Herbert Godfrey, conductor of the Crystal Palace band. Only the Winterbottom family can rival this record, four brothers, and a nephew of the same, having at various periods conducted Royal Marines' bands.

THE EVENING CHIT-CHAT

By Ruth Cameron

There are several kinds of heritages. Some people inherit money. Other people, whose ancestors have not bequeathed them any great amount of money, still take vast pride in valuable heirlooms, such as old furniture or quaint jewelry. Yet others who have received neither money nor heirlooms, consider some well-known name as a desirable heritage.

I want to tell you to-day of a heritage somewhat different from any of these, which I chanced to hear about the other day.

The shampoo lady told us of it. We were talking about inventions and patents, and a dentist who is trying to patent an idea which he has conceived, and prevent anyone from using that idea without paying him royalty.

Said the shampoo lady, "That's not much like my grandfather."

Said we, "Was your grandfather an inventor?"

"Well, he certainly was," said the shampoo lady. "He invented the iron hub that you see on all the wheels. You know it is used the world over nowadays, but in the old times there were only wooden hubs and it was my grandfather who invented the iron hub."

"And didn't he patent it?" we asked.

"Indeed he didn't," said the shampoo lady. "Do you think I'd be doing heads if he had? Why all his grandchildren would be millionaires if he had patented that hub. But he wouldn't. Everyone thought it was a great idea and advised him to get a patent, and what do you suppose he said? 'Why should I patent it. It doesn't seem anything very great to me, BUT IF IT'S GOOD, I WANT THE PEOPLE TO USE IT.'"

The shampoo lady paused to reach for a towel. "Of course," she went on, "there are times when I can see that it would be fine to be a millionaire. I don't mind working a bit, but when I heard about that little Bryce girl who has such a lovely voice and can't afford to have it trained, just because she has to support a father who drinks, I would have liked some of that hub money. And when I read about foreign places, especially Venice and the Alps, and realize that I'll probably die without ever seeing them, I do wish I had money enough to travel some. But most of the time I really and truly am just as contented with that speech and spirit of my grandfather's for a heritage as if he had left me money, and I wouldn't change it if I could."

Can anyone doubt that that woman, healthy and strong as she is, happy in her work, contented with her means, appreciative of all the intellectual opportunities, and delighted with all the simple pleasures that come her way, and inspired and enriched by that splendid speech and the spirit behind it, is far happier and more blessed that some of those in this land who inherit plenty of ill-gotten wealth, but little less from their ancestors?

I cannot.

There are many kinds of heritages. Not everyone can leave wealth, or beautiful heirlooms, or a well-known name to the succeeding generation, but everyone can leave such precious heritages as health, the right attitude towards life, and the inspiration of a fine life and a fine spirit.

PIMPLES, BLOTCHES, SORES, ULCERS AND ALL BLOOD DISORDERS GO IN A FEW DAYS

Pimples, eruptions, blotches, scales, ulcers, sores, eczema and chronic swellings are caused by bad blood, but don't become discouraged—no other trouble is so easily overcome. Cascarets are wonder-workers in the cure of any disease caused by bad or impure blood. They eliminate all poisons, build up and enrich the blood, enabling it to make new, healthy tissue.

Pure blood means perfect health, and if you will use Cascarets they will give you good health and a pure, clean skin, free from pimples and blotches. To try Cascarets is to like them, for never before has there been produced as perfect and as harmless a blood purifier, liver and stomach regulator as Cascarets Candy Cathartic! TO REDUCE WEIGHT.

In the first place, don't nibble between meals and don't think that "snatch" meals are going to make you thin. If you only take a cup of tea and a cracker, sit and take time to eat. Chew, chew, chew. If you would chew your food a long time you would find you have eaten about one-half. Fat people eat too quickly and too much. Don't take any notice of that faint or hungry feeling between meals. Take a glass of water instead of a nibble of food. Try this for a month and see if you won't feel better for it. Of course, you know walking ast is one of the best reducers, but you must walk regularly. It takes a person with a strong will power to follow directions. You must not eat potatoes, hot breads, pastry, or candy, butter or cream. Most of all, don't nibble between meals. Lemonade without sugar is good to drink between meals.

TALE OF A HORSE

How the Duke of Marlborough Was Deceived by an Employe.

An amusing narrative of how a poor bought a horse is told in the law courts. The action was by the Duke of Marlborough, and the defendant was W. Martindale, on whose behalf a signed judgement was handed in. Martindale was employed by the duke to buy a horse, which was to be a very fine hack, of a class to afford a fair prospect of competing with success at the Horse Show. Mr. Martindale established relations with a Mr. Martroye, a well-known Belgian horse-dealer, and the duke, relying upon Mr. Martindale's integrity, agreed to pay, without seeing the horse $1,775 for it.

The horse was delivered, and Mr. Martroye taking advantage of the fact that the duke had not seen the horse at all, supplied an animal 13 years old, which was swe-necked, pigeon-toed and had the off-hind fetlock joint damaged from an old blow. Whenever it was taken out for the mildest exercise it came home lame.

The duke brought the action for negligence on the part of Mr. Martindale, who had consented to judgment for the duke for $1,350 on the claim, the duke keeping the horse.

FLEW FROM PRISON

"The Flying Dutchman" used an aeroplane in order to gain his freedom.

An astonishing story of a prisoner's escape by aeroplane has been told to the Paris police, who arrested Maurice Devos, a brother of Marius Devos, the "Flying Dutchman," whom the prisons cannot hold. Maurice Devos resisted with great ferocity the police who went to arrest him. He bit one of them savagely in the face, and nearly killed another with a hammer. He refused to say anything about his brother's sensational escape from prison in Paris, but he told an amazing tale of the way in which Marius Devos left Holland after escaping from prison at Schwelingen some time ago.

Marius Devos hid himself in a cart-load of building material in the prison courtyard, and when workmen took the cart away they took the escaped prisoner with it. In accordance with a prearranged plan of campaign, Marius waited until the cart was well out in the country, and then dropped silently to the ground without arousing the suspicions of the driver. He made his way across country to a field a mile away where Maurice and another brother, Jean, were waiting for him.

Maurice is an aviator, and he had his aeroplane with him. The three brothers boarded it and a few minutes later they flew out of Holland at a height of a thousand feet and alighted in Belgium. They took the machine to pieces in Belgium and sent it by rail to Paris, then travelled to Paris by motorcar.

The police have checked this extraordinary story and have found it to be true in every particular. No trace of Marius Devos has yet been found, and his brother Jean has also disappeared.

GREEK METHODS

Confectioners Join Hands and Buy Goods in Lump Orders.

A remarkable combination has been effected among the Greek confectionery stores of the city and manufacturers are viewing the innovation with amazement, very strongly tinged with respect. The Greeks have formed an association by means of which they intend sending in lump orders for the goods used in their stores, placing the order with the manufacturer who can give them the best terms. As there are 85 Greek confectionery stores in Montreal, many of them doing a big business, the extent of the scheme is large. About a year and a half ago they built a church on St. Lawrence Street below Prince Arthur Street. This was being paid for mostly by the merchants. There was still about $15,000 of a debt, when some of the business men got together and devised the following plan:—They would buy supplies co-operatively, pocket half the reduction thus obtained, and use the other half to pay off the debt of the church.

The plan met with everyone's approval and a committee was appointed to put it in operation. They found it worked so well that they have now formed an organization and will take out incorporation papers next year.

Death in Church.

William Houlston, a railway signal man, died with tragic suddenness while attending the service in St Mark's Church, Wrexham. He was seized with illness while seated in a pew, and although a doctor in the congregation attended him immediately he expired upon being removed to the porch.

How a cut Cost 14 Years of Suffering

Mr. J. H. Arsenault, a Justice of the Peace and station master at Wellington, on the P.E.I. Ry., says: "Four years ago I fell on a freight truck, sustaining a bad cut on the front of my leg. I thought this would heal, but instead it developed into a bad ulcer, and later into a form of eczema which spread very rapidly and also started on the other leg. Both legs became so swollen and sore that I could only go about my work by having them bandaged.

"I consulted two doctors, and tried all the salves, liniments and lotions I heard of, but instead of getting better I got worse.

How Zam-Buk cured.

"This was my condition when I got my first box of Zam-Buk. Greatly to my delight that first box gave me relief. I continued to apply it to the sores, and day by day they got better. I could see that at last I had got hold of something which would cure me, and in the end it did.

"It is now over a year since Zam-Buk worked a cure in my case, and there has been no return of the eczema."

Purely herbal in composition, Zam-Buk is a sure cure for all skin diseases, cold sores, chapped hands, ulcers, blood-poisoning, varicose sores, piles, ringworm, inflamed patches, cuts, burns and bruises. All druggists and stores sell at 50c. box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price.

WANTS RACING CONTINUED

New York Telegraph:—Taking racing, for instance. Eighty-eight per cent. of the people of New York have no care whether there is racing or whether there is not, except that, as a general proposition, they would favor all means of public relaxation and employment. Ten per cent. of the populace earnestly favor and enjoy the turf. Two per cent. are against it. Of this 2 per cent. one-half the number oppose racing because there is money for them in the opposition. The other half are honest in their belief that racing should be wiped off the list of recreations. To gratify the prejudices, therefore, of 1 per cent. of the people of the State, because they say they are moved by "the highest moral purposes," the greatest public sport known is made felonious by statute.

WOULD SCREAM FOR HOURS WITH ECZEMA

Baby Dreadful Sufferer. Could Not Keep Him from Scratching. Every Joint Affected. Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment and He is Well.

"Enclosed find my son's photo and I feel by writing these few lines to you I am only doing my duty, as my son was a dreadful sufferer from eczema. At the age of two weeks he began to get covered with red spots on his legs and groins, which mother thought was red gum or thrush; but day by day it grew worse until every joint and crevice were affected and baby started screaming for hours day and night, such a thing as sleep was out of the question. I took him to two of Sydney's leading doctors; one said it was one of the worst cases he had seen, the other did not think it so serious; one ordered ointment for rubbing in, the other a dusting powder. I followed their prescriptions for over four months and still baby kept getting worse. I could not keep him from scratching as it was his agony.

"When he was five months old I tried the Cuticura Remedies and I am very thankful to say my baby is to-day free from all his suffering. His grains were bleeding when I started and other parts affected were the lower part of his body under the knees, arms, in arm joints, eyebrows and neck; but after using Cuticura Ointment I began to see a difference and by the time I had used one tin, along with the bathing with Cuticura Soap, baby was nearly cured. I still kept on using the Cuticura Soap and Ointment, and now, thank goodness, he is quite well and, although he is now ten months old, has not had any further return of the trouble." (Signed) Mrs. O. Martin, 2 Knight St., Erskineville, Sydney, N.S.W., Mar. 31, 1911.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold throughout the world but a liberal sample of each, with a 32-page book on the care and treatment of the skin and hair will be sent free on application to Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., 60 Columbus Ave., Boston, U.S.A.

Honorarium For Beck.

Toronto, March 27.—It was announced in the Legislature by Sir James Whitney yesterday that Hon. Adam Beck, the indefatigable chief of the Hydro-Electric Commission, would get remuneration for his services, despite the fact that he is a member of the House. The Premier praised the work of his colleague, and the announcement was greeted with much banging of desks. A bill will be introduced in the Legislature before prorogation to authorize the much-deserved tribute of the Government.

It has not been stated what monetary recognition Mr. Beck will receive, but it is reported that it will be in the form of an honorarium to the amount of $10,000. He has been the most energetic worker in the interests of the public ownership scheme of electric lighting for five years, and this amount would make it a salary of $2,000 a year.

More Suffragettes to Jail.

London, March 27.—A special sitting of the County of London Sessions opened yesterday for the trial of 128 women who have been committed in connection with the window-smashing raids in London on March 1 and 4.

Travers Humphrey, solicitor for the Treasury, in his speech for the prosecution, emphasized that the raids were an organized attack on property and could not be tolerated.

Judge Robert Wallace sentenced a succession of suffragettes to terms from four to six months' imprisonment. In some cases, where the women undertook not to repeat the offence, they were bound over to come up for judgment if called upon.

Pope's Condition Reassuring.

Rome, March 27.—The Pope suffered a slight rise in temperature last evening, but his general condition is considered quite satisfactory. The bronchial congestion had diminished and the physicians announced that there was an absence of any alarming symptoms.

The Pope received in the course of the morning Cardinal Casimiro Gennari, Mgr. Sansoni, Bishop of Cefalu, Sicily, and Mgr. A. Secchetti Bishop of Smyrna. With the latter he had a long and interesting interview with regard to the situation in his diocese, especially in view of an attack by the Italian fleet.

First Owl Seen.

Toronto, March 27.—While walking along the Lake Shore road at 2.30 yesterday morning a citizen saw a large owl alight on one of the crossbars of a telephone pole, near Jane street. After several vain attempts to retain its balance the bird fluttered off into the darkness.

This is the first owl reported back from its winter abode and it is a sure sign of spring weather.

Crimean Veteran Dead.

Kingston, March 27.—Dr. John Elkington passed away at his home at Plevina, aged 79 years. He served as surgeon in the hospital during the Crimean war. He was well-known in this district.

Two Lose Lives In Fire.

Prince Albert, Sask., March 27.—Robert Drysdale and James Somestage lost their lives in a fire which at 2.30 o'clock yesterday morning gutted the Thistle Cafe on Eighth street. A number of men suffered severe injuries in the fire, these being Stanley Coleman, Rodrick Deans, Finlay MacLeod and Edward Schlimpen. The cafe was operated by Finlay MacLeod and William McEwan, and the building was owned by Thomas Manley of Prince Albert.

Causton's Slayer Gets 17 Months.

Rimouski, Que., March 27.—Eugene Banville, on trial here for the manslaughter of Ludley Causton, manager of Mark Hambourg, the pianist, who was killed by a bullet which came through the window of the coach in which he was traveling from Halifax to Montreal on the Intercolonial Railway last fall, was yesterday morning found guilty of manslaughter.

The prisoner was sentenced to 17 months in jail.

Refuse to Oust Senator.

Washington, March 27.—The Senate yesterday rejected, 29 to 27, the Jones' resolution to declare that Senator Stephenson's election was invalid. The Jones' resolution was a substitute for the investigating committee's resolution to declare that the Stephenson election was legal.

LEAVE IN A BODY.

Mine Owners Refuse to Hold Conference—Bill is Passed.

London, March 27.—A fateful day in the history of British trade struggles came to a close early this morning with the passage through Parliament by a large majority of the bill establishing in legislation the principle of a minimum wage in the country's most important industry.

The minimum wage bill passed its third reading in the House of Commons by a vote of 213 to 48, amid a scene of great excitement. The House of Lords reassembled at 2.50 o'clock to receive the bill, and on motion of Lord Herschell it passed its first reading.

Premier Asquith on leaving the House of Commons was loudly cheered by all the members.

After a strike lasting nearly a month and involving the whole coal country in untold distress, the miners have thus secured recognition of the principle which they set out to obtain. But they are still dissatisfied, because the bill does not specify the amount of the minimum wage. Thus there is no prospect of any immediate settlement of the strike.

The miners' leaders declare their determination to keep up the strike until they have secured guarantees of a minimum wage of five shillings for men, or until the district boards, as provided by the bill, arrange acceptable terms.

The Government's persistent efforts to secure an outside settlement collapsed in a most dramatic manner. Premier Asquith had the greatest difficulty in getting the owners and the men to meet yesterday, and it was only finally on the earnest persuasion of Sir Edward Grey, the Foreign Secretary, that the owners consented to confer with the men's representatives. The meeting lasted but a few minutes. The representative of the Scotch miners put forward a demand for a minimum of 5 shilling 9 pence for men and 3 shillings 5 pence for boys, whereupon the owners, protesting that they were always being faced by fresh demands, angrily broke up the conference and quitted the room, leaving Premier Asquith, Secretary Grey and Chancellor Lloyd-George thunderstruck and crestfallen at the unexpected turn of events.

It was under emotion, the result of disappointment at this scene, that the Premier went immediately to the House of Commons to announce the failure of the conference, in a speech which evoked the sympathy of the whole House.

TELEGRAPHIC BRIEFS.

Lord Strathcona remains very weak, although there is no immediate cause for apprehension.

A runaway car in a colliery at Westville, N.S., killed two men and injured a number of others.

The Hamilton Board of Control has appointed Mr. C. W. Kirkpatrick commissioner of industries.

Home rule for Scotland is the object of a bill introduced in the British Commons yesterday by Dr. Chappie.

Ernest Burley managed to escape from Chatham jail by scaling the wall during a short absence of the guard.

Alex. R. Manson, a young Englishman, was found on the C.P.R. tracks at Tilsonburg yesterday morning crushed to death.

B. B. Hirsch, a farmer of Macoun, Sask., was instantly killed at that place yesterday by the 800 flyer. He came from Perth, Ont.

Rev. William B. Findlay of St. Enoch's Church, is the man whom Toronto has chosen to be governor of its new industrial farm.

The French Government detective department will organize a division to operate in swift automobiles, to cope with the "auto bandits."

The death occurred yesterday of Mrs. Christopher Larocque, Brockville's oldest resident. She was born in the County of Glengarry, and was in her 104 year.

The Berlin Trades and Labor Council, in annual meeting last night, passed a resolution condemning the move to have the Government erect an armory in Berlin.

Theodore Candella, a North Bay Italian, charged with insulting women on the street and assaulting a policeman, was sentenced to prison for two years, less one day.

Mr. Shiverock of Hamilton was given a verdict of $5,960 against the Imperial Russian Ballet Co. for injuries sustained by the sword of one of the dancers slipping and striking him.

Arrests will be made shortly as a result of the investigation into the cause of the fire at Niagara Falls, in which two lives were lost a week ago. A firebug is under close watch by the authorities.

Police Constable Dyers was shot and almost instantly killed by Oscar Larson, a Swede in Larson's shack, near Vancouver. Later, when two other officers came to arrest Larson, he shot himself.

Christian Gottfried Albert Traeger, Radical member of the German Reichstag and "father of the House," died yesterday in his 82nd year. He collaborated in the German translation of the poems of Robert Burns and also wrote several plays.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, March 26.—There was an increased demand from foreign buyers for Manitoba spring wheat at a further advance in prices of 1½d to 2d per quarter, but the volume of business done was small, owing to the scarcity of ocean room. A sale of four loads of No. 3 northern was made to London at 40s 9d for prompt shipment. There is considerable inquiry for oats, and a large business has been worked in extra No. 1 and No. 1 feed, c.i.f. Buffalo. The local trade was more active, there being an improved demand for car lots. Business in flour for export account was quieter, but the local demand continues good. The market for butter is excited, owing to the increased scarcity of supplies, and prices have scored another sharp advance, 2c being paid by grocers for single packages. Cheese is quiet, but firm. Eggs active. Provisions stronger and more active.

Must Give Passes to Legislators.

Providence, R.I., March 26.—A public utilities bill, the failing of which is a clause making it obligatory for all railroads in the state to furnish passes to state officers and members of the Legislature, passed the House yesterday by a viva voce vote, after a long debate. The bill provides for the creation of a public utilities commission of three, which is given liberal authority in regulating public service corporations.

Aviator Killed In Wife's Presence.

Dusseldorf, Germany, March 27.—The German aviator Kleine, yesterday fell from a height of 200 feet and was killed. The aviator's wife and child witnessed the accident, the cause of which is not known.

Chicago Packers Acquitted.

Chicago, March 27.—Not guilty was the verdict which the jury returned yesterday in the trial of the ten Chicago packers accused by the Government of violating the criminal sections of the Sherman Anti-Trust Act.

The verdict was returned before U. S. Judge Carpenter after the jury had deliberated over seventeen hours.

The trial has been in progress several weeks, the defence submitting no evidence.

Western Fair Asks Grant.

London, March 27.—It was decided at a meeting of the Western Fair Board held yesterday to ask the City Council for assistance to the extent of $6,000 to make the necessary repairs and improvements to the fair grounds to put them in shape for the coming exhibition.

It is thought that the board will require $40,000 to carry on the work of the exhibit to the fullest extent.

Kingston's New Hotel.

Kingston, March 27.—C. E. Proenig, the Boston capitalist at the back of the new hotel proposition here, says the work on the hotel will be started as soon as possible. It will be completed by November. This is the hotel the ratepayers guaranteed the company bonds for.

The Writers.

Marie Corelli is a great student of Plato and a constant reader of the Bible.

Mrs. Arthur Stannard (John Strange Winter), whose death occurred in London recently, was one of the few women in England to wear a monocle.

Max Lowenthal, who is referred to in the Berlin newspapers as "the nestor of German journalism," celebrated his ninetieth birthday in that city on Jan. 22 last.

Algernon Charles Swinburne labored hard and unsuccessfully to become a playwright. The poet told Forbes-Robertson finally, when he gave it up, that his efforts had inspired him with profound respect for the man who could write an indifferent farce.

An Event In Rome.

Rome was visited by a snowfall March 9, 1894, the first in 240 years.

Counterpane.

The word "counterpane" is a corruption of "counterpoint," which is itself a corruption of the Latin term "culcita," which means a wadded wrapper or quilt. When the stitches were arranged in patterns it was called "culcita puncta," which in French became "courte pointe," corrupted into "contra pointe, counterpoint," where point is pronounced "poyn," corrupted into "pane."

STOMACH LIVER LUNGS

Each of the chief organs of the body is a link in the Chain of Life. A chain is no stronger than its weakest link, the body no stronger than its weakest organ. If there is weakness of stomach, liver or lungs, there is a weak link in the chain of life which may snap at any time. Often this so-called "weakness" is caused by lack of nutrition, the result of weakness or disease of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. Diseases and weaknesses of the stomach and its allied organs are cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. When the weak or diseased stomach is cured, diseases of other organs which now receive from the stomach but which have their origin in a diseased condition of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, are cured also.

The strong man has a strong stomach. Take the above recommended "Discovery" and you may have a strong stomach and a strong body.

PETERBOROUGH WEDNESDAY MARCH 27 1912

MARRIED 60 YEARS

Mr. and Mrs. John Sanders, of Warsaw, Celebrate Their Diamond Wedding Yesterday

FRIENDS WERE SURPRISED

Examiner Special:

WARSAW, March 26.— Mr. and Mrs. John Sanders celebrated the 60th anniversary of their wedding on Thursday of last week, and in accordance with their plans it was a quiet affair, lacking the festivities which are usually connected with a diamond wedding.

A few friends had been invited to a "quilting," and a very pleasant afternoon and evening were enjoyed. No mention was made until quite late of the fact that the day was the 60th anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Sanders' wedding.

Owing to unfortunate circumstances the immediate family were not present ,arrangements having been made previously to hold a family re-union at Easter-tide. With the arrival of the evening mail came handsome remembrances and a substantial cheque from absent friends.

MARRIED AT EVESHAM

Mr. and Mrs. Sanders, whose ages are 84 and 81 respectively, were married at the village church near their home at Evesham, Worcestershire, England, and emigrated in 1874, landing at Portland, Maine, on April 4, of that year. They came direct to Warsaw, and have since lived in this neighborhood.

The members of the family are Mrs. Searight, Norwood; Mrs. B. James, of Toronto; Alfred, Peterborough; David, Toronto; Thomas, Seattle, Wash., and Frank, who resides at home; Two garndsons are at Ann Arbor, Mich., engaged in study, one in law and the other in civil engineering.

Mr. and Mrs. Sanders are most worthy of the respect and friendship they enjoy and it is the wish of all that they may live to continue reaping the pleasures to which they are heirs.

The Funeral Of Mr. J. E. Carscallen

The remains of John E. Carscallen, who dropped dead at his work on Saturday last, were escorted to the 8.45 C.P.R. train last evening, where they were conveyed to Newburg for interment. Service was held at the house yesterday afternoon by the brethren of L. O. L. No. 1175 to which the late brother belonged. Rev. L. G. Brown of St. James' Methodist church, Rev. Mr. Cragg of Mark street and Rev. W. C. Riddiford of Park street Baptist church were present and officiated at the service. A large turn out of the brethren of West Peterborough formed in a body about 2.10 p.m. and proceeded to the home of the departed brother, 512 Parnell street, and after the service they returned to the hall on Simcoe street.

The pallbearers consisted of the Black Knights, of which Bro. Carscallen was a member. The deepest sympathy is felt for the bereaved ones.

AN EFFECTIVE "AD"

Board Opposite C. G. E. Gate for Park Street Baptist Church

If the employees at the Canadian General Electric Works needed a reminder in regard to the services at the Park street Baptist church, the pastor, Rev. W. C. Riddiford has supplied it. Just opposite the C. G. E. gate there was a fine space for advertising that was going to waste and Mr. Riddiford had a black board prepared and placed in position so that no one can fail to see it. It is of good size and the white letters on the black background stand out very prominently. There is plenty of room at the bottom for the announcement of special services or other notices. The hours of the morning, afternoon and evening services are given on the board.

Verbal Bombardment Of East City School Site At Indignation Meeting

Oppose Selection of Armour Property for New Public School Location and Pass Resolution to be Forwarded to the Board of Education---Prefer the Old Site---Some of the Objections.

Resolved "that this meeting of East City ratepayers place itself on record as being opposed to the selection of the Armour site for a new Public School; and of being in favour of retaining the present location, with the addition of adjoining properties to provide for a new building, and that a copy of this resolution be forwarded to the Board of Education."

This motion, moved by Mr. A. J. Carruthers, seconded by Mr. Jas. McDonald, was passed, with only five opposing, at a meeting of East City ratepayers in the old Ashburnham town hall last night. The meeting had been called to obtain the opinion of the East Ward residents upon the action of the Board of Education in selecting the Armour lot at the corner of Concession and Hunter streets, with the ultimate idea of abandoning the present site.

There were between forty and fifty residents of the Ward present, including a representation of the gentler sex, who appeared to be in favour of retaining the present site, judging from the fact that as one they supported the motion.

Mr. W. Scott, Chairman.

On motion of Mr. Carruthers, seconded by Ald. Morgan, Mr. Wm. Scott was appointed chairman, and Mr. R. B. Rogers, secretary, for the meeting.

In opening the discussion, Mr. Scott said that his children were past the school age, but he was concerned for his neighbours and the ratepayers in general, in East City. "I think it is a mistake to change the site," he said. There is the difficulty of getting up there. The snow gets deep in winter and it is badly exposed to the winds from the west and north. It would be almost impossible for children to play out of doors in the cold weather. In fact I think they would have to get some kind of shelter if the little ones were to be outside. The location is exposed so much that I think the heating would add considerably to the fuel bill. The school would be higher than St. Joseph's Hospital, and I understand that the fuel for that institution is a rather serious consideration. The canal would be nearby and children are always attracted by the water. I think there would be a danger of them straying over to the Canal.

Mr. John Butcher Opposed.

Mr. John Butcher: "It was said that there would be no way of accomodating the children while the new school was being erected, if the old site were retained. There are two lots to the west and one to the north that could be obtained, and the present building could be used, and the new one could be built alongside it. The present grounds are more central than those up on the hill although they may not suit the people in the north part of the ward. I would not like to put my opinion against those of the Board of Education, who have looked over this matter, but with their power of expropriation they should be able to secure additional property to the old site to make it large enough.

Ald. Morgan Against Change.

Ald. Morgan—"I am glad so many of the residents of the ward have come out to this meeting. After it is all past and gone you will find the biggest howl you ever heard from all over the ward when they begin to realize what this change means. The site is the highest of any public building in Peterborough. The children going to school over here are from four and five years up to twelve and thirteen. There is not a parent here who would be satisfied to have his children go up there. The wind blows through from Bethlehem clear over and down that hill.

People Will Move Away.

People intending to move in here, or to buy property here, think first of the school accommodation, and I know people who are going to move over town if the school is moved up there. We'll be left here decidedly alone. If they build up there I think it will only be a matter of time until they will have to build a kindergarten down on the level for the little tots. This winter is not more severe than ordinary, and it is not possible to go out there and play on cold days. Children at school do not put on their hats and coats when they go outside. That might be alright down here, but it wouldn't up there. They could buy lots around the present site and provide two and a half acres and accommodation for the children during the next 35 years.

Mr. Frank Adams.

Mr. Adams stated that he was in favour of retaining the present site. He believed the Board of Education had felt that they were acting in the best interests of the municipality, when they made the selection of the Armour site. The first school was built there, in 1863. He pointed out that it was the present tendency to provide large playgrounds with schools, and one in Toronto boasted of the most extensive grounds in Canada—six acres. The old custom was to pay but little attention to this matter and even in rural districts, where land was plentiful, the school house was usually out against the roadside. But now the Boards seem to be rushing to the other extreme.

Six Acres in New Site.

"I believe that Inspector Hughes, of Toronto, advised the Board not to take less than six acres. One reason advanced for choosing the new site was that too much was asked for the property adjoining the old site. I fancy that if a valuator had been put on there the residents concerned would have accepted his figures. Two and a half to three acres should be enough for the needs of a school. The new building would not interfere with the progress of teaching, as it could be placed more in the centre of the lot.

A Business Proposition.

The Armour lot was quoted at $3,300, and the property adjoining the old school would cost about $6,500. By selecting the former the Board would save quite a sum that could be used for purchasing a lot in the West Ward. If 2 1-2 acres will be large enough for the West Ward, it seems to me that the same amount would suffice here. I would prefer the school being built on the present site. I am not so much interested now, as all my children, but one, have graduated to the Collegiate Institute. For sentimental, and other reasons, I would prefer to retain the old site.

One in Favour.

Mr. Wm. H. Pretty considered that a pessimistic view was being taken of the new site. He considered it one of the finest locations in the city, and that with the erection of a new bridge the East Ward was likely to become the residential section of Peterborough. The cold and wind might be obviated by the architect. The older children should be taught to act in a brotherly and sisterly manner toward the younger ones and to look after them more on their way to and from school. He had seen the children playing on the hill during the cold weather and had taken snap shots of

ABOLITION OF THE BAR LEADER ROWELL'S PLATFORM

Supplemented by Other Forms of Restriction and Control, Upon the Residue of the Liquor Traffic—Keeps His Promise to the Electors

In conformity with his promise made during the general elections, Mr. N. W. Rowell, Liberal Leader, sent to the Clerk of the Legislature yesterday afternoon notice of the following resolution:

Moved by Mr. Rowell: That in the opinoin of the House the public interests demand:

1—The immediate abolition of the bar.

2—Such other restrictions upon the residue of the liquor traffic as experience may show to be necessary to limit its operation and be effective to remedy its evils.

3—The strict enforcement of the law by officials in sympathy with law enforcement, and the elimination of political influence from the administration of the law.

4—Regulation and inspection of all houses of public entertainment so as to ensure reasonable accommodation for the traveling public.

APPROVED OF PLANS

Their Final Acceptance Depends on the Specification Figures Which Are Being Prepared by the Architect

SCHOOL BOARD MET

Mr. F. Bartlett's plans for the proposed new East and West Ward schools were formally approved of by the Board of Education, which met in special session last evening. While awaiting the belated arrival of Mr. Bartlett, the architect who has been intrusted with the work of preparing the plans, Dr. Morrison, chairman of the special Building committee, announced that the secretary had been instructed to advise the solicitor as regards the securing of the lot for the new East City school site, and that things in connection with the building of the new school were beginning to assume a definite shape.

The chairman, Mr. John Crane, stated that he was in receipt of a letter from Mr. E. Courtney, of East City, in which the writer expresses the desire to be placed on record as favouring the proposed new school site.

Plans Sanctioned.

With the arrival of Mr. Bartlett, armed with a batch of drawings and some samples of masonry in the form of bricks, the discussion reverted to the proposed plan of the school buildings as submitted by the architect. Pencilled drawings representing the perspective, plan and longitudinal sections of the proposed new buildings littered the table, and for a time the discussion as to what should constitute an up-to-date school building, was a spirited one. It finally ended in the plans being sanctioned by the Board, and they will be accepted subject to the estimate of cost, which will be determined when the specifications are to hand. The architect was instructed to proceed with the work of preparing the specifications and they will be submitted to the approval of the Board at an early date.

There were present at the meeting, Chairman Mr. John Crane, School Trustees Messrs. V. Eastwood, R. Fair, Col. Miller, Dr. Burnham, W. H. Hill, T. H. Adams, Dr. Morrison and B. F. Ackerman.

FIERCEST BATTLE OF THE WAR.

Special to The Examiner.

LONDON, ENG., MARCH 27.—Advices here are that the fiercest battle of the Turkish Italian war has just been fought in Tripoli, when the Italians, caught in a trap, fought desperately, being defeated with the loss of twenty-seven officers and thirty-five hundred men killed and wounded. The Turks lost several hundred men also.

Strikers To Take Ballot

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, ENG., MARCH 27—Within twenty-four hours it is expected the goverment's minimum wage bill will become law. But the miners will not return to work as a body until they are ordered to do so by the strike leaders. The Miners' Federation meets this morning and will probably arrange to submit a ballot to the strikers as to the acceptance of the terms of the minimum wage bill. This will take two or three days. In the meantime the strike funds are in cases depleted and cases of real want are increasing by tens of thousands daily. The opposition papers this morning are renewing their demands that the government force the operation of mines by the employment of troops if necessary.

SKIN SOFT AS A CHILD'S

"I was a great sufferer from eczema and salt rheum for years," writes Mr. John W. Mann, Lunenburg, N.S. "Five years ago three boxes of Dr. Chase's Ointment cured me and the old trouble never came back. I always say a good word now, and I shall always say a good word for this Ointment."

Opinions Of Prominent Men On Leader Rowell's "Abolish The Bar" Resolution

His Policy is Endorsed by Many Temperance Leaders---Bishop Sweeny, Father Minehan, Warden Gilmour and Other Well Known Men Discuss the Question.

The following expressions of opinion upon Mr. Rowell's temperance policy, as announced elsewhere in this issue, are given as those of men well qualified from their relative positions and relations to give utterances of interest and import:

REV. DR. CARMAN.

The veteran General Superintendent of the Methodist Church, Rev. Dr. Albert Carman, said last night: "We temperance people have been declaring for years that our main objective, this side of the total prohibition of the liquor traffic, is the abolition of the bar by act of Parliament, and the necessary legislation to make that abolition effective. This is not at all a question of party politics, as matters stand, but it is and has been set forward by us as a question for the body of the people. Only in the strong convictions of the people as a whole can it make its stand and hold fast. Had the Conservative party given it to us, then there are our vows and bonds; had the Liberal party given it, there had been our bonds. If both gave it, we had our choice; if either gave it, we had our choice of the two or could have struck out for ourselves. One thing sure: if such a proposal materializes, from whatever side or whatever source it comes, it must result in party disruption and in no poltical alliance. If Mr. Whitney offers it to the country—and he is perfectly able to do so—Conservatives by the scores and by the hundreds, if true to their resolutions and their promises, will for the liquor interests desert his standard, and if they vote at all will find someone else to vote for. If Mr. Rowell should put forward the abolition of the bar, and proper consequent legislation, as a distinguishing plank of his platform. Liberals by scores and hundreds will refuse to march under that flag. It is not a party question, it is the people's question. The introduction of so great a moral issue will disarrange existing party alliances, and put us on patriotic and philanthropic lines."

THE BISHOP OF TORONTO.

The Bishop of Toronto, Rt. Rev. Dr. J. Fielding Sweeny, was the last Vice-President of the Church of England Temperance Society, and during all the years of his existence one of its most active and most earnest propagandists, being known as most cordially in favour of all temperance and moral and social reform measures. When Bishop Sweeny was interviewed he drew attention to the report of the Synod of the Diocese of Toronto, which expressed his own views as Chairman of the Synod. The report was presented at the last meeting of the Synod, in 1911. The committee, his Lordship pointed out, "reported with gratification the continued progress of the local option movement in Ontario, and expressed itself to the effect that the campaign was making itself felt in the lessening of drunkenness and crime. To quote from the report," he continued: "From all parts of the Province come encouraging reports as to the splendid results that follow the closing of the bar." The clause was adopted, and the Bishop said that with it he was in perfect accord. He made it clear that in so speaking he was dealing with the question, as always in such matters, from a strictly non-partisan point of view, and as purely a social and ethical problem.

REV. J. W. PEDLEY.

Rev. J. W. Pedley, pastor of Western Congregational Church, said: "I think it is a good policy. I think the leader of any party in this Province, if he can once make the people believe that he is sincere, and attaches himself to that policy, other things being equal, will carry the country. I do not think there can be a stronger plank in any policy than that one. If a man building a platform puts that in, it is one of the best planks, and is a winner, in my judgment. I think the sentiment of Ontario, at least outside the large cities, and even in the cities, is favourable to such a measure. I am not prepared to say it is ready to go in for total prohibition or any extreme measure, but I believe any man who has the confidence of the people will receive a strong support in that position anyway. I think that everybody is agreed that banishment of the bar and open treating would put some check upon the reckless methods of the liquor business, and that the time has come to do so."

MR. W. R. BROCK.

Mr. W. R. Brock, head of the firm of W. R. Brock & Company, said: "Personally, I am very strongly opposed to the bar. But this appears to me a matter of party policy, and I am not a very good one to give an opinion on that question. I am not a Reformer, but am strongly in favour of a good, strong Opposition. I think somebody has to make a start, but I do not think the person who does make the start should back out because he cannot carry his whole party with him."

ARCHDEACON CODY.

Ven. Archdeacon H. J. Cody, rector of St. Paul's Church, said: "I hope the matter of dealing with the treating system will be taken up by the House regardless of party politics, and discussed on its merits. I don't think that matters of temperance reform should be regarded as matters of party politics; they are great moral issues bearing on the lives of the people, and it is not to be thought that all those favouring those reforms are on one side of politics and all those opposing them on the other."

FATHER MINEHAN.

One of the most active temperance workers in Toronto for a number of years past has been Rev. Lancelot Minehan, pastor of St. Peter's Church. Father Minehan said: "I am fully in favour of that policy. I think it is well to stick to it, and not go any farther, because that is the longest step forward we have taken, and there is no use confusing it with other things. I am in favour of that clear-cut issue. Of course, in order to fight successfully a party must have an up-to-date policy in other matters; it can't go to the country on temperance alone. A man may be successful as a temperance man, but fail in other respects. That is an excellent plank as far as it goes. For my part, I should be delighted to see any party take that issue, together with a progressive platform in other matters as well for the benefit of the country."

CHIEF INSPECTOR HUGHES.

Inspector J. L. Hughes: "I said years ago that if Hon. George W. Ross included woman suffrage and prohibition in his platform he could stay in power as long as he wished. I say now that I am with any leader, no matter what his politics, who is out to banish the bar. Mr. Rowell might be beaten once or possibly twice in appealing to the Province on the policy of banishing the bar, but he will eventually win out."

HON. W. J. HANNA.

Hon. W. J. Hanna, Provincial Secretary, who is charged with the administration of the license law in the Province, said: "Any policy which leaves the retail and wholesale licenses and everything else, confining itself only to cutting off the bar license, is a joke."

WARDEN GILMOUR.

Dr. J. T. Gilmour, Warden of the Central Prison, when asked his opinion of the abolition of the bars, said: "I think it is the essence. If you abolish the bar you abolish the treating system, and if you abolish the treating system you abolish the worst feature of intemperance."

SIR JAMES WHITNEY.

Sir James Whitney was not inclined to discuss the matter at length. His terse comment was: "I am lost in wonderment."

CAUGHT BY AN AVALANCHE

Special Wire to The Examiner.

VIENNA, AUSTRIA, MARCH 27.—The bodies of a party of nine skiers who were overcome by an avalanche near here, were discovered to-day on the side of a mountain. All the faces bore a happy smile, as if death was instantaneous. Mr. Hacker, a Canadian, was one of the party.

Secretary of Ontario Alliance Endorses Mr. Rowell's Pronouncement

Examiner Special:

TORONTI, MARCH 27.—"It is very good," said Mr. Ben Spence, Secretary of the Ontario Temperance Alliance this morning, regarding Leader Rowell's abolish the bar pronouncement yesterday. "It will be acceptable to all temperance men in Ontario, I think. We would, of course, prefer total prohibition, but as eighty-four per cent. of the liquor traffic of Ontario is carried on in bars, we must be thankful for any measure that will provide for the wiping out of such a large per cent. of the traffic. Much will depend of course on what measures Mr. Rowell proposes for the enforcement of the bar abolition and proper control of what other means of liquor traffic are left."

TO-DAY'S COURT

Ten and Thirty Day Sentences Handed Out This Morning

BLACKLISTER FINED $10

"Why, you're a stranger here," commented the Magistrate and he looked hard at Alfred Cooney, who hung onto the dock rail during this morning's session of the police court.

"He is just off the black list," explained the Chief.

Cooney faced a charge of being drunk and disorderly in a public place yesterday. He pleaded guilty.

"Makes a man a speak, takes away his liberty and leads him to do wrong," was Cooney's finding as regards the working of the Indian list act. He did not approve of the Chief's suggestion to have him again placed on the "list." He showed a decided antipathy to the Act, as indicated in his remarks to the court.

"Did you get a little every day while on the list?" queried the Magistrate.

"Yes, lots of it," replied the prisoner.

"It's not much use wasting powder and shot on him," commented his Worship.

$2 to be paid forthwith, in default of payment ten days in gaol.

"Ten days for me," remarked Cooney as he descended the stairs to the tune of "Has Anybody Here Been Kelly."

30 Days in Gaol.

Robert Shearer entered a plea of guilty to a charge of being under the influence of liquor while on the prohibited list.

"Where did you get your liquor?" queried the Chief.

"I met a man," began Shearer.

"Oh, never mind," interposed the Chief.

$10 to be paid forthwith or thirty days in gaol, came from the court.

Another Blacklister.

"A good scrubbing and ten days in gaol would do him good," commented the Magistrate in dealing with the case of William Kelly, a back woodsman. Kelly was charged with being drunk and disorderly. He was fined $2 to be paid forthwith, or ten days. As his monetary interests did not extend beyond ten cents, he will have to accept the hospitality of the county gaol for ten days at least.

Case Settled Out of Court.

A wages case in which a local concern figured as defendant, was settled out of court. In order to save annoyance, the costs, amounting in all to $6.80 were paid by the defendant.

Mr. D. O'Connell appeared for the plaintiff and Mr. Basil Hall for the defendants.

BUY IN VANCOUVER

Fastest Growing City in the Fast Growing West

Vancouver, B.C., gained in population over 374 % in the past ten years. One transcontinental railroad caused the growth. To-day, nine transcontinental systems will make Vancouver their Terminus. The Panama Canal will turn the prows of hundreds of steamers towards Vancouver, to receive the thousands of tons of wheat from the Prairie Provinces. Vancouver will be the greatest Port of Entry in Canada. British Columbia, the Garden Province of the Mighty West, pours its wealth into Vancouver. Those who purchase well-located Vancouver Property at present prices must, of necessity, reap a mighty harvest. Most delightful climate in Canada. The millions now being spent by railroads for terminals—the great industrial development just commencing, all will attract a host of people to the city, and there is every indication that real estate values will show a great increase during the next ten years. Well-located lots, $125; terms as low as $10 down and $5 monthly. Our beautifully illustrated booklet shows Vancouver of Twenty, ten years ago, and, as it appears to-day. It is incontrovertible evidence of the soundness of Vancouver Real Estate from an investment standpoint. Sent free with valuable maps drawn to exact scale showing relative positions of different sections of the city. In the book are pages of facts, indisputable tables of interesting statistics, and sound, business reasons why you should invest in Vancouver. RECOGNITION.

The Ontario Government has done well in deciding to financially recognize Hon. Adam Beck's services in connection with his work as chairman of the Hydro-Electric Commission. The Government could well afford to do so. While Hon. Mr. Beck being a minister without portfolio, was working for his mere sessional indemnity, for the success of the scheme, he was doing it in face of the passive opposition of salaried Government members, drawing from $9,000 (the Premier) to $6,000 (the other ministers) per year. The labourer is worthy of his hire, applies to Hon. Mr. Beck.

"STICK TO THE LAST."

There is little reason for refusing to admit that the Borden government's "good roads" proposal is a degradation of Federal functions—reducing Dominion politics to the level of ward politics. It amounts to the use of federal funds for the purpose of building up a political machine in connection with the administration of purely municipal matters. By the Confederation Act, the building and maintenance of highways is assigned to the provinces, and by the latter treated as a matter of municipal concern. It seems to be a mischievous precedent to divert federal funds from federal purposes. The Confederation Act provides for provincial subsidies, but it also provides that these shall be under provincial control. It certainly never was contemplated by the architects of Confederation that federal ministers should become ward politicians and assume a control in municipal matters with which they have constitutionally no more right to meddle than they have with the private business of the ordinary citizen. No one will disparage the importance of good roads; but it is possible to pay too high a price for them, apart from the actual money cost. Taking the building of highways out of the hands of the provinces is bad enough, but using them to gain or promote party advantages is michievous to the last degree. If the Dominion government wants to help the provinces to build improved highways, a harmless subterfuge would be to make provincial grants in the form of increased subsidy, distributed to the several provinces, as the present subsidies are, on the basis of population. A government that abandons the plain duty of providing for the national naval defence, cannot very consistently busy itself in building country roads in the municipalities, which constitutionally it has no right to do. The provinces of the Dominion are not so reduced in circumstances, that they cannot provide for doing their municipal work; and the Dominion, as buoyant as its revenue receipts are, has need of every dollar for providing the media of transportation in the national interest, to an extent to promote the prosperity of the several provinces. The Borden government will find itself fully employed if it properly performs the duties constitutionally assigned to it. The wise shoemaker sticks to his last. In these "ne temere" days, another "ne" may be pertinently submitted, "ne sutor."

EDITORIAL NOTES

In the Province of Ontaroo the number of tavern licenses has been reduced from 6,185, in 1875, to 1,800 in 1912, an average reduction of 118.5 per year. At this rate licenses will become extinct in fifteen or sixteen years.

In the breezy West the newspapers don't mince words in expressing their opinions. The Pincher Creek Echo thus expresses itself in regard to the Minister of Trade and Commerce: "Honourable George Eulas Foster, Minister of Trade and Commerce, says the farmers should take the matter of car shortage, etc., to the Lord in prayer. And the old duffer is right. As long as he has anything to do with the affairs of the country, it is a case of "God help the farmers," all right."

WHAT THE CHRISTIAN GUARDIAN THINKS.

The Christian Guardian, official organ of the Methodist Church in Canada, the numerically strongest church denomination in Ontario, edited by Rev. Dr. Creighton, in this week's issue, published yesterday, in view of Mr. Rowell's declaration, subsequently made in the Legislature, prophetically says:

We are not specially interested in the welfare of any political party, either in Dominion or Provincial politics, but we think we see bright prospects ahead of the party in Ontario to-day that will stake its future on an "abolish the bar" policy, and will commit itself to it whole-heartedly and without reserve. There has been really a marvellous growth in temperance sentiment in the Province during the past few years. And that growth of conviction must find expression in some advanced movements for temperance reform.

The "abolish the bar" policy while somewhat radical, is a peculiarly sane and level-headed method of facing the evils of the drink traffic as they exist among us today It seems pre-eminently the next step to be taken in temperance reform, at least in this Province, and as such it will make a strong appeal to a united conviction in favour of temperance advance.

If Mr. Rowell, or, for that matter, Sir James Whitney either, will come out straightforwardly in favour of the abolishing of the bar, and a careful and conscientious supervising of the traffic in liquor that will remain, he will succeed in rousing such enthusiasm in the moral reform forces of this Province as no politician in many years has done.

The Province, if we can form any estimate of the situation, is waiting for just such an advanced proposal, and will be ready to give strong support and backing to the political party that will honestly and unreservedly make it. Politics altogether aside, we would like to see an abolish-the-bar plank in the platform of either party. We are looking hopefully to see what the next few days will bring forth.

THE NAVAL POLICY OF CANADA.

From Le Tempe, (French-Canadian), Ottawa.

The non-committal attitude of the present Government on the naval policy and the part Canada should take in the defence of the Empire is humiliating to every true Canadian and gives hopes to the enemies of Britain that the greatest nation within the Empire, Canada, will remain neutral; at any rate, she does not approach the subject with any spirit of enthusiasm, or in a spirit to do her share to preserve and maintain in all her glory and prestige the dominant power of Britain. "Tim[illegible] "Time," further "Time," is re[illegible] by the Government of Canad[illegible] to ascertain her duty. The naval question is not new, the subject of the defence of the Empire is not new, and no Government of Canada is worthy or capable of being intrusted with the administration of its affairs that is unable to form a firm, resolute policy on this vital question of what Canada should do, or contribute, towards the common defence.

We believe, even at the dying hours of this session, were the Government to call for an appropriation to build at once a Dread nought, or a war vessel exceeding in tonnage, greater in size, fleeter in speed, than anything now afloat, and which will bear the name of Canada to the four winds of the world and auxiliary to the fighting fleet of Britain, whose effectiveness and destruction to be equal to anything afloat, we believe this act on the part of Canada would be a most effective contribution to the peace of the world, and we further believe, except from the Nationalist wing, such a policy would secure the almost unanimous support of the Parliament of Canada.

PROGRESS OF TEMPERANCE LEGISLATION

The following is a succinct summary of various legislative and other measures adopted since three years before Confederation, for the legalised control of the liquor traffic, and assumedly in the interests of temperance:

1864—Parliament of the Province of Canada passed the Temperance Act, generally known as the Dunkin Act. Under this Act local authorities could secure prohibition of the sale of liquor in less than five gallon quantities. It was put into operation in a number of municipalities and counties of Ontario, but all the counties have since repealed it, but it is still in operation in four townships and one incoroporated village.

1878—The Dominion Parliament passed the Canada Temperance Act, usually called the "Scott Act," giving counties and cities the right to prohibit the retail sale of liquor. This Act, which provided severer penalties than the Dunkin Act, was adopted and subsequently repealed in 25 counties and two cities of Ontario.

1890—Ontario revives former local option legislation.

1894—(January 1.) A plebisicite was taken in Ontario on the question of prohibition, and the result showed:

For prohibition	138,489
Against	110,720
Majority for	31,769

In addition to taking the plebisicite, a question was submitted to the courts as to how far a Provincial Legislature could go in the direction of prohibition, and whether the legislation revived in 1890 was constitutional. Sir Oliver Mowat said:

"If the decision of the Privy Council should be that the Province has the jurisdiction to pass a prohibitory liquor law, I will introduce such a bill in the following session if I am then at the head of the Government."

1895—Dominion Royal Commission issued a majority report opposing prohibition, and a minority report favouring it. No action was taken by Parliament.

1896—Privy Council declares Local Option legislation valid, but lawyers did not agree as to whether the decision affirmed or denied the right of a Province to pass a general prohibition law. A subsequent decision of the Privy Council in a Manitoba case made it clear that Provinces had the right.

1898—(September 29.) Dominion plebiscite taken on question of total prohibition for all Canada. It resulted in a majority of 13,687 for prohibition, the Province of Quebec giving a large majority against, and all the other Provinces a majority for.

The vote for Ontario was:

For	164,498
Against	115,284
Majority for	39,214

1902—Ontario Legislature passed Mr. Ross' bill for prohibition, but made its going into operation contingent upon a ratifying vote of the Provincial electors. Vote was taken December 4, 1902, with following result:

For new law	199,749
Against	96,201
Majority for	96,201

But the law required that 212,723 votes should be recorded in its favour, which number was equal to a majority of the votes cast at the preceding Provincial general election, hence the law failed to be ratified.

1904—(November 23). Liberal convention in Massey Hall, at which a committee recommended the convention to adopt a policy of temperance reform, which was submitted in detail.

1906—Whitney Government amends Local Option legislation, by making the submission of by-laws obligatory upon Councils when petitioned for by 25 per cent. of the electors, and by providing that a three-fifths vote would be required to put the law in force.

1912—Local option legislation in force.

Prohibitory by-laws	311
No licenses	152
	463

(One hundred and eighteen more would be added to the 311 if a bare majority, and not three-fifths, were sufficient). There are now only 385 cities, towns, villages and townships in Ontario, out of 898, which have licensed taverns.

License Reduction.

The tavern licenses granted in Ontario have decreased from over 6,000 in 1875 to 1,800 now. At intervals of five-year periods the numbers of bars in Ontario have been as follows:

1875	6,185 licenses
1880	4,020 licenses
1885	3,970 licenses
1890	3,580 licenses
1895	3,151 licenses
1900	2,950 licenses
1905	2,836 licenses
1912 (May 1)	1,800 licenses

GOVERNMENT INVASION OF PROVINCIAL FUNCTIONS

The Hon. Frank Cochrane may not be a heaven-born statesman, but he knows how to use the weapon of political warfare to the advantage of his party. Mr. Borden's proposal to earmark a portion of the abundant revenue of the Dominion for the improvement of the country's roads was an excellent one, and had it been carried out as everyone supposed it would be—by a specific per capita grant to the Provinces—there would have been general approval. But the Hon. Frank Cochrane was concerned chiefly with the building of a highway to power. In Northern Ontario he had crushed out opposition to the Whitney Government beneath the road roller. The colonization road grants there are the most powerful lever in the hands of the party machine, and in oversight of that machine Mr. Cochrane learned what road-building might do toward the retention of power.

The mental processes of the Minister of Railways are direct and easily followed. Clause six in the bill now before Parliament for highway improvement represents Mr. Cochrane's first move in the direction of extending the Northern Ontario political roads all over Canada to the glory of Frank Cochrane and for the good of the Tory party. The Minister by the clause takes power to build roads in any part of the Dominion. That Mr. Cochrane, instead of handing over the road grants to the Provinces to supplement their expenditures, would spend the money himself in all cases where the Provincial Government is not Conservative needs no argument. The political career of the Minister of Railways has made it quite apparent that generosity to opponents is not one of his virtues. While his leader is proposing to provide means for the improvement of Canada's backward roads, Mr. Cochrane is busy building up machinery for dispensing patronage on a scale never before attempted in this country.

Provincial rights are nothing to him. Since Confederation the Provinces and the municipalities have controlled the highways and have built and maintained them. The intrusion of the Dominion as an active factor in road-building would confuse the situation greatly. The townships, the counties, the Provinces, and the Dominion would all have authority to build at will. There would be feverish activity at election time and utter neglect between elections. If the Dominion Government really wants to aid in the construction of permanent roads it will pool the Federal grants with the money available from Provincial and municipal sources, and, instead of going out of its sphere to build and mend highways all over Canada—a function clearly that of a local Government—it will by inspection and close oversight see that value is obtained for the money spent on the roads.

The majority in the Senate which forced amendment of the highways bill in the direction of safeguarding Provincial rights did not do so lightly, and will not lightly yield. It has behind it the enthusiastic support of Liberals in the Commons, and will have the support of the country when the issue is made plain. The Hon. Frank Cochrane cannot be permitted to nullify the Confederation pact merely that he may crush his party opponents beneath the steam roller of a political road-building system. The Cochrane idea is too crude to fool the people.—Globe.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

WESTERBY KNOCKED RYAN OUT IN THE ELEVENTH

Edmunds Was Disqualified and Lost His Bout With Hudson —Good Programme at the Grand Opera House Last Night—Westerby-Ryan Bout Was a Cracker-jack.

Although the main bout between Artie Edmunds of Toronto and Tony Hudson of Toronto at the Grand last night ended rather unsatisfactorily, there was a great programme on the cards and in the battle between Harry Westerby of Toronto and George (Kid) Ryan of Rochester, which the Toronto boy won by the knockout route in the eleventh round, the crowd saw one of the liveliest and prettiest bouts ever staged in this city. The mill was easily worth the price of admission alone and the fight fans were delighted with the exhibition.

The Edmunds-Hudson main bout, which was scheduled to go ten rounds terminated suddenly in the fourth, when Referee Eugene Hurtubise disqualified Edmunds for hitting in the clinches. The decision was perfectly correct and was popular with the audience. Hurtubise had warned the men several times about hitting in the clinches, but in the fourth round Edmunds dropped his opponent with several jabs to the jaw while they were clinched. Not only was this the case, but from the side it looked as if Edmunds had hit Hudson when the latter's knee was on the ground, which of course constitutes a foul. Edmunds was very sore at the decision and appealed to Hudson, who stated that no foul had been committed. However, the crowd was thoroughly satisfied with Referee Hurtubise's decision which was roundly cheered. The men wanted to go on, but the police refused to allow the bout to proceed further, an action in which they were thoroughly justified. As far as the crowd was concerned, they were quite satisfied to have the bout settled by the referee's decision.

As to the bout itself it promised to be a corker. Edmunds gave away a dozen pounds to the husky Hudson but in spite of that the Pocket Hercules was doing most of the leading. He knocked Hudson down for the count at the end of the third round. It was not the open bout that the Westerby-Ryan mill was, but was marked by continuous clinching and Referee Hurtubise had his hands full in keeping the men apart. It looked like Edmunds' bout until he was disqualified.

The bout between Harry Westerby of Toronto and Kid Ryan of Rochester was a cracker-jack from start to finish. The boys were willing and eager and carried the fight to each other all the way. Each was willing to take a punch any old time for a chance to hand one back and they exchanged wallops in lively fashion Ryan, who was five or six pounds lighter than the hard-hitting Westerby and was in addition badly handicapped by an injured hand, showed lots of speed and cleverness and for the first seven or eight rounds would have earned the decision, although he had, to take a terrific body punishment from the Toronto boy. The latter wore his man down with his hard drives to the body, but Ryan fought him back fiercely in four or five brilliant rallies which had the crowd agog with excitement.

It was hammer and tongs, biff-bang all through the struggle, and was by long odds the best bout ever seen here. Ryan hurt his hand again in hitting Westerby in the ninth round, and was not able to do much with his right thereafter, although he showed no signs of quitting. It was a grand battle until Westerby slipped over a stiff right to the jaw in the tenth, on which Ryan took the count. He was groggy when he got onto his feet, but the gong saved him for the time being. He came back pretty well revived in the eleventh, but another right jab to the jaw settled the bout in the eleventh, Ryan going down and out, although he was on his feet just after the count of ten. Both boys showed great cleverness and Westerby in particular, has a terrific kick in either hand. The crowd wildly applauded the pair as they left the ring.

The two preliminary bouts were interesting. Harry Sparks of Hamilton and Bob Petty of Toronto, the ex-amateur 105 pound champion gave a lively exhibition in a six round bout, which wound up in honours even. Both were clever and they were willing to mix it.

George Lillie of Peterborough and R. Montgomery also of this city, battled in a six round bout. Lillie had the experience and the condition and would have won the decision had it been possible to give one, but Montgomery was game and the crowd liked the way he came back for more. He shapes up well and if taken in hand and coached promises to develop into a good boy with the gloves.

In addition to the bouts there were other interesting features including physical culture exhibition by Artie Edmunds, who demonstrated his great development and control of his muscles and also exposed some of the fake feats put on by professional strong men. The lecture which accompanied the demonstration was interesting.

There was a burlesque Mutt and Jeff bout which was certainly amusing. In make-up and size the pair were striking likenesses of Bud Fisher's heroes and the stunt caused lots of merriment. Jeff finally won the bout and dragged the prostrate Mutt off the stage.

"IS THE CHURCH TOO RESPECTABLE" WAS THE QUESTION DISCUSSED

(Written for The Examiner by Roy Gilray)

Last Sunday afternoon I had the pleasure of listening to a discussion of the above subject by the members of the Men's Bible Class of the Charlotte street eMthodist Sunday School. They met in the body of the church, and were guided in their deliberations by Mr. Ivor Brock.

Charlotte Street Church is to be congratulated on securing the services of Mr. Brock. In Toronto, where I had an opportunity of observing his work, he exercised a great influence on the young men, principally those of the Methodist Young Men's Association, of which he was the organizer. When started it was known as the Excelsior Club, and after a period of splendid growth, during which time there were a number of similar societies organized in other churches, they were all united, forming one Association, known as the M.Y.M.A., which now has a membership of over two thousand young men banded together for the upbuilding of Christian manhood. Imagine the power of 2,000 of Toronto's best men meeting regularly every week, with a single purpose, distributed throughout all parts of the city. Figure out the force of their combined energies against the liquor interests. They are a Niagara of social and spiritual power, ready to be used for any good cause. Consider their influence for good in the community, a force which has arisen from the little acorn planted as the "Excelsior Club," in Dunn Avenue Methodist church not much more than a decade ago.

The Sunday School of this church attained a leading place among the model schools of the Dominion largely through Mr. Brock's untiring efforts as superintendent.

The subject under discussion was suggested by that part of the regular lesson, where Christ ate with Publicans and sinners.

One of the young men of the class, by way of introduction, cited many instances in which he thought the church was too cold in its treatment of those who were strangers, not getting into touch with those who needed the church most. The working class were taken as an example.

They sometimes come to church with clothes not always the best and perchance sit beside some who come for the purpose of displaying their finery. It too often happens that the man with the shabby clothes is given the cold shoulder and frozen with icy looks. No wonder they never return: they conclude they are not wanted.

The interpretation put upon the word "respectable" was invariably that of fashionableness, or as one man expressed it: "the church is too tony," meaning of course, the people in the church. Other members of the class took part eagerly and the general opinion, based on their own personal experiences, was that the church had moved up too high in the social scale to attract those who need its uplifting power the most.

Nearly all had a good word to say about Charlotte Street, intimating in no uncertain tones that it was due to the warm-heartedness of its people that they were now associated in its work.

Another interpretation of the idea of "respectability" was brought out by a member who claimed the church harboured those who business methods were questionable, whose amusements were of the wicked one, and whose lives generally did not measure up to the standards of Christianity. He claimed the people outside resented these practices and were influenced to stay away.

The answer to the question: "Is the Church too Respectable?" was generally in the affirmative. If people are kept away by thinking the members of the church are in a higher scale, and have this impressed upon them every time they enter its portals, then the church stands accused of being too respectable.

Christ in choosing Matthew, the hated tax collector, as one of His disciples, saw not only the good in him, but also the bad. In like manner if the church people are to be Christ-like, they must resolve to associate with the ignorant, the rude, those who are less fortunate, and welcome them to the church and its associations. To be Christ-like they must associate with those who need them most or need something which they have.

Reference was made to the woman of China recently converted to Christianity, whose first act after conversion was to receive a poor outcast, a woman afflicted with leprosy, into her home to care for her during her dying hours.

Christ, if He were on earth, would not likely cater to the higher classes socially, but would be found intermingling with those away down in the social scale, with the hardened sinner, with those who needed most the refining influence of His life.

The best place for the poor man who is down hearted, who wants help and comfort, is the church, whose members, instead of giving it the lie, should reach out the glad hand of welcome, saying: "Your joys are our joys, and your sorrows are our sorrows."

"What the world wants to-day is the human touch: let us warm up!" These were Mr. Brock's concluding words of appeal to the young men.

LADIES' AUXILIARY MEETING ST. JOSEPH'S HOSPITAL.

A special meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary of St Joseph's Hospital (Mrs. N. T. LePlante, president, Mrs. J. B. Dunn, hon president), will be held in the Ladies' Parlour of St. Alphonsus' Lyceum, Simcoe street, on Friday evening next at 8 o'clock.

As is known, the chief function or duty of the Auxiliary is to provide minor equipment for the hospital, linen baudages, etc., etc. The funds for this purpose result from the membership fees of $1.00 per year, so that necessarily the larger the membership the larger the auxiliary fund, and the better the equipment for the noble object of assisting the work of the hospital. As there is no limit, numerically, to the membership of the auxiliary, all ladies in sympathy with the work of the Hospital, who have not already done so, are urged to enrol themselves as members.

St. Joseph's Hospital is maintained entirely by voluntary contributions, apart from the usual government grant made to all similar institutions. It is thoroughly equipped for its purposes, a splendid new operating room being one of the latest improvements. It has a competent staff, consisting of six graduate nurses constantly on the staff, besides nurses in training. All the city physicians have the privilege of treating their own patients in the hospital, which is open to all forms of suffering humanity except in the case of certain infectious diseases, without regard to social conditions, creed or nationality. Sickness and suffering is the only passport for admission.

In the year 1909, patients to the number of 456 were treated; in 1910, the number was 650, and in 1911 the patients treated totalled 699, of whom 440 were Catholics and 160 non-Catholics. A large proportion were free or non-paying patients. The number of day's treatment in the hospital of this latter class in 1911, was 1168.

It will therefore be seen that the work of the hospital is increasing, and with it the need of funds necessary to carry on its work. The Ladies' Auxiliary is indeed a valuable help. Its usefulness as before remarked, depends upon the amount of funds at its disposal, and this depends upon the number of members.

Therefore, all charitably disposed ladies are requested to bear in mind the special meeting on Friday night next, and it would be a practical way of showing sympathy and interest if they should come to the meeting prepared to become members.

TRUE PATRIOTISM

Here is what the Standard of Empire, London, England, says of the Imperial Home Reunion Association work now being started in Peterborough.

"This is the kind of work, which, perhaps more than any other, deserves the description of Empire-building. This is true patriotism of the most practical and productive order.

"The men who became guarantors of the fund for assisting British workmen were not moved by desire of gain, or a yearning for lime light. They simply wished to be of genuine assistance to their fellow men. Their ambition at the highest, was the unselfish aim of strengthening the bonds of Empire by getting the biggest possible infusion of British blood into the population of Winnipeg. To this end, the gentlemen who make up the list of guarantors not only back the scheme financially, but a number of them, selected to act as an advisory board, give time and attention to holding meetings, at which applications are presented and acted upon.

"Within the fields of its operations the Imperial Home Re-union Association strengthens and tightens the bonds of Empire, and draws Old Country born and Canadian born citizens closer together; gives them a better understanding of each other, and sets up that cordial relationship that should exist between the newcomers and the home people of this great land of opportunity, this home of promises, which are more nearly kept than those of any other land on earth."

DAYLIGHT ROBBERY

MR. BAILEY'S OPINION

Sir,—Re your article in last night's paper on "Cause and Effect." They didn't have to go to that football match, and the money wasn't wasted. It helped to build up the city, who encourage it if there was a bit of crowding. Children in England do not cry for bread, and it is better to spend the money than lose it all in one of Arthur Hawkes' bucket shops. And say! We pay here and do not even get near the games, and instead of launching immigration schemes, and there are enough at that, we might provide for those who are always with us, every time we go for a walk, or waiting round.

Yours, etc.,
W. A. B.

MR. ROBT. MANN HONOURED BY A PRESENTATION

Mr. R. Mann, who has been overseer of the finishing department of the Auburn Woolen Mills, is leaving for the West, and will locate near Grand Forks, B.C., where he has bought some property, and where his sons are in business. Mrs. Mann and daughter, Miss Marjorie, have already preceded him.

Last night the household, where Mr. Mann boards, gave him a gift and said some nice things. Mr. Mann was wholly taken by surprise when Mrs. Bickle and her jovial boarders after partaking of a good old Scotch banquet, that Louis Rab, Whool, and the twa with the shelehah, opposite our fair guest and our amiable son and Mrs. Bickle to grace the board. They presented the above gentleman with an address and the following present of a silver shaving set, beautifully engraved, with Mr. Mann's name:

Dear Mr. Mann, just now I taen the fit o' rhyme.
My bonnie noddle's working prime,
My fancy yerket up sublime,
Wi' hasty summons,
Hae ye a leisure moment's time
To hear what's coming.

We wish as friends to remember one who has shared our comradeship, and who is leaving to answer the call of the Great West, to show that we have appreciated our association with a man of such stirling qualities and strong, honest purpose, and hope that you mak take with you, kind thoughts for those you leave behind. But we know your attractions are strong, and your sentiments are not lightly expressed.

Oh a' the airts the wind can blaw,
I dearly love the West,
For there the bonnie lassie lives,
The lassie I love best.

We would ask you to take with you this little gift, rich in spirit, and hope it will remind you of old friends in Peterborough, and may we wish you for you and yours, a long, happy and prosperous sojourn, and if the West is too small for you, Peterborough will take you back.

Farewell, dear friend, may guid luck hit you,
And among her favourites admit you,
If e're detraction strive to smite you
May none believe him,
And any de'il that thinks to get you,
Good Lord, deceive him.

Mr. Mann made the following reply:

My dear friends and Mrs. Bickle—I can assure you all that this is a great surprise to me. I never expected anything like this and it is really too much. I cannot do more than thank you one and all for this beautiful present, and also the "guid auld Scotch" sentiment, expressed in your address. I can again assure you I take this with me, that I never will forget the ten months I have spent with you all. In fact barring the absence of my wife and family, it has been one of the happiest times of my life, and now I would ask you all to join with me in singing Auld Lang Syne, and now I'll bid you all good-bye.

MOVEMENT TO INTEREST BOYS IN ATTENDING SUNDAY SCHOOL

How many boys between 10 and 18 years of age in Peterborough are attending Sunday school, and why are they not, are questions which it is proposed to secure answer to by taking a census of the city. An inaugural meeting was held at the Y.M.C.A. last night and a committee composed of Mr. S. Keyes, Mr. John Lang and Mr. John Edgar was appointed to complete plans for undertaking the census. They will meet on Saturday night and on Tuesday night will hold another meeting at the Y.M.C.A. with the Sunday school superintendents of the city. The committee will divide the city into districts and will determine the number of men required to take the census. The question of the boy and his attendance at Sunday school is one that is receiving more attention than ever of late and the purpose of this movement is not only to find out why more of the boys are not attending, but as outcome of the proposal is an endeavour to devise a remedy for whatever non-attendance is now noticeable.

THE NEW CURTAIN NETS

In an assortment that contains every desirable style

THE coming of Spring brings a call for new Window Draperies to which every housewife hearkens. And right now there are scores of housekeepers in Peterborough who are contemplating the purchase of new Spring and Summer Draperies and deciding upon their purchases.

Therefore our present assortment of Curtain Nets is of timely interest, and we ask that you inspect the drapery materials it offers.

This is undoubtedly the broadest and most comprehensive array of handsome Curtain Nets ever shown in this community. Every style and pattern and weave that is desirable is included. Whatever your requirement or your individual preference may be, you will be quite certain to find here the nets that best suit you.

A word as to values is not out of place here, merely to point out the fact that our prices are always the lowest obtainable and that our prices on Curtain Nets are even less than regular prices would be, due to favourable mercantile conditions of which we have taken advantage.

Curtain Nets range in price from 25c to $2 per yard

DURBAR IN KINEMACOLOR
At Alfred Chas

The greatest sensation that has been known in the amusement field in many years in New York has been created by the exhibition of the wonderful Kinemacolor motion pictures in natural colour, of the grand Durbar ceremonials in India, when King George and Queen Mary of England were proclaimed Emperor and Empress amid scenes of unequaled pomp and grandeur that marked the pageant as the most gorgeous in the world's history. Theatrical managers stand amazed at the success of these Durbar replicas which are crowding the New York Theatre at the dollar-and-a-half scale of prices.

It would be quite futile to attempt to describe the glories of the Durbar in Kinemacolor, they must be seen to be appreciated. Pageant after pageant reveals itself before one's dazzled eyes, scintillating with a thousand tones of scarlet and blue, purple and gold.

Some of the scenes are like the unfolding of a jewelled banner, so wonderful is their significance. The wonderful tales that have been told of the barbaric splendor of the Orient had never before been realized in their full gorgeousness until the advent of Kinemacolor.

The glittering and thrilling pomp and panoply of the Durbar, the most pretentious ceremonial in the world's history, is reproduced, teeming with life and [illegible], pulsating with glowing colours, just as did the original scenes. Even the Indian sky, is one pure sheet of palpitating light, blue with the blueness which can only be imagined by us who dwell in America.

These superb Kinemacolor pictures have been secured for exhibition at the "Grand" for next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday with matinees on Tuesday and Wednesday, and by special arrangements the scale of prices will be—evening, lower floor and first four rows of balcony 50c. Balance of balcony 25c. Gallery 15c. Matinee, all seats 25c. The exhibition will be given here exactly as at the New York Theatre, and appropriate music and effects, together with an explanatory lecture, will be utilised.

The programme of the Kinemacolor Durbar here will include the following: The Royal Visit to Bombay; Preparing for the Durbar; The Arrival of the King and Queen; The State Entry Into Delhi; Rehearsing the Calcutta Pageant; The Grand Coronation Durbar at Delhi; The King's Camp and the Receptions by the Indian Princes; The State Garden Party; The Point to Point Horse Races; The Polo Tournament at Delhi; The Elephant Stockade; Preparing the Royal Elephants for the Pageants; Scenes in the Durbar Camp and the Grand Review by the King-Emperor of Fifty Thousand Troops of British and Native Regiments, the most thrilling scene of the Durbar.

them making snow houses and forts on the proposed school site.

Another Against it.

Mr. R. A. Elliott said he was very much opposed to the proposed site. "With the grounds that can be secured with the present site, there would be ample accommodation. I can't see why they want six or seven acres. I can't see what use they would make of it. The only time my children would use it would be during recess. That is about all the play-time they spend at school. The lots required to enlarge the present grounds can be secured at a fair and reasonable cost. I shve the options on two or three of the properties now. Then there are two or three houses that would be worth something. Mrs. Strain is not asking too much at $1,400, and I think Mr. Glover's price of $2,000 is not at all out of the way. The whole cost would be about $5,000 at the outside price.

A Bleak, Barren Spot.

The other place is a bleak, barren, desolate spot. It is all right on a hot summer day, but it is not much in winter. It is a dangerous locality. I would feel uneasy all the time my children were at school. The minute the children would see a boat, after school hours, it would be, hurrah, and you could not stop them with a gun. I think there would be more drowning accidents than ever. I may not be right, but I have convictions that way.

Mr. A. G. Carruthers Opposed.

Mr. A. G. Carruthers—"I think the views of our East City representative were dominated by the childless members on that board. A man who has no small children has no consideration for parents who are sending little ones to school. The men who proposed that have no children and cannot understand our feelings. We are taking what is left from the other side of the river, and you're going to get it as long as you will permit it. They say that they are going to build playgrounds with the school and that after school hours athletic organizations will be allowed to use them. It has been estimated that children spend an average of from 35 to 45 minutes, daily, playing at school. The contention is that more grounds are required for athletic organizations, but it is not needed for pupils.

You can make up your minds that from the first book down there will be no children there in the cold weather. Children coming to this school are often seen crying with the cold and frost in midwinter. It would be a physical impossibility for them to climb that hill. I feel very strongly in this matter; but there are a great many parents in East City who are apathetic.

Ald. Anderson Heard.

Ald. Anderson said that he hoped he would not be considered as a curiosity because he favoured the new site. On the 18th of October, last year, when the Board of Education asked the Council for $86,000 for the two new school buildings, they stated that they intended to build the new East City school on Armour's Hill. Ald. Morgan was present at the meeting and approved, and was satisfied at the time.

Ald. Morgan—"I was not satisfied with the site, but with the grant of $86,000 for the schools."

Ald. Anderson—"You were satisfied with it, and I have the members of the Council and the Board of Education to back me up. Objections should have been made then. The tendency is to build schools on hills. The Queen Alexandra school is on one of the steepest hills in the city. Children are going up and down there every day. This is no hardship to them.

Voice—"There is no canal there."

Ald. Anderson—"The site is quite a long distance from the canal. At any rate children are up there day after day. The danger from this source is exaggerated. The farthest any child would have to walk is seven blocks, and the farthest King Edward children have to walk is twelve blocks. The new site costs $3,300, and the total cost of the old site would be about $10,300. I, for one, would not stand for that expenditure. The $10,300 includes the value of the old site and the property that would have to be added.

Site is Purchased.

"I did not intend to speak to-night first, because I felt I would be out of harmony with the meeting, and second, because I learned that the new site had actually been purchased. It is a great pity that objections were not raised earlier, but for my part I was quite satisfied with the new site.

Mr. R. B. Rogers and Mr. Craig spoke in favour of the new site. Mr. Rogers said: "The new site is infinitely superior to the present site."

Ald. Duncan Not in Favour.

Ald. Duncan stated that he did not come over to speak, but was interested because he had property in the ward, and he felt that his tenants were not in favour of giving up the old site. My idea, he said, is to have about three acres for a public playground, where everybody can play together. I do not think that six acres for school grounds are necessary. I did not take much stock in the site when it was first up in Council, and I do not think Ald. Morgan and the rest of us saw it in the present light.

Charles Adams complained that the ratepayers had not been notified as to what was going on, and that the majority of them were not aware of the steps that were in progress. I shall move over the river if the school is moved.

This was the last opinion and the vote on the motion above showed but five in favour of the new site. They were Mr. Rogers, Mr. Pretty, Mr. Craig, Ald. Anderson and one other.

Is Sickness A Habit?

With many sickness undoubtedly becomes to some extent a habit. They have "bilious spells," "sick headaches," "attacks of indigestion." Why not shake loose from these ailments and know once more the joy of good health?

It takes a little will power. You may have to deny yourself some luxuries which do not agree with you, but it is worth while to be well and to prolong life. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills will help you, because they act definitely and directly on the liver and thereby remove the cause of biliousness, headache and indigestion.

Stir up the liver by taking one Kidney-Liver pill occasionally at bedtime and you will free yourself of many annoying ills, the temper will be less irritable and you will find more joy in living.

ANNUAL MEETING OF PETERBOROUGH LAWN BOWLING CLUB

A Fair Representation of the Members Assembled in the Dominion Bank Chambers Last Evening---Active Canvass for Members Decided Upon.

The Brookside Lawn Bowling Club held its annual meeting in the Dominion Bank Chambers, last evening, when a large representation was present. Mr. T. Brightman, the President, occupied the chair.

The first business of the evening was the reading of the President's report, which was as follows:

Another milestone has been passed in the existence of our Club and it will not be without its influence on our history.

Your Executive, early in the season, endeavoured to devise ways and means of arousing a greater interest in the ideal summer game, and, after frequent and long consideration, and not without some "fear and trembling," as to the result, finally took the plunge and decided to pull off a tournament. This was held on the 7th of August. That it was an unqualified success, far beyond our most sanguine expectations, is well known to you all. As a result of that tournament, the Central Bowling Association was formed, and we believe it will have a great effect in reviving, and arousing greater interest in the game throughout the district. And in this regard, while we had a loyal support from our members, it is only fitting that we should acknowledge our special indebtedness to the enthusiastic and well-directed effort of Messrs. Renwick and Soden.

In this connection also, we feel it is only common courtesy to acknowledge our special idebtedness of the Hon. J. R. Stratton, who, with his well-known public spirit and loyalty to everything that is Peterborough, generously donated a beautiful cup for competition in our tournament.

This cup was won the past year by Oshawa, and it is up to Peterborough to see that it is not allowed to remain there too long.

The prizes offered in our Tournament were worthy of our Club, and it is gratifying and in the interest of the sport, that they were well distributed through the district.

There were games played at various time with Keene, Millbrook, Lindsay, and Port Hope, in which keen competition and good fellowship prevailed.

It is my duty to call your attention to the irreparable loss our Club sustained in the promotion of our Secretary, Mr. George E. Clarke, to a Managership of the Bank with which he was connected at Forest. While we all join heartily in congratulating him on his well-merited promotion, we mourn the loss of one of the most genial gentlemen that ever bowled on our green, or we have had the privilege of associating with.

The Executive, recognizing his sterling qualities, deemed it fitting that he should carry with him some mark of our appreciation and had an address presented to him. The time at our disposal after learning of his removal was so short that we could not obtain the bowls spoken of in time but they are ordered and will be forwarded to him in due time, with a suitable inscription on them.

I would suggest that an active canvass be made for members, similar to that of the Curling Club. Such a course, I believe, would have the effect of doubling our membership and placing our Club in the position its importance deserves.

I will leave our financial position in the hands of the Secretary-Treasurer to deal with.

Now, in laying down the robes of office, I desire to thank the members, one and all, for their generous and hearty support and bespeak the same loyalty to my successor.

T. Brightman, President.

The Secretary-Treasurer's report revealed the fact that there was a debit in the Society's funds of nearly two hundred dollars, and in order to decrease this amount it was decided to follow out the suggestion contained in the President's report, and organize a canvass for members.

The election of officers resulted as follows:

President—Dr. Marshall.
Vice-President—Mr. R. M. Waddell.
Sec.-Treasurer—Mr. Tom Pratt.
Executive Committee—Dr. Marshall and Messrs. R. M. Waddell, T. Pratt, J. H. Renwick, J. Maynard, and R. H. V. McCartney.
Lawn Committee — Messrs. Dan. Belleghem and T. Brightman.
Caretaker—Mr. W. Gray.
Membership Committee — Messrs. T. Brightman, J. W. McDermid, W F. Knight, Ray Best, S. Canniff, R. G. Cottrell, and T. B. Yates.

REEVE MEETS WITH ACCIDENT

The many friends of Mr. J. H. Garbutt, reeve of Smith township, will be pleased to learn tha he is making rapid progress towards recovery. He has been suffering from a slight indisposition from an accident which befel him last Monday.

While engaged in teaming some grain to the mill he had occasion to traverse a rough section of the roadway, and was thrown violently to the ground. He was picked up in a semi-unconscious condition and carried to a near-by house from where he was later removed to his home. No serious results are anticipated and a speedy recovery is looked for.

WEDDING BELLS

HALL—MATCHETT.

On Wednesday, March 27th, a quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. Matchett, Otonabee, when their eldest daughter, Olive, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. Hugh J. Hall of Edmonton, Alberta, son of Mr. D. A. Hall, of this city. Rev. Mr. Cruge officiated.

The bride was the recipient of many beautiful gifts, showing the high esteem in which she was held by her many friends. The groom's gift to the bride was a handsome brooch set with pearls. Mr. and Mrs. Hall left on the 4.28 C.P.R. this afternoon en route for their future home in Edmonton.

LACK OF BRIDGE

Retards Growth of South End of East Ward

That the lack of bridge communication is retarding the growth of the southern section of the East Ward, was the statement of one of the speakers at the indignation meeting in the old town hall last night. While it was permitted to the residents to use the foot board across the C.P.R. bridge, it was an easy matter to reach the factories in the south ward of the city but when the company had withdrawn that privilege the long walk around by Hunter street was proving too great an inconvenience.

There will be a meeting of the Automobile Owners and prospective owners of Peterboro, City and County, on Friday evening, March 29th, at 8 o'clock sharp, in the Bank of Montreal Chambers, for the purpose of organizing a Peterboro Automobile Association. All interested are invited to be present.

SOME EXPLANATION OF THE WOMAN SUFFRAGE MOVEMENT

Written for The Examiner by Adeline C. Roberts. (No. 5.)

Though equal suffrage is an established fact in several countries and states, and has been working many years in some of them, opposers still continue to declaim against it and to prophesy results dire and disastrous. But obviously there is now only one reasonable way left to oppose this reform, and that is, to show positive proof of its evil effects in the places where it has had a fair trial. Of course, this does not mean to show that evil does not exist in those places, but to show that evil has not yet diminished and that a new and greater evil exists as a direct result of extending the suffrage to women. No anti-suffragist has as yet been able to produce such proof. An attempt was made in 1910 with regard to Colorado, but these allegations were repeatedly and conclusively exposed as utterly unfounded and untrue (though the magazine which published them being opposed to equal suffrage, never showed itself sufficiently generous to contradict those statements.)

But what definite good has resulted from equal suffrage in those places where it obtains? What have women accomplished through their extended voting power. In the United States there are now six states where women are acknowledged full citizens, and before another year has gone, several more will be added to those six. The present suffrage states are: Wyoming (since 1869), Colorado (1893), Utah (1896), Idaho (1896), Washington (1910), California (1911.). No disastrous results have followed women' enfranchisement in any of these states, and written testimony in its favour can be quoted from more than one hundred mayors there. We are told also by various endorsers that the women of these suffrage states have still remained so like other women in general, that the chief concern of their lives continue to be the home, the school and the baby, and that they vote with enthusiasm on all matters relating to the welfare of women and children.

In Colorado the laws relating to women and children are said to be the "truest, most humane, most progressive and most scientific" in the world, and every one of these laws owes its origin or its success to the voting women. In this state, since 1893, the age of protection for girls has been raised to 18, a State Industrial School for girls has been established, education has been made compulsory for children under 16, the number of no-license towns has been more than quadrupled, women factory inspectors have been introduced, mothers have been made equal guardians of their children with the fathers. (In Massachusetts, where women do not vote, they worked 55 years to get this law of equal guardianship; Colorado women put the law on their statute books the year after they were enfranchised.) Though men in Colorado are in the majority, no reputable Colorado man has yet come forward to denounce equal suffrage, but liquor dealers, gamblers and traffickers in commercialised vice are "unanimous in cursing it." Naturally they would be.

In Idaho and Wyoming, no license territory has also been greatly extended, children under 14 may not work in mines, nor in factories, gambling and prostitution are forbidden, alcohol and tobacco are forbidden to minors, shorter working hours for women are established. These laws are but a few of those resulting from woman suffrage in these states. The House of Representatives in Wyoming recently passed the following resolutions: "That the possession and exercise of suffrage by the women of Wyoming has wrought no harm, and done much good. That it has largely aided in banishing crime, pauperism and vice . . . and as the result of experience we urge every civilized community on earth to enfranchise its women without delay."

An anti-suffrage speaker in one of the eastern states recently stated that the female prisoners in the state of Wyoming had doubled in the last year. An inquiry as to the truth of this statement was at once sent to Wyoming, and the answer returned: "Quite right; they are doubled. Last year we had only one female prisoner, this year there are two."

In Norway, since 1907, when women received full parliamentary suffrage, fathers and mothers have been made equal guardians of their children, and the father has equal responsibility with the mother for education and maintenance of illegitimate children.

New Zealand women were enfranchised in 1893, Australia in 1902, Finland in 1906. Since those dates, the evil of sweated labour has been abolished by law, revised food and health acts have been passed, equal pay for equal work has been established, the school age, and age of "consent" has been raised, child labour limited or abolished, a system of state paid nurses has been abolished all over the countries, infant mortality is lower in Australia and New Zealand than anywhere in the world, the birth rate has increased.

Surely these facts weigh something in the scale on the side of woman suffrage.

An interesting incident from New Zealand shows very forcibly the newer and more human way of regarding profit and labour, which prevails there.

In a match factory in New Zealand, when the women workers' demand for better wages was refused by their employer, on the ground that the business could not afford it, the judge before whom the case was taken, ordered an inquiry, not (as would probably have been done in this country) an inquiry into the state of the match industry, but into the cost of living in the town where the factory was situated. He then summoned the factory owner, and said: "It is impossible for these girls to live healthfully or decently on wages you now pay. The souls and bodies of the young women of New Zealand are of more importance than your profits, and if you cannot pay better wages it will be better for the community for you to close your factory. It would be better for you to send the whole match industry to the bottom of the ocean and go back to flints and firesticks, than to drive young girls into the gutter." This decision has a ring of humanity and true justice about it that one does not hear in other countries when wealthy factory owners are asked to give their workers living wages. But then women in New Zealand are citizens, with full suffrage rights, and their welfare is therefore of more importance than the profits of the individual few.

News comes from China that the women of that country have just been granted full parliamentary suffrage. While condit ions in our and other Christian countries are admittedly very different to those in China, the statement is hardly correct that "we surround women with a special pale of deference, respect and reverence, and in comparison with the Chinese or other heathen countries we deify them." It is only some women, and by no means the majority, who occupy this "exalted place in our hearts and homes," and the women who fill the ranks of the supporters of equal franchise are drawn very largely, perhaps, almost entirely from those "exalted" few. And why? Because they have sufficient leisure, education and intelligence, to realize of what inestimable benefit the possession of the franchise may be, not to themselves, as so many anti-suffragists erroneously imagine, but to the many thousands of women throughout the civilized world, who are the defenceless, unprotected victims of sweated labour, the "white slave" traffic, and other appalling varieties of living death. A woman, speaking at the recent Methodist conference, said: "In the Father's streets of our great cities thousands of women are walking nightly into a hell more lurid than that which our forefathers have depicted. It is these things that are driving us into politics."

It is about time that opponents of equal suffrage began to comprehend that the women who are working in their various ways for this reform; both those advocating it by peaceful methods, and the militant suffragettes in England who are sacrificing for it their liberty, health and perhaps their very lives—are not working and fighting for any fancied material advantages for themselves (to most of them the franchise would be of little personal benefit), but they are working and fighting for their less fortunate sisters, whose deplorable condition has aroused a practical sympathy, and who, obviously, have no facilities for fighting their battle for themselves. This woman suffrage movement is in reality, one class fighting for another class, a state of things which has no parallel in history, unless, perhaps, the anti-slavery war in America.

Those who like to regard woman suffrage as a sort of "fad," and amusement of some few people of leisure, and who write with a contemptuous flippancy of the work of its supporters, would be far better employed in making a careful study of the pitiable conditions of the women and children of the working classes, which no present legislation or efforts of charitable organizations are able to adequately cope with.

Those who belittle and ridicule the work of the suffragists only show their utter inability to grasp the real aims and principles of the movement, and an ignorance of facts and present conditions which it is now the duty of all women to know.

A BAD WINTER

There seems to be an unusual amount of bronchial trouble this winter and spring, but it need not cause alarm, for many people have learned how to apply common sense methods in checking it.

Just remember this — no cold or cough can get a very firm hold on a really strong healthy person.

Mrs. Mary Mathes of Atkins, S. C., says: "I find Vinol can't be beat for bronchitis. After an attack of it that lasted for eight months I took Vinol and got a complete cure."

It is the combined action of the medicinal curative elements of cod's livers without the greasy oil, aided by the blood-making and strength-creating properties of tonic iron, that makes Vinol so efficient in curing chronic coughs, colds and bronchitis at the same time building up the weakened run-down system.

To escape bronchial troubles, then, take Vinol and become strong. We positively guarantee Vinol to give you perfect satisfaction. McDermid and Jury, druggists, corner George and Charlotte streets; also Payne's drug store, corner George and Simcoe streets.

DUKE OF MANCHESTER L. O. L. HOLDS VERY ENJOYABLE BANQUET

The fourth anniversary of the institution of Duke of Manchester Loyal Orange Lodge No. 59, was fittingly celebrated by a big banquet being held for the members in Coleman Bros.' elegant banquet hall, last night. About 50 members of the lodge were present, and after the wants of the inner man had been supplied in a way that can better be imagined than described, the Worshipful Master called the gathering to order, and proceeded with the following programme:

Instrumental—Mr. H. C. Treneer.
Chairman's address—W. M. E. F. Reid.
Recitation, "Glencoe"—Col. Miller.
Speeches by County Master J. Waldee, District Master C. E. Wiley, P. G. P. Wor. Bro. Jos. Batten; P. D. G. M. Wor. Bro. J. B. McWilliams.
Instrumental—Mr. H. C. Treneer.
Addresses by Rev. Bro. Pogue, Rev. Bro. Riddiford.
Short speeches by Deputy Master H. Dodds; Past Master N. Barrie, Bro. J. T. C. Lang, Bro. E. N. McWilliams, Bro. O. E. Girven.
Recitation — "The Crutch in the Corner, Yeander," Col. Miller.
Instrumental—Mr. H. C. Treneer.

Votes of thanks were tendered those taking part and Messrs. Coleman Bros. for the excellent way in which they were entertained. The very successful and enthusiastic gathering was then brought to a close, about midnight by the singing of Auld Lang Syne and God Save the King.

DR. MERCHANT WITHHELD REPORT

Examiner Special:

TORONTO, MARCH 27.—Under examination before the Public Accounts committee of the Legislature this morning, Dr. Merchant made the rather startling admission that his famous report on bilingual schools was ready some time before it was published, but it was intimated to him that the government preferred him to hold it longer, consequently it was not delivered until after elections.

OUR MODEST SHARE OF THE 205 MILLIONS

The supplementary estimates of the Dominion government, though they total nineteen million six hundred thousand dollars, helping to bring up the total expenditure of our economical new government up to 205 millions this year, permit a very little overflow to come upon Peterborough. Peterborough's share is confined to a modest $2,500, to complete the improvements to the post office begun, and nearly completed, under previous administration. East Peterborough is recognized to the extent of a public building for Lakefield, $10,000. Col., the Hon. Sam, has spoken for Lindsay to the extent of $4,500 for a clock tower and $20,000 for a drill hall.

OPPOSITE CUSTOM HOUSE

STRIKE MAY END WITHIN A WEEK--WORST PART OVER

Britain's Position Still Serious But Outlook is Better---Serious Riot in Staffordshire---Prices Are Rising Sharply

London, March 28.—The House of Lords last night passed the second reading of the minimum wage bill without division. During the debate Lord Lansdowne said that the Opposition would not amend the bill or delay its passage, but the Ministry must accept full responsibility for it. Nobody but the Government and their supporters, he added, had a good word for the bill, which failed to satisfy either of the disputants.

Owing to some hitch in the wording of a Government amendment and its failure to suit both sides of the House, the Marquis of Crewe announced that the committee stage would be postponed until Thursday. This will result in delaying the royal assent until Friday.

The most serious outbreak since the strike began occurred yesterday at Cannock, Staffordshire, where several thousand strikers, accompanied by hundreds of women, raided a colliery in which eighty men were working. They stoned and overpowered the small force of police on guard, setting fire to two buildings and wrecking others. The rioting continued for several hours until large reinforcements of police arrived and scattered the rioters by baton charges.

A prompt decision has been made by the Miners' Federation to take a ballot of the men on the question of terminating the strike. The ballot paper reads:

"Are you in favor of resuming work pending the settlement of the minimum rates of wages in the various grades by the district boards to be appointed under the Coal Mines Minimum Wage Act?"

When it is remembered that 115,000 men voted against commencing the strike, little doubt is felt that a majority will now vote in favor of its termination especially as the view is gathering force among the miners that the mine owners are trying to prolong the struggle in order to bleed the men's unions while they render them powerless to renew the struggle for a long time to come.

The prospect, therefore, is that the strike may end in a week, although there will be no general resumption until after Easter.

The Government will take immediate steps to organize the district boards under the bill, so that everything will be in readiness when the men are willing to resume. A meeting of the Liberal members of the House of Commons, representing the mining constituencies, has been arranged by the Government whips for to-day, at which the Prime Minister will make an important statement on the attitude of the Government. This meeting is expected to have an ameliorating effect on the situation. No labor members have been invited to attend.

In the lobbies of Parliament the feeling of gloom which was manifest on Tuesday has entirely disappeared, having given place to confidence.

The worst of the trouble is over, but the price of coal and food is still rising, and the work of dealing with the inevitable distress is throwing great responsibility upon the Government.

Having made a strong fight in Parliament to secure the best possible terms for the miners in the bill, the labor leaders now frankly counsel the men to accept the bill. This will have a great influence in the ballot and leaves little doubt that the end of the strike is at hand. James Ramsay Macdonald, addressing the miners' leaders, said:

"My advice to the miners is to accept the bill and get the boards appointed as quickly as possible, so as to secure prompt decisions on the smaller demands, such as five shillings a day rate. Then if the decisions are satisfactory they should be taken as an indication of what the other decisions are likely to be, and resume work forthwith."

James Kier Hardie, the independent labor leader in a speech at Peckham last night, gave similar advice.

Troops in Readiness.

London, March 28.—Orders were issued at Aldershot last night for all the troops, numbering 10,000, to be prepared to move at any moment into the colliery districts. Troop trains are being held in readiness. Five hundred troops left Lichfield for Cannock, Staffordshire, where a serious riot occurred yesterday afternoon, and a detachment of infantry is quartered at Brynkinalt, where trouble is expected between union and non-union men.

The railway managers have decided to suspend all freight traffic except perishable goods from April 3 until April 9.

Squelches Tax Reform Again

Premier Whitney Will Not Hear of Any Change—Mr. Rowell Explains Bill

WILL GO TO COMMITTEE

Toronto, March 28.—Of such importance is the subject of taxation reform that the Government decided yesterday to appoint a special committee to investigate the whole matter thoroughly during the recess. Experts for and against will submit information and a report will be presented to the Legislature at the next session. This decision was made as a result of two bills which were given their second reading yesterday. They were introduced by N. W. Rowell, leader of the Opposition, and J. A. Ellis, Ottawa West. The bills were similar, but with the exception that Mr. Ellis' proposed legislation aimed to bring about gradual reduction of assessment on buildings, while Mr. Rowell's purported to exempt buildings from taxation.

There was much talk on single tax doctrine. In fact, the whole session was taken up with it. Sir James Whitney attacked many of the principles laid down by Henry George, and also chastised Joseph Fels of Philadelphia. When the House opened Mr. Ellis explained his bill.

"A large amount of unimproved land in this province is being held idle," said Mr. Ellis. "The owners are doing nothing—they are merely holding it till their neighbors build. Those holders of idle land are the gentlemen at whom my bill is directed."

In conclusion, Mr. Ellis suggested that the House appoint a special committee—not one of the regular committees—to investigate every aspect of the situation and enquire if land speculators are making large profits, some of which should go to the community, and if improved land is being held for the special benefit of the holder.

Sir James Whitney suggested that as Mr. Rowell's bill was much on similar lines to Mr Ellis', it would expedite matters if both bills were explained first and a general discussion follow. Mr. Rowell concurred in the suggestion, and forthwith proceeded to enlighten the House as to his proposed taxation reforms. It was identical, he said, with the Fripp bill which had been previously introduced. Contrasting it with Mr. Ellis' bill, the Opposition leader said his bill dealt with the rate of taxation, while the Ottawa member dealt with assessment. The spirit of both bills, he said, was to decrease the burden of tax on improvements and increase it on land. The Fripp bill, however, gave a larger measure of home rule to municipalities, as regards the amount of taxation adjustment they wished to make.

"The time has come," declared Mr. Rowell, "for this House to take action to rectify matters. Holding large blocks of land for purposes must be discouraged. It would help the prosperity of the community if such legislation is enforced, and I can't see any reasons why these bills can't carry. There is no class of legislation that has been so persistently and generally asked for, during the last five years." With regard to the criticism of the Prime Minister as regards the subject of tax reform, Mr. Rowell stated that he had nothing to say except that it was the Conservative newspapers as well as the Liberal, that had charged the Premier with being the chief obstacle in the way of blocking this reform. "I hope he's not the obstacle in the way of this legislation," added Mr. Rowell. "I hope he'll endorse the proposition heartily."

Sir James Whitney handed no flowers to the single tax idea, its originator, Henry George, or its promoters, Joseph Fels of Philadelphia et al. A great many people were generally fascinated by something new despite its lack of merit. The single tax doctrine was now a dead issue. He characterised Joseph Fels as a "Holy roller" and an "extraordinary creature."

The Premier then read some of the Rt. Hon. John Bright's views on the question. He said it was utter unfairness and cruelty to tax a mechanic's house the same as a millionaire's. It was improper to tax a man the same as a rich man.

TALK NO. 4

The Eye Like a Camera

The eye is constructed so wonderfully and ingeniously that the handicraft of man has not as yet been able to construct as delicate an instrument. It is like a camera—the lens to focus, the lid as a shutter, the iris or colour as the diaphragm, and the thick coatings of the eye-ball as the dark room, the nerve as the sensitive plate, and strange as it may seem, the image is bottom side up exactly as the image in the camera. Now so delicate and sensitive an instrument as the eye should have good care. Let us explain more fully to you how to care for the eyes.

J. W. BROWETT
Optometrist
MARKET BUILDING

"We will never consent to a pie-balled' or 'checker board' system of assessment as put in these bills," he said.

He then touched upon the attitude of the Government. He had nothing but words of commendation for Messrs. Rowell and Ellis, who introduced the two bills. In giving the bills their second reading he assured the members that this did not commit the Government in the slightest degree to the proposition, but he wanted it understood that the second reading would mean its presentation to a special committee to hear argument from both sides during the recess. He urged that a committee be given the question to report to the Government after securing information.

Other speakers against single tax were Provincial Secretary Hanna and J. W. Johnston (Hastings). In favor of the reform were W. McDonald (Centre Bruce), R. J. McCormick (E. Lambton), and Allan Studholme (E. Hamilton), Sam Clarke (W. Northumberland) was on the fence, but thought the assessors should be more capable men.

The debate concluded with both bills being sent to a special committee, to be named later.

The Hudson Bay Scheme

Hon. Mr. Cochrane Has Alternative Route to James Bay—Fat Jobs Being Handed Out.

ROW OVER APPOINTMENTS

Ottawa, March 28.—The votes for railway subsidies took up a great deal of the time of the House yesterday, and the chief item of interest was the subsidy for 300 miles of railway from the National Transcontinental to the mouth of the Nottaway River on James Bay.

Hon. Frank Cochrane stated that, in connection with the Hudson Bay project, he proposed to have two strings to his bow. He said "by using a line of steamers across James Bay from Port Nelson to Mattaway and thence by rail five or six hundred miles to Quebec, an alternative route for export grain with a shortened rail haul over other routes will be secured. The navigation on the bay is said to be open for seven months in the year at least, and this route could be used when the Hudson Straits are frozen over. A reputable company has already signified its intention of building the road.

Hon. Mr. Lemieux supported the project, but Hon. Frank Oliver doubted its feasibility as a solution for the problem. It would mean fully as long a rail haul as by the N.T.R., and also two transhipments.

Hon. Mr. Graham, ex-Minister of Railways and Canals, thought the Government should make in the beginning very careful enquiry as to harbor facilities and navigation on the bay to Nottaway before embarking in the project.

Ontario Government reports had all been to the effect that there was no good harbor available on James Bay.

Hon. Mr. Charleton read a private report that the mouth of the Nottaway River offered splendid harbor facilities.

Hon. Mr. Cochrane mentioned he was sending a survey party to investigate conditions in James Bay and along the Nottaway River before any action would be taken this report would be considered.

The floor of the House presented the appearance of a campaign platform, when hot and excited interchanges took place last night between Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, ex-Postmaster-General, and Mr. Boulay, Conservative member for Rimouski. The House was in committee on consideration of the postoffice estimates and the question of dismissals was naturally taking up a great deal of time.

Mr. Lemieux, speaking in French, took the occasion to refer to the dismissal of the postmaster at Amqule, in the County of Rimouski, and accused the member for that county of having placed a selection of his there.

He went further and said that the member for Rimouski had placed many of his relatives in comfortable positions, notably his daughter, as postmistress in Rimouski, his wife having a contract for railway ties for the Intercolonial Railway and other relatives being in other positons.

The member for Rimouski, also speaking in French, retorted vigorously. He took out his notebook, fixed his spectacles in their place and proceeded carefully to read a long list of people of the name of Lemieux who had received emoluments from the late Government.

Hon. Dr. Beland rose in the middle of the recital to a point of order, but was howled down by the Ministerial forces. During the noise Mr. Boulay could be heard reading the names.

Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux indignantly denied that those names were his relations. The only name which had been read, namely, that of his father, Achille Lemieux, who was inspector of customs in the County of Gaspe, was correct. The others were fictitious inventions used in a cowardly manner during the last election, when he himself was not present and could not deny it. It was false and unfair, but as the member for Rimouski had read these names before Parliament, he wished to say for future reference that it was untrue to state that his relations had derived such positions from the Federal Government. His father had received a position, already mentioned, from the Provincial Government and was now on pension. But he wished to tell Mr. Boulay that he was not able to explain away the glaring fact that he had dismissed men in order that his daughter should have a position.

Mr. Boulay then denied that his wife had a contract from the Government. (Liberal cries of "Well, she will have one, then, next year.") Mr. Boulay continued that perhaps the ex-Postmaster-General would not deny that Sir Louis Jette was his father-in-law, and that the sheriff of Montreal was his brother.

Jacques Bureau rose to a point of order and said that the ex-Postmaster-General had not denied that these two gentlemen were his relations. (Loud cries of "Order" from Government benches). At this stage Deputy Speaker Blondin rose and stated that it seemed to him the discussion was unseemly and not at all incident to the subject under consideration. The matter was then dropped.

P. E. I. Legislature Opens.

Charlottetown, P. E. I., March 28.—The Provincial Legislature opened yesterday with the customary interesting military display. Hon. J. E. Wyatt was appointed Speaker and Dougald Currie sergeant-at-arms.

The Conservatives will set about the performance of their promise to introduces the ballot, says the speech.

Parties in the House stand: Conservatives, 27; Liberals, 3.

Grand Trunk May Surrender.

Ottawa, March 28.—The deadlock between the Grand Trunk and the Government may yet be broken, as word was received last night that William Wainwright first vice-president of the road would be in Ottawa again to-day to consult with Major Currie, who has charge of the Grand Trunk financial bills, and Hon. T. W. Crothers, Minister of Labor.

Canadians Protest Against Chicago Drainage Canal.

Washington, March 28.—A notable body of Canadian legal talent, with a fair sprinkling of large business interests, harbor commissions, boards of trade, mercantile and marine organizations spent two hours before Secretary Stimson yesterday in vigorous protest against the application of the sanitary district of Chicago for permission to more than double the amount of water now being withdrawn from Lake Michigan through the Chicago drainage canal.

Secretary Stimson was flanked by Gen. Bixby, chief of engineers, and Major Jadwin of the same corps, who have already gone on record as deprecating any increase in the flow of water through the canal.

The Canadians found much to encourage them in the secretary's ready recognition of their status as protestants. Their basic argument that the drainage canal had already seriously damaged lake navigation and that it was reasonably certain that to allow the application for the increased flow of water through the canal would greatly increase the damage to the lake and St. Lawrence river ports.

One significant statement in the argument was that the Canadian members of the joint Waterways Commission, who while objecting to a proposition to allow a flow of 14,000 feet per second through the canal, had tacitly admitted Chicago's right to take 10,000 feet, had exceeded their powers in recognizing the American right to take any water at all for any purpose except that of navigation.

While expressing appreciation of the hearing by the Secretary of War, several Canadians reserved the right to appeal to the International Boundary Commission under the terms of the last treaty in the event that the decision should be against their claim.

KRYPTOK
INVISIBLE BI-FOCAL
Why Look Older Than You Are?

Double vision glasses need not mar one's appearance. They need not make one look older, or cause embarrassment by being conspicuous. KRYPTOK LENSES in neat frames or Eyeglass mount would be an aid to good appearance. KRYPTOK LENSES—a recent achievement in optical science—combine near view and far view lenses in an integral piece of glass.

They have an absolutely smooth surface, and are entirely free from the seams, disfigurating lines, cement and bulky appearance characteristic of old-style pasted double vision lens.

KRYPTOK LENSES are being eagerly adopted by all who require double-vision glasses or who have been using two pairs of glasses. They are good looking and in no way do they suggest advancing years.

YOUNG WIFE SAVED FROM DIVORCE

Who Now Has Her Home And Children Thru An Operation.

Upper Sandusky, Ohio.—"Three years ago I was married and went to housekeeping. I was not feeling well and could hardly drag myself along. I had such tired feelings, my back ached, my sides ached, I had bladder trouble awfully bad, and I could not eat or sleep. I had headaches, too, and became almost a nervous wreck. My doctor told me to go to a hospital. I did not like that idea very well, so, when I saw your advertisement in a paper, I wrote to you for advice, and have done as you told me. I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills, and now I have my health.

"If sick and ailing women would only know enough to take your medicine, they would get relief."—Mrs. Benj. H. Stansberry, Route 6, Box 18, Upper Sandusky, Ohio.

If you have mysterious pains, irregularity, backache, extreme nervousness, inflammation, ulceration or displacement, don't wait too long, but try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound now.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and such unquestionable testimony as the above proves the value of this famous remedy and should give every one confidence.

"INITIALS ONLY"

BY ANNA KATHARINE GREENE

But first, does he understand his own trouble? He does not seem to. For when, his hat thrown aside, he stops, erect and frowning under the flaring gas jet he had no recollection of lighting, his first act was to lift his hand to his head in a gesture of surprising helplessness for him, while snatches of broken sentences fell from his lips among which could be heard:

"What has come to me? Undone in an hour! Doubly undone! First by a face and then by this thought which surely the devils have whispered to me. Mr. Challoner and Oswald! What is the link between them? Great God! what is the link? Not myself? Who then or what?"

Flinging himself into a chair, he buried his face in his hands. There were two demons to fight—the first in the guise of an angel. Doris! Unknown yesterday, unknown an hour ago; but now! Had there ever been a day—an hour—when she had not been as the very throb of the heart, the light of his eyes, and the crown of all imaginable blisses?

He was startled at his own emotion as he contemplated her image in his fancy and listened for the lost echo of the few words she had spoken—words so full of music when they referred to his brother, so hard and cold when she simply addressed himself.

This was no passing admiration of youth for a captivating woman. This was not even the love he had given to Edith Challoner. This was something springing full-born out of nothing! a force which, for the first time in his life, made him complaisant to the natural weakness of man! a dream and yet a reality strong enough to blot out the past remake the present, change the aspect of all his hopes, and outline a new fate. He did not know himself. There was nothing of such feelings as these.

Can a man be seized as it were by the hair, and swung up on the slopes of paradise or down the steeps of hell—without a forewarning, without the chance even to say whether he wished such cataclysm in his life or no?

He, Orlando Brotherson, had never thought much of love. Science had been his mistress; ambition his lode-star. Such feeling as he had acknowledged to had been for men—struggling men, men who were down trodden and gasping in the narrow bounds of poverty and helplessness. Miss Challoner had roused—well, his pride. He could see that now. The might of this new emotion made plain many things he had passed by as useless, puerile, unworthy of a man of mental calibre and might. He had never loved Edith Challoner at any moment of their acquaintanceship, though he had been sincere in thinking that he did. Doris' beauty, the hour he had just passed with her, had undeceived him.

Did he hail the experience? It was not likely to bring him joy. This young girl whose image floated in light before his eyes, would never never love him. She loved his brother. He had heard their names mentioned together before he had been in town an hour. Oswald, the cleverest man, Doris, the most beautiful girl in Western Pennsylvania.

He had accepted the gossip then he had not seen her and it all seemed very natural;—hardly worth a moment's thought. But now!—

And here, the other Demon sprang erect and grappled with him before the first one had let go his hold. Oswald and Challoner! The secret, unknown something which had softened that hard man's eye when his brother's name was mentioned! He had noted it and realised the mystery; a mystery before which sleep and rest must fly, a mystery to which he must now give this thought, whatever the cost, whatever the loss to those heavenly dreams the magic of which was so new it seemed to envelope him in the balm of Paradise. Away, then, image of light! Let the faculties thou hast dazed, act again. There is more than Fate's caprice in Challoner's interest in a man he never saw. Ghosts of old memories rise and demand a hearing. Facts, trivial and commonplace enough to have been lost in oblivion with the day which gave them birth, throng again from the past, proving that nought dies without a possibility of resurrection. Their power over this brooding man is shown by the force with which his fingers crush against his bowed forehead. Oswald and Challoner! Had he found the connecting link? Had it been—Edith? The preposterous is sometimes true; could it be true in this case?

He recalled the letters read to him as hers in that room of his in Brooklyn. He had hardly noted them then, he was so sure of their being forgeries, gotten up by the police to mislead him. Could they have been real, the effusions of her mind, the breathings of her heart, directed to an actual O. B., and that O. B., his brother? They had not been meant for him. He had read enough of the mawkish lines to be sure of that. None of the allusions fitted in with the facts of their mutual intercourse. But they might with those of another man; they might with the possible acts and affections of Oswald whose temperament was wholly different from his and who might have loved her, should it ever be shown that they had met and known each other. And this was not an impossibility. Oswald had been east, Oswald had even been in the Berkshires before himself. Oswald—Why it was Oswald who had suggested that he go there—go where she still was. Why this second coincidence, if there was no tie—if the Challoners and Oswald were as far apart as they seemed and as conventionalities would naturally place them. Oswald was a sentimentalist, but very reserved about his sentimentalities. If these suppositions were true, he had had a sentimentalist's motive for what he did. As Orlando realised this, he rose from his seat, aghast at the possibilities confronting him from this line of thought. Should he contemplate them? Risk his reason by dwelling on a supposition which might have no foundation in fact? No. His brain was too full—his purposes too important for any unnecessary strain to be put upon his faculties. No thinking! investigation first. Mr. Challoner should be able to settle this question. He would see him. Even at this late hour he ought to be able to find him in one of the rooms below; and, by the force of an irresistible demand, learn in a moment whether he had to do with a mere chimera of his own overwrought fancy, or with a fact which would call into play all the resources of an hitherto unconquered and unlaunted nature.

There was a wood-fire burning in the sitting-room that night, and around it was grouped a number of men with their papers and pipes. Mr. Brotherson, entering, naturally looked that way for the man he was in search of, and was disappointed not to find him there; but on casting his glances elsewhere, he was relieved to see him standig in one of the windows overlooking the street, seemingly lost in a fit of abstraction.

As Orlando crossed to him, he had time to observe how much whiter was this man's head than in the last interview he had held with him in the coroner's office in New York. But this evidence of grief in one with whom he had little, if anything, in common, neither touched his feelings nor deterred his step. The awakening of his heart to new and profound emotions had not softened him towards the sufferings of others, if those others stood without the pale he had previously raised as the legitimate boundary of a just man's sympathies.

He was, as I have said, an extraordinary specimen of manly vigor in body and in mind, and his presence in any company always attracted attention and roused, if it never satisfied, curiosity. Conversation according ceased as he strode up to Mr. Challoner's side, so that his words were quite audible as he addressed that gentleman with a somewhat curt:

"You see me again, Mr. Challoner. May I beg of you a few minutes' further conversation? I will not detain you long."

The grey head turned, and the many eyes watching showed surprise at the expression of dislike and repulsion with which this New York gentleman met the request thus emphatically urged. If Mr. Brotherson knew a place where they would be left undisturbed, he would listen to him if he would be very brief.

For reply, the other pointed to a small room quite unoccupied which opened out of the one in which they stood. Mr. Challoner bowed and in another moment the door closed behind them, to the infinite disappointment of the men about the hearth.

"What do you wish to ask?" was Mr. Challoner's first inquiry.

"This. I make no apologies and expect in answer nothing more than an unequivocal yes or no. You tell me that you have never met my brother. Can that be said of the other members of your family—of your deceased daughter, in fact?"

"No."

"She was acquainted with Oswald Brotherson?"

"She was."

"Without your knowledge?"

"Entirely so."

"Corresponded with him?"

"Not exactly."

"He wrote to her—occasionally. She wrote to him frequently—but she never sent her letters."

"Ah!"

The exclamation was sharp, short and conveyed little. Yet with its escape, the whole scaffolding of this man's hold upon life and his own fate went down in indistinguishable chaos. Mr. Challoner realised a sense of hatred, though the eyes bent upon his countenance had not wavered, nor the stalwart figure moved.

"I have read some of these letters," the inventor finally acknowledged. "The police took great pains to place them under my eye, supposing them to have been meant for me because of the initials written on the wrapper. But they were meant for Oswald. You believe that now?"

"I know it."

"And that is why I found you in the same house with him."

"It is. Providence has robbed me of my daughter; if this brother of yours should prove to be the man I am led to expect, I shall ask him to take that place in my heart and life which was once hers."

A quick recoil, a smothered exclamation on the part of the man he addressed. A barb had been hidden in this simple statement which had reached some deeply-hidden but vulnerable spot in Brotherson's breast, which had never been pierced before. His eye which alone seemed alive, still rested piercingly upon that of Mr. Challoner, but its light was fast fading, and speedily became lost in a dimness in which the other seemed to see extinguished the last upflaring embers of those inner fires which feed the aspiring soul. It was a sight no man could see unmoved. Mr. Challoner turned sharply away, in dread of the abyss which the next word he uttered might open between them.

But Orlando Brotherson possessed resources of strength of which, possibly, he was not aware himself. When Mr. Challoner, still more affected by the silence than by the dread I have mentioned, turned to confront him again, it was to find his features composed and his glance clear. He had conquered all outward manifestation of the mysterious emotion which for an instant had laid his proud spirit low.

"You are considerate of my brother," were the words with which he re-opened this painful conversation. "You will not find your confidence misplaced. Oswald is a straightforward fellow, of few faults."

"I believe it. No man can be so universally beloved without some very substantial claims to regard. I am glad to see that your opinion, though given somewhat coldly, coincides with that of his friends."

"I am not given to exaggeration," was the even reply.

The flush which had come into Mr. Challoner's cheek under the effort he had made to sustain with unflinching heroism this interview with the man he looked upon as his mortal enemy, slowly faded out till he looked the wraith of himself even to the unsympathetic eyes of Orlando Brotherson. A duty lay before him which would tax to its utmost extent his already greatly weakened self-control. Nothing which had yet passed showed that this man realised the fact that Oswald had been kept in ignorance of Miss Challoner's death. If these brothers were to meet on the morrow, it must be with the full understanding that this especial topic was to be completely avoided. But in what words could he urge such a request upon this man? None suggested themselves, yet he had promised Miss Scott that he would ensure his silence in this regard, and it was with this difficulty and no other he had been struggling when Mr. Brotherson came upon him in the other room.

"You still have something to say," suggested the latter, as an oppressive silence swallowed up that icy sentence I have already recorded.

"I have," returned Mr. Challoner, regaining his courage under the exigencies of the moment. "Miss Scott is very anxious to have your promise that you will avoid all disagreeable topics with your brother till the doctor pronounces him strong enough to meet the trouble which awaits him."

"You mean—"

"He is not as unhappy as we. He knows nothing of the affliction which has befallen him. He was taken ill—" The rest was almost inaudible.

But Orlando Brotherson had no difficulty in understanding him, and for the second time in this extraordinary interview, he gave evidence of agitation and of a mind shaken from its equipoise. But only for an instant. He did not shun the other's gaze or even maintain more than a momentary silence. Indeed, he found strength to smile, in a curious, sardonic way, as he said:

"Do you think I should be apt to broach this subject with any one, let alone with him, whose connection with it I shall need days to realise? I'm not so given to gossip. Besides, he and I have other topics of interest. I have an invention ready with which I propose to experiment in a place he has already prepared for me. We can talk about that."

The irony, the hardy self-possession with which this was said struck Mr. Challoner to the heart. Without a word, he wheeled about towards the door. Without a word, Brotherson stood, watching him go till he saw his hand fall on the knob when he quietly prevented his exit by saying:

Have you ever eaten OATMEAL BREAD?

MANY people are afraid to eat fresh bread because it is hard to digest. But oatmeal bread can be eaten as soon as it comes from the oven and there is no difficulty in digesting it.

The addition of Tillson's Oats, which you will see in the recipe below, gives to this bread a delicious flavor and a dietetic balance.

If you have been fond of brown bread you will forsake it in favor of this oatmeal bread.

Try it.

Oatmeal Bread

With one quart of boiling water scald two cupfuls of Tillson's Rolled Oats. Add one tablespoonful of salt and one of lard. When cool, add one yeast cake dissolved in one cupful lukewarm water, and three cupfuls bread flour, or enough to make a batter. Beat well. When light add one-half teaspoonful soda dissolved in a very little warm water, and one-half cupful of sugar. Beat eight cupfuls of flour into the batter, making the bread as stiff as can be stirred. It may take more than this amount of flour, which should be added gradually, beating and stirring continually. Turn into the tins, let rise, and bake one hour in a slow oven.

Your grocer has Tillson's. Two sizes—10c and 25c. Each 25c package contains a handsome piece of English Porcelain Tableware.

THE EVENING CHIT-CHAT

By Ruth Cameron

SHE means so well that I suppose it is a shame to find fault with her, but really——!

"She" is the ultra-enthusiast.

Enthusiasm is undoubtedly one of the qualities that most easily wins popularity. Everyone likes a man or woman who is a live and interested and enthusiastic. That's one of the reasons why we all love the young folks so—because they haven't yet lost their enthusiasm.

But just as high as the balance rises in favour of a reasonable degree of enthusiasm, just so low I think it sinks under an unreasonable degree of unnatural and forced enthusiasm.

Perhaps I'm unjust in calling it "forced" and "unnatural," but truly, I can't believe that any such abnormal amount of fervour and emotion as the ultra-enthusiast displays on every occasion is entirely natural and spontaneous.

Of course, you know her type. Everyone does.

She is always in a fervour of enthusiasm over something or other. Sometimes it's her own affairs, and sometimes it's yours. She has always just had the loveliest time, or she has the most interesting thing to tell you, or she's just found the most wonderful bargain. Superlatives are the breath of life to her. She really couldn't live without them. So are gestures and exclamations, terms of endearment and continual laughter. She couldn't any more talk for five minutes without this sort of an accompaniment than an ordinary person could talk without a tongue.

You ought to be delighted when her enthusiastic interest turns towards yourself, and perhaps you do enjoy it in homeopathic doses. But if you ever have to take her allopathically you are sure to be sickened.

And all the time she is wondering why, when she takes such an interest in people and means so well, they don't like her better—that is, if she is a person of sufficient discernment to know that they don't.

Poor creature. She is one of the most pitiable examples of wasted energy I know of. Half that enthusiasm would be delightful and would probably win her the popularity for which she longs so eagerly. Whereas the whole sum of it is wearing and tiring, and drives people away or makes them laugh at her.

Isn't it too bad that she has not some friend who loves her well enough to be kindly cruel and open her eyes to that waste of energy?

Perhaps she has.

Perhaps I am talking to some such friend even now, and he or she has already decided to be brave enough to try to help, tactfully if possible, decisively anyway.

I sincerely hope so.

BRIDGENORTH

Special to The Examiner.

BRIDGENORTH, MARCH 26. — Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Tedford entertained a number of their friends at their home "Eagle Mount Farm," on Monday March 25. The occasion was in honour of her mother and aunt, Mrs. J. K. Stabler and Mrs. T. Tindle.

Mrs. Tedford proved herself an ideal hostess and those present thoroughly enjoyed themselves. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Tindle, Miss Gertrude Tindle, Mr. G. Tindle of Fowlers Corners, Mr. and Mrs. James Stabler, Mr. Roland Stabler, Mr. and Mrs. Ben. Nicholls, Mr. and Mrs. Vivian Harvey, Youngs Point.

Death Follows The Surgeon's Knife

Surgery is the fad in medical treatment, and many doctors still recommend a surgical operation for piles. Too often the results are fatal to the patient and even when the operation is a success there is not always a cure.

There is a safer way to cure piles, a less risky and less expensive way. You are certain of obtaining relief by using Dr. Chase's Ointment, and if you persist in this treatment you can also be fully cured.

It is worth while to try Dr. Chase's Ointment, even if you have been told that an operation is necessary. Many have escaped the knife by using this ointment, others have been cured by its use after operations had failed.

Relief from the itching, stinging sensations which make the suffering from piles so hard to bear is obtained almost as soon as Dr. Chase's Ointment is applied.

A SEVERE COLD DEVELOPED INTO

PNEUMONIA.

Doctors Said He Would Not Live.

DR. WOOD'S NORWAY PINE SYRUP Cured Him.

Too much stress cannot be laid on the fact that when a person catches cold it must be attended to immediately, or serious results are liable to follow.

There is only one way to prevent pneumonia, and that is, to cure the cold just as soon as it appears.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup will do this quickly and effectively.

Mr. Hugh McLeod, Esterhazy, Sask., writes:—"My little boy took a very severe cold, and it developed into pneumonia. The doctor said he would not live. I got some of your Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and he began to improve. Now, he is a strong healthy child, and shows no sign of it coming back."

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; price 25 cents.

Manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Westwood News

Examiner Special:

WESTWOOD, MARCH 26. — Rev. Mr. Frost, former pastor of Westwood Methodist church, conducted service on Sunday last. He was warmly welcomed back by the congregation.

Owing to the illness of Miss Hamilton, there was no school in the Village on Thursday of last week.

The snow storm of Thursday quenched some of the elations of spring coming. It is to be hoped we have seen the last of winter.

The Indian Concert which was to have been held on Thursday night of last week, was postponed. Many not knowing of the postponement were disappointed upon arriving in the Village.

Miss Katie Skinner visited relatives in the Village on Thursday last. Miss Skinner was fortunate in not having to teach school on Thursday, on account of the storm.

A few friends spent a very enjoyable evening at the home of Mrs. John Sargent on Monday night of last week.

Miss Harvey spent the week-end at her home in Peterborough.

A few of the village young people spent Tuesday evening the guests of Mrs. Porter of Norwood.

A very enjoyable time was spent in music and dancing.

On Wednesday evening a sleighload from the Village drove up to the boundary line to spend the evening at the home of Mr. F. C. Watt. A splendid time was passed in music and games.

Messrs. Hewie and Nelson attended the Grand Lodge at Kingston last week.

The Young Men's and Young Ladies' Bible Class gathered at the home of Mr. M. Breckenridge, on Friday night last, and spent a very pleasant evening. Music and games were the order of the evening, and after refreshment had been served all went home quite happy.

It is pleasing to know that those on the sick list are improving quickly.

"I beg your pardon, sir, for letting the train of my dress get under your feet. I'll remove it as soon as I can."

OXO CUBES

HAVE MADE GOOD

They Have Hosts of Friends

HARDLY a pantry but has a place on its shelves for the neat little tins of the carefully packed OXO CUBES—the concentrated goodness of Prime Beef.

By many, OXO CUBES are used to make a "Beef Drink," and they do make the most health-giving nourishing drink in the world, but very large quantities earn their pantry reputation, with many of our OXO friends, in numerous other ways.

What are they?

Culinary Discoveries

Why, it didn't take the good housewife long to see that OXO CUBES were Concentrated Prime Beef pressed into handy form. So if the hash happened to be a little tasteless, in went an OXO CUBE, and perhaps two — to strengthen it up — and it did strengthen it up.

If the gravy wasn't all it might be, an OXO CUBE set it right. The meat-pie was made a little more appetizing in the same way. For the little children, potatoes, with a half cup of gravy made from an OXO CUBE, is ideal—the potatoes are made more nutritious and more easy to digest.

Boiled rice with OXO is delicious. OXO increases the nourishment derived, and the combination makes a good meal.

OXO CUBES entered the home as an extra and were kept on permanently. They started as a bouillon or a beef tea and became the mainstay of meat dishes of every kind. They bridged the gap between failure and success many and many a time. The little squares of OXO were responsible for many a square meal. Is it any wonder that they have made good?

We want to be sure you are making the most of OXO Cubes

So many ladies are every day finding new ways of using OXO CUBES. You may have discovered one new use for them; your neighbor another. How do you use them?

Won't You Tell Us?

If you are using OXO CUBES for Beef Tea only, try them in other ways, and write and tell us about it.

We should like to hear from you the ways in which you find OXO CUBES valuable in your household; to receive a letter from you, and we want to offer gifts in return for the courtesy.

A FREE GIFT

To each of the writers of the best 3 letters we receive each day for the next 3 days, telling us of your uses for OXO CUBES and in what ways OXO CUBES are most popular in your home, we will send postpaid a box of fifty OXO CUBES free of charge.

Write to-day. It will take only a few moments.

Useful Household Size, 50 Cubes, $1.15

The meaty goodness you would like to add to soups, meat-pies, and other meat dishes will be found only in OXO CUBES. Do not take a substitute. Your dealer has OXO CUBES and will be glad to supply you. Be sure to say "OXO CUBES," and you will get the neatly packaged CUBES—the concentrated goodness of Prime Beef in handy and economical form.

Tins of 4 Cubes, at 10 cents. Tins of 50 Cubes, at $1.15

ASTHMA

Mrs. Parndel of Clementsport, N. S., Suffered All Her Life From Asthma, But Was Permanently Cured by Catarrhozone After All Other Means Failed.

Mrs. Parndel gives the following statement of her case for the benefit of others who are suffering from asthma, and hopes that many will follow her example and use Catarrhozone:—

"I am now in my eightieth year, and cannot recall the time when I was free from asthma. I had always a choking cough, feverishness, spasms, difficulty in breathing, headache and nausea. My druggist advised Catarrhozone one day, and I bought a large outfit. It gave relief in five minutes, and helped me very much in one day.

"I inhaled Catarrhozone ten minutes every hour, and by the time two bottles were used I was completely cured. I am as free now from asthma as if I never had it. My perfect recovery is due entirely to Catarrhozone. I prize my Catarrhozone inhaler next to life itself."

Catarrhozone

Relieves at Once—Prevents and Cures Quickly.

For the nose, throat, lungs and bronchial tubes, Catarrhozone is unrivalled. Try it yourself—both pleasant and safe. Two months' treatment guaranteed to cure; price $1, medium size, 50 cents, small (Trial) size, 25 cents, at all dealers.

THE CONSULAR STAFF.

What Canada's Foreign Representatives Are Doing.

Diplomatically, Canada is still tied to her mother's apron strings. Commercially, she is hoeing her own row. Which is to say that if a Canadian gets into trouble with the police in Paris or Berlin, he must appeal to the British Ambassador to help him out of his scrape, while if he gets mixed up in some business negotiations, he has the happy alternative of calling at the office of the Canadian Trade Commissioner for advice, counsel and relief.

If the wars of the future are to be commercial wars, then Canada is making a good start in getting her ambassadors of commerce skillfully placed at all the strategic points of the field, says W. A. Craick in Canadian Courier. You will find their sign boards hung out conspicuously in the streets of Paris and Melbourne, of Berlin and Auckland, of Amsterdam and Shanghai, of Havana and Yokohama.

And our Canadian Downing Street, keenly alive to the importance of their work, holds the strings. Appointed and controlled by the Department of Trade and Commerce, they act under twenty-six pages of closely-printed instructions—the Trade Commissioner's Book of Leviticus. Like the laws of the ancient Israelites, the instructions to the Trade Commissioners provide but dry and scanty fare for the rest of mankind, and, as paterfamilias is wont to skip the chapters of Leviticus in his family devotions, so is it becoming that the present writer should not pause to inflict the sixty-six sections of the Commissioners' bible on the patience of his readers. Suffice it, if needful, to pick out a few golden texts.

Putting it in a nutshell the main function of a Trade Commissioner is to link up Canadian sellers with British or foreign buyers. He is supposed to keep his eyes open for possible markets for Canadian goods, to post himself on the way to do business in his particular district and to furnish reports on trade conditions. For instance, Commissioner Fischer, over at No. 10 Unter den Linden (charming address), Berlin, makes a discovery that a certain German manufacturer, who uses quantities of feldspar and mica in his business, would be delighted if he could get in touch with some Canadian exporter of these commodities. Canada is just the place to supply feldspar and mica, and Commissioner Fischer assures the German he will stir things up. Through the Department at Ottawa and their neat little weekly trade newspaper, it soon becomes known to the business men of Canada that a German correspondent, who is a large buyer of feldspar and mica, wants the addresses of Canadian exporters. This is an intimation to the feldspar and mica men of the Dominion to bestir themselves and write for particulars. If all goes well, an arrangement is effected. Commissioner Fischer has done his duty and has vindicated his position.

The service is still young. A glance over the present official list of Commissioners would show that the most venerable of the appointees has only held office since 1902, while most of the others date from 1907 onwards. The Trade Commissioner Service was launched in a small way in 1892, when three or four commercial agents were appointed in the West Indies. These agents were men in business in the islands, who for a small remuneration devoted a part of their time to the promotion of Canadian trade in the islands.

However admirable the system was as a starter, it had its defects. Canada needed the undivided attention of native-born officials. A new class of agents was constituted, distinguished from the former by the name of trade commissioners, and paid a sufficient salary to enable them to devote all their time to the duties of their office. The late J. S. Larke received the first appointment in 1894, and at intervals since then the service has been enlarged and extended until today the list includes eighteen commissioners and four agents.

In order to make the work of the commissioners as effective as possible, the Department of Trade and Commerce has gone extensively into the publishing business. It shares with the Secretary of State's Department the honor of getting out the only weekly publication issued by the Government. In its way the "Weekly Report" of the Department of Trade and Commerce is every bit as interesting as The Canada Gazette. True, it does not furnish such a variety of topics as the voluminous Gazette, but it has some choice paragraphs for those who know how to find them.

SIRES AND SONS.

South Carolina has three brothers on the bench—Chief Justice Eugene B. Gary and Circuit Judges Ernest Gary and Frank B. Gary.

Francis Wilson, the comedian, is a serious minded bibliophile with a wonderful collection of books in his Philadelphia home. He is a student of art and history.

James L. Cowles, the father of the parcels post movement in this country, is nearly eighty years of age, but is still remarkably active mentally and bodily. He is secretary of the Postal Progress league, with an office in New York.

S. H. P. Pell, who has begun the restoration of historic Fort Ticonderoga, with a view to perfecting it just as it was at the time of Ethan Allen's daring exploit, is a New York banker and broker. He inherited the Ticonderoga property, which was purchased by his great-great-grandfather as a summer home in 1818.

The nizam of Haidarabad, first of the Moslem chiefs, who paid homage to King George at the durbar, rules over the largest territory of any native chief in India. He adopts a personal simplicity which marks him out in any Indian assembly. Even at the durbar he wore a plain frock coat. The Star of India was his only adornment.

Royal Box.

The Prince of Wales, finding himself in church without money to put in the collection plate, is said to have gone out and borrowed from a police sergeant.

The shah of Persia owns fifty cats, which have attendants and rooms of their own and which accompany him almost everywhere, carried by men on horseback, in cages lined with velvet.

The queen of Spain is gracious to the man with the camera. On one occasion a photographer followed her persistently. She sent one of her attendants to inquire the reason. The man's answer was irresistible: "I take photographs to gain my daily bread." The queen stopped, saying, "I did not know that," and allowed him to snapshot her

Individual Cups.

In the middle of the sixteenth century a professor of theology in Strassburg insisted upon having individual communion cups, and during the plague in 1564 his demand was enforced.

Healthful Paraguay.

Paraguay has a remarkably healthful climate. Although disease prevails in some of its worst forms, epidemics are rare. Influenza is known, but it not prevalent to a great extent.

Calendar Curiosities.

No century can begin on Wednesday, Friday or Saturday. October and January always begin on the same day of the week except in a leap year. September, December, February, March and November start on the same day of the week. May, June and August never start on the same week day as other months start. April and July begin on the same day of the week.

To Soften Hard Shoes.

Boots that have become hardened by damp and mud will not crack if a little glycerin be rubbed into them. The leather should be wiped free of glycerin before the boots are blacked.

Birds in the Arctic.

Birds go to the arctic regions to rear their young because of the plentiful supply of food to be found there. Seed eating birds find plenty of frozen berries, and insect feeding birds have only to open their mouths to have them filled with mosquitoes.

Music For Bald Horses.

A veterinarian claims to have made the discovery that music is a remedy for baldness in horses, the friction produced by the air waves dilating the superficial blood vessels and acting as a sort of massage. If the instrument is held so as played over the occipital epidermis it provokes a reaction in the arteries of the head. Similar results occur in men, according to the discoverer.

Benjamin West.

Benjamin West was sixty-four when he commenced his series of paintings, one of which is "Christ Healing the Sick."

A Long Beard.

The longest beard referred to in European history is that which adorned the person of John Mayo, painter to the Emperor Charles V. It is said of him that, though he was very tall, his beard was so long that he could tread upon it.

Library For Montreal Now.

Montreal, the largest North American city without a public library may soon have one. Although there are 500,000 persons living in Montreal, a library never has been established, because the Roman Catholic archbishop would not consent unless the church had control of the selection of the books.

The City Council now has given instructions for the drafting of a bylaw for the establishment of a library. Ald. Morin stated recently that his idea was a library of English and French books, including works prohibited by the church. The latter, however, are to be kept in a separate section. A Catholic must have an archbishop's permit to get one.

Canadian Colony In Palestine.

That the Canadian flag would soon be flying in Palestine was the statement made by Dr. John Shayne in an address delivered before the Zionists of Toronto in the Lyric Theatre recently.

"The Canadian Jews have decided," he said, "to establish a Canadian colony in Palestine. Relatives of Canadian Jews who are in Russia will be assisted there, and they will be given the protection of the Canadian flag.

Sensation at Rodney.

While digging a ditch about three miles from the village of Rodney, on the farm of H. Rippen, parts of the skeleton of a mastodon were unearthed, and being in a good state of preservation, the curiosity is a feature at the fall fair.

Metaphysics.

A Scotch blacksmith being asked the meaning of metaphysics explained it as follows: "When the party who listens dinna ken what the party who speaks means, and when the party who speaks dinna ken what he meant himself, that is metaphysics."

Sweden.

The Barking Bird.

The barking bird utters a very loud note. Indeed, it is impossible to distinguish it from the bark of a dog. Its English name, says Darwin, is well given, for I defy any one at first to feel certain that a small dog is not yelping somewhere in the forest. The toucan has also the same peculiarity.

APSLEY ITEMS OF INTEREST

Special to The Examiner

APSLEY, MARCH 27.—We are all very sorry to hear that Mr. G. A. Bullied is leaving this vicinity and wish him success in his future home at Coe Hill.

Mr. Thomas and John Coones started for the West on Saturday morning last.

Miss Millar and her brother, from Lakefield are spending a few days at Mr. Wm. Tucker's.

Miss Annie Coones went to Lakefield to spend a few days at her sister's, Mrs. Jas. Pennett, Jr.

Miss Maud Clifford from Peterborough, was the guest of Mrs. Almond Harris, Saturday; Miss Ella Brown, Sunday; Miss Edith Lean, Monday; and returned home Tuesday, accompanied by Miss Sally Harris.

Mr. Wm. Tucker, Jr., and Mr. Z. Tucker, Jr., are spending a week in town.

Miss Maude Tucker was the guest of Miss Alberta Wilson Saturday, Sunday, and Monday.

Mr. Wm. Tucker, Reeve of Burleigh and Anstruther, is favouring the young folks of the village and surrounding country with a party.

Mr. Wap. Grant was the guest of Mr. Duncan Brown Saturday last.

A quiet little party was held in the town hall, Friday night, which lasted till 12. Everyon ereported having a fine time.

Rev. Mr. Pickford of Warsaw, spent a few days in the Village last week.

The Ladies' Aid Society are going to have a Leap Year social Friday, March 29th.

Miss Etta King is the guest of Mrs. George Nurse.

Mrs. J. N. Telford spent Monday, the guest of Mrs. Robt. Telford.

Miss Gertie Scott of Peterborough, spent Sunday at her home on Chemong road.

Mr. John Heard, of Bridgenorth, found it a very difficult task in making his trip from Peterborough to-day.

Methodist church next Sabbath in connection with the regular review. Special music is being prepared and a cordial invitation is extended to the parents and well-wishers of the school to attend.

Miss Gabriel Balfour was in Lindsay on Tuesday visiting Mrs. Geo. Balfour.

Muscles Useless Without Nerve Force
Perhaps you are not quite clear on the relation of the nerves to the rest of the body. Through the nerve fibres which extend through countless branches to every nook and corner of the human system is conveyed the motive power which operates the various organs.
There could be no breathing, no beating of the heart, no flow of the digestive fluids, no action of any muscle or organ of the body without nerve force. Consequently, when the nervous system becomes exhausted there is complete collapse of the body, the different stages of which are described as nervous prostration, locomotor ataxia and paralysis.
The time to use such restorative treatment as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is when the headaches, sleeplessness, indigestion and other warning symptoms first appear. A few weeks' persistent treatment is then sufficient to revitalize the wasted nerve cells and restore health and vigour.

HASTINGS ITEMS OF INTEREST

HASTINGS, MARCH 27.—Another storm has visited our town, and once more the signs of Spring have disappeared.

Quite a number from town attended the wedding at the home of Mr. and Mrs. I. Hore on Wednesday last, when their eldest daughter, Miss Maggie, became the bride of Mr. Arthur Thomson, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. Thomson of this place. Both of these young people are well and favourably known here and the best wishes of a host of friends will follow them in their new relationship. Mr. and Mrs. Thomson will reside near town. Congratulations.

The many friends here of Dr. Boucher, late of Peterborough, regret to learn of his death and extend sympathy to the bereaved relatives and friends.

Rev. T. H. Anderson has been conducting a series of special meetings during the past week in the Methodist church.

Mr. S. McBride, traveller for the Peter Hamilton Co. of Peterborough, spent the past week in this district, in the interests of the firm, and reports business as quite brisk in this locality.

Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Howson of Otonabee, visited friends in this section during the week.

Miss H. West has been spending a few weeks iwth friends in Ottawa, etc.

Thursday being the 21st of March, was looked upon as ruling day for the coming season, and was heralded in by a stiff, south-east breeze. Some old-timers say that will be the prevailing wind for the next forty days.

Some of our young people attended the At Home in Keene on Friday evening last.

Mrs. Wilson and Son, Gordon, have been visiting friends in Lindsay.

The school, at No. 5, was closed for Thursday, owing to the inclement weather which prevented the pupils from getting there.

ENNISMORE ITEMS

Special to The Examiner:

ENNISMORE, MARCH 27.—Owing to the blockade of the roads the Chemong and Ennismore mail carrier failed to make his appearance, but we will excuse him, for much credit is due to him, as he has only disappointed us twice in delivering our daily Examiner.

Messrs. John and Bernard McManus have purchased a new sawing machine and intend to make some of the boys hustle handling wood.

The Gilmour Memorial Baptist church held a St. Patrick social on Monday evening and an enjoyable evening was spent.

THE AERO CAR

A Reality and May Be Seen at the Bleriot Works in France.

The aero-car is now a reality, and on trestles at the Blériot aeroplane works the first machine of the kind built to order of M. Henri Deutsch de la Meurthe, may be seen.

It resembles a well-appointed taxicab with large monoplane wings. These are, of course, the ordinary spars in front and behind for the elevation and steering rudders and the car rests on an ordinary plane chassis. The driver placed outside the car itself, has a seat resembling that of any motor-car driver, with a spare seat at his left. The motor a 100 h.p. Gnome and propeller are immediately in the rear of the body, which is fitted with most comfortable and springy cane seats for four persons. The windows are of mica, and being placed below will afford the passengers a view of the country when the car is in flight.

THE CHURCH ON THE FIGHTING LINE AT TRIPOLI

That the priests have no fear of bullets or cold steel is well exemplified in the above illustration, which shows a priest armed with a revolver watching a mountain gun. Note the completeness of his dress—his cassock rolled and tucked up over his knees, regulation boots and puttees, with ordinary military headdress. On his breast is the crucifix. His misral and revolver cases are strapped to his breast.

Suffered Greatly With Her Heart.
Became So Weak At Times Could Hardly Walk.
Many people may be unaware of having anything wrong with their heart till some excitement, overwork, or confinement in an overheated or overcrowded room, or public building makes them feel faint and dizzy.
On the first sign of any weakness of the heart or nerves, flagging energy or physical breakdown, you should not wait until you case becomes desperate before you avail yourself of a perfect cure by using Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.
Mrs. D. McGilvery, Bathurst, N.B., writes:—"Just a few lines to let you know what Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have done for me. I suffered greatly with my heart and became so weak at times I could hardly walk. A friend of mine advised me to try your Pills, which I did, and soon found great relief. They are the best medicine I have ever taken for heart trouble."
Price 50 cents per box, or 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

A LITTLE DANDERINE WILL MAKE YOUR HAIR LUSTROUS, SOFT, FLUFFY, ABUNDANT
Get a 25 Cent Bottle Now and Forever Stop Falling Hair, Itching Scalp and Dandruff
If you Wish to Double the Beauty of your Hair in Ten Minutes surely Try a Danderine Hair Cleanse
Your hair becomes light, wavy, fluffy, abundant and appears as soft, lustrous and beautiful as a young girl's after a Danderine hair cleanse. Just try this—moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. This will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt and excessive oil and in just a few moments you have doubled the beauty of your hair.
A delightful surprise awaits particularly those who have been careless, whose hair has been neglected or is scraggy, faded, dry, brittle or thin. Besides beautifying the hair at once, Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff; cleanses, purifies and invigorates the scalp, forever stopping itching and falling hair.
Try as you will, after one application of Danderine you cannot find any dandruff or a loose or falling hair, and your scalp will never itch, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use when you will actually see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair sprouting all over the scalp. Danderine makes the hair grow long, heavy and luxuriant and we can prove it. If you care for pretty, soft hair and lots of it surely get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any druggist or toilet counter, and just try it.

Suffragettes Have a Big Balance In the Bank.

London, March 28.—Mrs. Pankhurst, Mr. and Mrs. Pethick Lawrence, joint editors of Votes for Women, and Mrs. Tuke were brought up again in the Bow Street Police Court yesterday at the resumption of the hearing of the charge of conspiracy and inciting to commit malicious damage to property. The hearing lasted throughout the day.

The court was filled with well-dressed women from an early hour.

The evidence given yesterday dealt with big sums paid by the Women's Social and Political Union for the hire of halls. In one case alone $4,500 was paid. A banker called as a witness testified that checks had been drawn by the four prisoners on behalf of the Women's Social and Political Union, whose credit balance in December was $115,000. After the arrest of the accused the sum of $35,000 was withdrawn on a single check, and the balance now amounted to only $1,500.

A human touch was introduced into the case by the production of a letter written by Mrs. Pankhurst to Dr. Ethel Smyth, who was sentenced on March 9 to two months' imprisonment at hard labor for participating in a window-breaking expedition in the shopping district of London on March 1. The letter commenced: "My darling E.," and in it appeared the sentence: "On Friday there will be a skirmish in which some of our bad bold ones will take part."

The case was adjourned.

Mrs. Alice Green, who refused to be bound over to keep the peace and was sentenced to four months' imprisonment, said, with a catch in her voice: "Since Thursday I have given up my home, husband and child in order to go into this movement, and I will not go back until women get the vote."

Another batch of suffragettes was sent to prison yesterday by Judge Robert Wallace, chairman of the London Sessions.

Most of the women were sentenced to four months' imprisonment, but some who had been previously convicted were given six months, while one who had twice previously convicted had the distinction of getting eight months.

Mrs. Alice Monck-Mason, a grandmother of sixty-eight years old, volubly protested again the injustice of being released and bound over to keep the peace for one year.

"God is on our side," was the retort of another prisoner, who declared that she would do her four months' term in jail with an easy conscience.

"Poor Jane is in despair."

"What's the matter with Jane?"

"Why, she has just begun to realize that she's too fat for an actress and not fat enough for a prima donna."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Ten Skiers Killed.

Vienna, March 28.—A party of eleven ski-ers were overwhelmed by an avalanche near the summit of Sechnee Berg, near Vienna, Tuesday afternoon and ten persons were killed.

Two woodcutters, coming down the mountain, heard groans from beneath the snow. They dug hastily and discovered a woman with her clothes torn, and so exhausted that there is little hope for her recovery. She gasped "Avalanche, dig deeper," and then fainted.

They laid her on the snow, and after much work recovered the corpse of the leader of the party, Dr. Hacker. Then they conveyed the woman (Fraulein Bianca Tagleicht) who is the sole survivor of the tragedy, to the hotel.

Owing to the heavy snowstorm on Tuesday night the relief expedition was without result, but yesterday morning several detachments of soldiers on skis proceeded to the spot.

Nine bodies, including that of one woman, have been discovered. It is remarkable that the faces of all the victims wear happy expressions, which seems to indicate that death was instantaneous.

Canadian Girls Are White Slaves.

Niagara Falls, N.Y., March 28.—Charged with importing four white slaves from Canada, William Weeks, proprietor of a road house near Lewiston, was arrested by U. S. authorities yesterday. Scores of young girls have recently been taken from Canada to the States by white slavers, it is claimed. The federal authorities are determined to break up the traffic.

Germany Has Aero Fever.

Berlin, March 28.—A movement has been quietly spreading in Germany to make a more extensive use of aeroplanes for military purposes. Private persons and municipalities are coming forward of their own initiative to aid in the movement.

How to Make Better Cough Syrup than You Can Buy

A Family Supply, Saving $3 and Fully Guaranteed.

Sixteen ounces of cough syrup — as much as you could buy for $3.50—can easily be made at home. You will find nothing that takes hold of an obstinate cough more quickly, usually ending it inside of 24 hours. Excellent, too, for croup, whooping cough, sore lungs, asthma, hoarseness and other throat troubles.

Mix two cups of granulated sugar with one cup of warm water, and stir for two minutes. Put 2½ ounces of Pinex (fifty cents' worth) in a 16-ounce bottle, then add the Sugar Syrup. It keeps perfectly. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.

This is just laxative enough to help cure a cough. Also stimulates the appetite, which is usually upset by a cough. The taste is pleasant.

The effect of pine and sugar syrup on the inflamed membranes is well known. Pinex is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, rich in guaiacol and all the natural healing pine elements. Other preparations will not work in this formula.

The Pinex and Sugar Syrup recipe is now used by thousands of housewives throughout the United States and Canada. The plan has been imitated, but the old successful formula has never been equaled.

A guaranty of absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded, goes with this recipe. Your druggist has Pinex, or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

TELEGRAPHIC BRIEFS.

A course in agriculture may be established at Queen's University.

Miss Carrie Graham, employed as a printer at Goderich, committed suicide by poison.

Mr. George Cuthbert, recently appointed postmaster at Grafton, was found dead in his house.

The Experimental Farm at Ottawa has issued a warning against canker found in imported potatoes.

A Chinese boy at the General Hospital, Toronto, is believed to have leprosy in an advanced stage.

Halton County Council proposes to spend $300,000 on improving highways, including the Government grant.

The west India delegates, who have come to arrange a trade agreement with Canada, arrived at Ottawa yesterday.

The smallpox patient who escaped from Regina Hospital is again missing, with the policemen in whose charge he was, and their car.

Miss Dorothy Rogers, the Winnipeg girl, who married Mr. Charles Watson for a joke, will apply to Parliament to have the marriage annulled.

Charles Rhode, who fell sixty feet at the old Standard Bank Building, Wellington street, Toronto, yesterday morning died shortly before midnight.

Six people had narrow escapes from death this morning when a fire broke out in the premises at 393 West King street, Toronto, a restaurant owned by Lee Chong.

Owing to the death of Dr. Thorburn, a son-in-law of Chief Justice Sir William Meredith, the enquiry into the defunct Farmers' Bank was postponed yesterday until May.

Leo De Forest, of the American De Forest Wireless Telegraph Co., was arrested at Palo Alto, Calif., yesterday, on an indictment from New York, charging misuse of the mails.

A rear-end freight train collision occurred about noon yesterday on the C. P. R. near Kleinberg. No one was injured, although the accident caused the derailment of eight cars and a locomotive.

Rebel Victory Confirmed.

El Paso, March 28.—An uncensored story of Tuesday's fighting at Jimines, dated at that place, was received from the Associated Press correspondent at the front by mail yesterday. It confirms telegraphic reports of rebel success.

The doubts which arose over the fact that the rebels continued to report victories but still seemed to retreat, are cleared up. The federals, who attacked Jimines under Gen. Trucy Auburt, were a different force from that which was defeated at Corralitos. The rebels engaged also were almost a new force, as Gen. Orozco did not care to weaken his column at Corralitos.

No Partition of China.

Berlin, March 28.—Alfred Zimmermann, Under Secretary at the Foreign Office, during the discussion of the budget for the German colony in China, in committee, said that President Yuan Shi Kai was worthy of confidence, but that he had shown himself to be not fully equal to the emergency during the recent mutinies in Pekin and elsewhere. The Government would have complete control of the situation if it was quickly furnished with money.

Germany, he said, would oppose every attempt at the partition of China, and would follow with the other powers a policy of non-intervention or eventually a joint action. The disorders in China, he declared, were not ended, and the strengthening of the German forces in Kiaccho by another 500 men was urgently required.

The budget committee approved the declarations of the Under Secretary of State, and voted appropriations for the sending of reinforcements to Kiacchou, several Socialist deputies voting in the affirmative.

Prince of Wales for Paris.

New York, March 28.—A London cable says: It is understood that the Prince of Wales will go to Paris next Monday and will stay with the Marquis De Breteuil, who was an intimate friend of King Edward.

The prince is already an excellent French scholar, but King George is specially desirous that his son shall perfect his accent, and the visit to Paris was accordingly arranged.

The services of an eminent professor, M. Escoffier, have been obtained. While in Paris the prince will attend auch theatrical performances as are deemed suitable by his temporary guardians.

Orillia Planing Mill Burned.

Orillia, March 28.—A few minutes after the men had left the factory at noon fire was discovered yesterday in the attic of J. R. Eaton & Sons' large planing mill, and before many minutes elapsed smoke was pouring out of all the windows of the building. Though the firemen were on the scene in a few minutes they could do nothing to save the factory. The loss is well covered by insurance, except perhaps in the case of the men, who lost all their tools. There were about seventy-five hands employed.

Deserted Lawyer Ends His Life.

Washington, March 28.—Philip Hichborn, a young lawyer and son of the late Admiral Hichborn, committed suicide last night by shooting himself in the head with a revolver. Despondency over the elopement last summer of his wife and Horace L. Wylie, a prominent Washington attorney, probably was the cause. Wylie and Mrs. Hichborn were last heard of in France.

Mrs. Hichborn was a daughter of the late Henry M. Hoyt, former solicitor-general of the United States.

Good News for Yukon.

Ottawa, March 28.—The Postmaster-General has decided to reduce the rates chargeable on money orders to the Yukon. The province has suffered from the inconvenience of being compelled to pay double rates compared to the other provinces during the past twelve years.

Through the exertion of Dr. Thompson, M.P. for the Yukon, the disability has now been removed.

Gatun Dam.

The Gatun dam at Panama is twenty times thicker than it is high, being about a half mile through at the base. Moreover, its crest is 115 feet above sea level.

Aloes.

The most valuable aloes come from the island of Sokotra, which lies just off the east African coast from Cape Guardafui. The drug itself is the bitter resinous juice of the leaves of the aloe plant that has been hardened in the sun. These leaves are of a fibrous, fleshy nature, and, in addition to the juice, the natives make this fiber into rope, many insisting that it makes a better rope than hemp.

Origin of a Phrase.

"Every man jack of them" is a phrase that had its origin in the corruption of the archaic "everich" or "every chop" (every one) into "every John" and then "every Jack."

A Theater Scheme.

A theater manager at Temesvar, Hungary, has inaugurated the curious plan of selling tickets according to the stature of the purchasers. By this plan short and medium sized persons are all seated in front of the taller members of the audience.

The Cocoanut Palm.

The cocoanut palm has one peculiarity. It never stands upright. There is a Malay maxim to the effect that "he who hath seen a straight cocoanut palm will surely live forever."

MARKET REPORTS.

Liverpool and Chicago Wheat Futures Close Higher—Live Stock—Latest Quotations.

CHICAGO, March 27.—News of the first seeding of spring wheat served to-day to check an advance due to depletion of stocks on both sides of the Atlantic. Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, March 27.—There was a good demand from foreign buyers for all grades of Manitoba spring wheat, and, as the prices bid were again 1½d to 2d higher, a fair amount of business was done for July-August shipment. Oats were firmer under an increased demand and in sympathy with the advance in prices in the west. A small business was worked in spring wheat flour for export account, and Glasgow bid 36s and Leith 34s 6d for 90 per cent. winter wheat patents for prompt shipment. The local trade is fairly active and firm. Butter is quiet, the advance in prices having checked the demand. Hogs strong and 25c higher, under a good demand. Eggs active and steady.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, March 27.—At the Canadian Pacific live stock market, the receipts of live stock for the week ending March 23 were 900 cattle, 125 sheep and lambs, 1225 hogs and 1000 calves. To-day's offerings were 600 cattle, 100 sheep and lambs, 800 hogs and 1000 calves.

There was no important change in the condition of the market for cattle, prices being firmly maintained under a fairly good demand and small supplies. Top quality steers sold as high as $7.25; good at from $6 to $7, and common at from $4.50 to $5.50 per 100 pounds. The trade in cows was fair, at from $3.50 to $5.75, and bulls brought from $3.50 to $5.25 per 100 pounds.

The most important feature of the trade was the exceedingly strong feeling in the market for hogs, and prices scored a further advance of 40c to 50c per 100 pounds, making a net rise for the week so far of 80c to 90c, and also a record price for the year to date. The demand was good, even at the higher range, and sales of selected lots were made at $8 to $8.25, and in some cases as high as $8.40 was paid for small lots per 100 pounds, weighed off cars.

In small meats an active trade was done in calves, and, as the supply was not in excess of the demand, prices ruled steady at from $3 to $8 each, as to size and quality. Sheep were quiet, and, as the quality of the stock offered was only medium, they were sold at $4.50 per 100 pounds. There was a good demand for lambs, and prices were firm at $7.75 to $7.90 per 100 pounds.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

EAST BUFFALO, March 27.—Cattle—Receipts, 25 head; market, trade light, steady; prime steers, $7.50 to $8; butcher grades, $6 to $7.

Calves—Receipts, 250 head; market active, 50c higher; cull to choice, $5.50 to $11.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 4000; market active, 15c higher; choice lambs, $8.50 to $8.65; cull to fair, $6.50 to $8; yearlings, $7 to $7.50; sheep, $5 to $6.40.

Hogs—Receipts, 9500; market active, 10c to 15c higher; yorkers, $7.90 to $8.10; pigs, $7 to $7.25; mixed, $8 to $8.10; heavy, $8 to $8.10; roughs, $7 to $7.25; stags, $5.50 to $6.

For current year at rate, as per auditors' statement of at least	256,000

The annual average net earnings for the last four years are over five and one-half times the amount of the annual bond interest on the present issue.

OPERATIONS.

The American Sales Book Co., Limited, is the largest manufacturer of merchants' sales books in the world. Its operations are thoroughly established and its business is on a competitive basis. It was formed to take over the Carter-Crume Co., Limited (established in 1884), the American Sales Book Co. (established in 1899), and the Eastern Sales Book Co. (established in 1904), all of which Companies had been doing a large and profitable business. The present organization is the outcome of many years of successful operation, with the result that the Company has over 80,000 customers and its goods are used by all classes of business men and concerns, from the small retailer to the largest departmental stores. The factories at Niagara Falls, Elmira and Glendale are admirably situated for manufacturing and shipping purposes. They contain a floor area of over 300,000 feet, are constructed of brick and concrete, and are equipped with the most modern machinery. The amount of fire insurance carried is approximately $1,600,000.

SURPLUS ASSETS.

The value of real estate, buildings and plant, $1,342,854; and of net current assets, after deducting liabilities, $580,152, shows total net assets $1,923,006, or over 3½ times the amount of this Bond issue. The foregoing does not take into account the proceeds of the present Bond issue.

EARNINGS.

Net earnings for the last four years, of the separate companies totalled $688,158, an annual average of $172,039, or over 5½ times the annual interest charge on the Bonds issued. The net earnings for the current year, after allowing for depreciation are at the rate of $256,000.

SINKING FUND.

An annual Sinking Fund is provided, commencing 1st. April, 1915, sufficient to retire the whole of the present issue by maturity at 107½ and accrued interest.

FUTURE ISSUES.

The mortgage provides that the balance—$500,000 of the $1,000,000 of Bonds authorized—can only be issued to the extent of 80% of the cost of future properties, improvements and additions, and then only when the net earnings for the preceding twelve months shall have been at least three times the amount of interest on all outstanding Bonds and on the Bonds proposed to be issued. In the event of any such additional Bonds being issued, the Sinking Fund is to be increased proportionately.

Price---Par and Interest, to Yield 6%

Interim certificates will be issued pending delivery of definitive bonds.

Copies of the Trust Deed and the Certificates of the Appraisers and Auditors may be examined at our office.

Circular describing the issue in detail, and embracing the letter of the President, and Certificates of the Appraisers and Auditors will be furnished upon application.

TWO HUNDRED THOUSAND U.S. COAL MINERS TO STRIKE

Negotiations Between Mine Owners and Workers Have Proved Abortive and Men Will Go Out on April 1st—Situation is Serious.

COAL FOR ONTARIO

Special Wire to The Examiner.

CLEVELAND, OHIO, MARCH 28.—It was stated here this afternoon that the negotiations between the mine operators and mine workers had proven abortive and that the strike of two hundred thousand anthracite workers in the districts which supply the Eastern States and Canada with coal, was practically unavoidable. Orders to strike are effective April first and there is so far no sign of their repeal. There is equally little hope for a settlement of bituminous troubles, and if they also strike it means half a million workers will be out next week. The situation is admittedly very serious. Agents of Canadian roads and Canadian companies are busy in Pennsylvania and Ohio trying to hustle out shipments to Canada before the actual trouble begins. Hundreds of cars are loaded for Ontario and on their way there.

RETURNED TO WHEELS

The Fire Department fixed sleighing apparatus on their respective vehicles on January 4th, and returned to the wheels yesterday afternoon, making 83 days of continuous sleighing.

Last year the sleighs were fixed on the 30th day of November and there was continuous sleighing until the 24th of Feb., when the wheels were replaced. There were therefore 89 days of continuous sleighing, or eight more days than in the past season, although the clearing of the snow this winter is about a month behind that of last season.

END OF STRIKE IS AT HAND

Balloting as to Acceptance of Minimum Wage Bill is Taking Place To-day

WILL BE IN FAVOUR

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, MARCH 28.—It is believed that the end of the calamitous strike is near at hand, and none too soon for it is reported from more than one corner of the Kingdom that people are dying from starvation in some cases. Balloting as to the acceptance of the minimum wage bill is taking place in some centres today, but owing to the cumbersome system, the end cannot be reached until Tuesday next, anyway. Several local unions have applied to the Miners Federation for leave to return to work, pending the balloting, but the Labour leaders refused such permission.

There is little doubt that the balloting will result in the acceptance of the terms of the minimum wage bill.

LONDON, ENG., MARCH 28.—Premier Asquith to-day issued an appeal to the miners of Great Britain to accept the minimum wage bill which, he said, would effect largely what they fought for. The Premier made this appeal in the guise of a speech to the Liberal members of the House of Commons. The Premier said that he recognized that the agitation as far as the great bulk of the men were concerned, was a disinterested movement now that their grievance had been removed by the establishment of the principal of the minimum wage with machinery which could be trusted to fix reasonable rates. He strongly appeals in the name of the whole country for the resumption of normal industrial conditions. He hoped that industrial peace and contentment were now in sight.

The Ladies' Auxiliary of St. Joseph's Hospital will meet Tomorrow (Friday) afternoon at 3 o'clock in St. Alphonsus Lyceum. All the Ladies of the city cordially invited.

Majority For Church Union

42 Presbyteries Upheld it by 2 to 1—The Present Standing

TORONTO, MARCH 27.—Reports on church union have been received from 42 of 169 Presbyteries in Canada, and both on the general question, and the proposed basis they are in the affirmative by over two to one. In answer to the first question, "Are you in favour of organic union with the Methodist and Congregational churches?" 103,915 persons answered in the affirmative, and 44,732 in the negative.

In answer to the second question, 'Do you approve of the proposed basis of union" the total vote was as follows: Affirmative Elders, 3,289; members, 50,366; adherents, 17,257; total, 70,889. Negative—Elders, 1,371. members, 23,305; adherents 6,311; total, 30,987. These presbyteries, which have reported their votes on the first question, have not yet reported on the second: — Vermillion, Lindsay, Qu'Appelle, Hamilton, Huron and Battleford. The complete returns for all the presbyteries are to be announced at a meeting of the Church Union Committee called for one week from to-day.

Why Salves Can't Cure Eczema

Since the old-fashioned theory of curing eczema through the blood has been given up by scientists, many different salves have been tried for skin diseases. But it has been found that these salves only clog the pores and cannot penetrate to the inner skin below the epidermis where the eczema germs are lodged.

This—the quality of penetrating—probably explains the tremendous success of the well-known liquid eczema remedy, oil of wintergreen, thymol, glycerine, etc., as compounded in D. D. D. Prescription.

We have sold other remedies for skin troubles, but none that we can recommend as highly as this for we know that D.D.D. stops the itch at once.

Of course other druggists have D. D.D. Prescription—go to them if you can't come to us—but don't accept some big profit substitute.

But if you come to our store, we can tell you all about D.D.D. Prescription and how it cures eczema, because we have had the agency for so long.

Or you can get a free trial bottle by writing the D.D.D. Laboratories, 49 Colborne St., Toronto. McDermid & Jury, and E. L. Payne, druggists.

KILLED IN VANCOUVER

Albert Parrish, Who Left Peterborough Two Weeks Ago, Met a Horrible Death

WIFE AND CHILD HERE

VANCOUVER, B.C., MARCH 27.—When a scaffold gave way at a mill at False Creek yesterday, Albert Parrish, a young machinist, whose parents live in Toronto, was killed. He was thrown into the water with several hundred pounds of iron above him.

While no authentic word has been received here, the above despatch corresponds to the particulars concerning one Albert Parrish who left this city two weeks ago en route for Vancouver. Prior to his leaving the city he was employed at the C.G.E. as a machinist, and a letter has been received from Parrish by his father-in-law, Mr. John Sadler, 466 1-2 Gilmour street, in which the writer states that he had secured work as a machinist in a mill at False Creek. He leaves a wife and child who reside in this city at 165 Romaine street. The first notification taht his relatives here had of the young man's demise was contained in the above despatch which appeared in the Toronto papers.

Mr. Sadler, father-in-law of the deceased, wired to Vancouver this afternoon for further particulars. Mr. Frank Sadler of 581 Patterson street, is a brother-in-law of the deceased.

EXHIBITION BY Y.W.C.A. GYMNASIUM CLASS

The annual Y.W.C.A. gymnasium exhibition and concert which will be given in the Collegiate Institute hall to-morrow evening, promises the presentation of an unusually attractive programme. The success attained in past years is something of a criterion of what may be expected on this occasion. Fancy drills, exercises, marches and other special drills, in addition to a concert programme, will be presented. Friends of the Y. W. C. A. in particular and the general public as well will have a good opportunity to-morrow night of witnessing the efficiency that has been attained in the gymnasium work of the association.

The deceased lady, who was seventy three years of age, was a life-long resident of Peterborough.

Funeral private, with no flowers.

URIC ACID SUFFERING

Uric acid is an accumulation of poison which finds lodgment in the system when the kidneys fail to remove it from the blood. In the kidneys and bladder it forms stones, in the joints and muscles it causes rheumatism. In any case the pain and suffering is almost beyond human endurance. Uric acid is promptly removed from the system when the kidneys are kept healthy and active by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

FARM SALES

Recent Sales of Stock and Property Near the City

Recent sales in the country include a combination sale of farm stock and goods owned by Mr. Chas. Lock and M. J. Curtis near Ida, in Cavan. The auctioneer was Mr Geo. Jackson, of Port Perry. There was a good attendance at the sale. It is understood that Mr Lock and Mr Curtis are going west.

Another good sale was held on Tuesday at the farm of the late Mr. Jas. Wood, near Ballieboro. Implements and stock amounting to $3,300 was sold between one and five o'clock. Mr. W. J. Wilson, of Port Hope, was the auctioneer. It has been learned that the Wood farm has been purchased by Dr. T. P. McCullough of this city at $7,500. There are 300 acres on the farm, which is regarded as a particularly desirable one.

THE TRIP HAS BEEN ABANDONED

Proposed Trip of Board of Trade Delegation to Great Britain indefinitely Postponed

LACKED GUARANTORS

Mr. F. J. Morley, Secretary of the associated Boards of Trade of Ontario, has notified Mr. V. Eastwood, President of the Peterborough Board of Trade, to the effect that the proposed trip of the Board of Trade delegates to the Old Country will altogether likely be postponed. Lack of sufficient guarantors to the scheme is given as the reason. In the event of such a trip materialising, Peterborough would have, in all probability, sent a couple of delegates. The object of the trip was for the purpose visiting the principal industrial centres of Great Britain with a view to obtaining some first-hand information respecting matters that might be used to advantage in furthering the progressive policy of the Board of Trade movement on this side of the Atlantic. In order to secure transportation at a minimum rate from the railway and steamship companies, the Associations were called upon to furnish a guarantee certifying that a prescribed number of delegates would take in the trip. This the Association could not do within the time limit set by the railway company, hence the temporary cancellation of the trip.

Royal Romance Is Shattered

Special to The Examiner.

BERLIN, GERMANY, MARCH 28.—The Kaiser's trip to the Mediterranean, with his only daughter, the Princess Louise, ostensibly for throat trouble, is really to heal the Princess' broken heart. During the winter festivities the Princess fell violently in love with a handsome Captain of the Cavalry, Count Fugger, but owing to the difference in rank, and the fact that Fugger was a Roman Catholic their love affair could not be countenanced, so it was rudely squelched by the Imperial papa.

THINK THIS OVER

This Offer Should Gain the Confidence of the Most Skeptical.

We pay for all the medicine used during the trial, if our remedy fails to completely relieve you of constipation. We take all the risk. You are not obligated to us in any way whatever, if you accept our offer. That's a mighty broad statement, but we mean every word of it. Could anything be more fair for you?

A most scientific, common-sense treatment is Rexall Orderlies, which are eaten like candy. Their active principle is a recent scientific discovery that is odourless, colourless, and tasteless; very pronounced, gentle and pleasant in action, and particularly agreeable in every way. This ingredient does not cause diarrhoea, nausea, flatulence, griping, or other inconvenience. Rexall Orderlies are particularly good for children, aged and delicate persons.

If you suffer from chronic or habitual constipation, or the associate or dependent chronic ailments, we urge you to try Rexall Orderlies at our risk. Remember, you can get them in Peterborough only at our store, 12 tablets, 10 cents; 36 tablets, 25 cents; 80 tablets, 50 cents. Sold only at our store,—The Rexall Store, McDermid and Jury.

In Contracts Let for Public Buildings—Trades and Labour Council Will Ask For It

TO PETITION CITY FATHERS

The Trades and Labor Council have decided to ask the City Council and the Board of Education to enclose a fair wage clause in all contracts let for city work, and that a penalty be imposed for the non-compliance with its conditions. The question was discussed at last night's meeting in the Labour Temple ,and a deputation representing the various trades will likely wait on the Council at the regular meeting on Monday night next. They will also ask that for those who do not belong to a labour union, such as labourers, a minimum wage of 20c be allowed. The idea is that when a contractor accepts a contract that he recognize a fair wage agreement, and that in the event of it being broken a penalty be imposed upon him. This petition of the Trades and Labour Council will be significant from the fact that two schools will likely be erected here this summer, and an effort will be made to secure the effectiveness of the clause before the contracts for these are let.

The tickets for the concert under the auspices of the Council are now out. It will be held on April 12th, and the committee are sparing nothing to make it a success.

GORDON DAVIES CO. TO OPEN STORE HERE

Reported To-day That They Intend to Occupy the H. P. Kennedy Store on George Street

HAVE CHAIN OF STORES

It was learned to-day on good authority that the Gordon Davies Company, of Toronto, intend to shortly open a retail meat and provision store in Peterborough in the premises recently occupied by Mr. S. A. Oke, near the Union Bank. This company has a chain of retail provision stores in Toronto, dealing in pork and pork products, beef and other meats canned goods, tea, vegetables and other lines. Their coming will add another to Peterborough's fine stores and the location and store they have selected has always been regarded as a good one. The fittings are intended for just such a store, and in one sense the company might simply move their goods in as the premises are practically ready to receive them.

W. C. T. U. — The W. C. T. U. will meet at the home of Mrs. Knapman, corner of George and Dublin streets, on Friday at 3.30 p.m.

The Opinions Of Prominent Men On Leader Rowell's "Abolish The Bar" Resolution

The following additional expressions of opinion of representative Toronto citizens upon Mr. Rowell's temperance policy, as announced elsewhere in this issue, are given as those of men well qualified from their relative positions and relations to give utterances of interest and import:

MR. JOHN MACDONALD.

Mr. John Macdonald, head of the firm of John Macdonald & Company, said:

"I am a strong temperance man anyway, and always have been. I have always been on that side, and haven't seen any reason to change yet. I think the abolition of the bar is a good thing to put in the platform, and I think this is the day for a man, if he takes a stand, to take his stand—there is no use mincing matters. I don't see anything else that he can do."

CONTROLLER M'CARTHY.

Controller J. O. McCarthy said: "The policy proposed is a proper one and will be a popular one. I believe that seventy-five per cent. of the people of Ontario are ready to abolish the bar-room, although there are many differences of opinion as to detail. The feeling that we would be better without the bar-room is not confined to temperance people, or workers, but is shared to a considerable extent by those who indulge. The question, 'What is best for the boy,' has serious attention from thousands of men who take a glass, and has been a mighty factor in creating opinion against the bar-room. I sincerely hope that the 'further restriction' referred to includes the abolition of club licenses. The proposal to place the control of the residue of the traffic entirely outside of political influences, if made a reality, would accomplish great good. I have always believed that the Liberal party could have carried the Province ten years ago on a straight temperance platform, and if the party leader and candidates take hold of this policy now with the enthusiasm and earnestness that carries the conviction that they mean business they will win."

PROVOST MACKLEM.

Rev. T. C. Street Macklem, Provost of Trinity College, said: "I am a firm believer in anything that would tend to abolition of the treating system, which I believe to be one of the greatest evils in connection with drinking. I believe also in a reasonable reduction of saloons, carried out under a policy that does not do injury to proper vested interests. The question of total prohibition and complete abolition of the bar I have not studied sufficiently in connection with the present presentation to express an opinion about it."

REV. DR. T. A. MOORE.

After reading the pronouncement of Mr. Rowell, Rev. Dr. T. Albert Moore, General Secretary of the Department of Temperance and Moral Reform of the Methodist Church, said:

I think that if the bar can be banished from the Province it will mean a very great deal for the sobriety of the citizens and will greatly lessen the drinking throughout the country. Further, I want to express my gratification at the statement with regard to the enforcement of the law. The last annual meeting of my Board expressed itself very strongly in the annual report on the question of enforcement, and I believe that nothing is more needed in this Province than a determined and progressive campaign, persistent in its purpose, conducted by officials who shall be appointed not because they are partisans of either party, but because they believe in the enforcement of the law and are sympathetic."

DR. C. J. O. HASTINGS.

Dr. C. J. O. Hastings, Medical Health Officer: "I have not studied the question very carefully, but I do certainly think it is a big mistake to make the liquor question a political question. It is a social question, and education is one of the best solutions."

MR. EUGENE O'KEEFE.

Mr. Eugene O'Keefe of the O'Keefe Brewery Company: "The abolition of the bar is a preposterous and infamous policy. You can't make men sober by act of Parliament."

GOVERNOR CHAMBERS.

Rev. Dr. A. B. Chambers, Governor of Toronto Jail, formerly of Peterborough, said: "I have become tired, fatigued, with the partial measures that have been attempted and in force for years. When I refer to partial measures I have in my mind reduction of licenses, for instance. And until a more complete legislation for the abolition of the liquor traffic is brought in I don't believe that there is anything likely to be more effective than our present local option possibilities. You see, that really abolishes the bar and accomplishes the thing they want."

REV. DR. CREIGHTON.

Rev. Dr. W. B. Creighton, editor of the Christian Guardian, said "We think we see bright prospects ahead of the party in Ontario to-day that will stake its future on an abolish-the-bar policy, and will commit itself to it whole-heartedly and without reserve. There has been really a marvellous growth in temperance sentiment in the Province during the past few years. And the growth of conviction must find expression in some advanced movement for temperance reform. The abolish-the-bar policy, while somewhat radical, is a peculiarly sane and level-headed method of facing the evils of the drink traffic as they exist amongst us today. It seems pre-eminently the next

SCARCITY OF HELP CAUSING ANXIETY AMONG FARMERS

Immigrants Arriving in the City Daily—Supply is Unequal to the Demand Which is Continually on the Increase.

SITUATION IS ACUTE

"How does the climate appeal to you?" asked a reporter of a newly-arrived immigrant, a few months after the latter's arrival in the city today.

"Well, what I have seen of it is quite to my liking."

"Does that represent the general opinion of your companions?"—he was one of a party of five.

"Yes; I have yet to hear any complaints. They like the climate for one particular reason alone, and that is that it is very much drier. Although cold, the dryness of the air makes it less keenly felt."

"What do you propose to do in the way of employment?"

"Well, for the time being I am seeking a position on a farm. If I like it I shall stick; if not, I shall enedavour to seek employment at my trade, which is that of machinist."

With that he responded to the thrice repeated request of his companions and accompanied them up-town. Clad in heavy ulster overcoats, and with the typical checkered caps and leggings, they presented a striking contrast to the party of local people, who had a few minutes previous entrained for the Western Provinces.

ENGLISH SPEAKING HELP

The same train that brought the aforesaid party of immigrants here, also brought two of the Kaiser William's subjects. They were unable to speak English intelligently, a circumstance which will greatly retard their progress, as far as Ontario is concerned. The Peterborough county farmer in the majority of cases, wants only those immigrants who speak the Anglo-Saxon tongue. The English, the Scotch and the Irish farm laborers can find a ready market for their labour without going beyond the Great Lakes. Up around Berlin and Waterloo,German immigrants can find work waiting for them, but outside of these there is little demand for any but English speaking immigrants.

So keen, however, has become the necessity for labour that the farmer is quite willing in the majority of cases to employ unskilled labourers, as the immigration authorities have pointed out that they cannot hope to cope with the demand for skilled men.

MAJORITY FOR THE WEST

The following statistics will do very well as a sample of the way the immigrants coming in are divided up amongst the different parts of the Dominion.

The steamer Montreal came in with immigrants billed for the following points: Ontario, 360; Western Canada, 657; British Columbia, 26.

The steamer Volturnohad: For Ontario, 50; Western Canada, 26.

Royal Edward: For Ontario, 33; for Western Canada, 49. (Fifteen of the Royal Edward's complement came to Peterborough.)

Steamer Athenian: For Ontario, 85; for Western Canada, 180; for British Columbia, 42.

Thus it is evident that a large majority of the immigrants are billed for the Western Provinces, while Ontario and British Columbia take between them little over half, with the Pacific Coast far behind either Ontario or the middle west.

RUSH HAS ONLY STARTED.

In every case but the first mentioned these lists have been taken from those given out at Halifax, and are not as complete as they would be if the figures had been compiled at Montreal, where the majority of immigrants disembark.

The rush of immigration to Peterborough has only commenced, and will not be at its height for a month yet, but even then Mr. Howson, the local immigration agent, has little hope of being able to fill up the demands.

A fair portion of the farmers will find it hard to work their farms as they should be worked, but they should receive a good deal of relief if they can offer inducements large enough to hold the immigrants.

Big Safe Is Dynamited

Examiner Special:

LONDON, ONT., MARCH 28.—Safe blowers successfully dynamited the big safe at Hoskin's Flour Mills at Arva, six miles north of here, at 2.30 this morning and got away with a large amount of money. The whole office was wrecked. The police are working on the case but there is absolutely no clue.

THE BOARD OF TRADE.

Many persons are inclined to criticise our Board of Trade, and deplore its lack of accomplishment. But these critics should be reasonable; they should not overwork the Board. Our business men, especially, should not expect too much from a body that has to expend the greater part of its energies upon getting a quorum at its meetings.

COMPENSATION.

Mr. Champ Clark, the political roustabout, who is seeking the Democratic nomination for president, has at least one apparently just idea in his platform. He proposes that, to offset the loss of revenue caused by tariff reduction an income tax should levied. There seems to be an element of justice in this proposal. The enormous private fortunes amassed by those who have fattened through the combines, made possible by the extreme protective tariff of the United States, could justly be the objects of an income tax. Thus the people would get back, indirectly, a small proportion of the immense contributions they have been forced to make to the making of millionaires. It would be a little in the way of compensation.

GOOD CAUSE FOR DELAY.

It is no surprise that the Whitney government was not anxious to have Dr. Merchant appear as a witness before the Public Accounts committee at the Parliament Buildings. At last he was got to attend the committee's sittings and it came out in his evidence that he had practically finished his report on bilingual schools as originally contemplated, according to his instructions, in June of last year. But it was important that his report should not be made public till after the elections, and he was instructed to take a little more time over it—hold it back. When we see how Dr. Merchant's report convicted the government of gross neglect in regard to bilingual schools, and strongly condemned its policy towards them, we need not wonder that Sir James Whitney did not want the report to get into the hands of the electors before the general elections.

SUMMARY INJUSTICE.

While the summary trial by police magistrates, of persons accused of crime, often obviates long terms of confinement in jail while awaiting trial in the higher courts, it sometimes results in more prompt, but not more equitable administration of justice. A man in Toronto was charged, before a police magistrate, with the offence of selling pork pies that, as alleged, gave a patron cramps and indigestion. The magistrate accepted the opinion of the sufferer, that the pies caused the indigestion, and unsupported by any expert medical evidence. It is easily possible that the cramps and indigestion might have been due by many other causes. Yet, without taking the pains to verify the guess of the prosecutor, the magistrate inflicted a fine of $20 and costs, on a charge that any reasonable person would say was not proven, only assumed; and he refused to listen to the defendant's statement that he was not responsible, anyway—he had purchased the pies from a wholesale maker. All the comfort the defendant could get was the exasperating statement of the magistrate, that he had a "splendid chance for damages in a civil suit"—as compensation for the injustice he had suffered at the hands of the too easily convinced magistrate. This is perhaps a small matter, but it serves to strengthen the impression that in these rapidly conducted police court trials, a great deal of taking for granted and a great deal of injustice is done, petty perhaps as regards any particular case, but mighty in throwing discredit upon the quality of Canadian justice.

GIVE US THE HAPPY MEDIUM.

The Examiner some days ago, referred in terms of reprobation and remonstrance to the proposed amendment of the Public Healt Act, which gives local Boards of Health almost unlimited power of expenditure of municipal funds. And now we have the municipal authorities of Tory Toronto and Tory Ottawa, joining in the outcry against conferring unlimited pow upon a medical health officer to expend the money of a municipal corporation. The bill, as proposed, gives the medical health officer, who is not an elected or responsible representative of the people, but an appointe officer, with no direct responsibilities to the ratepayers, more power to spend the money of the ratepayers than the Mayor himself, who is elected by, and directly responsible to, the people. The City Council of Toron to proposes to fight this objectionable proposal of the bill. It is to be admitted, however, that the efficiency Boards of Health has heretofore been weakened by lack of power to secur and apply means for the enforcemen of their recommendations, but there is a good deal of difference betwe reasonable provision to this end, an unlimited power to employ publi funds, irrespective of responsibilit, to the people that supply the money There should be enough ingenuity on the part of the Provincial Secretary who is fathering the bill, to discove a happy medium, between makin Boards of Health and Medical Health Officers, merely impotent and suggestive figure heads, and arming then with dangerous powers in the way expending municipal funds. Hon Mr. Hanna should devise the happy medium in this matter.

THE CRUX OF THE CASE.

Lakefield is presumbaly happy over the grant of $10,000, for a new post office building, as provided for in the Supplementary Estimates. The supplementary trouble, however, will arrive when it comes to selecting a site. From this out the fight will be on. There is something in the aura of a Conservative government that gives a spirit of contention and an activity in corner lots that greatly complicate the choice of a site for a public building. In the good old days of a Conservative government, we in Peterborough had a little squabble about the selection of a site for a combined postal and customs building. The fight waxed so warm, and the claims of rival owners of corner lots, who were incidentally good Conservatives, were so good and so insurmountable, that the expedient was resorted to of taking two lots and erecting two buildings. Thus the question was happily settled. It cost more money, of course, but what is public money made for, if not to satisfy the claims of the hard workers of the party. Lakefield has no such easy way out of the trouble. There is only one building, and even a government that straddles on the naval and other questions, cannot perform the miracle of putting one building on two sites. Some good Conservative will have to be disappointed.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Hon. J. W. Hanna, head of the Provincial License Department, says Mr. Rowell's "banish-the-bar" policy is "a joke." Without expression of opinion, it is suggested to Mr. Hanna, that the "joker" often takes the trick.

"The Trail of the Axe" is a well known Canadian novel, dealing with the lumber camps of Western Canada. It might be wise incidentally to remark, says the Moncton Transcript, it is not written by Mr. R. L. Borden, the Premier of Canada. The trail of the axe, which he waves, is seen in the peaceful settlements of the Dominion, just like the path of the East Indian, who runs amok until he ultimately perishes by the very fate which he visited on others.

Conservative papers are holding up to Canadian admiration the recent action of the United States Tariff Commission in reporting that the duties on some cotton articles are two or three times greater than the difference between the cost of production in the United States and outside. That is, remarks the Montreal Herald, good useful work for any Tariff Board, there is no doubt about it; and it is exactly the kind of work that the Borden-White Tariff Commission is not to be allowed to do. Any such discoveries that may be made by Mr. White's Commission must be reported to Mr. White and nobody else.

THE CALL TO ARMS.

Colonel, the Hon. Sam Hughes' military enthusiasm is not meeting with universal favour. He is regarded as going a little too far. The Toronto Star thus gently deals with his place in this pacific country. The Hon. Sam istemperate in the matter of his personal grog allowance, but his zeal in military matters amounts to something very like intemperance. The Star says:

Col. Hughes is what might be called a stifled hero. He is a world-conqueror who never had a chance. Born too late and in the wrong country, he has seen no war except when he chased half around the world to get a look at one. We have no desire to deny that he plunged into battle right joyously. We take his word for it. But we did not need his word for it. It is not to be doubted that he is a valiant man a real soldier, misplaced in an age of peace and in a country which, alas! does not need to shed its red blood as the price of freedom. There has been a miscue somewhere. Col. Hughes should have fought beside Bozzaris in school book poetry, instead of which he finds himself in Canada in this grain-growing and canned goods age. Instead of tribesmen hurrying to the hills to light fires to carry messages of war, on those hills are now erected wireless stations to waft across oceans orders for cargoes of breakfast foods, steel rails, and cash registers.

Nobody objects to a citizen soldier. But when the Minister of Militia suggests that the people of Ontario should make shooting, uniforming, gold braiding and drilling, the urgent business of the municipal organizations, we think many people will be inclined to say that he is a bit daffy with militarism.

HOW POSTMASTER-GENERAL CATERS TO PLACE-HUNTERS

OTTAWA, MARCH 28.— Hon. Mr. Pelletier's statement that the Government proposed to appoint some scores of temporary "officials' 'to survey routes for rural mail delivery in the various constituencies throughout Canada got the Postmaster-General into more trouble this afternoon. The House was in committee on the Government bill to amend the civil service act, and Mr. Pelletier's clause, seeking authority to make these appointments at his discretion, precipitated the debate.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier directed immediate attention to the clause, and pointed out that it opened the door to many abuses, Messrs. Carvell and Pardee followed with a vigorous analysis. It was apparently designed, they pointed out, to be a piece of political patronage machinery, putting into the Postmaster-General's hands the power of dispensing a shoal of 'jobs, for which there was no defence. They advocated the striking out of the "joker" clause, and recommended that the work be maintained in the hands of the department.

Mr. Pelletier assured the House that the thought of patronage was far removed from his mind. He was administering his department without thought of patronage, "except in cases where it was warranted," and he could give assurance that his intention was to operate under the clause without party considerations.

"A very proper intention," commented Sir Wilfrid Laurier, amid laughter, "but I trust I will not offend by urging that he be not permitted to lead himself into temptation, under the pressure of which I am afraid he would yield." The Liberal leader was inclined to think that the appointment of surveyors to lay out routes from fifty to one hundred years old was not serious. He hoped the Postmaster-General would keep out of temptation.

"He is more able to resist it than is the Right Hon. gentleman opposite," put in Premier Borden.

Sir Wilfrid smiled. "That may be a poor compliment," he observed, "but if I am not able to trust myself, still less can I trust my hon. friend opposite." (Liberal laughter and cheers.)

Hon. Mr. Lemieux urged that the rural postal system be operated apart from any political complexion. By this plan only could satisfactory results be secured. If the Postal Department was to be turned into a patronage distribution agency, the Postmaster-General would soon find that the reevnue would not meet the demands made upon him. He urged that the matter be put altogether outside of party politics and kept to the regular postal channels. This he said, was the course adopted by the late Administration, as members of the House on both sides knew. He suggested that the Minister would be well advised to appoint Mr. George C. Anderson as head of the extended rural mail delivery system.

Hon. Mr. Pelletier said he concurred with the suggestion, but owing to Mr. Anderson's value in his present position, he could not be transferred. It was, however, his intention to recommend Mr. A. Bolduc, at present inspector of the Ottawa Postoffice, for the position.

Hon. Mr. Emmerson objected to the clause under discussion on the ground that it proposed to delegate authority to appointees who would simply be "birds of passage" and have no sense of responsibility.

Dr. Edwards complained that in nearly all of the Government legislation the Liberals have discovered an "Ethiopian in the wood pile." (Laughter.)

"In all," observed Sir Wilfrid Laurier amid renewed laughter.

The bill finally passed its second reading with full Ministerial support.

THE NATIONAL EXPENDITURES.

(London Advertiser)

The estimates of national expenditure for the ensuing fiscal year will silence the cry of extravagance raised against the Laurier Government. This table shows the record for the past decade, with the estimated expenditure for next year:

1903	$51,691,903
1904	55,612,833
1905	63,319,683
1906	67,240,641
1907 (nine months)	51,542,161
1908	76,641,452
1909	84,064,239
1910	79,411,747
1911	87,774,198
1912	97,000,000
1913 (estimated	117,981,831

The foregoing figures do not include expenditure on capital account. They represent the ordinary expenditure, or, in official language, the expenditure on consolidated fund account. The fiscal year, ending on the 31st of this month, is the last for which the late Government can be held accountable. Mr. White's estimate of $117,981,831 on consolidated fund account for the ensuing year is an increase of nearly $21,000,000 over the present fiscal year but this is not all. He asks for $51,407,885 on capital account, against an expenditure of $39,000,000 last year in the same class. Here then is an aggregated estimated expenditure of $169,389,716 for the year ending March 31, 1913. compared with an aggregate expenditure of $136,000,000 in the year ending this month, an increase of $33,000,000. It is probable that not all the estimated expenditure will be actually paid out, but at the best there will be a considerable increase over preceding years. The expenditures must grow with the country. The Liberal Government had to keep pace with national development. But it was constantly reproached as a sepnd thrift by the very men who in six months of office sanction the largest budget in Canada's history.

FORCE THEM TO STUDY.

(London Advertiser.)

It is not often a candid critic can say a good word for the education department of Ontario, whose record for five or six years has been a series of blunders, but Dr. Pyne has at last introduced a bill which aims at removing a grave defect in the school system of the province. It is a timid and half-hearted step, but it is in the right direction. It enables municipalitie by a vote of the electors to mpel the attendance at school of boys and girls between the ages of 1 and 17 who are not employed, who are not receiving an education, or who, if working, have not taken certain high school examinations.

Although in this province we are spared the disgrace of Manitoba, where there is no law compelling children to attend school, there is a sufficient reproach in allowing Ontario boys and girls to escape all schooling at 14 years of age. Many of them are obliged to go to work thus early, but the state is not obliged to cease caring for their training as citizens. Between the ages of 14 and 17 or 18, the impressionable years when education counts for so much, there is a fearful gap in many lives. Industrial schools will be a partial corrective, but these exist only in favoured localities. Besides, the average boy or girl is not a voluntary student. Compulsion must be exercised in some form. The Germans, in their wisdom, force their youth to continue schooling until the age when a trade is acquired, German boys and girls in employment are compelled to attend day classes for several hours a week, and the employers are compelled to grant them the time. This is the ideal policy. It would cause some disorganization in shops, offices, and factories if suddenly applied in this province, but it will come later. To make adolescents attend night classes after the day's work would be a hardship in some cases, but they would be making better use of their time than the majority of them do at present. There is an army of boys and girls in this province who come to an absolute standstill at the age of 14 so far as school education is concerned.

OPINIONS OF PROMINENT MEN ON LEADER'S RESOLUTION

step to be taken in temperance reform, at least in this Province, and as such it will make a strong appeal to a united conviction in favour of temperance advance. The Province, if we can form any estimate of the situation, is waiting for just such an advanced proposal, and will be ready to give strong support and backing to the political party that will honestly and unreservedly make it."

PRINCIPAL GANDIER.

Rev. Dr. Alfred Gandier, Principal of Knox College: "Of course I am in favour of abolishing the bar. When you come to the details as to how that may be worked out there may be differences of opinion. Of course I am in favour of total prohibition. I think likely we have come to a stage when it is possible to abolish the bar throughout the whole Province and any proposal of that kind would certainly be favoured by me. I am in favour of not giving liquor licenses to clubs and I think the time has come when that should be done away with."

CHIEF CONSTABLE GRASETT.

Col Grasett, Chief Constable: "I am not an expert on such subjects, and I am doubtful what is the best solution of the liquor problem. I do not think the temperance question is a political question. It is a social question, and should be treated as such. The centralizing of the licenses in the down-town section of this city has not reduced the number of 'drunks'. It is a big question, and fanaticism in politics must be guarded against."

REV. DR SHEARER.

Rev. Dr. J. G. Shearer, General Secretary of the Moral and Social Reform Council of Canada, and also of the Presbyterian Department of Social Service and Evangelism, said last night:

I am much pleased to learn that Mr. Rowell has had the courage to come out unequivocally in favour of the abolition of the bar-room. This will put new spirit into the temperance forces of the Province. Mr. Rowell has not gone into detail as to what he proposes to do with the residue of the traffic. Doubtless this will be determined once he has carried the Province, and is in the position of responsibility with the mandate of the people behind him. It is a matter of considerable consequence that the residue of the traffic should be put upon some basis other than that of license to sell for private gain. But the announcement of the policy leaves the way open for the consideration of this matter on its merits later. It undoubtedly is of first consequence that the law should be strictly enforced, and administered entirely apart from partisan political influence. It is also important that the comfort of the travelling public should be safeguarded. The announcement of a policy so far reaching marks an epoch in the history of the temperance movement in Ontario. It remains to be seen what attitude the Government of the Province will take. Clearly the coming days will be stirring days in the political life of the Province, and the movement is likely to spread to other Provinces. Altogether, I am very much gratified."

DR. NORMAN ALLEN.

Dr. Norman Allen, a physician of many years' practice in the city, said: "From my experiences and reading I regard the high license system, with rigid inspection, as the only method of dealing with the liquor question, apart from total prohibition. I do not think the public mind is sufficiently educated up to the latter alternative at the present time. I think it is a very serious matter to interfere with the individual liberty of the subject. I am in favour, of course, of anything that improves the general moral and physical stamina of the race, and I quite appreciate the evils of intemperance. But it is a question in my mind what is the best way of dealing with it. The only solution I see, in the present state of public opinion, is a high license system with rigid inspection, to see that the law is absolutely obeyed."

Truss Torture

Once Thought Necessary, but Now Your Search for Relief is Ended.

Wonderful Method Retains and Cures Without Knife, Danger or Pain.

J. Y. EGAN, Specialist of Toronto

Old-fashioned truss torture is no longer necessary. Galling, slipping trusses and barbarous methods of treating rupture are done away with by the wonderful invention of a specialist who has devoted fifty years to this one affliction. The marvelous new EGAN "CURATRUS" gives to the ruptured instant relief, rest and security where all others fail. It stops all irritation and restores every part to its natural position as soon as it is used and for all time and old style trusses are thrown away. "EGAN'S CURATRUS" cures are absolutely without operation and the cost is small.

Hundreds of cured men, women and children testify. Also endorsed by many physicians.

Where others fail is where I have my greatest success. Nothing complicated, no pain or irritation, but just a natural method which cures immediate relief guaranteed. No fakes or lies—just straight business. Do not lay this aside, or delay, but tear off free coupon now.

MELVILLE (BOBBY) ROBINSON, The Popular Young Secretary of the Canadian Professional Baseball League.

PETERBORO' BOY OCCUPIES TOP RUNG OF LADDER OF SPORTING PROSPERITY

Mr. M. M. Robinson, Son of Mr. W. S. Robinson, is Secretary of the Canadian Baseball League---Is One of the Youngest Secretaries and Magnates of Organized Professional Baseball Leagues in America.

(Written for the Examiner by Addie L. Richardson, Hamilton, Canada).

The Examiner to-day takes great pleasure in presenting to its readers an exceptionally fine likeness of little "Bobby" Robinson, the youthful, genial, obliging, bright, brainy and brilliant Secretary of the now flourishing Canadian Baseball League, whose healthy and most prosperous condition as it enters upon its second season, in a few short weeks, is owing to his indefatigable efforts. This popular little hustler, who wields the pen so successfully on its behalf, was born at Peterborough, Ont., Canada, April 8th, 1888. From the age of six years to sixteen, he attended the various schools in his native city, and at the latter age, he graduated from the Peterborough High School. During the years when Robinson went to school baseball was his passion, his love, his one diversion. He slipped away from his studies whenever he could, just to play ball, and so proficient did he become in the game that he was later one of the stellar players on the Peterborough High School team. At the age of 16 years he secured his first position in his anxiously awaited chosen love of labour—the newspaper field, and in 1904 he started on the Toronto "Morning World" as a cub reporter, where he held forth for a period of twelve months. But the little fellow's one ambition was to shine on some sporting page, some day, some place, some where; location mattered not; and with great glee, Bobby accepted a position with the Toronto "Evening News," as one of its sporting representatives, where he remained for three years. His exceptionally clever sporting articles, while on the "News" attracted the attention of William Southam, the multi-millionaire, owner of the Hamilton "Evening Spectator," and one of the most enthusiastic supporters of all branches of sport in Canada. Negotiations were opened between the millionaire and sporting scribe, with the result that in March, 1908, he annexed his signature to a contract to become Sporting Editor of the Hamilton "Evening Spectator," which position he has filled with pronounced satisfaction to his employer and credit to himself. During the eight years Robinson has been identified with the Toronto and Hamilton Journals, he has been very much in the limelight as a painstaking and capable official, in various capacities. In the winter season of 1906-7, he was Secretary-Treasurer of the Toronto Garrison Indoor Baseball League, and in the summer of 1907 he organized and held the dual office of Secretary-Treasurer for the Toronto Garrison (Military) Athletic Association, which met with much success. On St Patrick's Day morning, 1908, the little Peterborite made his Hamilton debut as a sport writer. Along about this time Fred G. Paige, Manager of the Hamilton International League Club, also arrived in the Canadian burg. Bobby's clever baseball work in the columns of the Hamilton "Spectator" was a feature, major league space being extended with pencillings of brilliancy in the extreme to Manager Paige and his clever bunch of minor leaguers. A couple of months after the opening of the season the local baseball aggregation that he had boosted so strongly, and had given so much prominence, was put on the market, and Hamilton capitalists fell over themselves in their anxiety to purchase the franchise, which was finally disposed of by the clever New Yorker to a Hamilton Stock Company for a corpulent monetary consideration—thanks to Bobby's able pencil. During this year he also acted as Secretary-Treasurer of the Western District Interprovincial Rugby Football Union, and has annually been elected to fill the office since. In 1909 he organized the Hamilton-Brantford Inter-City Baseball League, a semi-pro. organization, and also held the double office of Secretary-Treasurer. During the winter of 1910-11, he was a big factor in the organization of the Canadian League. Together with George (Knotty) Lee, the Hamilton Club's present manager, he worked night and day to formulate the present Canadian League, and the "wee one" was largely instrumental also in placing the little city where he was born and raised, on the professional baseball map, and together with his parents, he will occupy a seat in the grandstand on Peterborough's opening day, and incidentally witness the inauguration of professional ball in the city he loves so dearly. "Bobby" Robinson manages the business affairs of the Hamilton Club, of which he is Secretary-Treasurer, and one-third owner, in a clean, clever manner. He possesses keen business ability of one many years his senior, and can see through any proposition which would benefit the Canadian League as quick as a flash of lightning. As a writer on all branches of sport "Bobby" is a top-liner. He possesses the knack of writing his articles in a pleasing and breezy style. He is one of those writers who could make the report of a stock market read like a romance or fairy tale, and yet adhere to facts. That's the secret of his ability. At the last annual meeting of the Hamilton Press Club Robinson was unanimously elected Secretary, and the Hamilton highbrows speak highly over the ability he displays in this important office. During 1911, his initial season as a baseball magnate, he disposed of Shortstop Tom Grieve to the Philadelphia National League Club, for $1,500, this sum being the second largest ever received by any Hamilton Club owner during the fifteen years that the Ambitious City has been represented professionally in the baseball arena. Pitcher Pete Wood, of the Hamilton International League Club, bringing 3,000 simoleons from the same organization, at Philadelphia at the close of the season of 1886, this being the largest amount ever received.

Mr. Robinson joined the great army of benedicts last September, when he was united in matrimony to Miss Maribel Hawkins, one of Hamilton's fair daughters. "Bobby" Robinson, like Ban Johnson, is one of the finest examples of the present-day spokes in the running wheel of the modern professional baseball league—a gentleman in spirit and training, educated and cultured; a man fitted by nature and schooling to hold a high place in the company. He is recognized among the fraternity as one of the most versatile and accomplished in the ranks of newspaper men, and some of his contributions are notable additions to baseball literature. He will, beyond the shadow of a doubt, continue to merit the confidence of the baseball public, hence the hope that his tenure for many years will be continued.

NEWS FROM THE LEAGUE CIRCUIT

Hamilton Spectator: Hamilton is going to have some ball club this year. While the other Canadian League members have been making a great noise about the talent they have been and are picking up, there has been little said of the squad that will represent the Kobs when the season opens here on May 14. This was for the simple reason that it was decided last fall that no announcements would be made until such time as the team was pretty well rounded up and the line-up somewhat definite. That time has come, and it is a safe prediction that the fans will be well pleased with the efforts that have been made to secure a pennant-winner for 1912.

To begin with, Secretary Robinson is home from Detroit with glowing accounts of the success enjoyed in the hunt for tried players, for he came back with the contracts of four good ball players in his grip and a line on one or two others. The local man went to Detroit for the purpose of buying Pitcher Walter Teed, last year with Berlin. Teed was the property of the Saginaw Club of the South Michigan league, and was with Berlin under optional agreement. It was the local opinion that he was the most promising twirler in the league last year; hence the desire to get him. Owner A. S. Burkart, of the Saginaw Club, was approached on the matter Saturday, and while he was somewhat reluctant to part with the big fellow, he couldn't resist the lure of the money, and finally parted with Teed for a pretty good-sized cash consideration, which also included the purchase of Chick Mueller, another of the Berlin twirling staff last summer. This means that both Teed and Mueller will be found in Hamilton when the players are called together next month.

The list of players who will be brought here on April 24th is practically completed, lines being out for three more players only, and if these are secured there will be no further additions to the squad, which at the present time is as follows:

Catchers—Tom Hess, Fred Fisher, Buffalo; H. E. Wendelom, Jersey City.

Pitchers—Walter Teed, Chick Mueller, Bill Rose, Billy Garlow, Bert Mollineux, Chas. Kaiser, Rochester; Eddie Durant, Napoleon; Dennis O'Brien, Binghampton.

Infielders—Martin Killilea, Clayton Brandow, Silver Groh, Paul Schilling, Red Maguire, Dewitt Rossman, Philmont; Tote Hemer, Philadelphia Jack Farrell, Corona; J. Dickhout, Saugertie, Carl Marshall, Cleveland.

Outfielders — Knotty Lee, Corns. Grey, C. J. Pierce, Indianapolis; R. C. Boyd, Bridgeport; M. J. Madigan, Lakewood; E. Printup, Syracuse.

Two infielders and an outfielder will be added to this lot in a few days, one of the infielders being a first baseman, and then the squad will be complete. This will bring the squad up to thirty players.

Berlin Telegraph: Manager Deneau is being besieged with ball players, from all the corners of the continent where baseball is played, offering him their services and are willing to sacrifice their own money to show him what they can do.

The champions will not be short of shortstops, as Rube got another 'real Darb' as he calls him, in Mitchell. If recommendations are at all good this player should make good, having played on the very fastest teams around Detroit. This makes two likely looking boys to take Scotty Cameron's place, as Williams is the boy that is supposed to make the Green Sox fans forget all the pranks of Scotty. That remains to be seen, however.

Manager Deneau landed another right-handed pitcher in Hendershot. He is a giant in build and has a good reputation, control being his fort, the other with a good baseball brain, mixed a repertoire fast and slow shoots.

Rube Deneau has everything in readiness at Windsor for the training camp, having booked a number of games with the fastest teams around the City of the Straits, and promises to have the champions in the very best condition by May 14, when they will be pitted against the pick of the whole of the new Eng-lang league that Ambrose Kane has corralled for the Red Sox in Brantford.

Rube intends to take the measure of the Ottawa Senators, who will be training at Chatham, in a game there as soon as Manager Shaughnessy is ready.

The uniforms of the champions are the same that are worn in the big league, and will certainly put to shame last year's outfit. With the new green coats, the champs will look about the smartest bunch on the road

BRANTFORD, MARCH 28. — Mr. T. J. Nelson, president of the Brantford Baseball Club, received six applications this morning from players who want a tryout on the local team. The application of a left-hand pitcher who played last year in the New York State League, will probably be favourably considered. Three applications were received from would-be first basemen, as well as a couple of fielders. Umpire Finneran, of the National League, who is a friend of Mr. Nelson's, has written offering to train along a couple of likely-looking youngsters.

CITY BASKETBALL LEAGUE

There should be a good crowd present at the Eko-Hustler game to-night at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium, both teams are playing fast ball. The Ekos have not lost a game so far this season although they have had some very close calls. The Hustlers have been practising of late and they expect to stop the Ekos in to-night's game. The game will be handled by C. E. Simson and Physical Director Thompson, and is called for 8.30, sharp.

Friday evening the Brownies and Nemos meet for the first time this season in the City League series, and it is needless to say that it will be a game worth seeing. Game will be called at 9.00 p.m.

Saturday evening, at 8.30 the Nemos and Hustlers play off their postponed game in the city league, which will finish up the first half of the schedule.

The City Juvenile Basketball League has been organized with three teams entered, and will open their season on Saturday night, with a game betwee the Midgets and Electrics. Game called at 8.00 p.m.

How Will These Names Do For Ball Club?

Here are some more names for the Peterborough Canadian League ball team, received by the Examiner:

Nickname Editor of the Examiner,—I submit the name "D P's" or else "Den Pets," the first being the initials and the second the first syllable in the names of the President and Vice-President of the Club. As they are the superintendents of the two largest manufacturing establishments in the city, they would put enthusiasm into their employees, which would boom the gate receipts.

"Sport."

Nickname Editor,—In regard to a name for the ball team, the "Brants" of Brantford and the "Tecumsehs" of London are very appropriate for those places; why not the 'Ogemahs,' being an Indian name, suitable for Peterborough?

"One of the Old Pine Groves."

Nickname Editor—Perhaps a suitable name for the ball team would be Peterborough "Blazers," after the old, original and talked of Cavan Blazers, who were a body of men, who were second to none in general sport of all kinds and ready and willing to help a neighbour in distress, either night or da.

"Simcoe Street."

Nickname Editor of the Examiner.—In my selection of a suitable name for the new baseball team I would suggest two that are (1) short and catchy, (2) appropriate, (3) emblemetical. I choose "Redwings," because red, with a pair of wings on the blouse would make a good emblem of speed and be catchy to the eye, and as I understand the suits are white with blue stockings, that could be more appropriate than Red, White and Blue?? I choose "Oaks," because the oak is an emblem of strength, and the oak leaf would look nice and catchy on the blouse. It would be appropriate because we expect to develop a strong team in Peterborough for "sturdy oaks from little acorns grow."

"J. H. P."

Nickname Editor, — "Yankees" would be a good name for the ball team, as the players are all Americans.

"T. D."

Nickname Editor—I would suggest as a nickname fo, the Peterborough baseball team "Twinkling Stars" or "Maple Leafs".

"M. S."

Nickname Editor,—I consider the "Warriors" or "Conquerors" to be suitable names for the ball team, as they are generally victorious.

"C. D."

Here is one from Lakefield:

Nickname Editor—As a name for the Peterborough professional ball team I would suggest the "Electricians."

"W. H." Lakefield, Ont.

The Woodmen of the World will hold a Progressive Euchre Party, Friday Evening. Dancing and refreshments will also figure on the programme. The occasion being the opening of the new W.O.W. Hall on George Street (over the Nugent Drug Co.). Couples 50c.

DR. GRAHAM AT PARK ST. CHURCH

The public are again reminded of the lecture to be given by Dr. W. T. Graham of Toronto in the Park street Baptist church next Sunday evening, April 2nd at 8.15. Subject, "The Jesuits and Their Teachings." Mr. Graham is a forceful speaker, and full of his subject. Admission free. Everybody welcome.

The subjects at Park street for next Sunday will be: 11 a.m., 'Living tho' Dead, a Paradox'; 7 p.m., 'How to Become a Priest.'

DURBAR IN KINEMACOLOR
The King Emperor Enjoys Pleasant Ride at Delhi.

When King George of England went to India last December to be crowned there as Emperor of that country, one of his greatest delights was to take an hour or two away from the burden of the day's ceremonial and ride out into the country on what is known as the "Taxicab of India."

The Taxicab of India does not run on wheels nor does it require a plentiful supply of gasoline, though it has its regular chauffeur.

From time immemorial, the people of India who could afford it, have used the elephant as the means of conveyance, and though the "Sahibs" of that country have introduced the gasoline consuming machine so much in vogue in this country and in Europe, the natives have fought shy of it and prefer to be carried around on the back of the Behemoth.

The accompanying picture of King George, riding on the back of an elephant was caught by one of the camera men of the Kinemacolor Company, which controls that remarkable invention which reproduces scenes and incidents, not only in motion but in all the original colours of nature.

The "Mahout" or Chauffeur of the elephant has a peculiar manner of reaching the seat from where he guides the animal. At a signal, the huge beast gently wraps his trunk around the driver and lifts him onto his back. The King ascended the elephant's back in a novel manner. The animal knelt down while the attendant in the rear of the King also knelt beside the animal. Stepping onto the back of this attendant, his Majesty was enabled to reach the seat reserved for him on the "Taxicab of India", that was to take him for a ride. The most amusing thing of all is the manner in which the servant himself reaches his position. When the elephant rises and starts to walk, the dusky Hindoo grasps the pachyderm's tail and climbs to his lofty perch on the elephant's haunches.

Hundreds of these interesting episodes are shown in the Kinemacolor Durbar pictures which have caught the fancy of New York and which are now being exhibited in that city at the New York Theatre, at the "$1.00 scale" of prices, to crowded houses. Arrangements have been made by which the superb Kinemacolor pictures of the Durbar will be seen in this city at the Grand next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, with matinee on Tuesday and Wednesday at 2.30 afternoon, exactly as shown in New York, and popular prices will prevail ranging from 25 and 50 cents, for the evening performance and 25c. any seat for the matinee. Seat sale opens Friday (to-morrow) morning.

How Do You Figure Wall Paper——By Cents or Satisfaction?

15 rolls @ 7¢ = 1 Class B Room
15 rolls @ a fair price - Complete Satisfaction and grateful pride

WALL PAPER can be made cheap enough to sell for five or ten cents a roll. And it can be made good enough to be worth ten dollars a roll.

Between the two extremes lies a figure which represents a fair price for papers that will give you a keen sense of artistic satisfaction when intelligently used in the decoration of your home.

Now, very cheap papers are not bad because they are cheap, but are cheap because the things that go to make a good wall paper require a little money. In other words, wall paper is not different from dress goods, table linen or millinery.

In our shop we have all kinds of papers, but we are particularly interested in having you see the incomparable assortment of artistic papers at medium prices that we have gathered together this year. And you will be interested in receiving the suggestions we are prepared to make regarding unusual and distinctive methods of using these papers in your home decoration.

If you have not received our coloured portfolio, call or send for one to-day.

MONTREAL NEARLY BARE OF BUTTER

Supplies Greatly Reduced and No Immediate Relief at Hand

MONTREAL, MARCH 28.—Montreal is nearer to a butter famine today than it has been before this year which has been the worst year in so far as the scarcity of butter is concerned, in the history of the city.

Prices wholesale for single packages have reached a level of forty cents per pound, and there is only sufficient supplies to last the local consumption about ten days as Greater Montreal consumes on an average of 7,200 packages or approximately 417,200 pounds per week.

The production of butter throughout Canada is far below the consumption, caused chiefly by the increasing population of the Northwest, from which upwards of twenty-five to thirty cars used to be shipped yearly to Montreal, but where now not a single car comes forward, and where along the Canadian Pacific coast there have been received over 19,000 packages of New Zealand butter alone this winter to supply the western demand. Yesterday enquiries were received here for two car loads of butter for prompt shipment, which, of course, no dealer had sufficient supplies to fill the order and could not have done so at any price.

There is positively no help for the present situation, as new milk butter will not begin to arrive in any large quantities for at least three or four weeks.

The outlook for the future is very grave for the entire Dominion. There has been an increase in Montreal butter receipts of nearly 65,000 packages, or about 5,585,456 pounds since the first day of last May in comparison with a year ago, up to the present date.

SHE GAINED 36 LBS.

Mrs. George Bradshaw, Harlowe, Ont., writes: "I was troubled for many years with weak, watery blood and dropsy. I had nervous headaches, dizziness, and sinking spells, and was, in fact, a semi-invalid. Doctors told me my heart and kidneys were diseased and gave me up. By using 10 boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I have been cured of many of my old complaints and gained 36 pounds in weight."

Dr. Bruce Howson, L.R.C.S., L.R.C.P., Edinburgh, has opened an office at the corner of Charlotte & Stewart Sts., for the general practice of Medicine. Special attention given to diseases of Eye, Ear, Nose & Throat. Phone Bell 220. Hours, 9 to 10 a.m., 2 to 4 p.m. & 7 to 8 p.m. 6d-73

SUBSTANTIAL KINDNESS

Mr. Lucius E. Wilson, President of the American Association of Commercial Executives, and secretary of the Detroit Board of Trade, for whom a special train was recently put together by the Grand Trunk Railway, in order that he might be present at the annual banquet of the Sherbrooke Board of Trade, where he was the chief guest, has just written to Mr. D. E. Galloway, Assistant to the President of the G. T. R., as follows: "Upon my return from a prolonged eastern trip, I feel impelled to express my appreciation of the courtesy shown me by the Grand Trunk management on the night of Tuesday, February 6th.

In furnishing the special train to carry me to Sherbrooke from Montreal, the Grand Trunk management extended such a substantial kindness that I am at a loss to know just how to acquaint you with my sense of the obligation. The event has convinced me that "G. T." are the initials for both "Grand Trunk" and "Get There."

No one feels the inadequacy of my attempt to express my appreciation of your kindness more than the writer himself. At the same time I am somewhat relieved by the thought that the special train was only another evidence of the energy of a great and growing Railway system—that it was part of your policy of doing what you set out to do."

NEW UNION STATION

It has been decided that the new union station of the Grand Trunk Pacific and Canadian Northern Railways at Edmonton will be between First and Second streets. The purchase of trackage rights and property has been consummated and the anticipated growth of the city is provided for in the dimensions of the new depot, which, it is promised, will be one of the finest on the prairies, west of Winnipeg.

ANOTHER WARBLER

The principals in the feathered chorus are arriving singly as the season advances, and those who delight in the matins of the birds, have noticed a little gray clad warbler that has taken up his part in the early morning flutings with just as sweet and melodious a note as ever. Almost the same colour as that of the dark branches he is almost indiscernible, except as he stands out against the sky from his perch on a tender branch. His contribution to the chorus begins with the three half-notes, followed by about six halves, and concluded with a delightful little run of sixty-fourths. His trill adds charm to a Spring morning, instilling hope and joy into the hearts of those who are ready to welcome just these little natural touches of budding season.

How Port Hope Is Endeavouring To Improve Its Milk Supply

By-law to Regulate Sale, to License Vendors and Generally Control Production and Sales—List of Questions to be Answered.

IN RIGHT DIRECTION

Port Hope is dealing with the milk question and has prepared a by-law regulating milk produced for sale or sold within the municipality.

According to this by-law no milk shall be sent forward or sold from any milch cow that has any ailment that could affect the quality of the milk, and any cow subject to such ailment shall be removed and kept separate from the milking herd.

Only clean, wholesome food shall be given to milch cows. No strong flavoured food which will affect the odour or taste of the milk, shall be fed to milch cows at any time.

The stable in which milch cows are kept, or in which they are milked must be kept clean and in a sanitary condition.

No milk shall be forwarded to Port Hope for sale obtained from any cow within six weeks before and within five days after calving.

All milk sold in Port Hope must be delivered in suitable receptacles, so as to protect the milk from dust, dirt or contamination of any kind.

Any person guilty of violating any of the provisions of the by-law is liable to a fine of not less than $1.00 and not more than $50, or imprisonment for 21 days.

Vendors to be Licensed.

The by-law for licensing vendors of milk for human consumption and fixing the standard of butter fat and total solids, received two readings.

Under this by-law, no person shall sell milk for human consumption without a license.

Before a license is granted, the applicant shall fill out correctly and sign an application according to the form attached and present such application to the Medical Health Officer whose duty it shall be to verify the same and to ascertain that the applicant is of good character and that the cows, buildings and apparatus comply with the regulations.

No milk shall be sold which contains less than 12 1-2 per cent. of solids, of which 3 1-2 per cent. shall be butter fat.

The Medical Health Officer shall act as Inspector.

The form of application for milk vendor's license is as follows:

Is the milk produced on premises owned or controlled by you?

From whom is milk purchased? and give the name of each person.

Over what road and at what time does your milk arrive in town?

Location of dairy?

Number and breed of cows?

Are all in good health? ?

Have cows been tested by use tuberculin?

How are cows fed?

About how many hours per day are cows in pasture during summer?

How is milk cooled before leaving your dairy?

How are your bottles and utensils cleaned?

Have you read the by-laws and rules for handling milk adopted by the Council and Board of Health?

In handling milk, do you agree to conform to the by-laws and these rules?

Do you agree to provide your wag on with ice that the temperature the milk shall not rise above 50 degrees?

If milk is sold from large containers, do you agree to keep same covered and in an ice box at all times, and to provide and use a long handled dipper, that the milk may be stirred from the bottom before each sale?

CONVENTION CONCLUDED.

Prominent Men Address the Meetings —Left For Ottawa.

The four day convention, which was under the direction of Rev. L. J. Long and was held at Bethany Tabernacle, has been prolonged. The meetings, which were addressed by Rev. W. H. Chandler, of Wheaton, Illinois, Rev. R. J. Zimmerman of Toronto, Rev. Sidney Hamilton, of India, and Rev. I. Kuykendall, of China, were productive of considerable good. Large congregations attended the services nightly and evinced a deep spiritual interest in the cause which occasioned the meetings. The subscriptions donated for the promulgation of the work amounted in all to nearly $700.

Rev. Mr. Long and party have left for Ottawa where they will assist in the conference which is being held in that city.

JOHNNIE CANUCK ON CURRENT EVENTS

Editor The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—The casual observer cannot help but realise that events of great and national importance are crowding thick and fast upon us and never in the history of the world have the masses of the people taken such deep and as active an interest in government affairs.

One can easily see from the opinions (which I know to be somewhat general) of a working man signing himself "Spero" 'that there is a feeling abroad that those red hot sermons and lectures we hear of late have a political complexion and are given for business reasons.

If we are going to mix politics with prayer it is essential that we remember how to pray, where to pray an when to pray. For further information along these lines see the disappointed office seekers and read th Morning Times. At the same time be sure you vote the way you pray There can be no doubt about it, the late appointments were all made in accordance with that part of the Lord's prayer which says, "Forgive us our trespasses as we forgive thos who trespass against us." I notice that the job in Kingston the successful candidate had picked out for his opponent is very likely to go to the British boys lieutenant of Arthur Hawkes, Dr. J. C. Evans,' who waved the old flag and proclaimed that the country had been in the hands of conspirators and would be handed over to our enemies if Laurier and his government were returned to power. Surely this champion of Conservatism needs the prayers of the party, or what was used to get Dr. Beattie Nesbitt out of the hands of the law when he was charged with forgery, fraud and conspiracy.

Present indications are that in the next ten years we shall witness changes that will have a greater effect upon the destiny of the civilized world than any that have taken place in the last twenty years. Now, in order to shape the destiny of a country in this most important period to the best advantage, we should be represented in parliament by the brightest and most intellectual minds that the country can produce. What I would ask any fair-minded individual, has Peterborough contributed towards this desired representation at Ottawa? Our contribution, when in order to bring himself before the public, makes such statements that the "gallery clock" of the Toronto Star says that "only heaven and Ham Burnham knows what he is talking about."

Is it any wonder women want to vote when they see the muddle we men make of the franchise. We, who in the past have heard "Ham" Burnham in his own lucid manner, describe war as "unjust in all cases, legalized murder and hell," expected that if he took part in the debate on the war office estimates, that if he was sincere, he would condemn Col., the Hon. Sam Hughes' proposal to form a camp for boys to drill them in the gentle art of killing, if he was what he represented himself to be when he visited our Sunday schools and churches and gave lectures on the morals of the people. Surely what a falling off was there. Col. Sam is going to start off with the modest sum of $130,000 to train your boys (not mine) in a hot-bed of vice. He, with such weaklings as our member under him, may command the use of our revenue, but not my boys. I would just as soon let my boys spend their vacation in a barroom as I consider both are bureaus of information for hell and breeding grounds for young blackguards. I have got that old-fashioned idea that it is a parent's duty to have all to say where his boys shall find his companions, and who those companions shall be; at least, as long as the boys are children, and as long after that period as possible.

Some will point out, and say, look at the etiquette they will become familiar with that some of them would not otherwise attain, and that the discipline that will be enforced will be beneficial. Any father who knows the evils of bad companionship will tell you that the price many a parent will pay for this education and training will some 'day send them to their grave wtih a broken heart.

Semi-ready Spring Styles for Men

The same price everywhere!

What does it mean?

Exactly what you would understand. Every merchant sells the same pattern of Semi-ready Suit or Overcoat at the same price you would pay for the same pattern and garment anywhere else in Canada.

The makers guarantee the worth value. They put on it in plain figures the cash value of the garment, and it is sold at that price—no more, no less.

From Halifax to Victoria, from ocean to ocean—that standard price rules. There is no "shenanigan" about a Semi-ready Suit—you can bank on it!

SECURE CONTRACT AT BOWMANVILLE

Messrs. R. G. Sturgeon & Co. of Charlotte street, have just secured a contract for the installation of plumbing and heating apparatus of some forty houses in Bowmanville and for the disposal of the sewerage of the same by means of sedimentation tanks. A gang of men has already commenced work.

NAVIGATION MAY BE SOLD EN BLOC

The probability of the sale of the Otonabee Navigation Company's fleet en bloc is reported good, there being a number who are interested in the proposition. The likelihood of the sale is more pronounced, and any day now it may be put through.

DON'T POSTPONE MAKING CHOICE

The "preacher" tells us there is time for all things—"a time to laugh, a time to weep," and, if he were an official of the Horticultural Society, he would have added—there is a time to plant shrubs — flowering shrubs, such as the society is offering as premiums to members.

The secretary, has sent printed notices to all members, indicating four optional groups of shrubs and plants. Most of these are shrubs, and all include one or more shrubs, and these have, in order to give satisfaction, to be planted in the proper season, which is early spring.

The officials of the society want to have the choice of "options" made so that they can forward orders to the nurseries in time to have the shrubs distributed to members, so that the former can be planted at a time that will insure their growth and subsequent thrift.

Make your option now. Early spring is the time to plant.. It is folly, to begin with—and disappointment to end with—to expect to plant trees or shrubs after growing trees and shrubs are in full leafage, with the expectation that they will live, or if they do maintain a struggling existence to thrive. The earlier they are planted in the spring the better. They can't be poked into the ground like radish seed any time during the summer, with any hope of satisfactory results.

Therefore, members should make their choice at once and notify the secretary, Mr. C. H. Williamson, 203 King street, at once; and fill in the form accompanying the notice, and with $1.00 for membership fee inclosed, send or deliver.

Visit the New Peterborough Millinery Showrooms, and inspect the display of fashionable Trimmed Hats for spring wear; upstairs in old T. A. S. Rooms. Entrance, 435 George Street.

PROPERTY COMMITTEE

Meeting Called For To-night—Tenders Will Likely be Opened

A meeting of the Property committee is called for to-night. It is likely that the tenders for the market tolls will be opened and a contract let. It may be that the garbage collecting system will be considered again to-night and a recommendation presented to the Council. A number of applications have been received in answer to the advertisement for tenders in connection with the collection of garbage, and these may also be dealt with this evening.

Put it to test, let your tea-pot prove to you that for purity, flavour, quality and reliability "SALADA" is supreme.

There will be a meeting of the Automobile Owners and prospective owners of Peterboro, City and County, on Friday evening, March 29th, at 8 o'clock sharp, in the Bank of Montreal Chambers, for the purpose of organizing a Peterboro Automobile Association. All interested are invited to be present.

WILL THIS SUMMER BE LIKE 1816?

(Written for the Examiner by Roy Gilray)

The coldness and backwardness of the season so far has been the theme of many serious conversations and the typical "oldest inhabitant" has been much in demand for comparisons of cold seasons in former years. Ninety-six years ago — 1816 — the northern parts of this continent, and also Europe, had a visitation of cold, which caused that year to be known as "the year without a summer," and as "the year of frost."

In the northern states frost, ice, and snow were common in June. Snow fell to the depth of ten inches in Vermont, seven in Maine, and three in Central New York. On the 5th of July, ice was formed of the thickness of common window glass. In August ice was formed half an inch thick. Indian corn was frozen so badly that the greater part was cut down for fodder. Indeed almost everything that was green was destroyed.

A similar state of things existed in England. During this whole season the sun's rays seemed to be destitute of heat.

In Pictou County, N.S., the frost was there in the month of June; provisions were high, and from the destruction of crops the previous year (1815) by mice, many were suffering, and nearly all farmers were put to great inconvenience for want of food for their families. The average wholesale price of flour in New England was $13.00 per barrel.

In Halifax, the price of flour was $15.00 per barrel, which Alexander Grant, a miller of Pictou, paid for 70 barrels. The flour was shipped from Halifax to Pictou, by water, and arriving on Saturday night, was stored in a barn owned by the late James Carmichael—father of the late Senator Carmichael—who had shortly before begun business where New Glasgow now stands. On Monday morning, before he reached the spot, there were as many assembled as there were barrels of flour, and no sooner was the door opened than a rush was made, and each man seized a barrel asking no question as to price, and it was with some difficulty that he saved one for his own family.

The year 1912 promises to be a record-breaker, as far as extremes of weather are concerned, and if the Trent Canal reservoir system is handled in a judicious manner, there should be a splendid flow of water the entire year.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

"BUNTY PULLS THE STRINGS."

"Bunty Pulls the Strings," Graham Moffatt's famous comedy of the Highlands, which has caused a furore all over the continent, was the attraction at the Grand Opera House last evening, ad drew the largest audience of the season, every seat in the theatre being occupied. There were many from outside the city present, people even coming down from Toronto for the occasion, and naturally there were may of Scottish descent in the audience. To these, in fact to everyone present, the comedy was altogether delightful and the production was enjoyed as few attractions have been in Peterborough. The quaint, dry humour of the lines, the simplicity and naturalness of the situations the skill in which the Scottish characteristics were portrayed, combined to make the presentation most appealing. There was a constant ripple of merriment among the audience that testified to the appreciation of the humour of the comedy.

It is not necessary in these columns to refer to the plot. So much has been printed in the newspapers concerning the play that the story of how Bunty Biggar "pulls the strings" to save her father from a second marriage, in to which he is being forced, and to settle things satisfactorily for her other friends and relatives, is already familiar. "Bunty" herself is a most admirable character, and the role was presented superbly last night by Miss Mollie McIntyre, whose pleasing presonality and sympathetic interpretation made her work altogether delightful. The cast throughout was most thoroughly adequate. Mr. Neil McNeil as "Rab" Biggar gave a very clever portrayal of the part. Mr. Ethelbert Hales made the role of "Thomas Biggar" thoroughly realistic and convincing, and William Lennox, as "Weelun Sprunt," was responsible for a good deal of the comedy. The other roles were in good hands and there was not a weak spot in evidence anywhere. The Compay had to take half dozen curtain calls at the end of each act.

OPPOSITE CUSTOM HOUSE

TWO MILLION DOLLAR SUBSIDY IS GRANTED

Dominion Government Pass the Ontario Railway Bill—Opposition Points Out That Either Road is Provincial and Has No Right to Federal Help, is National and Should be Amenable to Dominion Government.

Ottawa, March 29.—Ontario gets her $2,000,000 subsidy from the Dominion Government for the Temiskaming & Northern Ontario Railway. The bill providing for this was given its third reading and passed last evening, after the Opposition had expressed their disapproval in a debate lasting three hours.

Their main argument was that it was indefensible to grant a subsidy to a railway already constructed and paying its way, an argument which was replied to by the Premier to the effect that the road was not completed, and the line to Hudson Bay could not be expected to pay for some years at least. There was no reason, he said, why a subsidy should not be given to a Government-owned road that would have been given a private-built road.

When the House went into committee on the bill to grant a subsidy of about $2,000,000 to the Ontario Government for the T. & N. O. Railway, Hon. Frank Cochrane declared that, in the opinion of the chairman of the Dominion Railway Commission, there was no better constructed road-bed in America than the Ontario Government line. It had been of great advantage in the building of the National Transcontinental, said Mr. Cochrane, and he was certain that the subsidy saved to the N.T.R. by being able to use it in getting in supplies, would equal nearly half the subsidy to be granted.

If any province should undertake to build a road to open up its territory, he added, the policy of the Government was to grant it financial aid in such construction.

F. B. Carvell (Carleton, N.B.) argued that if the road were paying running expenses and interest on its bonds and, moreover, were not getting $300,000 or $400,000 a year additional from the Grand Trunk for running rights over its line, there was no justification for the proposed subsidy.

Hugh Clark (N. Bruce) declared that the T. & N. O. was a paying venture, but that made no difference. "We are making a tardy acknowledgment to the Government of Ontario for building that pioneer road," he said.

Rt. Hon. R. L. Borden said it would be difficult to maintain the position that the subsidies should not be granted provinces which would be granted to private companies. If the history of railway subsidies for the past twenty years were scrutinised, he thought they would find that subsidies had been granted for roads already constructed.

An application had been made by the Province of Ontario at the time the T. & N. O. was being constructed, but had been refused. Why should the Province of Ontario, he asked, be placed in a worse position because this principle of aid to Government-built railways was not recognized when the road was built?

The result of the principle advocated by the Opposition, he added, would mean that every subsidy granted by the Dominion should be given back if the road proved a success.

E. M. MacDonald (Pictou) claimed that the Premier was penurious to Nova Scotia, but was make a gift of $2,000,000 to Ontario.

Donald Sutherland (S. Oxford) resented the insinuation that the subsidy was a gift to Ontario. It was a mere matter of justice.

Dr. Clark (Red Deer) thought that if Ontario had been modest in the past, it would soon get over it under the present Minister of Railways. There was something to be said for the Ontario view.

W. H. Bennett (E. Simcoe): "The majority they gave."

"I did not think," Dr. Clark answered, "that my honorable friend from Simcoe would have so readily given me the ground on which to sow the argument I was about to make. Certainly if the principle, 'to the victors belong the spoils' were to obtain, Ontario should get the subsidy."

It was absolutely undefensible, however, he argued, to grant a subsidy to a road already built, and a paying proposition. The time was coming when the whole question of subsidies would have to be more carefully looked into.

E. B. Devlin (Wright) protested against the expenditure as an injustice to the other provinces, especially to his own Province of Quebec. The Government was afflicted with a surplus of $30,000,000 and were trying hard to get rid of it, but they had nothing for the building of the Georgian Bay Canal, which the late Government was just on the point of building before Sept. 21.

The Government, Sir Wilfrid Laurier said, were opening the door to consequences they did not realise. If the Province of Quebec, for instance, next year launched out into extravagant railway construction, what was to prevent them coming to the Dominion and demanding aid to help them out?

Either it was a provincial or a national road. If it was a provincial road, it had no right to the subsidy. If it were a national road it should be kept as a national road. If it were to be treated the same as a corporation railway, it should be treated as a corporation railway right along. It should not only claim the benefits, but should also assume the obligations of a Dominion subsidy.

Exit the Phosphorus Match.

Washington, March 29.—The bill by Representative Hughes of New Jersey, Democrat, virtually taxing out of existence the phosphorus match industry in the United States, was passed yesterday by the House after a heated debate. The vote, 163 to 30, was remarkable in that Minority Leader Mann was the only Republican who joined the Democratic opposition to the measure. The high death rate among workers in the phosphorus match factories of the country inspired the bill.

Besides imposing a prohibitive tax on phosphorus matches, heavy fines and penalties are provided for violations of the law. The exportation or importation of the matches also is forbidden. The main features of the law will go into effect on July 1, 1913, if the bill passes the Senate.

Set-back For Anti-Gamblers.

Providence, R.I., March 29.—A bill to establish a state police force, which the Republican platform in the last campaign advocated as a means to suppress gambling, was defeated in the House yesterday by a vote of 48 to 28. Governor Pothier, who recently began a crusade against gambling, had favored this bill.

The representatives from practically every town and city which the governor has visited in the course of his crusade, voted against the bill.

May Adjourn on Saturday.

Ottawa, March 29.—It is possible now that Parliament may adjourn by Saturday night. Splendid progress is being made in the House, and only a few bills remain to be disposed of. The Senate, by dint of working morning noon and night, have succeeded in catching up with the Commons, and yesterday afternoon, with the passing of the Grain Act, cleared their slate, and are waiting for more bills from the House.

BILL TO AMEND MARRIAGE ACT COMES UP FOR DISCUSSION

Bill Aimed at the Prevention of the Marriage of Misfits and Procreation of Idiots and Insane Persons.

SALARY FOR ADAM BECK

Toronto, March 29.—Two physicians occupied the spotlight in the Legislature last night, Dr. Forbes Godfrey (West York) introduced two bills aimed at the prevention of the marriage of misfits, and procreation of idiots and insane persons, and he had a noble supporter in Dr. McQueen, Liberal member for North Wentworth. Both stated they would stand or fall together with the proposed legislation. They fell.

Hon. W. J. Hanna and Sir James Whitney were quite profuse in the presentation of bouquets to the physician members, but the Provincial Secretary explained that such legislation could not possibly be adopted this session. The Government was not in readiness to adopt the measures provided in the bills. Dr. Godfrey, under these circumstances, withdrew both bills.

His amendment to the Marriage Act was intended to prevent insane persons from marrying and to compel the issuer of a license to secure a certificate from a qualified physician, that either of the parties are not insane, an epileptic or an imbecile. He also believed that tuberculosis was a further impediment to marriage, and he thought that the act should be amended in such a way as to prevent tuberculos people marrying. Another good thing to stamp out so much breeding of insanity was to compel three weeks' residence by the parties in the municipalities where the licenses were applied for.

There was one commendable feature in connection with the Marriage Act now in force. This was the fact that a contract of marriage was practically indissoluble. "There is a great weakness in the law, though," he said, "that is when anyone has enough money to buy a license a person is always ready to do the rest." During the session a bill was passed with regard to the breeding of a certain class of horses. If it is necessary to safeguard live stock it is more necessary to enact legislation to protect and develop human life."

Hon. Mr. Hanna spoke of the seriousness of the problem facing the Government. He agreed with a provision making it necessary for the contracting parties to live three weeks in the municipality where the license was applied for prior to its issuance.

Six thousand dollars per annum in future is to be paid Hon. Adam Beck for his services as chairman of the Hydro-Electric Commission. The announcement was made in the Legislature yesterday when Sir James Whitney introduced an act to amend the Power Commission Act, in order to allow Mr. Beck to receive remuneration for his services and still retain his seat in the House.

That public school inspectors will receive an increase of remuneration, from $1,700 to $2,000 per annum was the gist of an amendment to the Public School Act. The raise of salary will run over three years with an additional $100 each year. The bill, which was introduced by Hon. Dr. Pyne, also provided for vacation schools during the summer if school boards desire to establish them.

"It is a perfect disgrace that we should have toll roads in the Province of Ontario," declared Sam Clarke (West Northumberland), when the bill of Hon. Dr. Reaume respecting them was being considered in committee. The Minister of Public Works was asked by Mr. Clarke as to the number of toll gates in the province, to which he replied that he couldn't give a definite number, but there were only a few. "They should be stamped out," quoth Mr. Clarke.

Hereafter no telephone company, Bell or independent, will be able to get an exclusive franchise without the assent of the people. This is the effect of a bill introduced by Hon. I. B. Lucas, which was considered in committee. The proposed legislation had been before the House for some considerable time, but the acting Provincial Treasurer brought out an amendment regarding "exclusive franchises" yesterday. One purpose of it is to get some publicity as to the nature of the contract being entered into by the company and the municipality for the benefit of the people. A franchise may be granted with the approval of the municipal board, but it shall not be exclusive unless endorsed by the voters.

Further supplementary estimates, amounting to $769,740.25, were brought down yesterday afternoon.

The determination of the Government to develop Northern Ontario is shown by an item in these estimates for $183,101 for colonisation roads in the northern division of the province. Of this amount $15,000 has been set aside for Tisdale Township, where the Porcupine Goldfields are situated. The sum of $1,400 has been provided for a second assistant engineer for the good roads department, and an additional grant of $1,200 for the good roads branch of the Public Works Department.

That the new regulations of the revised Public Health Act will be enforced without delay is shown by an item of $25,000 to provide for ten district officers of health at $2,500 each. An additional $10,000 is provided for the expenses of these district officers at $1,000 each.

In the legislation department $100 is provided to increase the salary of the clerk assistant and clerk of routine, librarian $100.

An additional allowance of $500 is made to Crown Attorney Corley for City of Toronto commutation of fees.

Patriotism and allegiance to the throne is to be fostered and encouraged by having portraits of Their Majesties King George and Queen Mary given to the schools. To cover this expense $1,750 has been provided.

Suffrage Bill Is Refused

Window-Smashing Tactics Are Credited With Overwhelming Change of Feeling Among Parliamentary Men.

LAST ESCAPADE BLAMED

London, March 29.—By a vote of 223 to 208 the House of Commons last night rejected the conciliation bill, which was before the House on its second reading. This measure aimed at conferring the right to vote upon every woman possessed of the household qualification and would enfranchise 1,000,000 women.

The announcement of the result was received with deafening cheers. Last year a similar bill, introduced by Sir George Kemp, passed the second reading stage by a vote of 255 to 88 on a non-party division and was referred to a committee of the whole House, making no further progress. The astounding reversal in the views of the members which has since taken place is attributed to the strong resentment aroused by the window-smashing tactics of the militant suffragists.

The bill is a private measure, not backed by the Government, and in recording their votes the members were not restrained by party considerations.

The debate presented the novel spectacle of members of the Cabinet taking opposite sides. The Prime Minister strongly opposed the bill on the ground that there was no evidence that it was desired by a majority of either the men or the women of the country, and in his opinion the proposed change would be injurious to the best interests of women and fraught with the gravest consequences to future good government.

Sir Edward Grey, the Foreign Secretary, on the other hand, gave it as his opinion that the enfranchisement of women would neither injure the [illegible] the Home, but would benefit both, as had been proved in all countries where it had been tried.

Crowds of suffragettes were awaiting the result of the vote outside the House and strong forces of police were held in readiness for emergencies.

Although there is no doubt that resentment over the window-smashing resulted in the transfer of many votes which otherwise would have been given in favor of the conciliation bill, an analysis of the voting shows that its defeat in the final instance was directly due to the attitude of the Nationalists, not one of whom voted in its favor. Forty-one of the Nationalists voted against the bill and ten abstained from voting.

Senate Is Determined.

Ottawa, March 29.—To break the deadlock between the House of Commons and the Senate over the Highways Act, it is very possible a conference may be held between representatives of both parties from the two bodies. The Senate amended the Highways Act, and yesterday the Government refused to accept the amendment, and the bill was sent back to the Upper Chamber.

The Liberal Senators said last night they would not back down, and the measure, which is one of the most important and most popular of the session, will have to be dropped unless an agreement is reached. A million dollars has been placed in the estimates for the improvement of highways in Canada, and this item will have to be dropped unless the bill is passed.

Strike Situation Better.

London, March 29.—Acting on the advice of Lord Lansdowne to accept the situation, painful and humiliating though it is, all the Opposition amendments were either negatived or withdrawn, and the House of Lords last evening passed the third reading of the bill without division.

"INITIALS ONLY"

BY ANNA KATHARINE GREENE

"Unhappy truths cannot be long concealed. How soon does the doctor think my brother can bear these inevitable relations?"

"He said this morning that if his patient were as well to-morrow as his present condition gives promise of, he might be told in another week."

Orlando bowed his appreciation of this fact, but added quickly:

"Who is to do the telling?"

"Doris. Nobody else could be trusted with so delicate a task."

"I wish to be present."

Mr. Challoner looked up, suprised at the feeling with which this request was charged.

"As his brother—his only remaining relative, I have that right. Do you think that Dor—that Miss Scott, can be trusted not to forestall that moment by any previous hint of what awaits him?"

"If she so promises. But will you exact this from her? It surely cannot be necessary for me to say that your presence will add infinitely to the difficulty of her task."

"Yet it is a duty I cannot shirk. I will make him see that I both understand and shall insist upon my rights in this matter. But you may tell Miss Doris that I will 'fit out of sight, and that I shall not obtrude myself unless my name is brought up in an undesirable way."

The hand on the door-knob made a sudden movement.

"Mr. Brotherson, I can bear no more to-night. With your permission, I will leave this question to be settled by others." And with a repitition of his former bow, the bereaved father withdrew.

Orlando watched him till the door closed, then he too dropped his mask.

But it was on again, when in a little while he passed through the sitting-room on his way upstairs.

No other day in his whole life had been like this to the hardy inventor; for in it both his heart and his conscience had been awakened, and up to this hour he had not really known that he possessed either.

CHAPTER XXII.

WHAT IS HE MAKING.

Other boxes addressed to O. Brotherson had been received at the station, and carried to the mysterious shed in the woods; and now, with locked door and lifted top, the elder brother contemplated his stores and prepared himself for work.

He had been allowed a short interview with Oswald, and he had indulged himself in a few words with Doris. But he had left those memories behind with other and more serious matters. Nothing that could unnerve his hand or weaken his insight should enter this spot sacred to his great hope. Here genius reigned. Here he was himself wholly and without flaw;—a Titan with his grasp on a mechanical idea by means of which he would soon rule the world.

Not so happy were the other characters in this drama. Oswald's thoughts, disturbed for a short time by the somewhat constrained interview he had held with his brother, had flown eastward again, in silent love and longing; while Doris, with a double dread now in her heart, went about her daily tasks, praying for strength to endure the horrors of the week, without betraying the anxieties secretly devouring her. And she was only seventeen and quite alone in her trouble. She must bear it all unassisted and smile, which she did with heavenly sweetness when the magic threshold was passed and she stood in her invalid's presence, overshadowed though it ever was by the great Dread.

And Mr. Challoner? Let those endless walks of his through the woods and over the hills tell his story if they can; or his rapidly whitening hair, and lagging step. He had been a strong man before his trouble, and had the stroke which laid him low been limited to one quick, sharp blow he might have risen above it after a while and been ready to encounter life again. But this long drawn out misery was proving too much for him. The sight of Brotherson, though they never really met, acted like acid upon a wound, and it was not till six days had passed and the dreaded Sunday was at hand, that he slept with any sense of rest or went his way about the town without that halting at the corners which betrayed his perpetual apprehension of a most undesirable encounter.

The reason for this change will be apparent in the short conversation he held with a man he had come upon one evening in the small park just beyond the workmen's dwellings.

"You see I am here," was the stranger's low greeting.

"Thank God," was Mr. Challoner's reply. "I could not have faced to-morrow alone and I doubt if Miss Scott could have found the requisite courage. Does she know that you are here?"

"I stopped at her door."

"Was that safe?"

"I think so. Mr. Brotherson—the Brooklyn one, is up in his shed. He sleeps there now, I am told, and soundly, too, I have no doubt."

"What is he making?"

"What half the inventors on both sides of the water are engaged in just now. A monoplane, or a biplane, or some machine for carrying men through the air, I know, for I helped him with it. But you'll find that if he succeeds in this undertaking, and I believe he will, nothing short of fame awaits him. His invention has startling points. But I'm not going to give them away. I'll be true enough to him for that. As an inventor he has my sympathy; but — Well, we will see what we shall see, to-morrow. You say that he is bound to be present when Miss Scott relates her tragic story. He won't be the only unseen listener. I've made my own arrangements with Miss Scott. If he feels the need of watching her and his brother Oswald, I feel the need of watching him."

"You take a burden of intolerable weight from my shoulders. Now I shall feel easier about that interview. But I should like to ask you this: Do you feel justified in this continued surveillance of a man who has so frequently, and with such evident sincerity, declared his innocence?"

"I do that. If he's as guiltless as he says he is, my watchfulness won't hurt him. If he's not, then, Mr. Challoner, I've but one duty; to match his strength with my patience. That man is the one great mystery of the day, and mysteries call for solution. At least, that's the way a detective looks at it."

"May Heaven help your efforts!"

"I shall need its assistance," was the dry rejoinder. Sweetwater was by no means blind to the difficulties awaiting him.

CHAPTER XXXII.

TELL ME, TELL IT ALL.

The day was a grey one, the first of the kind in weeks. As Doris stepped into the room where Oswald sat, she felt how much a ray of sunshine would have encouraged her and yet how truly these leaden skies and this dismal atmosphere expressed the gloom which soon must fall upon this hopeful, smiling man.

He smiled because any man must smile at the entrance of so lovely a woman, but it was an abstracted smile, and Doris, seeing it, felt her courage falter for a moment, though her steps did not, nor her steady compassionate gaze. Advancing slowly, and not answering because she did not hear some casual remark of his, she took her stand by his side and then slowly and with her eyes on his face, sank down upon her knees, still without speaking, almost without breathing.

His astonishment was evident, for her air was strange and full of presage—as, indeed, she had meant it to be. But he remained as silent as she, only reached out his emaciated hand and, laying it on her head, smiled again but this time far from abstractedly. Then, as he saw her cheeks pale in terror of the task before her, he ventured to ask gently:

"What is the matter, child? So weary, eh? Nothing worse than that. I hope."

"Are you quite strong this morning? Strong enough to listen to my troubles; strong enough to bear your own if God sees fit to send them?" came hesitatingly from her lips as she watched the effect of each word, in breathless anxiety.

"Troubles? There can be but one trouble for me," was his unexpected reply. "That I do not fear—will not fear in my hour of happy recovery. So long as Edith is well—Doris! Doris! You alarm me. Edith is not ill;—not ill?"

The poor child could not answer save with her sympathetic look and halting, tremulous breath; and these signs, he would not, could not read, his own words had made such an echo in his ears.

"Ill! I cannot imagine Edith ill. I always see her in my thoughts, as I saw her on that day of our joyous look of a glad harmonious nature. Nothing has ever clouded that vision. If she were ill I would have known it. We are so truly one that—Doris, Doris, you do not speak. You know the depth of my love, the terror of my thoughts. Is Edith ill?"

The eyes gazing wildly into his, slowly left his face and raised themselves aloft, with a sublime look. Would he understand? Yes, he understood, and the cry which rang from his lips stopped for a moment the beating of more than one heart in that little cottage.

"Dead!" he shrieked out, and fell back fainting in his chair, his lips still murmuring in semi-consciousness: "Dead! dead!"

Doris sprang to her feet, thinking of nothing but his wavering, slipping life, till she saw his breath return, his eyes refill with light. Then the horror of what was yet to come—the answer which must be given to the how she saw trembling on his lips, caused her to sink again upon her knees in an unconscious appeal for strength. If that one sad revelation had been all!

But the rest must be told; his brother exacted it and so did the situation. Further waiting, further hiding of the truth would be insupportable after this. But oh, the bitterness of it! No wonder that she turned away from those frenzied, wildly-demanding eyes.

"Doris!"

She trembled and looked behind her. She had not recognised his voice. Had another entered? Had his brother dared—No, they were alone; seemingly so, that is. She knew,—no one better—that they were not really alone, that witnesses were within hearing, if not within sight.

"Doris," he urged again, and this time she turned in his direction and gazed, aghast. If the voice were strange, what of the face which now confronted her. The ravages of sickness had been marked, but they were nothing to those made in an instant by a blasting grief. She was startled, although expecting much, and could only press his hands while she waited for the question he was gathering strength to utter. It was simple when it came; just two words:

"How long?"

She answered them as simply.

"Just as long as you have been ill," said she; then, with no attempt to break the inevitable shock, she went on: "Miss Challoner was struck dead and you were taken down with typhoid on the self-same day."

"Struck dead! Why do you use that word, struck? Struck dead! she, a young woman. Oh, Doris, an accident! My darling has been killed in an accident!"

"They do not call it accident. They call it what it never was. What it never was," she insisted, pressing him back with frightened hands, as he strove to rise. "Miss Challoner was —" How nearly the word shot had left her lips. How fiercely above all else in that harrowing moment had risen the desire to fling the accusation of that word into the ears of him who listened from his secret hiding-place. But she refrained out of compassion for the man she loved, and declared instead, "Miss Challoner died from a wound; how given, why given, no one knows. I had rather have died myself than have to tell you this. Oh, Mr. Brotherson, speak, sob, do anything but—"

She started back, dropping his hands as she did so. With quick intuition she saw that he must be left to himself if he were to meet this blow without succumbing. The body must have freedom if the spirit would not go mad. Conscious, or perhaps not conscious, of his release from her restraining hand, albeit profiting by it, he staggered to his feet, murmuring that word of doom: "Wound! wound! my darling died of a wound! What kind of a wound?" he suddenly thundered out. "I cannot understand what you mean by wound. Make it clear to me. Make it clear to me at once. If I must bear this grief, let me know its whole depth. Leave nothing to my imagination or I cannot answer for myself. Tell it all, Doris."

And Doris told him:

"She was on the mezzanine floor of the hotel where she lives. She was seemingly happy and had been writing a letter — a letter to me which they never forwarded. There was no one else by but some strangers—good people whom one must believe. She was crossing the floor when suddenly she threw up her hands and fell. A thin, narrow paper-cutter was in her grasp; and it flew into the lobby. Some say she struck herself with that cutter; for when they picked her up they found a wound in her breast which that cutter might have made."

"Edith, never!"

The words were chokingly said; he swayed, almost falling, but he steadied himself.

"Who says that?" he asked.

"It was the coroner's verdict."

"And she died that way—died?"

"Immediately."

"After writing to you?"

"Yes."

"What was in that letter?"

"Nothing of threat, they say. Only just cheer and expressions of hope. Just like the others, Mr. Brotherson.

"And they accuse her of taking her own life? Their verdict is a lie. They did not know her." Then, after some moments of wild and confused feeling, he declared, with a desperate effort at self-control. "You said that some believe this. Then there must be others who do not. What do they say?"

"Nothing. They simply feel as you do. They see no reason for the act and no evidence of her having meditated it. Her father and her friends insist besides, that she was incapable of such a horror. The mystery of it is killing us all; we above others, for I've had to show you a countenance faint with my brain reeling and my heart like lead in my breast."

She held out her hands. She tried to draw his attention to herself; not from any sentiment of egotism, but to break, if she could, the strain of these insupportable horrors where so short a time before Hope sang and Life revelled in re-awaked joys.

Perhaps some faint realization of this reached him, for presently he caught her by the hands and bowed his head upon her shoulder and finally let her seat him again, before he said:

"Do they know of—of my interest in this?"

"Yes; they know about the two O. B's."

"The two—" He was on his feet again, but only for a moment; his weakness was greater than his will power.

"Orlando and Oswald Brotherson," she explained, in answer to his broken appeal. "Your brother wrote letters to her as well as you, and signed them just as you did, with his initials only. These letters were found in her desk, and he was supposed, for a time, to have been the author of all that were so signed. But they found out the difference after awhile. Yours were easily recognised after they learned that there was another O. B. who loved her."

The words were plain enough, but the stricken listener did not take them in. They carried no meaning to him. How should they? The very idea she sought to impress upon him by this seemingly careless allusion was an incredible one. She found it her dreadful task to tell him the hard, bare truth.

"Your brother," she said, "was devoted to Miss Challoner, too. He even wanted to marry her. I cannot keep back this fact. It is known everywhere, and by everybody but you."

"Orlando?" His lips took an ironical curve, as he muttered the word. This was a young girl's imaginative fancy to him. "Why Orlando never knew her, never saw her, never—"

"He met her at Lenox."

The name produced its effect. He stared, made an effort to think, repeated Lenox over to himself; then suddenly lost his hold upon the idea which that word suggested, struggled again for it, seized it in an instant of madness and shouted out:

"Yes, yes, I remember. I sent him there—" and paused, his mind blank again.

Poor Doris, frightened to her very soul, looked blindly for help; but she did not quit his side; she did not dare to, for his lips had reopened; the continuity of his thoughts had returned; he was going to speak.

"I sent him there." The words came in a sort of shout. "I was so hungry to hear of her and I thought he might mention her in his letter. Insane! insane! He saw her and — What's that you said about his loving her? He couldn't have loved her; he's not of the loving sort. They've deceived the whole world with fancies and mad dreams. He may have admired her, but loved her—no! or if he had, he would have respected my claims."

"He did not know them."

A laugh; a laugh which paled Doris' cheek; then his tones grew even again, memory came back and he mutter faintly:

"That is true. I said nothing to him. He had the right to court her—and he did, you say; wrote to her; imposed himself upon her, drove her mad with importunities she was forced to rebuke; and—and what else? There is something else. Tell me; I will know it all."

He was standing now, his feebleness all gone, passion in every lineament and his eye alive and feverish, with emotion. "Tell me," he repeated, with unrestrained vehemence. "Tell me all. Kill me with sorrow but save me from being unjust."

Doris paused; the sentence being suspended. She had heard a step—a hand on the door.

Orlando had entered the room.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

ALONE.

Oswald had heard nothing, seen nothing. But he took note of Doris' silence, and turning towards her in frenzy saw what had happened, and so was in a measure prepared for the stern, short sentence which now rang through the room:

"Wait, Miss Scott! you tell the story badly. Let him listen to me. From my mouth only shall he hear the stern and seemingly unnatural part I played in this family tragedy."

The face of Oswald hardened. Those pliant features—beloved for their gracious kindliness—set themselves in lines which altered them almost beyond recognition; but his voice was not without some of its natural sweetness, as, after a long and hollow look at the other's composed countenance, he abruptly exclaimed:

"Speak! I am bound to listen; you are my brother."

Orlando turned towards Doris. She was slipping away.

"Don't go," said he.

But she was gone.

Slowly he turned back.

Oswald raised his hand and checked the words with which he would have begun his story.

"Never mind the beginnings," said he. "Doris has told all that. You saw Miss Challoner in Lenox—admired her—offered yourself to her and afterwards wrote her a threatening letter because she rejected you."

"It is true. Other men have followed just such unworthy impulses—and been ashamed and sorry afterwards. I was sorry and I was ashamed, and as soon as my first anger was over went to tell her so. But she mistook my purpose and—"

"And what?"

Orlando hesitated. Even his iron nature trembled before the misery he saw—a misery he was destined to augment rather than soothe. With pains altogether out of keeping with his character, he sought in the recesses of his darkened mind for words less bitter and less abrupt than those which sprang involuntarily to his lips. But he did not find them. Though he pitied his brother and wished to show that he did, nothing but the stern language suitable to the stern fact he wished to impart, would leave his lips.

"And ended the pitiful struggle of the moment with one quick, unpremeditated blow," was what he said. "There is no other explanation possible for this act, Oswald. Bitter as it is for me to acknowledge it, I am thus far guilty of this beloved woman's death. But, as God hears me, from the moment I first saw her, to the moment I saw her last, I did not know, nor did I for a moment dream that she was anything to you or to any other man of my stamp and station. I thought she despised my country birth, my mechanical attempts, my lack of aristocratic pretensions and traditions."

"Edith?"

"Now that I know she had other reasons for her contempt, that the words she wrote were in rebuke to the brother rather than to the man, I feel my guilt and deplore my anger. I cannot say more. I should but insult your grief by any lengthy expressions of regret and sorrow."

"A groan of intolerable anguish from the sick man's lips, and then the quick thrust of his re-awakened intelligence rising superior to the overthrow of all his hopes.

"For a woman of Edith's principle to seek death in a moment of desperation, the provocation must have been very great. Tell me if I'm to hate you through life—yea through all eternity—or if I must seek in some unimaginable failure of my own character or conduct the cause of her intolerable despair."

PROMINENT RAILROAD MAN

STRONGLY ADVISES HIS FRIENDS TO TRY GIN PILLS FOR THE KIDNEYS

"I have been a Pullman Conductor on the C. P. R. and Michigan Central during the last three years. About four years ago, I was laid up with intense pains in the groin, a very sore back, and suffered most severely when I tried to urinate. I treated with my family physician for two months for gravel in the bladder but did not receive any benefit. About that time, I met another railroad man who had been similarly affected and who had been cured by taking Gin Pills, after having been given up by a prominent physician who treated him for Diabetes. He is now running on the road and is perfectly cured. He strongly advised me to try Gin Pills which I did,—with the result that the pains left me entirely.

"Caffeine"—the Drug in Tea and Coffee Hits Some Folks Hard

A few can stand it for a time, but sooner or later, most regular tea or coffee drinkers suffer from its effects.

It shows in a variety of forms, such as indigestion, nervousness, sleepless nights and dull brain.

Why trifle with drug beverages when you can have a pure wholesome, hot food-drink, such as

POSTUM

If you value sturdy health and a clear brain, the sensible thing is to quit tea and coffee, and use well-made POSTUM

A TROUBLE MAKER.

Tea and Coffee Poison Breeds Variety of Ills.

A California woman who didn't know for twenty years what kept her ill, writes to tell how she won back her health by quiting coffee: (Tea contains caffeine—the same drug found in coffee).

"I am 54 years old," she says, "have used coffee all my life and for 20 years suffered from indigestion and insomnia. Life was a burden and a drag to me all the time, and about once a year my ailments got such hold upon me that I was regularly 'sick in bed' for several weeks each time.

"I was reluctant to conclude that coffee was the cause of my trouble, but I am thankful that I found out the truth.

"Then I determined to use Postum exclusively—for a week at first—for I doubted my ability to do without coffee for any length of time. I made the Postum carefully, as directed, and before the week expired had my reward in a perceptible increase in strength and spirits.

"Seeing the good that my short experiment had accomplished, I resolved to continue the use of Postum, cutting out the coffee entirely. This I did for nine months, finding, daily, increased cause for gratification at my steadily improving health. My indigestion gradually left me, my sleep returned, I gained 26 pounds in weight, my colour changed from sallow to a fresh, rosy hue and life became a blessing.

"Then I thought I would try coffee again, and did so for a few weeks. The punishment for deserting my good friend, Postum, was a return of my old troubles.

"That taught me wisdom, and I am now and shall be all my life hereafter using Postum exclusively and enjoying the benefits it brings me." Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont.

"There's a reason," and it is explained in the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

Missionaries Heard From

Mr. A. Johnston, druggist of this city, is in receipt of the following letter from his daughter, Mrs. Hilford, who, in company with her husband is actively engaged in missionary work in the Sierra Leone district. This is the first intelligence that has been received from Mr. and Mrs. Hilford since their arrival at the mission station at Faranduga. Mrs. Hilford has a wide circle of friends in this city and the news of their safe arrival and the circumstances under which they live, will no doubt be of interest to their many friends here:

Faranduga, Feb. 11, 1912.
Sierra Leone

At last we have reached our new home and I wish you could see us. You could not imagine one any more different from our old home. The situation is beautiful, (please remember that there is one beautiful thing about it.) We are on the top of a high hill, and across a small valley there is the village. The hill is covered with burnt grass and a few shrubs, but there are no trees except two large cotton-woods, one on each side of the house about fifty feet away. We get a good breeze up here. They say that soon the desert winds, very fierce ones, will begin to blow.

The house is built of mud and stands about a foot off the ground on posts with large tin wash-basins, covered with tar inverted over them in order to keep the white ants or bug-gy-bugs out of the house. The roof of grass and extends over a verandah in front. The verandah is just the ground packed hard and has a mud wall about two feet high around it. At present we use it as a dining-room, kitchen and parlour, but when we have things finished we shall use it only as a place in which to receive the people.

There are three rooms in the house, but only one has a floor or a ceiling and this one we have as our bed room. Mr. Roseberry sleeps in a tent and Mr. Evans in a little shack. The floor is made of split poles and is covered with native mats, while the ceiling is a layer of palm poles laid on the rafters. Later we shall cover this with mats on the under side, and on the floor we shall have about six inches of mud and then linoleum. There are two windows in each room, those in our room are covered with wire netting and have small pieces of matting hung over them for blinds. There is only one door in the house and that also is in our room. This is the house as we found it, but of course it will be changed soon. We are to have the doors from the Tibadidugu house, as they do not intend to open that station again. Mr. Evans and Mr. Roseberry are going over there on Tuesday and will bring back every thing which will be useful and is moveable. They also have to find out the attitude of the king, because reports have reached us that he does not want us here; however, the chief here is very glad to have us. He favoured us with a state call last evening. We sat on a pile of poles out in the yard; he and two others sat on our steamer trunk and the rest sat on the ground. By the rest I mean about forty men who came with him.

We do not have very much worldly goods here, as carriers are difficult to obtain and so most of our stuff is still at Makomp, but we shall get it all in time. In the meanwhile we are leading the simple life for very obvious reasons. It is surprising how little is really necessary. We have two camp beds, a canvas wash basin and wash tub with a frame to hold them our two steamer rugs, one blanket, two single sheets, and a mosquito net, also five towels. There were a few dishes and cooking utensils here, but there is no stove. We just use a little bonfire for cooking and a mud oven on the ground for baking. There are two men who help me a little. Needless to say this is not a typical station. The down country stations are very nice and they did not want me to come up here until they had it fixed up somewhat, but I thought that Mr. Hilford could work better if I was here and I did not want to be away from him so long. Things are very rough, but I am glad that I came.

The men eat rice because it is the cheapest food, but I cannot eat it yet. It costs five cents a pound to have things brought up here and we have everything in small tins, which also increases the cost. I have flour in seven pound tins and sugar in four pound tins. We get bananas at three dozen for six cents, small native eggs at a cent a piece, and paw-paws, which are something like musk-melons, at a cent apiece also. The goats came through safely and Nanny gives a little milk now, but will of course give more when she gets over the effects of the long journey. Milk is about the most expensive thing we have to use and so it will be quite a saving when she milks well.

The rats are very bad here. Last night they made so much noise that we could not get to sleep for a long time. It sounded as if they were playing football with some tin cans over our ceiling. They enjoyed some of the rice with which the chief presented us, and while it was being digested, they pulled Mr. Hilford's boots around the floor. When Mr. Roseberry goes to Tibabidugu he is going to try to get a cat, as there is not one in this town. The people eat cats. There are a number of lizards in the house also, but I don't mind them much, because they eat flies.

Ever since I began to write there has been a crowd around to watch me. The people here are very bad thieves and we have to watch everything closely.

The trip up was a long and weary one, but it is over at last and I don't feel as if I shall want to go down country again until it is time to go home, but I suppose when council time comes I shall be glad to go. Until then I shall probably not see another white woman. I am the first white woman who has been stationed in this tribe for about ten years and the only one who has ever lived here. We left Makomp on Saturday morning, spent Sunday at Masumbiri, travelled two days to Bendugu, spent Wednesday there and reached here at noon yesterday. We made some heavy marches, sometimes getting up at four o'clock, sometimes travelling seven hours before dinner and all over very hilly country. There was a tremendous hill just this side of Masumbiri, which was almost too much for me, because I could not eat much and was a little weak, but it would have been hard for any woman. I was the first white woman who ever crossed it. During that same morning we crossed a stretch of country which I think must have been the path of a va stream. Nothing will grow there except one kind of grass and this had just been burnt off. Oh, it was hot; the sun just blazed down on us.

It is time for me to get supper, so I must close.

Lovingly yours,
GRACE HILFORD.

P.S. From Mr. Hilford.—Mrs. Hilford asked me to write a few words. We are here at last and really I am so glad that I do not know how to behave myself. You see we have been on the road for nearly six months now and I was quite homesick. Now we have our own little home once more, and though it is only a poor little mud house, we are quite happy. Our coming to Koronko country was a big surprise but a pleasant one. This is a very healthy section and you need have no fears along that line. We can see from five to twenty-five miles in all directions. Have a good water supply and a little later we will have a better food supply as well. We got our goats through safely, much to the surprise of Mr. Evans. They stood the trip very well, in fact Billy pulled us up the hills at times. A little later our flock will have increased and then we will be quite independent of the tinned milk supply. Soon our own hens will furnish the eggs and our pigeons will furnish squabs for the table. The hills abound with deer, buffalo, some elephants, etc., so we will get on nicely along those lines at least.

SERMONS IN SENTENCES.

Short prayers often last longest.

Friends do not freeze to a frozen heart.

Easy times often account for hard habits.

Nothing is really sacred until all things are.

Big plans do not balance small performances.

Short cuts to fortune are often bottomless cuts.

If wishes were wings good works would soon cease.

That soul is truly lost that gathers darkness of the light.

No man ever saw his Father by climbing over his brother.

Your rank among men depends on how you help them to rise.

The faint hearted are those who think only of feeding themselves.

Many think they are going forward bravely because they fear to go back.

There is sorrow without selfishness, but never selfishness without sorrow.—Turners Falls Reporter.

SURE TO HAVE ENEMIES.

Heaven help the man who imagines he can dodge enemies by trying to please everybody. If such an individual ever succeeds pass him over this way that we may look at his immortal remains ere he vanishes away, for surely this earth can not be his abiding place. Now we do not infer that one should be going through the world trying to find beams to knock and thump his head against disputing every man's opinion, fighting and elbowing and crowding all who differ from him. That again is another extreme. Other people have their opinions, so have you. Don't fall into the error of supposing they will respect you more for turning your coat every day to match the colour of theirs.—Mayetta, Kansas Herald.

FACE WAS LITERALLY COVERED WITH PIMPLES

Four Different Doctors Did Her No Good.

Two Bottles of BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS Cured Her.

Bad blood is directly the cause of the face breaking out in pimples, and it is impossible to eradicate them unless you put your blood into good shape

Burdock Blood Bitters is compounded from roots, herbs, barks and berries, and is without a doubt the best remedy procurable for the purpose of driving all the blood impurities out of the system.

Mr. Geo. E. Miller, Chevering, Ont., writes:—"Last fall I was very much troubled with pimples. My face was literally covered with them. I went to four different doctors, but they could do me no good. One day a friend advised me to use Burdock Blood Bitters, so I got two bottles, and before I had taken all the first one, the pimples had nearly all disappeared, and by the time I had taken all the second one the pimples had disappeared completely, thanks to Burdock Blood Bitters. I would advise anybody who is troubled with any blood trouble to use Burdock Blood Bitters.

THE FEMALE OF THE SPECIES.

When you go to buy a chicken for your Sunday evening meal,
Do not bu ya sturdy rooster with the spurs upon each heel;
Choose a pullet, you can tell it by the head dress without fail,
For the female of the species is more tender than the male.

When you buy a young canary to make music in your shack,
Do not take a lady songster, if it's singing that you lack;
Get a young and sturdy he bird if the man has one for sale,
For the female of the species cannot warble like the male.

If your wife is jealous of you, now and then this will occur,
And you're needing in your business an expert stenographer;
Hire a man ,and live in comfort, shun the doubts that blondes entail,
For the female of the species makes more trouble than the male.

CATS IN BRITAIN

John Burns' Scheme to Provide Homes for Poor Children

Rt. Hon. John Burns, president of the Local Government Board thinks that every women who keeps more than two cats ought to have a Poor Law child quartered on her. Apparently a good many children would be provided for in this way. An approximate census of animals compiled last year put the number of cats in the United Kingdom at 7,850,000—nearly as many cats as there are families. Germany, with a much larger population, has only 450,000 cats. In fact, they are so rare in that country that not long ago the "Frankfurter Zeitung" published an article pleading for "the rehabilitation of the cat," and deprecating the general prejudice against the animal. Incidentally, it was pointed out that kittens are good playmates for the children, which most English children have discovered for themselves.

GREAT AERIAL NAVIES

France and Germany Look Askance at Each Other and Build Aeroplanes

Hitherto there has been in Germany a rather labored affectation of indifference to the aerial enthusiasm of France. The systematic movement in progress west of the Rhine has been dubbed "air fever." A change in German sentiment has become apparent with the introduction of French government's comprehensive plans for military airmanship. Estimates of $8,000,000 for aeroplanes, airships and "squadrillas" were calculated to create a deep impression in Germany and there is now perceptible inclination to take the French preparations seriously. In fact, they are now getting on Germany's nerves. Count Reventlow is convinced that France's bid for mastery of the air denotes her intention to make war on Germany, to a "spirit of hostility against Germany and a lust of war unparalleled since 1870," and he indulges in heavy irony at the Republic's plans "to recapture Alsace-Lorraine by aeroplane."

Meanwhile, "Flugsport," a leading aerial periodical appeals to the Fatherland to emulate French national enthusiasm without delay, and to raise a great fund to be put at the disposal of the Army and Navy for aerial purposes lest France obtain unrivalled and unconquerable supremacy in the air. It must not be supposed that Germany is asleep in the domain of airmanship. She expects to have 400 qualified airmen within a year, with a corresponding number of flying machines, and her airship department is flourishing to an unwonted degree.

CAST AWAY AMID ISLAND SAVAGES

A VETERAN of the Deep Sea Recounts the Wreck of the Prudence, the Battles of Her Suffering Crew with Hostile Tribesmen and the Dramatic Rescue of the Survivors

CAPTAIN GEORGE HUBBARD, who tells the following story, was born in Falmouth, Mass., in 1833. After returning from his first voyage he prepared for Harvard University, where it was his intention to study law. He was graduated from the college and had passed a year in the Law School when the call of the sea overcame his preparations for study and he shipped again. His parents meanwhile had died and he had nothing to bind him to his home. With the passing of the old time sailing vessel Captain Hubbard lost his interest in the sea and settled down to a bachelor's life ashore. He is at present living in Riverside, Mass., a suburb of Holyoke. He does not care to live near the ocean, he says, for the sight and the smell of it wake the old longings in his heart.

BY CAPTAIN GEORGE HUBBARD.

(Copyright, 1911, by the New York Herald Co. All rights reserved.)

BEING the son, grandson and great-grandson of sea captains, it is by no means strange that from early boyhood I was swayed by a longing which amounted to a passion for the sea.

Among my earliest recollections is a trip with my father from our home in Falmouth to the old Nobska Light, whence we could see over the rim of the world, as it seemed to me, and watch the tall spindle masts slide down the other side, that other side the longing to see which made me restless from that time until at last I sailed by the old tower myself, until I watched its beacon grow dimmer and dimmer until just before it dropped out of sight behind the earth's edge it became as one of the stars.

I was just past seventeen when I shipped as cabin boy aboard the Prudence out of New Bedford, under Captain Standish Harrington, a great friend of my father, who was home at the time and promised to remain with my mother until my return.

Long previously it had been arranged that I should make my first voyage under the command of one not of our family, for my father wished me to learn the ways of the sea under some other who would not be likely to indulge favorites nor yet to go to the other extreme in efforts to be fair.
